KENT, OHIO (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Officials from the Edward J. DeBartolo Corporation announced that, as a result of cooperative pledges received from the Tri-County Building and Construction Trades Council -- AFL-CIO, they will cease pursuing tax abatement/industrial revenue bond financing as previously proposed for the planned University Town Center, a development of the DeBartolo Corporation and affiliates of Antonia Investments, Ltd.

Edward J. DeBartolo, chairman and chief executive officer for the nation's largest shopping mall development and management firm, stated, "We have worked very hard during the last three years to make this important project a reality. The uncertainty regarding tax abatement/site improvement financing, coupled with the potential delays this issue could cause, was preventing the completion of necessary anchor store and financing arrangements. Thanks to the assistance of the Tri-County Building and Construction Trades Council as well as our value engineering, we have now made this project economically feasible."

University Town Center will be Portage County's first comprehensive regional mall. The two-level facility will be built on the 50-acre site at the intersection of SR 43 and 261 in Kent. The mall will be anchored by three full-line department stores. Over 960 full-time employment opportunities are projected to be generated by its development.

The May Company as well as Higbee's have already announced commitments to open stores at the project in 1992. DeBartolo noted that these commitments to specific opening dates were important factors in proceeding on the project without further delay.

For their part in this agreement, The Building Trades Council has pledged that unions participating in the council will cooperate to minimize any work stoppages at the development and that they will assist in maintaining the completion timetable which has been outlined.

Henry A. Lay, chairman and chief executive officer of Antonia Investments, Ltd., whose affiliate is a partner in the development, stated that the other Portage County and city of Kent arrangements and proceedings have been completed. Construction of University Town Center will proceed as planned.

Lay noted the development is anticipated to generate more than $21 million in revenues for the county during the first 10 years of operation. The City of Kent will receive a projected $7.8 million in increased taxes during that same period. The Field School District, which was projected to receive increased revenues of $1.3 million over the first 10 years of operation under the tax abatement plan, is now expected to receive over $5.7 million.

The Edward J. DeBartolo Corporation's portfolio encompasses over 88 million square feet of commercial space. For nearly five decades, the coporation has master planned, developed and managed regional malls, community centers, office facilities, industrial parks, hotels and other ventures.

E.C. Roessler, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of CCB Financial Corporation, commented, "Our earnings results continue to be somewhat disappointing. This is a result of the slowed economy in our market areas and an increase in expenses. The economy has led to a higher than desired level of nonperforming assets. The increase in controllable expenses will benefit future earnings because these reflect more branches for our markets and a more efficient operations center. The other good news is a stabilization in our interest spreads and continued high levels of capital strength and liquidity."

LA JOLLA, CALIF. (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - LIDAK Pharmaceuticals (NASDAQ: LDAKU) announced today that it has received a Phase I grant from the National Institutes of Health under its Small Business Innovative Research (SBIR) Program. The $50,000 award will support applied research on a new delivery system for stimulating the body's immune defenses in eliminating malignant cancer cells.

For many years, scientists have attempted to devise effective means for stimulating the immune systems of cancer patients to specifically react with and destroy the patient's own tumor. While certain approaches have shown some promise, this approach has not yet been generally applicable in the cancer therapy field. This is because many cancers are only weakly antigenic and cancer cells often can avoid normal immunologic defenses by producing chemicals which interfere with and diminish the effectiveness of immune reactions. To avoid these problems, LIDAK scientists have been employing artificial membrane technology to elicit and enhance anti-cancer immune responses, and have recently demonstrated that such artificial membranes containing cancer antigens are very effective stimulators of anti-cancer killer cells in animal models.

In addition to its possible use as anti-cancer therapy, this technology, for which LIDAK is currently seeking patent protection, will, if successfully developed, also potentially be useful for increasing defenses against infectious viruses.

This is the second such award for the company. LIDAK previously received a Phase I National Institutes of Health SBIR award to pursue new strategies for developing human monoclonal antibodies.

LIDAK Pharmaceuticals is a biotechnology company organized to develop and commercialize innovative pharmaceutical products. The first is a patented, topical therapeutic compound which has produced positive results in volunteer human patients suffering from oral and genital herpes infections and certain inflammatory skin diseases.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Integrated Resources, Inc. today issued the following statement:

Investors in four public real estate limited partnerships were warned by the managing general partner of their partnerships, AIM Capital Management Corp., that the hostile takeover attempt of their funds by CRI Insured Mortgage Association, Inc., would reduce their returns and could cost them as much as 40 percent of the value of their investment. AIM Capital declared that the value of the CRI offer was already 30 percent below the funds' current market value.

The four American Insured Mortgage Investors funds, known as the AIM funds, with assets totaling more than $650 million, are invested chiefly in government-insured mortgages. AIM Capital is a subsidiary of Integrated Resources, Inc., currently in Chapter 11. AIM Capital is not in bankruptcy.

"From every viewpoint the CRI roll-up is costly and uneconomic," declared Stephen D. Weinroth, chairman of AIM Capital, in a letter to 65,000 unitholders of the AIM funds. He said that investors would incur higher fees and charges in the roll-up than CRI has represented.

Weinroth also contended that C.R.I., Inc., manager of CRI Mortgage, would be the principal beneficiary of the roll-up. He pointed out that roll-ups are a highly controversial investment vehicle now being investigated by the S.E.C. and a Congressional committee. "CRI does not put a dollar into the roll-up, but reaps the principal benefits. Investors bear all the costs and risks," said Weinroth.

In a filing with the S.E.C. detailing its analysis of the CRI proposal, AIM Capital warned unitholders that the proposed roll-up would be highly leveraged and pointed out that their current investments are not. It is estimated that CRI Mortgage could borrow an additional $800 million, if its current leveraging practices continue, on top of already substantial borrowings, said AIM Capital. This practice particularly benefits CRI, which collects fees based on the asset size of the roll-up vehicle. AIM Capital estimated that additional annual fees to CRI on the added borrowings would approximate $4 million.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS, MA (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - GZA GeoEnvironmental Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: GZEA) today announced its results for the quarter and the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990. For the second fiscal quarter, net revenue, the company's primary measure of business growth, was $9 million, 9.9 percent higher than the comparable period last year. Second quarter net income increased 8.1 percent to $748,000. Earnings per share for the quarter were 20 cents compared to 24 cents last year. Earnings per share comparisons during fiscal 1991 are adversely affected by the increased number of shares outstanding due to the company's initial public offering in July 1989.

For the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990, net revenue increased 15.2 percent to $17.8 million while net income rose 29.7 percent to $1.3 million. Earnings per share for the first six months of fiscal 1991 were 35 cents compared to 37 cents last year.

The company attributed higher revenue and earnings results to an increase in volume of the company's environmental consulting and geotechnical engineering services, and increased interest income attributable to investment of the proceeds of the company's initial public offering.

Commenting on second quarter results, Donald Goldberg, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said, "We are pleased with our performance in the second quarter despite the slowdown in the economy. Our core business remains strong, and the company is well-positioned to target new markets."

Goldberg commented further, "We continue to enjoy strong growth in our remediation subsidiary, Environmental Applications, Inc. In September, to support this growth, Environmental Applications acquired Grover Enterprises, Inc., an earthwork and general contracting firm that specializes in remediation services. We believe this acquisition will enhance Environmental Applications' cost-competitive position for environmental remediation projects and will allow the company to effectively compete for large projects and capture margins previously given to subcontractors. Over the past several months, Environmental Applications has, in fact, successfully bid several projects and increased its estimated backlog $5 million to approximately $14 million ($11.5 million of which is expected to be completed within 12 months). Our new subsidiary, Applied Environmental Technologies, Inc., which we acquired last December, has also helped us attract new business. In the second quarter, this new business included a pre-acquisition site assessment and regulatory audit of 30 chemical distribution facilities around the country, as well as a contract with the state of Michigan for facility audits statewide."

GZA GeoEnvironmental Technologies, Inc. provides a wide spectrum of environmental consulting and remediation services and geotechnical services to private sector companies and public agencies. The common stock of GZA GeoEnvironmental Technologies, Inc. is listed on the National Market System of NASDAQ, symbol GZEA.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - MCI Communications Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MCIC) today proposed a national program to protect consumers by improving and standardizing telemarketing practices in the telecommunications industry.

The proposal to create national telemarketing standards has been submitted to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

"There is growing concern that the process of choosing a long distance carrier be driven by informed choice of consumers, and not by deceptive sales or advertising practices of the long distance companies," Eugene Eidenberg, MCI executive vice president, said in announcing the plan. "The five-point plan we have presented to the FCC will create a national standard to protect consumers while still preserving the competition that has brought them better service in the long distance industry at lower prices."

MCI's plan calls for these five requirements:

1. Uniform, minimum disclosures in all sales solicitations.

2. Monitoring procedures to assure that telephone sales representatives adhere to approved procedures.

3. Verification of all sales by individuals independent of the carriers' sales organizations to ensure that the consumer has authorized a change in service.

4. Audits by independent, outside firms to assure conformance to each step of the procedure.

5. Free and convenient return to the original long distance carrier in the case of unauthorized service conversion.

"The new standards would supercede a proposal by AT&T now before the commission," Eidenberg said. "That proposal would require each customer to sign a form prior to being switched to their newly selected carrier.

"Such a requirement would significantly inconvenience customers who wished to switch their service and would reduce the competitive nature of the long distance business," Eidenberg said.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - BankAtlantic (NASDAQ-NMS: ASAL) has pulled its offering circular for the sale of six branch banking offices in Dade County, BankAtlantic President N. Mark Wright announced today.

"These are excellent branches for BankAtlantic and were only considered for sale because of the potential profit BankAtlantic anticipated generating on such a sale," commented Wright. "However, based on the branch inventory currently being offered for sale by the government's Resolution Trust Corporation, our potential buyers did not want to pay the premium that we believed these branches justified. In fact, during the past few months our innovative Positive Tiered checking/savings package has been so successful that deposits in this account category in each of our Dade County branches have increased substantially," said Wright.

"Important in today's strict regulatory environment is the fact that BankAtlantic continues to exceed all current capital requirements set by federal legislation," said Wright. "BankAtlantic's capital adequacy and improving core banking operations provide the foundation for a more aggressive presence in our tri-county marketplace, and particularly in Dade County where we hope to substantially increase our market share in coming months."

BankAtlantic's tangible capital was more than double the 1.5 percent regulatory requirement, and stood at 3.09 percent at June 30, 1990. Core capital was 3.14 percent of assets at that date, also in excess of regulatory requirements. On June 30, 1990, risk-based capital was 6.54 percent of assets which exceeds current regulatory requirements.

For the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, BankAtlantic reported an increase in net income to $138,000, or 4 cents per share, as compared to net income of $109,000 or 3 cents per share for the comparable period of 1989.

BankAtlantic, A Federal Savings Bank, has assets of $1.89 billion and 46 banking offices in Broward, Palm Beach and Dade counties. A public company since 1983, BankAtlantic's shares are traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the ticker symbol ASAL.

MIAMI (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd., the operating company for Royal Caribbean Cruise Line and Admiral Cruises, is introducing the world's first computerized cruise booking system during the 1990 ASTA World Congress.

Called CruiseMatch 2000, the system allows travel agents to book a Royal Caribbean or Admiral cruise the same way they now book airlines, rental cars and hotels -- by automated communication of availability direct to the agent's computer screen.

CruiseMatch 2000 offers real-time on-line booking information, the same inventory information displayed on the cruise lines reservation agents' screens: ship, sailing date, cabin availability, fares, payment schedules and more. The agent is able to book the appropriate ship, sailing date, cabin category, dining room seating, plus pre- and post-cruise land packages, then receive instant confirmation and agency specific pricing data via an assigned ID number. CruiseMatch 2000 also permits an agent to review or change previously confirmed bookings. Confidentiality is assured because the electronic system's unique security program prevents access to an agent's bookings by any other travel agency.

CruiseMatch 2000 will be available on several computer reservations systems: including System One, Worldspan-Datas II and Worldspan-Pars, at no extra cost to the travel agency. Participation on other computer reservations systems is currently being negotiated.

A personal computer (PC) version will also be available for agencies not connected to a computer reservations system. The PC version uses IBM-based programming and has been created especially for cruise-only agencies. It includes colorized deck plans with cabin category location and availability, as well as illustrations of various cabin categories and layouts. Also shown are itineraries, pre- and post-cruise land package information, booking policies, special pricing promotions -- in effect, the PC version of CruiseMatch 2000 becomes an "electronic brochure" offering all the information an agent needs to book a complete cruise vacation. The system even provides daily rate updates and alerts agents to new programs, special promotions, pricing and commission opportunities, new services and entertainment events.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Woolworth Corporation (NYSE: Z) said its wholly owned Canadian subsidiary, F.W. Woolworth Co. Limited, continues to maintain that it should be given an opportunity to bid on the proposed sale of The Oshawa Group Limited's Towers-Bonimart store chain.

Woolworth argues that completion of the proposed sale of the Towers- Bonimart chain to Zellers Inc., a subsidiary of the Hudson's Bay Company, "may have a serious anti-competitive effect" on Woolworth's Woolco-store business in Canada.

It was disclosed on Oct. 3 that Oshawa was considering the sale of the 51-store Towers-Bonimart chain to Zellers, a discount department store operator, but that the proposed transaction had not been consummated. On learning this, Woolworth sent a letter to Oshawa expressing surprise that Woolworth had not been given the opportunity to bid on the store chain and asking for the information that Oshawa had previously furnished to Zellers so that Woolworth could consider making its own bid for the chain.

Yesterday, Allister P. Graham, president of Oshawa, responded in a letter to Robert L. Whitell, president and chief executive officer of the Canadian Woolworth subsidiary, stating that Oshawa had "undertaken certain obligations" preventing it from disclosing information concerning its Towers-Bonimart operation or discussing with Woolworth a sale of that business.

Today, in a follow-up letter to Graham's Oct. 10 letter, Whitell states his concern about Oshawa's "participation in a transaction with Zellers which, if consummated, may have a serious anti-competitive effect" on Woolworth's Woolco-store business.

The Canadian Woolworth subsidiary operates 146 Woolco full-line promotional department stores in Canada, in addition to some 316 other general merchandise and specialty stores.

In addition, Whitell's Oct. 11 letter asks, in fairness to Woolworth and Oshawa's shareholders, that Oshawa's board of directors do what is necessary, without violating Oshawa's obligations, to enable Oshawa to provide Woolworth with the information concerning the Towers-Bonimart operation that Woolworth had requested in its Oct. 3 letter.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Geriatric & Medical Centers, Inc. (NASDAQ: GEMC) today reported the filing of its audited financial statements, compliance with financial covenants in its loan agreements, and an 11.0 percent increase in net revenues for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1990.

Net revenues for fiscal year 1990 increased to $128,623,000, compared with $115,875,000 reported last year. Net income for the year was $6,228,000, or $.65 per share, compared with a net loss for fiscal 1989 of $8,761,000, or $.92 per share. Net non-operating income, primarily from the sale of facilities in fiscal 1990, was $10,479,000, compared with $4,269,000 in fiscal 1989. The results for fiscal 1990 include a charge of $1,300,000 related to expense provisions for additional reserves for Medicaid audit adjustments and a settlement of city business use and occupancy tax assessments.

Daniel Veloric, chairman and president of Geriatric & Medical Centers, stated, "Improvement in year-end operating results before interest is attributable to continued growth and profitability of the company's home care services segment and improved performance in our health care support services segment which resulted from higher reimbursement at our long-term care facilities and increased revenues from contract management services."

Veloric further stated, "As a result of an Oct. 9, 1990 settlement with the Commonwealth, the company will receive final and interim payments of approximately $3,500,000 related to its third-party receivables, and will pursue the collection and settlement of approximately $6.5 million of such receivables for fiscal years 1986 through 1990."

The company and the commonwealth reserved the right to contest, defend or appeal the $6.5 million of remaining issues, including $2.2 million presently under appeal by the company. As a result of the settlements with the commonwealth and the city, and a waiver from the company's primary lenders regarding non-compliance with certain financial reporting covenants in its loan agreements, the company has obtained audited financial statements for fiscal 1990. As previously reported, the commonwealth had sought audit adjustments to cost reports for fiscal years ended 1986 and 1987 which, if extended on the same basis to periods commencing after fiscal 1987, could have resulted in an adjustment to income of up to $10 million. The city business use and occupancy tax assessments also could have resulted in a charge to net income of up to approximately $2.1 million.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Control Data Corporation announced today an agreement in principle to sell its VTC bipolar semiconductor operation to a VTC management team led by Larry E. Jodsaas, president of VTC, and Gregory A. Peterson, its vice president of finance. Closing is expected by the end of October. Terms were not disclosed.

The new company will continue to be known as VTC. It will have annual sales in excess of $30 million. Jodsaas will be chairman and chief executive officer of VTC, and Peterson will be vice president and chief financial officer.

Approximately one-half of VTC's workforce of 400 employees will become part of the new VTC. The bipolar operation will continue in its present facility in Bloomington, Minn.

The other half of VTC's workforce will remain with the high- performance CMOS integrated circuit operation. Control Data continues to support current CMOS customers and to actively pursue a buyer for this unit. It is speaking with several parties at this time. However, if a buyer cannot be found in the near future, the CMOS operation will be closed. Jodsaas will continue to manage the CMOS operation for Control Data.

Neither the sale of the VTC bipolar operation nor the sale or closure of the CMOS operation will have a material effect on Control Data's earnings. An adequate reserve was established in the fourth quarter of 1989 to cover expenses associated with these transactions.

DULUTH, GA (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - The Gwinnett Daily News formally dedicated its new $40 million office and printing facility in ceremonies here Thursday.

State and Gwinnett County officials and dignitaries gathered at the 148,000-square-foot facility located along Interstate 85 just south of Pleasant Hill Road for the dedication and reception.

Gwinnett Daily News Publisher, Tom Jones was joined by Georgia Gov. Joe Frank Harris; Arthur O. Sulzberger, chairman of the board of The New York Times Co.; Gwinnett County Chairman Lillian Webb and Daily News founder Robert D. Fowler in ribbon cutting ceremonies.

Sulzberger, who is also publisher of The New York Times, announced during the ceremonies that the Daily News would launch a major "reading is fundamental program" in Gwinnett County. A Daily News task force will work closely with local education leaders to shape the program and The New York Times Company Foundation will provide funds to assist in the program, Sulzberger said.

In welcoming remarks, Daily News Publisher Jones noted the occasion marked not only the dedication of the state-of-the-art facility, but the 25th anniversary of the Daily News.

"We believe our new building is actually a monument to the tremendous growth and progress Gwinnett County has enjoyed in the last decade. The Daily News is proud to have been part of Gwinnett's past for the last 25 years and we look forward to being in the vanguard of the county's bright future," Jones said.

Gov. Harris said the newspaper's growth -- to the fifth largest circulation daily in the state -- mirrors what's happening in Georgia. The Georgia governor said that Georgia will become a national story with major events including the Centennial Summer Olympic Games coming to the state.

He said the Daily News "will play a major role in how our city and state is perceived."

Sulzberger, the keynote speaker, said the new Gwinnett facility would allow the Daily news to better meet the needs of readers and advertisers.

He noted the "phenomenal" growth of the Daily News -- with daily circulation increasing by 89 percent daily and Sunday 51 percent -- since the Times Company made its acquisition in 1987.

Sulzberger said the Daily News circulation proves that people will buy a quality newspaper and that the day of the daily newspaper is far from over.

"Indeed, I hold that history will claim this era not to be that of electronic journalism, but rather of the reflowering of the daily printed work," he said.

Sulzberger noted, however, that literacy remains a critical problem for the nation.

"Too often we look upon our schools as some form of holding pen where kids can be parked for the day, rather than centers of education. And with that mentality, we fail to adequately recognize or compensate our teachers," the Times chairman said.

The new Gwinnett facility is located in the Hampton Green office park in Duluth and houses approximately 400 employees.

The move from Lawrenceville to the Duluth facility in January 1990 more than doubled the newspaper's production capacity. The new plant includes $13.3 million state-of-the-art Goss Colorliner presses. Only a handful are in operation in the United States.

The facility, located on 20 acres, was constructed by A.R. Weeks & Associates.

Such systems are used for automatic train control, to improve the tracking of freight shipments, and for other applications which improve the efficiency of equipment utilization and customer service levels by railways. Amtech's radio frequency identification technologies, which allow accurate identification of and communication with tagged vehicles or other objects at high speeds and in harsh industrial environments, will be the basis of the systems.

The agreement comes at a time when the Union Internationale des Chemins de Fer (UIC) is finalizing a European standard for automatic identification (AEI) of rail wagons. Additionally, the AEI committee of the Association of American Railroads approved a North American standard based on Amtech technologies in Sept. 1990. Amtech also has an ongoing agreement with the Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer (SNCF), the French national railway, for development of advanced radio frequency identification products for the French rail network.

Pursuant to the agreement announced today, Siemens, Alcatel and AMtech will collaborate on a common technical solution compatible with the UIC Standard and based on Amtech technologies. They also agreed to enter into formal discussions leading to the manufacture of such systems in Europe.

Siemens and two of the Alcatel units, Stuttgart-based Alcatel SEL (Standard Elektrik Lorenz AG) and Alcatel Austria, are each world leaders in the field of electronic systems for transportation industries. CHICAGO (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - First Federal Capital Corp. (NASDAQ: FTFC) announced today that it intended to take various actions pursuant to an aggressive effort to reduce problem assets. The anticipated actions include write-downs and increased loan loss provisions on various loans and investments in real estate which are intended to reduce the carrying value of such assets to fair market value under current economic conditions. Substantially all of these write-downs and provisions relate to previously disclosed loans and investments in real estate and are in certain cases reflective of current negotiations relating to the potential sale of these assets.

Thomas W. Schini, president and chief executive officer of the company, stated that "although exact amount of the write-downs and provisions has not yet been determined and could be affected by current efforts to dispose of certain assets, we anticipated that they will approximate $8 million on a pre-tax basis and that the quarterly loss will be approximately $7 million. These actions, in combination with the decisions in the previous quarter to substantially increase the Company's general reserves for loans and real estate losses, are intended to anticipate actions that likely would have been necessary in future quarters as the company seeks to reduce its problem assets. Throughout this process, our emphasis is to raise shareholder value over the long term by minimizing asset quality concerns, thereby improving the quality and predictability of our earnings. Future earnings will be further enhanced by tax benefit carry-forwards derived from this course of action." Schini further noted that the company's banking subsidiary, First Federal Savings Bank La Crosse-Madison, "would continue to be in compliance with all currently applicable regulatory capital requirements after the quarterly results, and should, as well, meet all such requirements which are scheduled to be phased-in in future years." Regulatory limitations, however, will prevent the Bank from paying dividends to stockholders, until such time as the Bank meets regulatory requirements for dividend distribution.

First Federal Savings Bank La Cross-Madison conducts business from its headquarters and main office in LA Crosse, Wis. and 22 consumer banking offices and four loan origination facilities in western and south central Wisconsin.

DALLAS (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Elcor Corp. (NYSE: ELK) today reported lower earnings on virtually flat sales for its first quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990. The company also indicated that results for its seasonally slower second quarter could be lower than the same period last year.

Roy E. Campbell, president, said, "Increased earnings from premium laminated fiberglass asphalt shingles and licensing of cryogenic patents were offset by lower results from concrete tile roofing products and industrial products during the company's first quarter. In addition, earnings in last year's first quarter benefited from nonrecurring income received from payment of a patent infringement award."

FIRST QUARTER RESULTS For the first quarter ending September 30, 1990, sales were $43,345,000 compared with $43,443,000 a year ago. Income before extraordinary item of $570,000, or 8 cents per share, was down from $2,197,000 or 31 cents per share, and net income of $864,000, or 12 cents per share, was down from $3,328,000, or 47 cents per share, last year. Net income this year included a tax loss carryforward extraordinary item of $294,000, or 4 cents per share, compared to $1,131,000, or 16 cents per share, in the year-ago quarter. First quarter earnings last year included payment of a patent infringement award of about $1.6 million before tax, or 15 cents per share income before extraordinary item, and 23 cents per share net income.

Long-term debt of $44.5 million was up from $36.5 million in the year-ago quarter, primarily as a result of increased working capital to enhance service and support record shipments of Elk Prestique(R) premium laminated fiberglass asphalt shingles. Long-term debt, however, declined $2 million from June 30, 1990, and is expected to show a further seasonal decline at Dec. 31, 1990.

OPERATIONS Campbell said, "Roofing products sales rose 5 percent as a result of record demand for our Elk Prestique premium laminated fiberglass asphalt shingles, offset in part by lower sales of Gory concrete roof tile. Asphalt roofing prices increased in the September quarter from the June quarter and were higher than the year-ago September quarter. Price increases were implemented on Sept. 1, 1990, and Oct. 1, 1990, and we have informed our customers that a further price increase is planned for Nov. 1, 1990. These price increases should cover actual and anticipated cost increases for asphalt and transportation."

Campbell continued, "Demand for Gory roof tile has slowed since last October, as new construction starts have declined in the southern Florida area. As a result, sales in this year's first quarter were well below the much higher level a year ago. Sales are expected to remain soft until the Florida residential housing market improves. Until then, some operating losses are likely for Gory. We are cutting costs to reduce the impact on earnings.

"Industrial Products sales decreased about 22 percent from the year- ago level primarily from lower sales of Mosley solid waste balers and recycling equipment. Based on orders in hand, Mosley sales, however, should show a good pickup in the second quarter. Chromium Corp.'s sales were also lower, and both units had an operating loss during the quarter. We are focusing efforts on the changes needed to improve results as the year progresses.

"Increasing demand from major American and Japanese computer manufacturers for Chromium's Conductive Coatings Compushield(TM) protective finishes should benefit fiscal 1991 second-half results. In addition, higher oil prices should stimulate consulting and patent licensing opportunities for Ortloff Engineers, Ltd.," Campbell said.

LOOKING AHEAD "At the present time, the situation with Iraq and the lack of a federal budget resolution are creating significant economic uncertainties. In this environment, it is difficult to forecast the potential impact of these unknowns on all of our businesses. With our moving into a seasonally slower second quarter, we expect that earnings may be lower than the year-ago quarter and we could have a loss during the quarter. Although we are focusing on areas to improve our operating results, we will continue new product development efforts needed to expand our sales and profit opportunities. We expect second-half results should benefit from the growing sales of new products," Campbell concluded.

Results of operations for the three months and trailing 12 months ending Sept. 30, 1990 and 1989, are as follows:

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - CCAIR, Inc. doing business as USAir Express (NASDAQ-NMS: CCAR) announced today that its Board of Directors has approved a management proposal to maximize profitability of the Company's route system, which will go into effect on November 1, 1990. The plan includes a reduction in the number of planes leased by the Company and the elimination of approximately 25 percent of the Company's 670 personnel. Company representatives discussed the company's plans in meetings with USAir officials earlier in the week.

The company also announced that a Search Committee, composed of two Board members, was formed to interview candidates to fill the position of President to oversee day-to-day operations and the continued improvement in operations afforded by the reorganization plan initiated by Roy H. Hagerty, Chairman and President of CCAIR.

CCAIR, under contract with USAir, provides regularly scheduled air service between Charlotte, North Carolina and 23 cities in North and South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. The downsizing plan reduces the frequency of daily scheduled flights in 16 of the 23 cities. Mr. Hagerty emphasized that the regional airline will continue to provide service to all of the markets it now serves and has eliminated only scheduled flights with minimal profitability. CCAIR's current flight schedule of 230 departures will be reduced to 175 departures on November 1, 1990.

Presently, CCAIR operates 29 turboprop planes. The plan provides that on November 1, 1990 seven of those planes will be taken out of service and returned to the Company's lessors. These are in addition to two planes that were decommissioned recently and returned on October 1, 1990.

On July 5, 1990, CCAIR filed a bankruptcy petition under Chapter 11 in Charlotte. Mr. Hagerty stated, "The downsizing plan adopted by the Board of Directors forms the basis of our reorganization plan which we feel confident will be favorably received.

"The Chapter 11 bankruptcy process demands a great deal of time and attention of top management," said Mr. Hagerty. "Bringing in another experienced operating executive will position us well to get through that process and to lay plans for future growth and profitability."

SEATTLE (OCT. 11) PR NEWSWIRE - Boeing Commercial Airplanes and Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. today agreed to a new contract through June 1995, that will extend Lockheed's current sheet metal contract as well as add new work in spar chord and small assembly production.

"Our close relationship with Boeing goes back to the 1950s when we were building B-47s in our Marietta factory," said LASC Executive Vice President Bard Allison. "They are a super company to work for, and we hope to perform as their subcontractor for years to come."

In announcing the contract, Boeing Vice President of Materiel Jim Blue said his company has been very satisfied with the work performed thus far by LASC.

"They have a proven track record in producing quality parts on time," Blue said. "We know we can depend on Lockheed, and we are pleased to be able to expand the work they are performing for us."

Manufacture of the 737 spar chords involves complex machining operations and will be done in LASC's unique long parts processing facility. The parts will be machined on modern, highly automated long bed gantry profilers recently installed by the company. These machines, with four multi-axis cutting heads operating simultaneously, are ideally suited for production of 737 spar chords.

The contract also calls for assembly of small parts for 747 and 767 aircraft.

Over the past two years, LASC has produced more than 1 million sheet metal parts for all Boeing's 700-series aircraft under the current contract. More than 10,000 different parts are identified for possible production, with an average volume of 600,000 parts being produced annually.

No value was given for the contract.

MOSCOW (OCT 11) TASS - THE SOVIET PRESIDENT'S ECONOMIC PROGRAMME ENVISAGES CUTTING BY THREE TIMES THE ROUBLE'S EXCHANGE RATE VIS-A-VIS THE U.S. DOLLAR, MAKING EACH DOLLAR WORTH 1.8 ROUBLES, DEPUTY CHAIRMAN OF THE USSR STATE FOREIGN ECONOMIC COMMISSION IVAN IVANOV TOLD THE PARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEE FOR SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT OF UNION AND AUTONOMOUS REPUBLICS TODAY.

THE COMMITTEE CONSIDERED THE GOVERNMENT BILL ON CURRENCY REGULATION WHICH WILL SOON BE SUBMITTED TO PARLIAMENT FOR CONSIDERATION.

ACCORDING TO IVANOV, THE NEW EXCHANGE RATE WILL BE INTRODUCED BY PRESIDENTIAL DECREE. EARLIER THIS WEEK, CHAIRMAN OF THE USSR GOSBANK BOARD VIKTOR GERASHCHENKO ANNOUNCED THAT "THE NEW ROUBLE'S EXCHANGE RATE FOR FOREIGN TRADE OPERATIONS WOULD AMOUNT TO ABOUT TWO ROUBLES A DOLLAR, STARTING THIS YEAR".

THE NEW EXCHANGE RATE IS EXPECTED TO MAKE EXPORTS MORE PROFITABLE FOR SOVIET PRODUCERS AND FACILITATE THE STREAMLINING AND RESTRICTION OF IMPORTS, WHICH HAVE BEEN GROWING RAPIDLY SINCE SOVIET ENTERPRISES WERE GRANTED THE RIGHT OF FREE ACCESS TO THE FOREIGN MARKET.

ASKED HOW THE NEW EXCHANGE RATE WAS ARRIVED AT, IVANOV SAID THE ROUBLE'S PURCHASE CAPACITY WAS ASSESSED TAKING INTO ACCOUNT THE ENTIRE RANGE OF SOVIET EXPORT COMMODITIES. THE CALCULATIONS WERE MADE ON THE BASIS OF NEW WHOLESALE PRICES, WHICH THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT WORKED OUT IN THE SPRING AND ASKED PARLIAMENT TO MAKE EFFECTIVE FROM JANUARY 1, 1991.

IN MAY, THE PARLIAMENT REJECTED THE GOVERNMENT PLAN FOR THE TRANSITION TO A MARKET, SAYING THE PLAN WAS CENTERED AROUND HIGHER PRICES AND ENVISAGED NO COMPREHENSIVE MARKET MECHANISM.

IVANOV NOTED THAT THE ROUBLE'S EXCHANGE RATE FOR SOVIET AND FOREIGN CITIZENS WILL REMAIN AT THE PRESENT LEVEL OF SIX ROUBLES PER ONE U.S. DOLLAR.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (OCT. 11) UPI - The shuttle Discovery appears to be in good shape after its ground-shaking launch and fiery re-entry, officials say, setting the stage for launch of the shuttle Atlantis next month on a military mission.

Discovery and its five-man crew glided to a picture-perfect Mojave Desert touchdown Wednesday to close out a four-day mission highlighted by the successful deployment of the European-built Ulysses probe on a $750 million voyage to study the uncharted poles of the sun.

NASA officials said the 36th shuttle mission was near perfect, a morale-boosting success after a long summer of setbacks, repeated delays and constant criticism over problems with the Hubble Space Telescope and other agency programs.

''I'm elated. It's been a long, hot summer ..., and it's nice to be back flying again,'' shuttle program director Robert Crippen said. ''It is a high day for us.''

He said Discovery appeared to have come through the 1.7 million-mile mission in excellent shape with only a handful of minor ''dings'' to its fragile heat-shield tile system. A more thorough assessment was expected Thursday.

Discovery's flight was NASA's first in more than five months because of elusive hydrogen fuel leaks that grounded the shuttles Columbia and Atlantis in May, July and September. Atlantis has since been repaired, but Columbia remains grounded.

If all goes well, Atlantis will be hauled to launch pad 39A at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida starting at midnight EDT Thursday for work to ready the ship for blastoff around Nov. 7 on a secret military mission.

Columbia, meanwhile, will be subjected to more tests to pinpoint the hydrogen fuel leak that has grounded the ship all summer.

Atlantis was damaged last week when a 70-pound, 9-foot-long beam fell through the ship's engine room as the ship was hoisted into the vertical launch position. But Crippen said Wednesday repairs are not expected to delay the mission.

In the meantime, NASA officials celebrated the successful conclusion of Discovery's mission.

Commander Richard ''Dick'' Richards and co-pilot Robert Cabana were at the controls as Discovery dropped out of the Mojave Desert dawn and gracefully glided to a smooth touchdown on concrete runway 22 at 6:57 a.m. PDT.

''Wheels stopped, Houston,'' Richards radioed mission control after the black-and-white spaceship rolled to a standstill.

''Copy, wheels stopped, Discovery. The rest of your team is glad to have you back (and) to have the fastest man-made object in the universe well on its way '' said astronaut Brian Duffy from Houston, referring to Ulysses. ''Congratulations on a picture-perfect mission.''

Richards, 44, Cabana, 41, William Shepherd, 41, Bruce Melnick, 40, and Thomas Akers, 39, flew back to Houston Wednesday afternoon. Before leaving, Richards took a moment to express his views about NASA's recent problems.

''Like any great team, occasionally there are losing streaks and I've thought over the last few months that's what NASA has been going through,'' Richards told supporters at Edwards.

''But the fact that we launched on time, the right way - the safe way - and got everything done, I think today is the day we can say this losing streak is over and we're going to go on and do great things in the future.''

Earlier, Crippen echoed Richards sentiments, telling reporters, ''If you criticize our mistakes then you must also acknowledge our successes. And the mission of Discovery for the Ulysses deployment was indeed a success.''

Richards and company accomplished the primary goal of the flight when they successfully deployed the European Space Agency's Ulysses probe Saturday on a $750 million flight over the poles of the sun. A three- stage rocket then boosted the probe away from Earth at a record velocity of 34,130 mph.

Ulysses is not equipped with a camera and its orbit will never carry it closer than about 120 million miles to the sun but its instruments will give astronomers their first three-dimensional glimpse of Earth's star, its complex magnetic field and the tenuous solar wind.

(OCT. 11) UPI - Tropical Storm Marco aimed its 65-mile-an-hour fury at the Gulf coast of Florida Wednesday night. Forecasters say the storm is expected to come ashore between Fort Myers and Sarasota sometime during the night ... bringing much-needed rain to the central part of the drought-stricken state. At last report, Marcos was 35 miles southwest of Fort Myers and moving northeast at 10 miles-an-hour. .

The National Hurricane Center in Miami is also keeping an eye on Hurricane Lili, which appears to be headed for Bermuda. The latest report placed Lili about 450 miles east of Bermuda and moving west at near 20 miles-an-hour. Its top winds were clocked at 75 miles-an-hour... one mile an hour above the hurricane threshhold.

A planeload of Westerners... mostly Americans... is on its way to London. The State Department says the chartered jetliner left Baghdad, Iraq, Wednesday evening with 378 women and children aboard who had been trapped in Kuwait. The airlift is the 10th of Western hostages since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait... and the first in more than two weeks. The flight will continue on to Raleigh, North Carolina, Thursday.

In South Africa, 21 political prisoners were freed Wednesday. It's the largest mass release of convicted members of the African National Congress since the government lifted a 30-year ban on the movement in February, and ordered black leader Nelson Mandela freed. Following Wednesday's releases, the A-N-C demanded the immediate release of all its members being held for politically motivated crimes.

(OCT. 11) UPI - Forecasters warn that Tropical Storm Marco may spawn tornadoes as it moves across central Florida. The storm and its 65-mile-an-hour winds... centered 30 miles west of Fort Myers... are expected to move ashore somewhere between Fort Myers and Sarasota by daybreak. In addition to tropical storm warnings along the Gulf coast, warnings have been posted for the east coast of Florida from Vero Beach northward to Fernandina Beach.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says President Bush will meet with key congressional Republicans Thursday. Fitzwater says the meeting will take place at the White House, where he says Bush primarily will listen to what lawmakers have to say about the budget. He says he DOESN'T think the president will take a stand ''one way or the other'' on the divisive combination of higher tax rates for the rich, and capital gains cuts.

Congress got down to brass tacks Wednesday as it began filling in the specifics in the budget agreement passed earlier. The House Ways and Means Committee O-K'd a deficit-reduction plan that would cut Medicare 10-BILLION dollars less than was proposed by the bipartisan budget summit. It would also raise gasoline taxes a penny less than was proposed. .

In the Senate, lawmakers killed a proposed cut in Social Security taxes Wednesday. The rejection followed a warning that the reduction would deny the national treasury more than 150-BILLION dollars in revenues and would virtually torpedo any budget agreement.

Iraq's ambassador to the United States says if the standoff in the Persian Gulf escalates into war, it will be a ''catastrophe''... with American interests worldwide suffering. PITTSBURGH (OCT. 11) UPI - Desperate for a life-saving win, the Pittsburgh Pirates pulled it off with a desperate double play Wednesday night.

With defeat meaning elimination from the National League playoffs, Pittsburgh preserved a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati with a ninth inning, bases-jammed, game-ending double play that was as gritty, difficult and intense as one would ever see.

''That's as exciting as it gets,'' Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke said.

With one out in the ninth and Reds hugging all three bases, Jeff Reed cracked a chopper to the left of third baseman Bobby Bonilla. As Paul O'Neill darted from third toward home with the potential tying run and Eric Davis took off from second with the potential winning run, Bonilla lunged to his left and barely managed to spear the ball.

Bonilla fired to second baseman Jose Lind, who uncorked a relay throw to stretching Sid Bream to complete the game-saving double play.

''Once I got the ball to Chico (Lind), I knew we had a chance,'' Bonilla said. ''Chico gets everything and Sid always has a good stretch.''

Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland said: ''Our guys played their tails off. Now we'll see what happens.''

What happens now is that the clubs return to Cincinnati for a sixth game Friday night and, if needed, a decisive Game 7 Saturday night. Despite Pittsburgh's desperate win Wednesday night, the odds still favor the Reds, who enjoy a 3-2 game edge.

''We're in a little better shape than Pittsburgh is,'' Reds Manager Lou Piniella said. ''We're going back home to Cincinnati. We've got to win one. They've got to win two. Certainly the odds are in our favor.''

Van Slyke said the Pirates ''look at this very simply - all we have to do is go out and win two in a row. It's not that tough. We've done that a few times this year.

''We still feel we can win this playoff. I want to let everyone know that this team has not given up.''

Van Slyke and fellow sluggers Bonilla and Bobby Bonds have been unproductive for most of the playoffs. But Van Slyke may finally have gotten started Wednesday night with a pair of hits, including an RBI triple that keyed a two-run first inning.

''The longer this series goes on, the better all three of us will feel,'' Van Slyke said. ''If all three of us can get one hit consecutively, then you might start seeing the real Bonds, Bonilla and Van Slyke. When you lose three in a row in the playoffs, it's hard for any ballclub to have passion and fire. Maybe tonight will rekindle our fire.''

Pittsburgh starter Doug Drabek drenched the Reds' fire most of Wednesday night. A 22-game winner during the regular season, Drabek limited Cincinnati to just three hits and no earned runs the first seven innings before tiring in the eighth and ninth, when he gave up four hits and an earned run.

Drabek, who retired 13 straight batters between the first and fifth innings, struck out Reds' cleanup hitter Eric Davis three of the four times he faced him.

''This is definitely the biggest game of my life so far,'' Drabek said. ''It was do-or-die tonight. We got a complete team effort and that's what we're going to need more of in Cincinnati. Maybe we need to scratch out some runs instead of waiting for the big inning.''

Cincinnati appeared headed for a big inning in the ninth Wednesday night until stopped suddenly by the double play.

The Reds, who had trailed 3-1 since the fourth inning, pulled within 3-2 in the eighth and opened strong in the ninth on singles by O'Neill and Davis. The runners advanced a base on a sacrifice bunt by Hal Morris and Bob Patterson relieved Drabek.

After Chris Sabo was intentionally walked to load the bases with one out, Reed hit his bounder to Bonilla's left.

''Bobby made the correct decision to go for the double play,'' Leyland said. ''He was to throw home if the ball was hit straight at him and to try for the double play if it was to his left.''

Bonilla, who played third base most of last year, played just 14 games there this season. He was at third Wednesday night only because Jeff King had to be scratched before the game with back problems.

''He hasn't played third too much this year, but he did his job tonight,'' Leyland said. ''He made a great play and as a result, we're still in it.''

(OCT. 11) UPI - Goaltenders Tim Cheveldae and Mike Richter stole victories for the Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers Wednesday night with spectacular saves.

Cheveldae robbed the Calgary Flames in overtime, keeping the Red Wings alive until Bob Probert scored with 54 seconds remaining to lift Detroit to a 6-5 victory, the team's first of the season.

Lee Norwood and Shawn Burr scored goals in the last 2:39 of regulation for Detroit to force overtime. Burr deflected a shot by Steve Chiasson with only 58 seconds left in regulation. But the Flames went on a power play when Chiasson was called for high-sticking with six seconds left in the third.

Cheveldae made four saves while the Flames had a man advantage in overtime, including a glove stop on old rival Theoren Fleury, who was camped at the side of the net.

''He's scored enough big goals on me all through minor hockey,'' Cheveldae said. ''I played against him in bantam, midget and juniors. It's about time I took one away from him.''

Calgary Coach Doug Risebrough agreed that the save on Fleury was a key.

''We had our chances in overtime,'' Risebrough said. ''Fleury's chance was a major miss.''

Joe Nieuwendyk scored a pair of goals for the Flames.

At New York, Richter stopped 40 shots to lead the Rangers to a 4-2 victory over the Washington Capitals. Washington outshot New York 42-17 but Richter kept his team in the game, stopping the first 11 shots by the Capitals before the Rangers took a 1-0 lead on their first shot of the game, a power-play goal by Darren Turcotte.

''Richter was the reason they won. He's arrived,'' Capitals Coach Terry Murray said.

''We were not playing with the necessary intensity,'' Richter said. ''You could feel the two points slipping away.''

Turcotte, filling in for injured center Kelly Kisio on the line with John Ogrodnick and Brian Mullen, keyed the offense. He scored two goals and assisted on another.

Turcotte's second of the game, a short-handed goal at 10:47 of the third period, gave the Rangers a 3-2 lead. Turcotte slipped past the Capitals defense, took a pass from Mullen and, with Kevin Hatcher holding him from behind, managed to push a backhand shot past goaltender Mike Liut for his fourth goal of the season.

''I didn't see it go into the net, but I saw it go through his legs. Then I heard the crowd,'' Turcotte said.

Turcotte then set up Ogrodnick's 350th NHL goal at 15:16 for the 4-2 lead.

''We were outplayed most of the game,'' Rangers Coach Roger Neilson said. ''We played poorly in the first period and worse in the second. The win belongs to the goalkeeper - Mike won it for us.''

Elsewhere in the NHL, Hartford edged Buffalo 4-3, Quebec outscored Toronto 8-5 and Boston outskated Winnipeg 4-2.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Whalers 4, Sabres 3

At Hartford, Conn., Kevin Dineen's goal at 12:18 of the third period, his fourth in as many games, rallied the Whalers after Ulf Samuelsson tied the score at 6:16. Czechoslovakian rookie Bobby Holik and Randy Cunneyworth also scored for Hartford, while Christian Ruuttu, Alexander Mogilny and Rick Vaive tallied for Buffalo.

Nordiques 8, Maple Leafs 5

At Toronto, Tony McKegney and Joe Sakic scored two goals each and Guy Lafleur added a goal and three assists. Toronto's loss marked the first time in the 74-year history of the Maple Leafs that the club has begun the season with four consecutive defeats. Vince Damphousse scored twice for Toronto.

Bruins 4, Jets 2

At Winnipeg, Manitoba, Dave Poulin and Peter Douris broke a tie with goals 22 seconds apart in the second period to lift Boston. Wes Walz and Dave Christian also scored for the Bruins. Danton Cole and Pat Elynuik tallied for the Jets.

MANILA, Philippines (OCT. 11) UPI - Philippine bishops Thursday criticized President Corazon Aquino's birth control program, dealing a major setback to government efforts to curb one of the world's highest population growth rates.

The 87-member Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines in a pastoral letter said the church in Asia's only Christian nation cannot associate with Aquino's five-year, $208 million population control program - ''not even in appearance.''

Reiterating a position adopted 17 years ago, the letter to be read in churches throughout the land on Sunday said the church respected responsible regulation of births using natural methods but condemned ''contraception, sterilization and abortion.''

The letter criticized local and foreign non-governmental institutions involved in the program and warned the Philippines could become a victim of ''contraceptive imperialism.''

The World Bank, the U.S. Agency for International Development and the U.N. Population Control Commission are the major supporters of the program.

''We are unwittingly caught in a systematic campaign against childbearing. It is a worldwide drive that undermines the value of life. It is evil. This attack on life is an attack on the human person's capacity to love. Ultimately it is an attack upon God who is love,'' the letter said.

Aquino, swept to power in a civilian-backed military revolt in 1986 with the blessings of influential church leaders, has come under strong pressure to take a serious look at the ballooning population.

Official estimates put the Philippine population growth rate at between 2.4 and 2.8 percent, one of the highest in the world. The Philippines' 60.5 million population is 12th highest in the world.

With 20 percent of the population centered in metropolitan Manila, comprising 1 percent of the country's land area, the capital has one of the highest population densities in the world.

Demographers say the country's population will double in 25 years unless measures are taken to put the growth rate down.

Church opposition to the program could deal a severe blow to her effort to curb population growth and address the nation's main problem - poverty.

Over the past year, Aquino faced coup attempts, a major earthquake, a prolonged drought and a series of devastating monsoon floods. The Persian Gulf conflict and rising oil prices have raised the specter of a recession in the country saddled by a foreign debt equivalent to $26 billion.

Government officials say the population control program is essentially aimed at providing Filipinos information and family planning services and helping them choose what options they want, and is not aimed at imposing on them artificial birth control methods the church frowns upon.

Health Undersecretary Mario Taguiwalo has said many Filipinos desire a small family, but the number of children they have is higher than the number they want because safe planning methods are not available to them.

KARACHI, Pakistan (OCT. 11) UPI - A judge Thursday denied bail to the husband of ousted prime minister Benazir Bhutto following his arrest on charges of kidnapping and extortion, officials said.

They said the judge in the southern port of Karachi ordered Asif Ali Zardari be detained for 13 days so police can question him further.

Zardari, a prominent businessman who married Bhutto in 1987, would appear in the court again on the day of the scheduled Oct. 24 elections, in which he is standing as a candidate for a National Assembly seat.

Authorities arrested Zardari on Wednesday on charges he helped plot the kidnapping of Murtaza Bukhari, a wealthy Pakistani businessman based in England. Zardari has denied the charge.

Bukhari was abducted in April at his house in Karachi and made to pay about $800,000 before being released. Police in August arrested Ghulam Hussein Unnar a member of the Sind provincal Assembly and a close friend of Zardari, for allegedly carrying out the crime.

Bhutto Wednesday charged her husband has been falsely accused as part of a ''criminal conspiracy'' by President Ghulam Ishaq Khan and the caretaker government.

''Such intimidatory and blackmailing tactics cannot deter us from participating in the forthcoming elections,'' she told a news conference at her Karachi home.

Zardari last month also obtained pre-arrest bail, which forbids police from detaining him for a specified period unless permitted by the courts, in connection with allegations he used his influence to force a bank to give a loan of about $14 million to a businessman friend without surety.

Bhutto, 37, is also facing charges of misconduct while in office before Special Disqualification Courts. The courts were set up by Ishaq Khan in what many believe is an attempt to bar her and members of her administration from the elections.

If found guilty on any of the charges, she could be barred from politics for seven years.

Ishaq Khan dismissed Bhutto's 20-month-old administration on Aug. 6, accusing it of corruption and nepotism and of failing to control law and order. He appointed opposition leader Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi as interim prime minister until the elections.

Two of Bhutto's former ministers are facing criminal charges of corruption, while three more must appear before the disqualification courts.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) UPI - The government will try to portray junk bond king Michael Milken as a greedy criminal and will call some of his most well- known business associates to testify at Thursday's presentencing hearing to prove its point.

Prosectors planned to present evidence of alleged crimes that the former head of Drexel Burnham Lambert's junk bond division has never admitted to in an effort to bring down a heavy prison sentence.

Milken pleaded guilty to six felonies, including conspiracy and securities fraud, in April. The plea bargain allowed him to avoid the toughest charges in the 98-count indictment.

But prosecutors, in a so-called Fatico presentencing hearing scheduled to begin Thursday, will present arguments to U.S. District Court Judge Kimba Wood about a web of crimes the government claims Milken committed but he has not admitted.

At issue is whether Milken's six confessed crimes were part of a larger pattern of criminal activity, as the government claims in a presentencing memo or whether they were isolated incidents in which Milken went too far in helping his clients, as the defense maintains.

Among the possible witnesses at the hearing is Ivan Boesky, Wall Street arbitrageur turned government informant, whose tips led to Milken's indictment.

Once head of high-risk, high-yield bonds at Drexel, Milken pioneered the use of the so-called junk bonds to fuel leveraged buyouts in the 1980s.

In the somber aftermath of the takeover craze, where companies now are overwhelmed with debt and the high-risk bond market has collapsed, the fallen junk bond king has, for many, come to symbolize the greed and excess that characterized the 1980s.

Already having paid $600 million in fines and penalties, Milken, who earned $550 million one year at Drexel, faces a maximum possible sentence of 28 years in prison.

The judge has said she wants the hearing to last no longer than two weeks and each side will have 20 hours to present testimony and evidence.

BANGKOK, Thailand (OCT. 11) UPI - The Vietnamese-backed Cambodian government called Thursday for a new meeting of a joint national council with the three resistance groups to settle disputes over the chairmanship of the council.

The official Phnom Penh news agency SPK quoted Chea Sim, chairman of the National Assembly, as saying his government wanted to resume meetings of the dispute-plagued Supreme National Council, which is seen as a key part of a U.N. plan to end the 11-year-old conflict in Cambodia.

''He stressed that the Phnom Penh side wants to convene the second SNC meeting as soon as possible in order to reach agreement on the selection of its chairman and vice chairman,'' SPK said.

Chea Sim's call partly echoed a resistance statement Tuesday that also proposed another SNC meeting, to be held in Bangkok.

The resistance did not mention a vice chairman, which it has said is unnecessary.

The SNC, endorsed by the U.N. Security Council, will hold the country's sovereignty while an interim U.N. authority administers key ministries, supervises a cease-fire and arranges national elections.

The council includes six representatives from the Phnom Penh government and six from the resistance.

Its first meeting, however, became deadlocked over resistance insistance that Prince Norodom Sihanouk, head of one of the three resistance factions, be elected chairman as proposed by the Security Council.

The government of Prime Minister Hun Sen has said it will only accept Sihanouk as chairman if another resistance member is dropped to make way for him and if Hun Sen is elected vice chairman.

''If Prince Sihanouk is made chairman of the SNC, then Prime Minister Hun Sen must be a vice-chairman, the SNC may have two co-chairmen or alternate chairmen,'' the news agency quoted Chea Sim as saying.

The Cambodian conflict dates to Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia in late 1978.The Vietnamese ousted the Khmer Rouge regime, which was blamed for the deaths of more than 1 million civilians during its reign in 1975-1978.

Vietnam installed the current Cambodian government, which has been fighting the three resistance groups led by the Khmer Rouge in several areas of countryside.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (OCT. 11) UPI - The No. 2 leader of the government party Thursday urged main opposition leader Kim Dae Jung to call off a 4-day- old hunger strike seeking to push a series of political demands.

Also, a South Korean official visiting North Korea said sports talks between the two countries could resume soon, including a discussion of sending a unified team to the 1992 Olympics.

Kim Young-sam, a former opposition politician who is now the executive committee chairman of the ruling Democratic Liberal Party, visited Kim Dae Jung for an hour at the headquarters of the Party for Peace and Democracy.

''I asked him to call off the hunger strike. We shared the view that we should do our best to bring politics back to normal. I am hopeful things will turn out all right,'' Kim Young-sam said after the meeting.

He did not elaborate on the discussions but political sources said the two Kims exchanged their respective stands on major political issues.

Kim Dae Jung started fasting Monday, demanding the government stop trying to adopt a parliamentary cabinet form of government through constitutional change implement local autonomy as promised and keep the military from politics.

His hunger strike began while a controversy snowballed over illegal political surveillance by military security agents on more than 1,300 noted civilians. Kim Dae Jung demanded that the Defense Security Command, which conducted the surveillance, be disbanded.

Representatives of nine organizations, including opposition parties and dissident groups, demanded at a press conference that President Roh Tae-woo apologize to the nation for the spying. They also urged the government to accept Kim Dae Jung's demands.

They will jointly sponsor a massive protest rally in Seoul on Saturday, a spokesman said, and if the government does not meet their demands another protest gathering will be staged.

The military surveillance was disclosed by Pvt. Yoon Suk-yang, a 24- year-old Army deserter, Oct. 4. Yoon was assigned to the Defense Security Command, which is in charge of criminal investigations and intelligence for the armed forces.

He said the surveillance targets included politicians, civic and church leaders, lawyers, college professors, journalists, labor activists and dissidents and produced files prepared by security agents.

South Korea Sports Minister Chung Dong-sung, heading a soccer delegation to North Korea, said formal sports talks between the two Koreas are likely to be revived soon.

A Seoul press corps accompanying the delegation said in a dispatch from the North Korean capital of Pyongyang that officials of both sides had broad talks on sports exchanges between the South and the North.

''It is expected that the suspended South-North sports talks will be revived soon,'' the report quoted Chung as saying. ''The question of sending a unified Korean delegation to the 1992 Barcelona Summer Olympics and other major international events has been solidly discussed.''

ST. PETERSBURG, FL (OCT. 11) UPI - Tropical Storm Marco pushed northward up Florida's Gulf Coast Thursday with 65-mph winds that left thousands without power, prompted school closings and damaged homes and buildings.

The only injury reported early Thursday was a man driving in Sarasota County whose car was trapped under a tree torn down by fierce winds. The man was taken to Sarasota Memorial Hospital, where he was listed in serious condition.

About 8,000 homes were left without power in Manatee County and another 4,500 homes in Sarasota County were blacked out after Marco passed through shortly before 7 a.m., county emergency officials said.

Work crews began repairing the downed power lines after the brunt of the storm moved north toward the Tampa Bay area.

At 7 a.m., the storm was 20 miles south of St. Petersburg, near latitude 27.4 north and longitude 82.7 west and was moving northwest near 9 mph. The storm was expected to make landfall by late morning in the Tampa-St. Petersburg metropolitan area, the largest on Florida's west coast with a population of more than 500,000.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service issued a hurricane two advisory for Bermuda, which is in the path of Hurricane Lili, packing 74-mph winds and located near latitude 31 north and longitude 59.8 west. The storm was heading west at 20 mph and was about 360 miles east of Bermuda.

Winds whipped up by Marco as the storm lumbered through Florida's west coast flipped over a small airplane that was parked at Venice Airport in Sarasota County. No one was injured, said county spokesman Chris Eversole said.

Schools in Sarasota and Manatee counties were closed Tuesday, and the massive Sunshine Skyway Bridge at the mouth of Tampa Bay was closed to traffic before dawn after it was rocked by 50-mph wind gusts.

Pinellas County Emergency Management Coordinator David Bilodeau said it was unlikely officials would call for evacuations.

''It's nothing to trifle with but it's not a life threatening situation either '' he said. ''So far it's nothing that would call for an evacuation.''

''The areas that it's already gone through haven't experienced very much as far as damage is concerned,'' said Ronnie Goodstein, spokesperson for Pinellas County. ''We're advising people to remain indoors.''

Eversole said Marco left flooding and beach erosion in its wake. ''It packed a pretty good wallop here. We had gusts of 62 mph.

''We had some minor flooding, some (road) washouts, but there wasn't too much damage,'' he said. ''Emergency crews are out clearing out limbs and things and power has been restored to some of the people in Sarasota County.''

Tropical storm force winds extended up to 175 miles west and 60 miles east of Marco's center and a storm surge of 1 to 3 feet was expected near and south of where the storm makes landfall. At least 3 inches of rain was predicted for the region.

The storm stalled near the Keys Wednesday afternoon, expanding and building strength over open waters before heading north.

The threat of the storm prompted Gov. Bob Martinez to activate the state's emergency operations center.

In Tallahassee, the state's Emergency Operations Center opened to help local governments cope with the storm.

Marco is the 13th named storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. There have not been as many since 1969, when there were 14 named storms.

The storm formed Wednesday morning from a low-pressure system that moved over Cuba Tuesday. That system swallowed up the dissipated remains of Tropical Storm Klaus, which killed six people as it moved over the Lesser Antilles last week. Klaus dumped up to 3 inches of rain on south Florida Tuesday.

Since Klaus no longer had a recognizable center, the merged system was given a new name instead of being declared a rejuvenated Klaus.

KHARTOUM, SUDAN (OCT. 11) UPI - A U.S. food ship that was diverted from Port Sudan to nearby Djibouti in the Red Sea triggered protest Thursday from Sudan, which accused the United States of playing politics with 6 million people threatened with starvation.

A statement from the Sudanese Ministry of Trade and Cooperation said the U.S. vessel, carrying 90,500 tons of wheat, was diverted without explanation and that the government was awaiting an explanation from the United States.

The wheat, part of a $20 million food assistance program, had already been paid for by the Sudanese government, the statement said.

It was the latest in a war of words between the United States and Sudan over terms and conditions for the supply of food to about 5 million people who face starvatiaon in the south and west of the war- torn country and another 1 million refugees from Ethiopia, also facing a famine of potentially catastrophic proportions.

The United States has said the food is available but that Khartoum's hardline Islamic fundamentalist government has blocked relief flights into southern Sudan, most of which is in the hands of anti-Islamic rebels.

The United States recently diverted 25,000 tons of wheat from Sudan because it said Sudanese planes bombed refugee centers in the south of the country.

A senior U.S. administration official called the military government of Gen. Omar al Bashir the ''Khmer Rouge'' of Africa.

Sudan accused the United States of tying humanitarian aid to political considerations because Sudan suppors of Iraq's Saddam Hussein and has close ties with Libyan leader Muammar Ghadaffi.

It has accused the United Nations of limiting its food supplies to areas held by the rebel Sudanese People's Liberation Army.

Former President Jimmy Carter has also accused the United States and a number of Arab states, irked at al Bashir's refusal to condemn Saddam's annexation of Kuwait, of playing politics and ignoring hunger.

''Donor governments and private relief agencies should not abandon the civilian population of Sudan in its hour of great need,'' he said last week.

But he also blamed al Bashir, noting that ''part of the difficulty in reaching these victims is the recent lack of cooperation by government authorities with international relief efforts.''

MOSCOW (OCT. 11) UPI - Police fired at four cars of Soviet tourists who disregarded a checkpoint while returning home from a trip to Germany, wounding one passenger, the Pravda newspaper said Thursday.

Pravda, the official newspaper of the Soviet Communist Party, quoted a police spokesman as saying the shooting occurred at a checkpoint police set up to guard against contraband weapons and drugs near the Ural Mountains city of Chelyabinsk.

''A tourist journey to West Germany by three families from the town of Taldy-Kurgan in the Kazakhstan republic nearly ended tragically on their way back,'' Pravda said. ''A militia patrol shot at their cars 32 miles from Chelyabinsk. A 17-year-old teenager was wounded. It was a miracle that no one else suffered.''

Pravda said the cars had ''shattered windows and was riddled with bullet holes.''

The newspaper did not say when the shooting happened but the reference to West Germany indicated it may have been before German reunification Oct. 3.

One couple in the cars, Galina and Renat Irdrisov, told the newspaper that they did not stop at the checkpoint because they mistook the police for racketeers and had experienced an unpleasant encounter with mobsters earlier in the trip.

The Irdrisovs said they were transporting four cars they had bought in Germany.

Pravda said the police were under orders to fire into the air but the police spokesman justified the shooting and suggested the travelers were carrying contraband.

''The real reasons for their actions (in refusing to stop) would have been revealed if the police had detained one of the cars that fled,'' the spokesman said.

KIGALI, RWANDA (OCT. 11) UPI - Despite denials by President Juvenal Habyarimana, reports that his army massacred civilians in northern Rwanda continued to reach the capital Thursday, 12 days after the east African country was invaded by rebel refugees.

Habyarimana told a press conference Wednesday his army, rounding up suspected rebel sympathizers, did not kill anyone but villagers fleeing into Uganda said the troops cordoned off three northern villages and machine-gunned several hundred inhabitants.

About 500 villagers, without food or money, reached the Ugandan border post of Kizinga, 50 miles north of Kigali after fleeing the attacks, thought to be a Hutu tribal reprisal against members of the minority Tutsi tribe, who make up most of the thousands-strong invading rebel army.

A priest, the Rev. Stephen Kabaleka, told journalists he believed up to a thousand people had been shot - precisely the figure Habyarimana denied Wednesday.

Diplomats continued to report disappearances from among those arrested in the capital as potential sympathizers. Among them were senior army officers, intellectuals and churchmen, many of them disaffected Hutu as well as Tutsi, they said.

Rwandan troops, assisted by 500 Zaireans, have fought since Sep. 30 to hold back growing numbers of rebels, many of them experienced guerrilla fighters who deserted the Ugandan army, crossing into northeastern Rwanda.

The rebels, led by Maj. Gen Fred Rwigyema - one-time commander of Uganda's National Revolutionary Army - say they are not fighting a tribal war and blamed France and Belgium, who have also sent troops, for complicating their bid to overthrow Habyarimana, who they call ''a brutal dictator.''

Belgium, which with France has said its troops were there only to protect its citizens in the former colony, said Thursday it had no plans to add to its 500 soldiers in Rwanda.

Prime Minister Wilfried Martens said he planned to raise the subject of Rwanda at the United Nations.

As many as 10,000 well-armed rebels may be fighting in the northeastern corner of Rwanda, according to diplomats in Kigali. Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni who denies prior knowledge of the invasion, said Wednesday he did not believe Rwandan and Zairean forces could defeat the rebels unless they ran out of ammunition.

''These are dangerous boys,'' he told a press conference.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (OCT. 11) UPI - Sgt. Jeff Bumgardner bounces across the desert darkness, using only starlight and the blackout lights of the truck ahead of him to find his way.

He's hauling food, fuel and water and - if war breaks out - ammunition to the Marine ''grunts'' or infantrymen who will be on the front lines where the headlines are made.

The work is not glamorous. The rewards are few and far between, except for knowing that the guys up front can keep fighting because of what Combat Service Support Detachment 141 is doing.

Working out of what they call FARP-Foss, or a Foward Arming and Refueling Point named after a Marine Medal of Honor winner from World War II, the men stay just behind the infantry and its tanks and light armored vehicles. So vital is their mission to the front-line troops and so tempting a close-in target are they that the boss, Col. Alex Powell, makes the men put their chemical weapons masks on three times a day for an hour at a time.

Of course not everyone sits around and just sweats in the masks. They all go about their normal chores, but sometimes if they get a break, Staff Sgt. Tim Kletzke of Chicago and Sgt. Russ Adamson of Salt Lake City play chess - on a board made of a packing crate with pieces spray painted green or black made of soda cans, tabasco bottles, water bottles and the like.

The unit also includes a number of Cobra helicopters that can escort convoys, a 30-bed field hospital where the doctors say they can perform ''meatball surgery'' to stabilize a patient.

They also produce 80,000 gallons of fresh water daily from the salty Persian Gulf, giving some to the Army and British troops who have not yet gotten their systems up to speed. And they can store well over 150, 000 gallons of aviation and truck fuel. In addition, they provide laundry service and showers for surrounding units, making them very popular among the gritty infrantrymen.

Bumgardner, whose wife and 2-year-old son Josh wait at home in Hickory, N.C., takes satisfaction in getting the supplies up to the troops night after night, bumping over sand illuminated only by starlight or moonlight because the black-out lights on his five-ton truck are aimed too low to be of any use.

''We don't go to the rear at all. The grunts, they spend six days in the field and then go back to the air conditioning for three days. We don't do that. We stay here. We'll be here until December,'' said Bumgardner, who is looking forward to getting out of the Corps early next year after eight years in uniform. He is just 25.

''I'd rather be here than in the rear. This is what I get paid to do, '' he said.

He said morale is high, in part because they had been visited by Gen. Alfred Gray, the commandant, a few weeks ago and it really picked up the younger Marines. ''You ought to have seen their expressions. Their eyes lit up. It was a real morale-boostaer,''he said.

Driving an LSV, a huge truck hauling fuel for the tanks, was Cpl. Michael Mulchahy of Windsor, N.Y., who also took his night-time runs with a quiet seriousness.

''When you're playing with people's lives, you're playing for real,'' he said.

And the man they delivered 500 gallons of water, 1,000 gallons of fuel and 100 meals to, Gunnery Sgt. Denzil Hall, 34, of Martinsville, Ill., was glad to see his supplies arrive. His job is to rush forward to the light armored vehicles of his unit and resupply five companies of the 3rd Light Armored Infantry.

It is rewarding, he said, ''knowing that I'm supplying the grunts that are up there in the fighting and if I don't supply them they can't do the job. If they don't have fuel they can't move.''

While the trucks were out bouncing across the desert, finding rendezvous points agreed upon ahead of time by the units and supply depot, at the guard post Lance Cpl. Gary Vasquez, 20, of San Antonio, and Lance Cpl. Andrew Capps, 22, of Versailles, Mo., were challenging intruders with a demand for a password.

They'd come in from an infantry unit to help provide security for the depot, which draws its stocks from a larger facility nearly 100 miles away. They used night vision goggles to scan the horizon and radios and telephones to communicate with the command post.

''We're guarding stuff for a reason instead of just a dog and pony show,'' said Capps, adding he did not mind the split shifts of four hours on duty at night when it is cooler and two hours during the heat of the day.

RENO, NV (OCT. 11) UPI - The Nevada Humane Society is gathering evidence for a possible criminal prosecution of a Catholic priest who ordered the wings clipped on pigeons near his church.

Humane Society Director Mark McGuire said Thursday the report will be presented to the Washoe District Attorney's Office.

Father Bernard, pastor of St. Peter Canisius Catholic Church, said the pigeons were a health hazard with their droppings, which also clogged storm drains.

Bernard said clipping their wings was the most humane thing to do, but the grounded birds were easy prey for dogs and cats in the area. McGuire said there were about 100 birds involved and about 83 have died.

''We plan on submitting an incident report for consideration of a criminal complaint,'' McGuire said.

The 69-year-old priest said, ''The clipping of the wings consisted of clipping the long feathers with ordinary house scissors. As far as the birds are concerned, my real intentions were good intentions.''

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (OCT. 11) UPI - Ten children were injured Thursday when their school bus was rammed by a laundry truck that apparently ran a red light.

The students were among 51 children on a bus en route to Carmody Junior High School. Police said a laundry truck coming off U.S. 285 apparently ran a red light and ran into the right rear of the bus.

There was extensive damage to the front of the truck and the rear of the bus. The collision pushed the school bus sideways about 50 feet before it came to a stop.

The 10 injured students were taken to St. Anthony Central Hospital, where officials said the injuries appeared to be minor bruises and sprains. All of the students were expected to be released by the end of the day.

The driver of the truck, who wasn't immediately identified, also was taken to the hospital.

MIAMI (OCT. 11) UPI - Burger King Corp., America's No. 2 hamburger chain, is poised to trim up to 400 people from its staff nationwide, including regional vice presidents and franchise operations managers, the Miami Herald reported Thursday.

The newspaper said 300 to 400 workers could be affected by the cuts, which would represent the second such round of layoffs since the fast- food giant was acquired by Grand Metropolitan PLC in January 1989.

Burger King spokeswoman Cori Zywotow declined comment on the report.

Burger King employs about 41,000 workers nationwide, including more than 1,000 at its south Florida headquarters and in its regional offices.

Grand Met cut Burger King's corporate staff by 550 employees in April 1989, including about 100 workers at its headquarters south of Miami.

The reductions left the company with a headquarters staff of about 450 and a field staff of about 580, Burger King said at the time.

Grand Met acquired Burger King's parent company, The Pillsbury Co. of Minneapolis, for $5.75 billion, and later named Barry J. Gibbons chief executive officer of the fast-food operation.

Since then, the company has worked to bolster flagging sales and profits at Burger King by introducing new menu items, such as a broiled chicken sandwich and salad dressings by actor Paul Newman, and with new promotional campaigns, such as Kids Club. Zywotow said 2.7 million children have joined Kids Club.

''We have had sustained, steady growth over the last year. We have had an extremely profitable year,'' Zywotow said.

Burger King and its franchisees operate more than 6,000 restaurants. The company posted sales in excess of $5.7 billion for the year ended Sept. 30, 1989.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney will travel to Moscow next week, his first visit to the Soviet Union as head of the Defense Department, and will meet with senior Soviet officials, the Pentagon said Thursday.

Cheney will also stop in London and Paris to confer with British and French government officials during his trip.

The Pentagon said Cheney will leave Washington Saturday, arriving in London later that day. He will meet with Defense Minister Tom King and other senior British officials and will depart London Tuesday for Moscow.

From Tuesday to Friday, Cheney will meet with Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri

Yazov, who visited the United States last year, other senior Soviet officials and ''leading Soviet citizens,'' the Pentagon said.

Cheney is scheduled to leave Moscow next Friday for Paris, where he will spend three days meeting with French Defense Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement and other senior French officials.

He is to leave Paris and return to Washington Oct. 22.

The Pentagon said discussions in each country will ''focus on key bilateral, regional and strategic matters of mutual interest.''

Voters in Egypt went to the polls today to decide whether to back President Mubarak's plan to dissolve Parliament and hold new elections in two months. Observers say Mubarak's referendum will likely pass by a wide margin. Egypt's constitution reserves seats for workers and farmers on a non-partisan ticket.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - West Palm Beach, Fla., is projected to experience America's fastest pace of economic growth to the year 2000 along with other metropolitan areas in the Sun Belt, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

But cities in the Northeast and Great Lakes regions are expected to lag behind their Southern and Western cousins.

Phoenix, Orlando, Riverside-San Bernadino, Calif., San Diego, Sacramento and Tampa are also projected to lead the nation in income, population and jobs, according to the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis.

''West Palm Beach is projected to have the nation's fastest growth in total personal income, population and jobs,'' the Commerce Department said. ''Phoenix is projected to have the second fastest growth in total personal income and the third fastest growth in population and jobs.''

The West Palm Beach metropolitan area includes the communities of Boca Raton and Delray Beach.

Anaheim, Calif., Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Atlanta, Seattle, Jacksonville, Fla., and Oakland, Calif., are also expected to experience growth ''well above the national average,'' the department said.

''Metropolitan areas projected to have the fastest growth in total personal income, population and jobs are primarily in the South and West, and metropolitan areas projected to have the slowest growth are in the Northeast and Great Lake regions,'' the government said.

But economically ailing New Orleans is projected to experience a 0.1 percent decline in population to the turn of the century, the only major metropolitan area expected to lose people.

''Among the nation's seven largest metropolitan areas - Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Boston and Washington - only Los Angeles and Washington will have economic growth above the national average to the year 2000,'' the Commerce Department said.

''Nearly 19 million new jobs are projected for the nation by the year 2000,'' the department said. ''Los Angeles and Washington are projected to gain more than one-half million jobs each,'' the department said.

San Francisco, the New Jersey counties of Bergen, Passaic, Middlesex, Somerset and Hunterdon, and the New York counties of Nassau and Suffolk, will continue to maintain the nation's highest per capita income, the government said.

(OCT.11) UPI - The average school bus gets a measly six miles per gallon, and skyrocketing fuel prices are causing budgetary headaches for school systems all across the country.

For instance, the National School Transportation Association, the trade association for companies that contract with localities to provide transport services, said in a school district the size of Los Angeles, each increase of 1 cent per gallon translates into an extra $100,000.

In Fairfax County, Va., home of the nation's largest publicly owned fleet of school buses, the bill for 1,300 vehicles covering 12 million miles will be $1 million more this year than originally budgeted.

And in Mississippi, the legislature trimmed $6 million from the school transportation budget this year, but gas price hikes are now costing the state $9,000 a day more than anticipated.

''We have a real problem,'' said Andy Mullins, an assistant to the state superintendent of public education, because nothing can be done until the legislature meets in January. If prices rise another 20 cents, he said many districts will be out of money by Christmas.

One saving grace: Because they are tax exempt, public schools don't have to pay state and federal taxes on gasoline. But even those who planned ahead have problems. Chesterfield County, Va. got gas for 50 cents per gallon last year, budgeted for 80 cents per gallon this year, and is currently paying $1.03 per gallon.

In New York, gas service is awarded on a state contract basis, but price rises are still causing trouble. John Stewart, superintendent at Poland Central School in Herkimer County said, ''I suspect there's not a school budget in this state that was created anticipating this crisis.''

Stewart said some planned expenditures, such as supplies, spring events, and field trips may have to be postponed, he said.

At the Raquette Lake Union Free School District in Hamilton County, N.Y., superintendent Pete Eckhardt said the school had a locked-in contract for gas, so prices have not gone up. He's sure, however, next year's price will rise to make up for the locked prices this year.

The NSTA, based in Springfield, Va., said the nation's 372,000 school buses travel some 3.5 billion miles a year, and that nearly a billion gallons of fuel will be used.

A recent association survey found gas prices up 23.1 cents in the Southwest, 26.9 cents in the Midwest, 28.1 cents in the Northeast, 34.2 cents in the West and 36.9 cent in the Southeast.

Shultz Transportation, a large private carrier in southeastern Pennsylvania, provides bus service for five area school districts.

Owner Colin Shultz said the price of regular unleaded gas has gone up 30 cents per gallon and the price of diesel fuel has risen by 50 cents per gallon since the Iraqi crisis began. He said that translates into an extra $720 a day, based on an increased cost of 8 cents per mile per vehicle.

''We're absorbing the loss right now, but we hope it (the crisis) will be just a little bump in the road in the fuel market and things will settle down in a few months,'' Shultz said.

Shultz said his company is locked into its contracts with the districts, and that although district administrators have been reasonable about making adjustments in the past, they too are ''being pinched'' by the overall downturn in the U.S. economy.

''We can absorb the loss for now,'' Shultz said. ''But we're a private carrier and you can't make money running a deficit month in and month out.''

BUDAPEST, Hungary (OCT. 11) UPI - The government Thursday announced cuts of $661 million in state subsidies for agricultural and other products in a long-awaited step toward Hungarian market reform.

The subsidies, once considered a pillar of the country's economic system, kept prices of certain goods artificially low but contributed toward inefficiency and placed a strain on the budget.

Under the announced cuts, subsidies for fertilizers and dairy products will be eliminated and price supports for other agricultural goods will be scaled back over the next year.

The Democratic Forum government elected in the spring had been reluctant to reduce subsidies, fearing such a move would fuel inflation, now running at an annual rate of nearly 30 percent.

Government officials said the timing of the cuts was motivated by huge increases in energy prices, a disappointing grain harvest and a drop in trade with Hungary's former Eastern Bloc allies.

''The Hungarian economy has never been under such immense pressure in the 20th century as now, save for the Second World War,'' a government statement said.

BONN, GERMANY (OCT. 11) UPI - Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal Thursday condemned Israel for Monday's shooting of 22 Palestinians on Mount Temple and called for an end to ''Israeli occupation of Arab lands'' and Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

''This incident is an abhorrent thing,'' Saud said of the Israeli police action against demonstrating Palestinians in downtown Jerusalem.

''It is abhorrent to the most elemental of human emotions,'' he told a news conference shortly before he was to meet with Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

''That's why the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait is so shocking to us, because it creates a division in the Arab world so that it weakens our ability to face the Israeli occupation of the Arab lands,'' he said.

But he said the international community should continue to pressure Israel into giving up the Gaza Strip and the West Bank.

''For the stability in the region, this situation has to be resolved. The continuation of Israeli policy, the continuation of the occupation of Arab lands has caused nothing but tragedy,'' he said.

Saud, who met Wednesday with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher and President Richard von Weizsaecker during his two-day visit, brought along a list of weapons Saudi Arabia would like to buy from Germany.

German Defense Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg said Thursday Germany had no intention to sell weapons to Saudi Arabia at this stage but did not deny that a study on possible future sales was being drawn up.

He also refused comment on reports the sale of 100 German Gephard anti-aircraft tanks to Saudi Arabia had been approved by the German Federal Security Council.

Meanwhile, Kohl said in an interview published Thursday that Germany should urgently change its constitution to allow fdor the deployument of German troops to the Persian Gulf as part of a United Nations peace- keeping force.

The constitution only allows for German military activities within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization theater.

''It is very detrimental to the moral structure of our country, that we are world champions in exporting goods on one hand but that we duck international responsibility on the other,'' Kohl said.

''Outside the German borders, we cannot convince anybodyu any longer that our hands are tied by the constitution,'' Kohl said.

LJUBLJANA, YUGOSLAVIA (OCT. 11) UPI - The Slovenian leadership Thursday strongly reaffirmed commitment to a plan to transform Yugoslavia into a confederation of independent states, but indicated it might back international intervention to resolve the explosive crisis over the nation's future.

''It may well be true that the time is coming that the Yugoslav issue may be settled through some form of internationalization,'' said Slovenian Prime Minister Lojze Peterle, when asked if the republic supported a recently aired idea of an international conference.

He further signaled possible Slovenian approval of a Croatian proposal for deployment of international peacekeeping forces in potential hotspots if seething political disputes threaten civil war in the multi-ethnic nation of 23 million formed in 1918.

''As for peacekeeping forces, should this be an option that can prevent bloodshed, I certainly would advocate this approach as well,'' Peterle said.

Peterle was among nine ministers of Slovenia's administration who held a two-hour news conference as part of an intensive effort to generate national and international backing for their plan on overhauling the political structure of Yugoslavia following the demise of central communist rule.

Foreign Minister Dimitri Rupel also announced that Slovenia is trying to organize next year a conference of small European states, including those of the Baltic region, on forging a common stand on the restructuring of Europe.

The confederation plan calls for transforming the loose Yugoslav federation of six republics into a confederation of independent states with their own foreign policies and militaries, but linked by common economic interests and free trade.

The eight-member Yugoslav collective presidency is now considering the plan, submitted jointly by the governments of Slovenia and Croatia, formed by nationalist parties that trounced communists in April in the country's first multi-party elections since the end of World War II in 1945.

Both want confederation because of fears of domination by Serbia, the largest republic and the only remaining substantial bastion of communist rule. Both have said they might consider secession if the confederation plan fails.

The Slovenian leaders reiterated their beliefs that the confederation idea is the best to meet Yugoslavia's needs, but Peterle criticized Serbia for refusing to negotiate.

Serbia wants to maintain the federal system, but with a more powerful central government. In need of Serbian nationalist votes in Dec. 9 assembly elections, Serbia's communists say they would want to absorb Serbian areas outside their republic in the event of confederation.

Croatia is charging that its Serbian minority is being instigated by Serbia's communists in a plan aimed at either defeating the confederation idea or laying the groundwork for claiming parts of its territory in a confederation.

Peterle reiterated the fears of many Yugoslavs that the political and ethnic tensions being generated by the controversies could ignite in civil war.

''Yugoslavia seems to be entering from one conflict into another conflict and each conflict seems to be graver than the previous conflict,'' he said.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (OCT. 11) UPI - Vietnamese investigators have uncovered 6,305 cases of corruption this year, blaming them for heavy financial losses to the government, official radio Hanoi reported.

''Since early 1990, law enforcement agencies have discovered 6,305 cases of corruption involving losses amounting to as much as $18.7 million,'' said the radio report broadcast Sunday and made available in translation Thursday.

The radio quoted the Army Newsapaper ''Quan Doi Nhan Dan'' as saying that most of corruption cases were misappropriation of socialist property, smuggling, illegal business transactions and tax fraud.

It said 4,772 individuals including 1,873 Communist Party cadres and government officials have been arrested.

''Most of the corrupt officials have abused their authority by collaborating with speculators and illegal traders to gain profit through selling,'' the radio said.

It said the corruption in the north involved smuggling of food supplies through seaways or border provinces for sale in China.

The radio said government agencies have been given bribes to allow smuggling of ''large quantities of tax-evading luxury goods'' in southwestern border areas.

TORONTO (OCT. 11) UPI - The Canadian Auto Workers union and General Motors of Canada Ltd. Thursday delayed by several hours an expected announcement on a settlement to resolve a number of outstanding local issues.

A strike by 36,500 CAW members at GM Canada was was called off just before midnight Wednesday, as union and company negotiators said a settlement was just hours away.

The talks were stuck on numerous local issues - including contract language on seniority provisions - at the GM's Oshawa, Ontario, complex where about 16,000 employees work at three assembly and two parts plants.

Union president Bob White said late Wednesday that the bargaining committee agreed ''unanimously'' to call off the strike.

White said details of a tentative settlement would be announced Thursday morning after the few remaining local issues were resolved.

The CAW now has scheduled a mid-afternoon news confernce during which it hopes to announce the details of the settlement, White said.

GM Canada spokesman Nick Hall said talks to resolve the local issues continued Thursday but were expected to be completed by early afternoon.

The CAW has 36,500 members who work at GM Canada's 12 assembly, fabrication, trim and engine plants and several parts warehouses in Ontario and Quebec.

The settlement is expected to match the pattern earlier reached with Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.

The pattern - accepted after a nine-day walkout - will give nearly 13,000 Ford Canada autoworkers raises of 3 percent in the first year and 2 percent in each of the second and third years, plus improved cost-of- living allowances.

The CAW also represents 11,300 workers at Chrysler Corp.'s Canadian subsidiary.

GENEVA (OCT. 11) UPI - U.S. farmers rejected Thursday any agreement on agriculture at the Uruguay Round free trade talks which excludes deep cuts in European Community export subsidies.

After two days of meetings talks with leading delegations to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade talks, American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner said he was ''deeply disappointed'' at the EC position.

An EC offer to cut farm export subsidies by 30 percent - if the 12 member states can agree on even that figure next week - would be ''completely unacceptable,'' he said.

Next week Washington will propose a 90 percent reduction in export subsidies while offering to reduce its own domestic farm supports by 70 percent to 75 percent, Kleckner said.

A compromise would be unacceptable to American farmers, he said, because the EC would base a 30 percent cut over a 10-year period counting from 1986, meaning most of the reduction would have already occurred.

Kleckner said the Farm Bureau Federation's 3.8 million American member farmers support the U.S. government position that deep export subsidy cuts must be part of any agricultural accord and that an overall Uruguay Round agreement must include agriculture.

''No agreement is better than a bad agreement,'' he told a news conference.

When Kleckner was asked about Japan's demand that its rice market be exempt from a farm liberalization deal, he said that market ''is not a matter of life or death for American farmers.''

''But the Japanese rice market should be included as a matter of principle,'' he said.

The Uruguay Round, which began in 1986, is seriously threatened just seven weeks before its scheduled conclusion by the U.S.-EC split on farm trade as well as north-south deadlocks on trade in textiles and in services such as banking.

LONDON (OCT. 11) UPI - Stock prices closed lower in lackluster trading Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange as investors worried over tensions in the Persian Gulf and a more bearish outlook for major British firms' profits.

Stocks managed a rebound in Frankfurt.

In London, the blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 12.3 points Wednesday, lost another 19.6 points to 2,102.2. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 7.8 points to 1,618.9.

Volume amounted to around 361 million shares, down from 427 million that changed hands on Wednesday.

Market watchers, noting the light volume, said investors - whipsawed of late by surging oil prices, interest rate worries and rumors about the volatile situation in the Mideast on the one hand and euphoria over Britain's long-awaited decision to place the pound in the European Monetary System's exchange rate mechanism on the other - lacked conviction to buy shares.

Worries over underlying economic difficulties facing British industry overtook the bullish sentiment that set the tone for a rally earlier this week on the pound's entry into the ERM, analysts said.

Industrialists expect a period of slow growth despite the ERM move and bullish comments coming from the ruling Conservative Party's conference this week.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major repeated Thursday his forecast thatinflation will ''no doubt'' fall sharply in the next year but declined to give any specific forecast on when interest rates might ease.

The chancellor told the conference that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government will continue to pursue policies designed to bring down inflation and then will work to ''eliminate inflation entirely.''

At the moment, he warned, recent oil price rises ''have not fed fully through into the retail price index,'' but inflation can still be expected to fall sharply next year.

Major said any further reduction in interest rates ''depends on domestic monetary conditions'' as well as a decline in inflation.

The chancellor also defended Britain's entry into the ERM, saying the move would bring down inflation and bolster the nation's economy in the long term.

Major's statements elicited little reaction on the market, with traders saying the main impact had taken place after the announcement of ERM entry last week.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Imperial Chemical Industries fell 23 cents to $15.76. Analysts noted that ICI was one of several blue chips to be hit by recent profit downgrades, reflecting the impact a weaker dollar would have on overseas earnings.

Glaxo fell 46 cents to $14.37 amid rumors Takeda Chemical Industries Ltd. of Japan is filing for permission to market an anti-ulcer drug in the U.S. and some European countries that would rival Glaxo's Zantac.

Elsewhere in the pharmaceutical group, SmithKline Beecham eased 4 cents to $10.54.

Guinness slipped 13 cents to $13.72 on a local brokerage scaling back its earnings forecast for the brewer.

Worries about strains on the U.S. banking system pushed Britain's largest banks lower. National Westminster fell 13 cents to $4.85, Barclays Bank lost 11 cents to $6.75 and Lloyds Bank fell 6 cents to $5.32.

Among some of the day's other highlights, fashion-house Laura Ashley rose 6 cents to $1.24, boosted by lower interest rates and an expected consumer spurt.

British Aerospace slipped 13 cents to $10.21, also on a profit downgrade.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices rebounded 1.5 percent in light trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange, where the closely watched German stock index, which had fallen 58.42 points in the previous two sessions, closed ahead 21.27 points to 1,428.38.

Traders said stocks gained in part as a result of covering ''short'' positions following the two days of losses.

But analysts noted most large institutional investors remanined sidelined amid worries over the Middle East and global oil prices.

ORLANDO, Fla. (OCT. 11) UPI - The cost of operating a new car has risen 3.4 cents a mile in the past year, the American Automobile Association said Thursday.

The average motorist driving a new car in the United States now pays 34.5 cents a mile for the privilege, or $511 more on an annual basis than last year the AAA said.

A full penny of that increase has come since June 30, largely because of rising gasoline costs, the organization said.

A motorist's fixed costs - insurance, depreciation, registration fees, taxes and interest costs - accounted for $361 of the annual increase, the AAA said.

Higher gas prices boosted annual costs by an additional $150.

The AAA said a typical motorist now pays 9.6 cents a mile in operating costs, including the price of gas, oil, tires and maintenance, and an additional $10.26 a day in fixed costs.

Costs vary from region to region, however.

The AAA said motorists in New England paid the most to drive, at 36 cents a mile, while their counterparts in the Midwest paid the least at 33.4 cents.

In the Southeast, motorists paid 33.6 cents a mile, in the Great Lakes region they paid 33.8 cents, while in the Southwest, they paid 34 cents.

Motorists in the Mid-Atlantic region paid 34.9 cents a mile, while in the West they paid 35.4 cents.

The AAA said the average cost nationwide is based on a composite of the costs of owning and operating three domestic cars, driven 15,000 miles in a year. A Ford Escort LX, a Ford Taurus and a Chevrolet Caprice were used to determine the average cost, the AAA said.

Based on those factors, the AAA said the average motorist driving 15, 000 miles a year can expect to pay $1,425 in operating costs, and an additional $3,744.90 in fixed costs, for a total of $5,170.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 11) UPI - Moslem religious leaders Thursday rejected Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's appointment of a three-member team to investigate Monday's slayings of 21 Palestinians, saying the committee's aim was to keep information secret.

''The facts do not need committees or things to be proved,'' the Supreme Islamic Council said in statement. ''What can be proved is the blood which fell on the Al Aqsa Mosque (complex).''

The Islamic Supreme Council dismissed the investigation team as inadequate and said that if Israel is serious about an investigation, only judges or lawyers should be involved. The team of independent investigators appointed by Shamir is headed by a reserve general.

In its statement, the council said the committee's goals were to ''waste time '' obscure the facts, keep information secret and avoid placing blame for the deaths.

In Jerusalem's Old City Thursday, police dispersed hundreds of demonstrating Palestinians near the Temple Mount, Islam's third holiest site, where 21 Moslems were killed in rioting Monday.

Police fired tear gas to force the crowd of mostly young Palestinians, estimated at 200 to 300, away from an entrance to the Temple Mount, witnesses and Palestinian sources said. At least two people were arrested but no injuries were reported, police said.

The demonstrators, some covering their faces with keffiyehs and waving the Palestinian green, red, black and white flag, began their march from the Old City home of one of those killed by Israeli security forces Monday.

Other Old City marches ended without incident, including one from the Church of the Holy Sepulchre led by several prominent Palestinians to protest the deaths of 21 Moslems Monday at the Temple Mount.

The Dome of the Rock and Al Aqsa Mosque are on the Temple Mount, Islam's third holiest site known in Arabic as the Haram esh Sharif.

Since the violence and deaths, the Temple Mount has been closed to tourists and authorities maintainthat only Moslems who wish to pray may enter the complex. The Western Wall, Judaism's holiest site, stands below the Temple Mount and is the remaining outer retaining wall of the destroyed Jewish Temples.

Monday, Palestinians threw hundreds of stones from the Temple Mount area over the Western Wall. Thousands of Jewish worshippers were in the Western Wall plaza when the violence began but most escaped injury and fled.

Along the Israeli-Jordanian border early Thursday, an Israeli military patrol detected shots fired from the Jordan River's eastern bank in Jordanian territory, military sources said. Searches near the Israeli town of Ashdot Ya'acov, just south of the Sea of Galilee, found nothing, the sources said.

There have been four incidents or infiltration attempts this year along Israel's border with Jordan.

In Jerusalem, no incidents were reported in the Jewish Quarter of the Old City or the Western Wall where hundreds of worshippers celebrated the last day of the Succot holiday, known as Simchat Torah. Dozens of police and paramilitary Border Police were deployed in the area while others kept watch from nearby rooftops.

The military maintained curfews on the entire Gaza Strip, major West Bank towns and most Palestinian refugee camps, confining more than 900, 000 Arabs to their homes. The West Bank towns of Ramallah, Tulkarm, Qalqilya and Hebron were declared closed military areas, preventing non- residents and journalists from entering.

Palestinian shops in East Jerusalem and West Bank towns not under curfew remained closed Thursday in observance of a general strike called in mourning for the slain Arabs. Residents of Israeli Arab towns returned to work Thursday after a two-day strike sparked by the slayings, but several incidents were reported by police.

In the Israeli Arab village of Taibe, masked men armed with knives entered a high school, ordered students to leave their classes and threatened teachers. Police arrested four people.

LA PAZ, BOLIVIA (OCT. 11) UPI - Gunmen bombed a building housing a unit of U.S. Marines and fought guards with small arms, killing one Bolivian agent and wounding another, police said Thursday.

In the second of two late Wednesday night bombings, a bronze monument to President John F. Kennedy was toppled to the ground and two bystanders wounded police said.

None of the Marines, who guard the U.S. Embassy when on duty, were injured in the 11 p.m. attack on their home, a two-story mansion surrounded by a 5-foot brick wall and rows of pine trees that make the house barely visible from the street.

''Miraculously, they (the Marines) were unhurt,'' said Bruce Wharton, an embassy spokesman.

Radio Fides, the Catholic Church station, said it received a telephone call Thursday morning saying the attacks were carried out by the ''Nestor Paz Zamora Command'' against ''Yankee symbols.''

The U.S Embassy would not reveal the number of Marines staying at the building but press reports gave their number at 20.

Nestor Paz Zamora was the brother of incumbent President Jaime Paz Zamora and a former guerrilla, killed in 1970 in a battle in Teoponte, 150 miles southeast of La Paz.

Wharton said that in recent weeks the U.S. embassy has received threats from anonymous telephone callers saying they represented the ''ultraright, the ultraleft, and the narcotics traffickers.''

U.S. Ambassador Robert Gelbard in recent weeks has complained publicly that he has received reports that he and high Bolivian officials are the targets of alleged assasination plots by narcotics dealers.

Bolivia, after Peru, is the world's second producer of coca leaves, the raw material from which cocaine is manufactured.

Gen. Lucio Anez, commander of the Special Forces in the Fight against Narcotics Trafficking, said he has received reports from a ''reliable source'' about a plot by narcotics dealers to kill Gelbard, President Paz Zamora and other high officials.

Police said the raiders who bombed the Marine building opened fire from two vehicles before the bomb exploded at the corner of Villalobos and Republic Dominicana streets.

The guards returned the fire briefly before one of them, Jose Luis Mirando, was killed, and his companion, German Ulo Mamani, fell wounded. Mamani is now in a coma interned at the police clinic, police said.

Police commander Gen. Felipe Carvajal said his units were in a state of alert, searching for the blue Volkswagen believe used in the assault.

Shortly after the attack on the Marine barracks, a bomb exploded at a monument in La Paz to the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy, destroying part of the pedastal and toppling the bronze statue to the ground.

Two passers-by were injured in that attack, police said.

CARACAS, Venezuela (OCT. 11) UPI - Eight Latin American presidents meeting Thursday must make progress toward creation of a common market or the region will fall further behind in the face of a new world economic order, President Carlos Andres Perez said.

Perez spoke as the leaders prepared for two days of meetings focusing on plans for regional economic integration and a response to President Bush's call for a common hemispheric market, as well as other Latin American issues.

The meetings starting Thursday afternoon include Perez and the presidents of Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Argentina, Ecuador, Mexico and Uruguay.

The meeting of the ''Group of Rio'' was expected to focus on plans to combine the economies of the region into a single unit as the world faces a new economic order resulting from the fall of the communists blocks in Eastern Europe, the rise of a common economic unit in Western Europe in 1992 and the U.S.-Canadian trade alliance.

''We are now in front of a tremendous challenge,'' said Perez in a speech to the nation carried on a local radio station, ''the challenge of the formation of big economic blocks, like the European community, the free market established between the United States and Canada.''

He warned Latin America must ''adjust to this reality or we will face worse situations that those under which this region has lived in the past.''

The presidents also were expected to discuss a common response to the June 27 proposal by President Bush for a free trade zone in the hemisphere similar to that taking effect in Europe in 1992.

But one member of the Chilean delegation complained that despite the ''Bush Initiative,'' the United States was not prepared to enter into a free trade agreement.

''The U.S. told us, 'Don't get too excited (over the Bush proposal) because we are not in condition to complete it,''' said the Chilean official who asked not to be named.

Besides Perez, participating in the meetings were presidents Patricio Aylwin of Chile, Carlos Menem of Argentina, Fernando Collor de Mello of Brazil, Cesar Gaviria of Colombia, Carlos Salinas de Gortari of Mexico, Luis Alberto Lacalle of Uruguay and Rodrigo Borja of Ecuador.

Borja, pointing to the formation of economic blocks in the world, said: ''Not to do so (in this region) would be political and economic suicide for Latin America.''

Peruvian President Alberto Fujimori did not attend the meetings because congress did not approve his leaving the country.

Mexico has begun negotiations with the United States to form a free trade zone. Mexico and Chile also have agreed to negotiations for a free trade pact between the two nations to go into effect in 1995.

In South America, Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay and Chile have set a target date of Dec. 31, 1995, to form a common market.

The ''Group of Rio'' was formed four years ago in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, to seek peaceful solutions to conflicts in South America. It has since evolved into a forum to discuss other regional issues.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) UPI - The Metropolitan Museum has completed its 20-year master expansion plan with a $10 million European sculpture court and galleries that will open Nov. 6, it was announced Thursday.

Philippe de Montebello, director of the museum, described the new Carroll and Milton Petrie Court as ''a splendid utilization of space that enhances the interplay of shadow and light on large outdoor groups of sculpture, intensifying their tacticle richness and strength of form.''

Petrie, an 88-year-old chain clothing store tycoon, and his wife underwrote construction of the skylighted court in the French 18th century style of architecture in space between two recently constructed wings. It will be reached through the original 1888 carriage entrance of the museum, now restored.

De Montebello said the 240-foot-long court would bring together a substantial number of French and Italian lead and marble sculptural works from the 17th to 19th centuries that had hitherto been widely dispersed in the museum or kept in storage. Some works have been acquired recently with the new court in mind, he said.

The court, with a 44-foot-high glass curtain wall looking onto Central Park, will have a fountain and boxwood plantings that frame beds of begonias and a trellis wall with vines.

It connects with an arcade leading to four additional gallery areas featuring smaller terracotta, marble and bronze sulptures and 18th century French tapestries.

''The court and its arcade and gallery complex enable the museum at long last to bring the diverse elements of its Euoprean sculpture and decorative arts collection together conveniently on the main floor and fuse them into a cohesive whole,'' Montebello said.

The Petries' gift provided the last major component of museum enlargment begun in the late 1970s by the architectural firm of Kevin Roche John Dinkeloo and Associates.

Other elements are the Robert Lehman, Michael C. Rockefeller, Sackler, American, Lila Acheson Wallace and Henry R. Kravis wings as well as the Temple of Dendur enclosure. These provided new space for the Lehman collection of European art, U.S. art and decoration, Oceanic and Oriental art, and 19th and 20th Century art.

In the same period various collections, notably the Egyptian and Middle Eastern collections, also have been reorganized and redesigned.

BAABDA, LEBANON (OCT. 11) UPI - Christian military leader Gen. Michel Aoun called on the United States to support a new dialogue toward national reconciliation which he said would take into consideration U.S. interests in the Middle East.

Aoun, 55, who has rebuffed the so-called Taif peace accord - an Arab- brokered plan to restore peace in Lebanon backed by Syria and supported by Washington - made his appeal during an interview with United Press International in his bunker in suburban Baabda southeast of Beirut.

The general refuses to recognize the Syrian-backed government of President Elias Hrawi and argues that the Taif accord, which essentially limits 40 years of Maronite Christian power, does not call for a speedy end of Syria's 14-year military role in Lebanon.

In seeking U.S. help, Aoun said: ''I would like to tell them (U.S. officials) that we understand their vital interests in the area and we are ready to adapt our policy to these interests.''

''We would like them to give us a chance to organize our country and to let us make a free dialogue around a negotiating table to achieve a Lebanese settlement of the crisis inspired by our own wishes,'' he said.

Aoun also said he did not fear a Syrian attack to oust him but regretted that the Syrians backed a 14-day siege around the region he commands. Troops loyal to Hrawi have barred the entry of truckloads of food and gasoline into Aoun's region in efforts to force him into surrendering.

Beirut was split into two halves since the Christian-Moslem civil war broke out in 1975. The Christian sector was divided into two parts since Aoun launched a military campaign against the militia of Maronite warlord Samir Geagea last January.

But while Aoun strongly denounced Hrawi's government for coordinating with Syria, he acknowledged that he had sought to open dialogue with Damascus.

''We had exerted efforts to establish friendly relations with Syria,'' Aoun said adding ''but the Syrians backed the siege. We regreted that they continued to support that unpopular government,'' Aoun said.

The general had argued that the 70-member Lebanese Parliament failed to genuinely represent the nation on grounds that no parliamentary elections occured after the flare-up of the civil war in 1975.

Responding to whether he would be receptive in case Washington sought to reopen its embassy in Awkar, northeast of Beirut, Aoun said ''it was an American decision to leave Lebanon. They are welcome to return any time.

The United States evacuated the 30-member embassy staff in September 1988 after the mission's building was surrounded by hundreds of Aoun's followers, protesting U.S. reluctance to back Aoun's campaign against Syria.

BELFAST (OCT. 11) UPI - Hundreds of mourners under tight security attended the funeral Thursday of Dessie Grew, a high-ranking gunman of the Irish Republican Army killed with a fellow extremist in an ambush by British soldiers this week.

Grew, 37, who had been wanted in at least two dozen slayings linked to the IRA's drive to end British rule in Northern Ireland, was shot dead by British undercover troops Tuesday as he and fellow IRA volunteer Martin Mc Caughey walked across farmland near the village of Loughgall.

Hundreds of people, most of them IRA sympathizers, attended their funerals in Armagh, 45 miles west of Belfast.

But the presence of the mourners was matched by that of hundreds of security personnel, who manned roadblocks in armored cars and flew three helicopters equipped with video cameras to record the two ceremonies in Knockaconey village.

One man who scuffled with the officers was arrested.

Police were apparently intent on preventing Grew from being given a traditional IRA send-off of paramilitary gunmen firing shots over the coffin. Wednesday night, an IRA honor guard dressed in black berets and black uniforms fired a volley over Grew's coffin at his home, 2 miles from the village.

At the funeral at St. Patick's cemetary, an Irish flag was draped over the coffin and Grew's beret and black gloves lay on top of his casket.

Gerry Adams, president of the Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA, described Grew in a graveside speech as ''a freedom fighter, a patriot and a fine upstanding Irish citizen.''

''Those of us left to finish the unfinished business will do so,'' Adams pledged.

Grew's headstone will bear the inscription, ''may my blood serve as a seed for freedom.''

Another inscription in Gaelic will read, ''our day will come.''

Mc Caughey, 23, who had been wanted in nine killings, was later buried in St. John's church in Galbally, close to his home.

''After 21 years of tragedy, a solution seems as far away as ever,'' the priest officiating at the funeral said.

Police said the dead extremists were armed with Soviet-made assault rifles and that officers arrested three other people in a nearby farmhouse during the raid.

In Holland, a Dutch prosecutor said Grew's fingerprints had been found in an apartment used by an IRA cell whose members have been jailed in connection with the slaying of two Australian tourists last summer.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (OCT. 11) UPI - NATO nations on Thursday welcomed the agreement on conventional forces in Europe reached last week in New York, and western officials downplayed a Warsaw Pact split over tank levels.

A finalized agreement is strongly expected in time for signing at a 34-nation summit in Paris next month, though ''it's not yet a sure thing,'' said a senior western official close to the CFE talks in Vienna.

Inspection and verification issues still need to be resolved in time for the Nov. 19 Paris summit of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Several Warsaw Pact nations want the Soviet Union limited to 13,000 of the Warsaw Pact's 20,000-tank ceiling under the proposed CFE treaty, while the Soviet Union wants to retain 13,300 tanks.

''It is not disastrous that there is still some argument over 300 tanks out of a total of 20,000 in Eastern Europe,'' said a senior western official close to the CFE talks in Vienna.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, in New York last week, announced an agreement in principle on the CFE talks.

Ceilings for NATO and the Warsaw Pact would be 20,000 tanks and 20, 000 artillery pieces each, and 30,000 armored combat vehicles each.

A ''sufficiency'' rule would limit any one country to 33.25 percent of the total number of 40,000 tanks, which would come to 13,300 tanks.

''There's no good reason to hold up work on the treaty'' due to the Warsaw Pact's bickering over 300 tanks, said the senior western official.

NATO's High Level Task Force reviewed the agreement between Baker and Shevardnadze, and ''the results of what took place in New York were quite favorably received,'' the official said.

He said the western allies are in agreement on all major points, and dismissed the Warsaw Pact's Prague meeting as a ''little bit of a stumble, but not a major one, in the East.''

The CFE treaty will include ceilings in subregions within each side. As long as those subceilings were not threatened by Warsaw Pact differences, the squabble over 300 tanks could continue until just before the treaty was signed the official said.

When the treaty is signed, however, each side must turn over a list of country-by-country allocations - an exercise that would have been dictated from Moscow, for the Warsaw Pact, when the CFE talks began in March 1989.

''A year ago, if somebody said the Soviet Union and these countries would be arguing over allocation, you'd have said they were crazy,'' the official said.

DALLAS (OCT. 11) UPI - Kimberly-Clark Corp. Thursday reported third quarter earnings of $123.3 million, or $1.54 a share, compared with $108.8 million, or $1.35 a share, in the same period of last year.

Revenues totaled $1.57 billion, up 10.6 percent from $1.45 billion last year. The company had operating profit of $196.5 million in the third quarter, up 13.3 percent from $177.6 million last year.

Chairman Darwin Smith said much of the improvement in operating profit came from the personal care businesses in North America.

Operating margins were better than forecast because of strong performance in certain product lines and the elimination of Spruce Fallas Power and Paper Co. Ltd. from the consolidated results, the company said.

Last month, the company and The New York Times Co. jointly announced their failure to complete the sale of their equal interest in Spruce Falls, a newsprint company in Ontario, Canada, to Kruger Inc., which had been announced in June. In June, Kimberly-Clark took an after-tax charge of $44 million, or 55 cents a share, on the proposed sale.

For the nine months, the company had earnings of $320.9 million, or $4.01 a share, on revenues of $4.76 billion. In the same period of last year, earnings totaled $313.2 million, or $3.89 a share, on revenues of $4.27 billion.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 11) UPI - The African National Congress accused President Frederik de Klerk's government Thursday of endangering talks on ending apartheid, and a senior Cabinet minister predicted an alliance of whites and blacks could beat the ANC in a future non-racial election.

The ANC, charging Pretoria was breaching understandings reached in preliminary talks, said in a statement ''the government's undermining of efforts to achieve a genuine peace settlement places the whole negotiations process in jeopardy.''

It said recent actions by the government ''have forced both (ANC leader) Nelson Mandela and the African National Congress to call into question the integrity of F.W. de Klerk.''

Mandela told de Klerk of his misgivings when the two met Tuesday and ANC officials released details of the black leader's specific complaints. Among them were government demands that the movement surrender weapons amassed during a 29-year guerrilla war and a tough police crackdown on black factional violence.

But Constitutional Affairs Minister Gerrit Viljoen, the hands-on manager of de Klerk's eight months of racial reforms, told reporters in Pretoria Thursday he had gained ''a new vision'' that saw whites and disaffected ANC members joining together.

Ruling out an alliance between the ruling National Party and the ANC because of ''fundamental differences,'' Viljoen said that with the unspecified combination of black and white voters he envisaged, ''There is no reason why we can't beat the ANC.''

He also repeated his prediction that full power-sharing negotiations would begin early next year, despite ANC charges of government deviation from agreements reached in peace talks.

The ANC statement objected mainly to Pretoria's demands over the past weeks that the movement surrender weapons caches. The statement noted the ANC had suspended but not abandoned its armed struggle against white minority rule on Aug. 6.

The ANC also criticized the continuing detention of executive member and leading communist Mac Maharaj, who was arrested July 29 on charges of fomenting a communist-led conspiracy should negotiations fail to bring about a non-racial constitution.

SPRING HILL, Tenn. (OCT. 11) UPI - General Motors' Saturn Corp. began Thursday shipping the first truck loads of its highly touted import- fighting cars from its $1.9 billion plant as company President Richard ''Skip'' LeFauve promised no rebates would be used to spur sales.

Three Saturn models - a red coupe, silver sedan and another maroon sedan - were driven out the plant in Spring Hill, Tenn., by Saturn officers and Tennessee Gov. Ned McWherter amid loud cheers from hundreds of red-shirted Saturn workers, or ''team members.''

''I want you to print this,'' LeFauve told reporters as the cars - the fruit of a seven-year, $3 billion project by General Motors Corp. to domestically build a small car competitive with Japanese offerings - were loaded onto carriers. ''There will be no rebates. At these prices, we can't afford to put rebates on them.''

Last week Saturn announced a base price of $7,995 for the most inexpensive model, between $1,000 and $2,000 below most projections. At the top is the Saturn SC sports coupe at $11,775. Two other sedans are priced in between: the Saturn SL-1 sedan at $8,595 and Saturn SL-2 Sports Touring Sedan at $10,295.

Industry analysts have praised Saturn's pricing, although popularly ordered extras like automatic transaxle and air conditioning reduce the advantage as prices enter the $10,000-$12,000 range.

''The big surprise about Saturn so far is how aggressive the price is,'' said Jack Kirnan of Kidder Peabody & Co. in New York. ''It is a way of trying to guarantee customer interest in the car, especially to those who have expressed a willingness to buy American if the price is there, the value is there, and the quality is there.''

Both LeFauve and Donald Hudler, Saturn's vice president of sales, service and marketing, said they expect Saturn to attract a high number of import-prone buyers as well as those considering other domestic brands including GM's Chevrolet and Geo nameplates.

''It will be plus business for General Motors,'' Hudler said, noting that the U.S. subcompact and compact market is about 4 million cars strong and that Saturn has already received requests for more information by 14,000 people since early September. ''Our philosophy is to underpromise and overdeliver.''

Saturn expects to have approximately 1,000 cars shipped or enroute to about 30 dealers, primarily in the South and West, by Oct. 25, the official sales date.

Some of those dealers may even offer prospective buyers comparison test drives with imports, an idea spawned by dealers, not Saturn, LeFauve said.

Saturn is now making about 75 cars a day, and will not reach its 240, 000-a-year capacity until late 1991, LeFauve said.

He declined to be specific about any sales goals for the first year, saying that quality, not volume, is the top priority at Saturn. ''We are not going to be judged on how many cars we have in showrooms on Day One or how many we sold the first year.''

Despite generous tax breaks ranging as high as 75 percent through the year 2025, Saturn officers have conceded that the company will not turn a profit until production is well into the 300,000-a-year rate after the plant undergoes an expansion in the mid-1990s.

LeFauve said Saturn's financial condition is confidential. ''All I can say is that we have made a committment to General Motors' board (of directors) to be profitable.''

''Building a small car profitably was the main mission for Saturn and still is '' industry analyst Kirnan said. ''But anytime you start a brand new company it is very difficult to make money. And I don't think anybody - Japanese automakers included - can make any money because the small car market has been in a recession since 1987.''

Kirnan said a slow, gradual production buildup is the best way for Saturn to control quality and publicity for the car, primarily aimed at Honda's successful Civic model.

CHICAGO (OCT. 11) UPI - Corporations making cutbacks have shifted the focus of management layoffs - targeting younger managers and putting more value on the experience and loyalty of workers 50 and older, a leading employment consultant said Thursday.

''Increasing numbers of employers are apparently recognizing that experience and skills cannot be replaced, so they are retaining older workers rather than their less experienced younger counterparts,'' said James E. Challenger, president of Challenger, Gray and Christmas Inc.

Challenger said a review of the latest unemployment statistics provided by the Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics shows increasing numbers of younger workers are being laid off, while comparatively fewer older white-collar employees are losing their jobs.

''There has been a definite shift in focus of white-collar layoffs,'' said Challenger, whose firm specializes in helping unemployed managers find new jobs.

He said the latest statistics confirm a trend his company first detected in its quarterly survey of managers during the third quarter of 1984.

''Workers age 50 and over may become the workers of choice in the 1990s,'' Challenger said.

The older workers, besides being more experienced, have another big advantage, Challenger noted. They're generally cheaper.

''The older worker doesn't always have as high a salary as a younger worker,'' Challenger said.

Starting salaries for managers are considerably higher than they were 25 years ago, so laying off an older manager and promoting a younger worker to the job is likely to mean increasing the position's salary.

''Companies have to pay younger people more to keep them, and when they work into the same position held by an older worker, they tend to be earning more '' Challenger said.

''Twenty years ago, the emphasis was on a loyal, stable emplyee. Now a person moves to get ahead,'' he said.

''That's a big reason older workers are keeping their jobs and getting new jobs. Somebody who's 52 will be there until they retire, but you get somebody who's 35, you're lucky if they'll be there five years,'' he said.

In the past two years, he said, workers over 50 who have lost their jobs had an easier time finding new positions - usually at salaries equal to or higher than their previous jobs.

Through the mid-1980s, the length of job searches for older managers was considerably longer than for their younger counterparts. But Challenger said his company's quarterly surveys showed older workers closed the gap two years ago and the two groups have remained relatively even ever since.

''Sometimes it's a week longer, sometimes a week less, but finding new jobs is no problem for people over 50 anymore, except when they get to be around 65 it can be more difficult,'' Challenger said.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 11) UPI - Calling the United Nations the ''central mechanism in building the new world order,'' the Soviet Union Thursday submitted a series of proposals to make the organization better able to deal with that task.

The proposals are contained in a memorandum on ''The United Nations in a Post-Confrontation World'' that was sent to Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar from Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The letter was announced at a press conference by Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Petrovsky.

The proposals include enhancing the roles of the Security Council and secretary-general, while at the same time streamlining the activities of the General Assembly. The letter also called for reactivating the Security Council's Military Staff Committee, which was moribund throughout the Cold War.

The Soviets are not calling for any change in the U.N. Charter, Petrovsky said but rather are asking for changes in its functioning that will better enable the United Nations to realize its potential and meet new requirements.

The goal is to turn the United Nations into a ''global management center,'' Petrovsky said.

The proposals are unlikely to be popular among the non-aligned nations, because they involve a weakenning of the General Assembly - where all 159 members have an equal vote - and greater powers for the Security Council, where the five permanent members possess veto powers.

The five are the Soviet Union, the United States, China, France and Britain, which are also the sole members of the Military Staff Committee.

Petrovsky said his government was prepared to send the chief of staff of its armed forces to meet with military leaders of the other permanent members to discuss how to provide the United Nations with the means of ''curbing aggression.'' The top brass should also discuss the Persian Gulf crisis, he said.

The Military Staff Committee was established 45 years ago but has been inactive ever since because of tensions among its members. A meeting along the lines that the Soviets are proposing could be the first step towards establishing a U.N. army.

The Soviets also want the Security Council's role to be extended to cover ''security in all its aspects,'' Petrovsky said. He listed the environment as a new issue the Security Council could deal with.

Meanwhile, the letter said the General Assembly ''should turn to practical action'' and make fewer and more productive decisions. It also called on member states to comply with the standards set in those resolutions, and said this was now becoming a rule for the Soviet Union. The General Assembly is often criticized for passing highminded statements that are rarely followed in the internal policies of its members.

The role of the secretary-general should be extended, particularly in regard with fact-finding missions, the letter said. The secretary- general does often lead or send fact-finding missions, but usually only after being authorized by the General Assembly or the Security Council.

(OCT. 11) UPI - The nation's major retailers Thursday reported poor September sales, providing further evidence of the economy's recessionary trend, analysts said.

Lower spending reflected increased anxiety by consumers about job security, and inflation, particularly higher gasoline and heating oil prices caused by the Middle East crisis.

The trend is expected to continue at least for the rest of 1990, resulting in a poor Christmas season for retailers, marked by discounting and promotional activity, analysts said.

A few of the biggest names in retailing managed single-digit increases in same-store sales, compared with the same period last year, but many of those increases were still below the rate of inflation. Most reported figures for a five-week period ended Oct. 6.

For the second consecutive month, the top performer was Wal-Mart Stores Inc., of Bentonville, Ark., with a 9 percent increase in same- store sales and a $2.46 billion in total sales, up 24 percent from $1.98 billion in the same period of 1989.

Among the other top three retailers, Chicago-based Sears Merchandise Group, the nation's biggest retailer, reported a 4.4 percent increase in same-store sales, with a total sales figure of $3.1 billion - 4.2 percent above September 1989.

K mart Corp, of Troy, Mich., has just a 0.7 percent rise in same- store sales, with a total sales figure of $2.8 billion, up 10.2 percent from $2.5 billion. K mart's figures were for the five-week period ended Oct. 3.

Same-store sales exclude stores that were not open a year ago.

But other major firms reported declines in same-store sales. J.C. Penney Co. of Dallas had same-store sales fall 3.4 percent while total sales dropped 2.3 percent to $1.3 billion.

Limited Inc., of Columbus, Ohio, had a 3 percent decline in same- store results, although total sales increased 10 percent to $459 million. May Department Stores of St. Louis fell 1.8 percent in same- store sales, while total sales rose 3.5 percent to $901 million.

''Overall, this was a very disappointing performance, but not unexpected,'' said Kurt Barnard, publisher of Retail Marketing Report, a New York-based newsletter.

''I think that September sales show fear on the part of consumers about job security and fewer dollars available to them for discretionary purchases in stores and restaurants.

''Consumers today are worried about the way the economy is going. They now feel the very painful pinch of having to spend a lot more money for gasoline and heating oil.''

He said he expected a disappointing Christmas shopping season, with a lot of promotions as retailers try to move inventory.

Barnard singled out Wal-Mart as ''in a class by itself'' and pointed to The Gap, based in San Francisco, and Merry-Go-Round Enterprises of Joppa, Md., as other stand-out performers, with increases of 8 percent and 16 percent, respectively, in same-store sales.

The Gap and Merry-Go-Round had followed similar strategies, Barnard said, in targeting narrowly focused apparel markets. The Gap reported sales of $181 million, a 17 percent increase, while Merry-Go-Round's sales rose 24 percent to $54.8 million.

PRAGUE, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (OCT. 11) UPI - A crowd of up to 30,000 people demonstrated Thursday for swift and stern action against the continued power of Czechoslovakia's Communist Party.

The protestors in Old Town Square sang ''If we are too nice to them they will smash us,'' and chanted ''Enough Velvet,'' a reference to last November's bloodless revolution and President Vaclav Havel's conciliatory policy towards the communists and the agents of their 42- year repressive regime.

The demonstration was an outburst of growing discontent over the slow pace of economic and political reform.

Czechoslovaks appear to have exhausted their patience with the bureaucratic and political footdragging and the entrenched interests who have kept their privileged positions from the communist era.

Earlier Thursday, the government announced it would ask Parliament to pass legislation permitting it to confiscate all Communist Party's property without remuneration.

The moves came amid irritation over televised remarks by Communist Party leader Vasil Mohorita, who said Czecholsovakia's package of market-oriented economic reforms meant the communists could no longer support Prime Minister Marian Calfa's coalition government.

''This is the end of the period of national understanding and now a very fierce and uncompromising struggle has begun,'' said Mohorita.

''We should also have greater influence in the trade union movement and we should reestablish cells in different enterprises, factories and workplaces,'' he said.

Mohorita's remarks were condemned by top political leaders and even by some communists.

The local Communist Party in Ostrava, a Communist stronghold and steel and mining center in North Moravia, said ''We refuse all speeches and opinions of this kind because they are not in accordance with our ideas.''

But the Party's central leaders said only that they disagreed with the way Mohorita made his remarks.

Jiri Michalik, president of the Communist Party of Bohemia and Moravia, said ''Comrade Mohorita has the right to his own opinion. Personally, I agree with the ideas of Comrade Mohorita but not with the way he said them.''

Thursday's demonstration was called by the Club of Engaged Non-Party Members, a rightist group of unaffiliated political activists.

Speaking from a balcony overlooking the square, Rudolf Pernicky, a World War II resistant who spent 11 years in uranium mines for opposing the communists, said: ''In 70 years, communism has killed 70 or 80 million people in the 19 countries where it ruled.''

The communists and their loyalists are widely thought to still control the Secret Police and the army officer corps and to have a network of supporters throughout business and government.

The demonstration was marked by an unforgiving attitude towards the communists and their 42 years of totalitarian rule.

Student Igor Cholm condemned the government's easy-going attitude towards the communists and told a roaring crowd: ''We shouldn't be carried away by the leftist lunacy of the government.''

Cestmir Cejka, deputy mayor of Prague, said ''Our biggest tragedy is that we were always willing to forgive. This may be our biggest fault. Now we must correct this fault. It is no time for forgiveness. We must judge their crimes.''

Other placards carried by demonstrators said, ''Outlaw the communist murderers and theives,'' and ''Reap what you have sown Vasil Mohorita.''

Some placards even called for the ouster of former communists who have joined the reform movement. ''Outlaw ex-Communists Calfa, Vacek and Dubcek,'' read a sign referring to Prime Minister Marian Calfa, Defense Minister Miroslav Vacekand Federal Assembly Chairman Alexander Dubcek.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (OCT. 11) UPI - The shuttle Discovery came through its four-day flight in above-average condition, but engineers are looking into why the ship's critical computer system was improperly set up before launch, officials said Thursday.

While the shuttle's crew caught and corrected the problem shortly after reaching orbit last Saturday, NASA managers want to make sure they understand what caused the glitch in the first place so steps can be taken to prevent it from happening again with perhaps more serious results.

With Discovery back on the ground in California, engineers at the Kennedy Space Center Thursday readied the shuttle Atlantis for a midnight trip to launch pad 39A and work to prepare the ship for blastoff around Nov. 7 on a secret military mission.

Once Atlantis is mounted on the launch stand, the leak-plagued shuttle Columbia will be hauled to nearby pad 39B for additional tests to pin down the source of crippling hydrogen fuel leaks that have grounded the ship since May 30.

Discovery and its five-man crew glided to a picture-perfect landing Wednesday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., to close out NASA's first shuttle flight in nearly six months. The mission was highlighted by the successful launch of the European-built Ulysses solar probe.

John ''Tip'' Talone, the Kennedy Space Center engineer in charge of Discovery's launch processing, said in a telephone interview from Edwards that the shuttle came through its ground-shaking launch and fiery re-entry in good condition with only a handful of minor problems.

Only 10 to 15 heat-shield tiles will need to be replaced because of in-flight damage and the shuttle's beefed up carbon brakes showed no signs of wear after their second landing in a row, a major improvement over previous brake performance.

''They're in excellent condition,'' Talone said.

The shuttle's three main engines also appear to be in good shape and if all goes well, Discovery, bolted to the back of a 747 jumbo jet, will be flown back to the Kennedy Space Center early next week.

Discovery blasted off last Saturday at 7:47 a.m. EDT. Shortly after reaching orbit, the astronauts began configuring the ship's flight computers for routine space operations.

The computers are able to operate various shuttle systems through electronic ''black boxes,'' but they must be told which systems are assigned to which computer. Programmed ''assignment tables'' are loaded into on-board memory units before launch and called up after the ship reaches orbit.

In Discovery's case, the assignment tables were improperly configured, that is at least one computer was not assigned to the expected subsystems. The astronauts quickly caught and corrected the glitch, officials said.

The problem apparently cropped up Oct. 4, two days before liftoff, when engineers were forced to reload computer programming into the electronic brain aboard the Ulysses probe.

In the process of reloading that software, a decision that was extensively debated by top NASA managers, subtle changes were made in the shuttle's assignment tables that were not caught.

''It is a really minor thing,'' said shuttle engineer Chris Fairey. ''It turned out to be a non-problem.''

But a special team of engineers was formed to look into the glitch to make sure similar problems do not occur again.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, in a letter released Thursday, asked Congress for $40 billion to keep the government's bailout of the savings and loan industry from shutting down within two months.

The request came as the White House and Congress battled over a plan to trim the federal budget. Brady called the request ''fully consistent with the budget resolution, which assumes sufficient funding.''

Brady said the money would keep the Resolution Trust Corp., charged with selling the assets of failed thrifts, operating through the end of fiscal 1991. He also recommended the lifting of limits on short-term borrowing by the RTC.

''To prevent a termination of RTC case resolutions, Congress must provide additional RTC funds and address the borrowing cap issue before it adjourns,'' Brady said in the letter to Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

Brady also noted that the ''RTC projects it will use nearly all - about $49 billion - of the $50 billion in loss funds'' provided through the end of calender year 1990.

''Forty billion dollars in appropriations beyond currently authorized spending should be sufficient to fund the losses in RTC case resolutions through the end of fiscal year 1991,'' Brady said in the letter dated Oct. 10.

Without the added funds, ''RTC case resolutions will virtually cease within the next two months,'' he said.

Calling the behemoth thrift bailout ''a mandatory federal obligation, '' Brady said the estimate was also consistent with recent congressional testimony by William Seidman, chairman of the RTC and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

''As the end of the session draws near, the public interest requires that we proceed in a bipartisan manner to assure that the RTC can continue with its important work,'' Brady said.

(OCT. 11) UPI - Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell says higher tax rates for wealthier Americans will NOT be part of the revenue package that top Senate leaders are putting together. His comments follow a meeting with other lawmakers this morning. It comes one day after the House Ways and Means Committee approved its own version of a five-year, 144-point-two-BILLION-dollar tax increase. Mitchell says he still holds to his 1986 position that the tax codes place too much of a burden on middle-income taxpayers.

Tropical Storm Marco and the remnants of Tropical Storm Klaus have drenched parts of the South with more than seven inches of rain. Flash flood watches are in effect in Georgia today. Seven-point-seven inches doused Hinesville in the eastern part of the state. Emergency officials have ordered evacuations in parts of South Carolina and high winds are kicking up big waves on the Outer Banks of North Carolina.

Other than producing torrents of rain, Marco appears to be diminishing. The National Weather Service in Miami says the tropical storm's top sustained winds have dropped to 50 miles an hour as it nears Clearwater. Storm watches and warnings have been discontinued along the east coasts of Florida and Georgia.

The Swedish Academy today awarded the Harvard University guest lecturer the 1990 Nobel Prize in Literature, citing his ''impassionate writing with wide horizons.'' Interviewed in New York, Paz- whose best know book, ''The Labyrinth of Solitude,'' was written in 1950- told a Mexican television station, ''I was NOT expecting this.'' Paz says his prize is to have readers.

Defense Secretary Cheney leaves on Saturday on a journey that takes him to London, Paris and Moscow for talks with top government officials in all three countries. The Moscow stop is Cheney's first since taking over as Defense Department chief.

Iran and Iraq have resumed talks on normalizing relations and reopening embassies closed when the two began an eight-year war in 1980. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein gave in to all of Iran's demands for a durable peace in mid-August as he faced growing world opposition to his invasion of Kuwait and found he had few supporters. Saddam pulled Iraqi troops out of Iranian territory and the former enemies began returning prisoners of war they have held for years.

McKEESPORT, Pa. (OCT. 11) UPI - In the sprawling, 140-acre former USX National Steel Works, the sons and daughters of steelworkers soon will be put to work. But metallized paper will replace the basic metal once forged inside the mill.

A ceremony Thursday marked the official opening of the Metallized Paper Corp. of America manufacturing facility, formerly known as Aluglas, the first major business to take space at the plant, which is being developed to accommodate new industry.

Metallized Paper is leasing 60,000 square feet of space in the center to manufacture and market aluminized paper board and metallized labels for the food, beverage and cosmetic industries.

The firm employs 20 workers already and plans to create 367 jobs - possibly as many as 1,000 jobs - and expand its operation to 140,000 square feet over the next three years.

The company has a patented technology and, with its new facility, will have the industry's most advanced wide web metallizing and coating equipment, officials said. Production is expected to begin soon.

The state has spent nearly $22 million to upgrade the long-empty steel mill in the heart of the city, improve access roads, water and sewer lines, and do environmental cleanup.

Gov. Robert Casey, who presented $1.25 million in state money for the Industrial Center of McKeesport, cited the project as an example of public investment that will shape the economy of southwestern Pennsylvania for the future.

''We're making these investments because we believe that government has an obligation to help create jobs and a responsibility to act as a full partner in revitalizing regions that have seen tough times,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - The Air Force, imposing a safety standdown, grounded its training flights in Saudi Arabia for 24 hours in response to three recent Air Force plane crashes that killed six airmen, the Pentagon said Thursday.

From noon Saudi time Wednesday until noon Saudi time Thursday, ''The Air Force declared a flying standdown for one day to conduct safety awareness meetings with Air Force pilots,'' Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

''They're concerned about the number of accidents that happened so quickly over a short period of time in the last few days,'' Williams said.

''I think what they want to do is get their pilots together and just once again stress the importance of safety, get together, see if there's anything on the minds of pilots,'' Williams said.

Army Col. Miguel Monteverde, a Pentagon spokesman, said the standdown did not affect air defense operations that includes five U.S. Airborne Warning and Control System, or AWACS, reconnaissance planes and some combat planes.

The Air Force has about 400 combat aircraft and 250 support aircraft in Saudi Arabia and the surrounding region.

An F-15E fighter from the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing crashed in Saudi Arabia Sept. 30, killing the two crewmen, an RF-4C reconnaissance plane from the Alabama Air National Guard went down last Monday, killing its two crewmen, and an F-111F fighter-bomber crashed Wednesday, killing its two crewmen.

A total of 31 American military personnel have been killed in accidents during Operation Desert Shield, and one Marine died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Williams said there has been in the gulf region, in total, about 20 ''class A'' aircraft accidents that involved loss of life, destruction of aircraft or damage in excess of $1 million. Of those 20, 15 involved helicopters and five involved planes.

''This is an unrelated string of accidents,'' Williams said. ''I think it's too soon to say precisely that the accident rate is high, especially if you consider the fact that we've moved what amounts to a mid-sized city 8,000 miles.''

Statistics of military accidents last year show that, on average, about 114 U.S. personnel are killed per month worldwide.

Williams also noted that ''these are not normal operating circumstances'' in Saudi Arabia and that ''flying and operating over the desert is dangerous.''

''It's one of the most difficult environments to fly in,'' he added. ''Pilots have to concentrate harder, they have to depend more on their instruments because there is no horizon (to be seen) frequently.''

In another safety step, the Army established a temporary ban on helicopter low-level night flight operations below 150 feet, until flight crews become familiarized with night flight conditions in the Saudi desert.

Williams said helicopter pilots are also taking a more ''angled approach'' to landing - similar to a plane - because hovering over a landing spot simply stirs up too much sand that can block a pilot's vision and create disorientation.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (OCT. 11) UPI - The number of Filipinos in the capital favoring the continued presence of U.S. military bases rose sharply from 28 percent in April to 63 percent in August, an independent survey released Thursday said.

A survey of 300 residents in the capital by the Social Weather Station, a private think tank, revealed the favorable response was based on the perception the ''present set-up provides huge benefits to the Philippines.''

The survey conducted from Aug. 16-30 showed 35 percent opposed the continued presense of the giant Clark Air Base, Subic Bay naval complex and four smaller facilities. Half of respondents in this group said they were willing to change their position if the benefits derived from the bases are increased.

The United States provides the Philippines $481 million annually in military aid for continued use of the facilities, whose lease expires in September 1991. The second round of talks on the future of the bases was held last month and was expected to resume this month.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) UPI - Andre Agassi, Michael Chang, Rick Leach and Jim Pugh were named Friday to the U.S. Davis Cup team for next month's finals against Australia.

Captain Tom Gorman selected the same team that defeated Austria 3-2 in the semifinals in Vienna.

The U.S. Tennis Association also announced the Davis Cup finals, to be held Nov. 30-Dec. 2 in St. Petersburg, Fla., will be played on red clay at the Florida Suncoast Dome.

This is the first Davis Cup final for the Americans since their loss to Sweden in 1984. Australia last appeared in a final in 1986, defeating Sweden.

The playing surface will be similar to those typically found on European clay courts. Construction of the courts is to begin Nov. 19 and be completed Nov. 25.

The last time the U.S. played a home Davis Cup match on clay was in 1971 against Romania in Charlotte, N.C. Since 1985 the United States has a 5-2 clay-court record, all on the road.

In the series with Australia, the Americans lead 23-18. The countries last met in 1986 in Brisbane, with the Aussies winning 3-1 in the semis.

In Davis Cup play, Agassi's singles record is 8-3 and Chang's 3-1. In doubles, Leach and Pugh are 3-0, having made their debut in this year's opening-round victory over Mexico.

The United States defeated Czechoslovakia 4-1 in the quarterfinals in Prague.

(OCT. 11) UPI - Tax hikes for the richest Americans apparently are back on the table as Congress tries to come up with a tax package that works and can win passage. Whether anything happens is another thing. Texas Republican Congressman Bill Archer says President Bush is willing to accept a new, 31 percent tax bracket for incomes above 185-thousand dollars- if he gets the capital gains tax cut he wants.

But White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater later issued a statement that while Bush has supported such an idea in the past, he is doubtful it can get the support needed.

Nobel Literature Prize winner Octavio Paz says he's happy to be this year's recipient ''but for me the best prize is having readers.'' The Mexican writer, poet and essayist is still active at 76, lecturing at Harvard. In awarding the 1990 literature prize to Paz, the Swedish Academy praised his work as being ''characterized by sensuous intelligence and humanist integrity.'' His books include ''The Labyrinth of Solitude'' and ''The Traps of Faith.''

Florida Power crews are out restoring electricity to areas around Tampa as Tropical Storm Marco moves toward Florida's panhandle. Although top winds have weakened a little, Marco is still capable of producing gusts of 50 miles an hour. Residents of Georgia and South Carolina are keeping a watch on Marco's progress as they clean up from rains dumped by what was once Tropical Storm Klaus. Three people died in Kershaw County, South Carolina, when the Kendall Lake Dam broke and water swept their car away.

The Commerce Department says look for the Sunbelt to post the fastest economic growth during the 1990's. The government says West Palm Beach, Florida, is projected to have the biggest increase in population, jobs and personal income from now to the year 2000, followed by Phoenix and Anaheim, California. Growth in the Northeast and Great Lakes regions is expected to lag behind the South and West.

The European Parliament is urging an international inquiry into Monday's killings of 21 Arabs by Israeli soldiers in Jerusalem's Old City. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has already appointed a three-member independent investigating team to look into what happened. Libya's Moammar Gadhafi says the deaths justify what he calls the ''removal'' of Israel and the founding of a ''democratic Palestinian state'' in which Jews and Arabs can live together.

Arab diplomats based in Cairo say the United States is trying to adopt a more balanced Mideast policy in the wake of Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait. The diplomats say this week's strong U-S condemnation of Monday's bloodbath in Jerusalem shows that Washington wants to maintain the support of Arab nations opposed to Saddam Hussein's aggression. The United States also is supporting a U-N resolution condemning the Temple Mount shootings by Israeli security forces.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Oceanographers told Congress Thursday coral reefs throughout the world are being damaged by high seawater temperatures in what may be first biological alarm on global warming.

A panel of five oceanographers, testifying before the Senate Commerce Committee, said there have been repeated outbreaks of coral ''bleaching'' - or whitening - in the 1980s, all occurring during times of peak water temperatures.

They said the coral damage - evident on both Pacific and Caribbean reefs - appeared to spread and worsen over the last decade, possibly because global warming may have slightly raised average water temperatures.

''The first proof of global warming may well come from the bleaching of the fragile and highly sensitive coral reef system,'' said Ernest Williams, head of the Caribbean Aquatic Animal Health Project and marine sciences professor at the University of Puerto Rico at Mayaguez.

Williams said scientists do not have proof that global warming is responsible, but he added: ''These disturbances may actually be 'alarms' from the drastically changing and deteriorating marine environment.''

The possible link with global warming also received support from climatologists who told the committee the coral bleaching outbreaks coincided with periods when worldwide temperatures were at their highest.

''There are amazing correlations between the coral bleaching events and the temperature record,'' said Dr. Roy Spencer, an atmospheric scientist at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center.

The oceanographers said coral - a living colony of cells that builds a bony white skeleton structure - is a good indicator of global warming because they are acutely sensitive to increases in seawater temperature.

He said even small temperature rises can overstress coral, causing it to expel algae within its tissue with which it ordinarily has a mutually beneficial, symbiotic relationship.

The loss of food and oxygen provided by the algae causes the normally colored coral to turn white and stop growing. While coral can recover from bleaching, repeated bouts weaken the coral and ultimately kill it.

Coral bleaching was first noticed in the early 1900s, but it did not arouse strong concern among oceanographers until the past decade when severe and widespread episodes were observed, first in the Pacific Ocean in 1983 and then in the Caribbean in 1987.

Thomas Goreau, senior scientist at the Discovery Bay Marine Laboratory in Jamaica, said the 1987 episode devastated that island's reefs, even in areas far from sewage pollution that had caused localized coral damage.

''We have never seen before what we saw in 1987 - it was unprecedented,'' said Goreau, whose center has studied Jamaican reefs for 40 years. ''The bleaching has had a greater effect than all the other forms of deterioration. It is truly alarming.''

The oceanographers said they discovered the link between bleaching and high seawater temperatures by examining satellite data on sea surface temperatures, as well as more detailed temperature readings from the Caribbean.

They said temperature peaks appear linked to the so-called El Nino Southern Oscillation, a periodic, large-scale change in Pacific Ocean currents that affects world climate, the scientists said.

The scientists said the spread of coral bleaching in the 1980s could be related to an underlying increase in seawater temperatures caused by global warming. They said that slight increase, when amplified by the El Nino event, can push water temperatures above 100 degrees Fahrenheit in the tropics' warmest months - beyond the tolerance of heat-sensitive coral.

(OCT. 11) UPI - A chartered Iraqi aircraft carrying 386 foreigners, most of them American women and children, arrived in London Thursday from Baghdad in the first evacuation flight in two weeks.

The Voice of America quoted U.S. officials as saying the flight would possibly be the last one carrying Westerners for some time from Iraq and Kuwait, where thousands of Western men are being held hostage as human shields against attack at key installations.

The flight arrived in London at 8 a.m. Thursday and most of the 142 Americans on board were scheduled to leave later in the day for North Carolina. Officials said 27 Britons, 149 Jordanians and five Australians were on the flight along with other Arabs and Westerners.

It was the 10th airlift of Western hostages trapped by the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the first since Sept. 22.

In other developments in the 2-month-old Persian Gulf crisis, a U.S. Marine who refused to board a flight for Saudi Arabia faced court martial in Hawaii and a 63-year-old grandmother who volunteered to serve with the U.S. Air Force returned home from Saudi Arabia.

The U.S. Air Force, imposing a safety standdown, grounded its training flights in Saudi Arabia for 24 hours in response to three recent Air Force plane crashes that killed six airmen.

From noon Saudi time Wednesday until noon Saudi time Thursday, ''The Air Force declared a flying standdown for one day to conduct safety awareness meetings with Air Force pilots,'' Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

President Bush told a group of military veterans in Washington that ''it's very clear that the strength of the our arms and the strength of our will is up to the challenge in the gulf.''

''The (Iraqi) regime is up against not only the law of nations, but the also the law of mathematics,'' Bush said. ''The numbers are against them. Today, it's not Iraq vs. Kuwait, it's not Iraq vs. the United States. It's Iraq against the entire world.''

Cpl. Jeff Paterson, 22, of Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station in Hawaii, said he is seeking conscientious objector status because he doesn't want to fight for ''imperialistic economic interests.''

He refused to board the flight when his unit was deployed, sitting down in the hangar when his sergeant tried to push him onto the plane.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said the Persian Gulf crisis should not be linked to the Arab-Israeli problem despite outrage over the killings of dozens of Palestinians in Jerusalem.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has tried to link his invasion of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip in hopes of winning support in the Arab world.

In other developments Thursday:

-British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said a decision must be made ''in a matter of weeks'' on whether military force should be used against Saddam Hussein. Hurd told British Broadcasting Corp. television that the United States and Britain should decide whether diplomatic isolation and economic sanctions were sufficient to get Iraq out of Kuwait.

-Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath said he would depart Friday on an unofficial mission to meet with Saddam Hussein in Baghdad and try and negotiate the release of sick and older Britons held in Iraq and Kuwait.

-Iraq resumed negotiations with Iran, its former bitter enemy in the 1980-88 gulf war. Saddam, seeking allies where he can, has made a number of concessions to Tehran and the neighboring countries are considering restoring diplomatic relations. Tehran has called for the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait but has made it clear the issue will not affect Iraqi-Iranian ties.

-Lloyds Shipping Service reported that an Indian vessel carrying 1, 859 passengers had arrived in Dubai from the Iraqi port of Um Qasr. India has been ferrying hundreds of refugees from Iraq and Kuwait in ships.

-Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal said the Iraqi invasion had divided the Arab world to the point where it could not contend with the Israeli occupation of the territories.

''That's why the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait is so shocking to us because it creates a division in the Arab world so that it weakens our ability to face the Israeli occupation of Arab lands,'' he told a news conference in Bonn before meeting with Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

-The PLO Central Council accused Washington of ''turning its back on international legality" as far as Jerusalem is concerned and called on Moslems to work ''for the immediate departure'' of U.S. forces from the Persian Gulf.

NEW YORK - Chemical Banking Corp. reported Thursday a loss of $43.7 million in the third quarter of this year and cut the company's dividend by more than half.

Following the lead of Chase Manhattan Corp., Chemical said the quarterly dividend paid on its common stock would be cut to 25 cents a share from 68 cents. Chase said last month said it would cut the dividend to shore up its capital base.

On the New York Stock Exchange, Chemical's stock closed down $1.75 to $13.25 a share - matching its 52-week low - in heavy trading.

The company posted a loss of $824.6 million in the 1989 third quarter, reflecting a $550 million addition to provisions against Third World loan losses.

Money-center banks like Chase, Chemical and Citicorp, the largest U.S. bank, have been suffering from rising levels of bad commercial real estate loans.

Separately, Bank of New York Co. reported profits of $71 million, or 90 cents a share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, compared a loss of $271 million recorded in the year-ago third quarter. Bank of New York said it would keep its dividend at 53 cents a common share.

Chemical said the main reason for its latest loss was a $250 million addition made to reserves against loan losses, including a $237 provision by Chemical Bank for possible losses on its non-Third World loan portfolio.

Chemical said its total nonperforming assets - loans on which payments are 90 days overdue or more - stood at at $3.19 billion as of Sept. 30, a rise of $186 million since June 30.

Chemical also took an $18.8 million charge against earnings to cover costs of pulling out of securities trading in Switzerland and Japan, while subsidiary Texas Commerce Bank made a $13 million provision for bad loans.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - A haze that obscures the spectacular vistas of the Grand Canyon is caused largely by pollution from a coal-fired power plant in Arizona, a group of scientific experts said Thursday.

The controversial haze is composed mostly of sulfur dioxide emitted from the Navajo Generating Station at Page, Ariz., according to a report by the National Research Council, part of the National Academy of Sciences.

The haze problem worsens during winter because air masses tend to stagnate for long periods of time, reducing visibility from more than 100 miles to sometimes less than a few miles, the report said. Light contrast and color clarity also are diminished markedly.

But the power plant is not the only source of the problem, the scientists said citing other power plants, ore smelters and automobile exhaust.

Even if the plant were required to install the best technology to control its sulfur emissions, the haze ''would most likely be reduced, but not eliminated '' the report said.

The report is important because it was intended to settle a dispute between the Environmental Protection Agency, which wanted stricter pollution requirements, and the Interior Department, whose Bureau of Reclamation partly owns the plant and advocated a ''go-slow'' approach.

A spokesman for the Interior Department was not available for immediate comment.

Each year, some 4 million visitors tour the park, which the report called ''one of the most spectacular natural sights on Earth,'' featuring ''majestic geological formations and intensely colored views.''

The Navajo Generating Station, one of the country's largest power plants, is 16 miles from the boundary of the national park and 70 miles from Grand Canyon Village, the main tourist area.

The EPA said the Arizona power plant can burn 24,000 tons of coal a day, at peak production, releasing an estimated 12-13 tons of sulfur dioxide every hour.

The National Parks and Conservation Association called on the EPA to quickly slap more stringent pollution rules on the plant, saying: ''Two studies have implicated the Salt River Project in the Grand Canyon's visibility deterioration.''

The report Thursday by the panel of scientific experts supported a 1987 study by the National Park Service implicating the power plant in the haze after ''tracer fingerprints'' were placed inside one of the plant's smokestacks.

The ''tracer fingerprints'' involved a special form of methane that was subsequently monitored at several sites in the Grand Canyon area during the two-week, $2 million study. The park service concluded that the power plant was causing as much as 70 percent of the Grand Canyon haze.

The EPA then moved to require the plant to reduce its emissions by 90 percent. But the federal Bureau of Reclamation - a part-owner of the power plant - disputed the finding. The other owners are several utilities and the Arizona Salt River Project.

Faced with the dispute, the Interior Department asked the National Research Council to examine the Park Service study. In the new report, the scientists concluded the Park Service was right.

The detection of the methane ''tracer fingerprints'' in the Grand Canyon area

''is an unambiguous indicator'' that the power plant's emissions are a significant part of the problem, the scientists said.

But the scientists also said other sources were responsible for part of the reduction in Grand Canyon visibility and that some statistical models used by the Park Service were too limited to precisely determine the amount of haze attributable to the power plant.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) UPI - The dollar took another dive in New York trading Thursday on news that Chemical Banking Corp. joined the ranks of banks cutting dividends on third-quarter losses, and on further budget obfuscation.

Currency traders said virtually undiluted pessimism on the U.S. economy was pushing the dollar into uncharted waters as it continually established record new low exchange levels against the German mark.

Remarks earlier in Tokyo by Bank of Japan Governor Yasushi Mieno, saying the dollar had fallen too far, braced it only against the yen.

Late in the New York session, the dollar traded at 1.5135 German marks, off from 1.5280 marks Wednesday, and 129.50 Japanese yen, up from 129.35. The mark price broke Tuesday's postwar low New York close of 1.5230.

Foreign exchange participants found little reassurance in the cryptic posture adopted by President Bush in the budget impasse. He offered to trade off with Congress on taxes, but said negotiations would be a waste of time.

Currency players also were dismayed by Chemical's $43.7 million loss in the third quarter and its 63 percent dividend cut. The bank added $250 million to reserves to cover possible real estate loan losses.

''There's no good news out of the United States now at all,'' said dealer Jack Griffin, a Banque Indosuez assistant vice president. ''So I guess it's a case of total lack of confidence in the U.S. economy right now.''

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2730 Swiss francs, down from 1.2820; 5.0690 French francs, off from 5.1120; and 1,134.50 Italian lire, off from 1,1144.50.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - In August, members of Congress voted by day for stiff limits on political action committees. But by night, many of the same lawmakers were attending fund-raisers in the shadow of the Capitol, amassing huge sums of money from those groups.

In fact, August and September were boom months for senators and congressmen seeking contributions from business and labor groups, a United Press International review of campaign finance reports indicates.

''We are the devil in public and considered friends in private,'' said Doug Thompson, vice president for government affairs at the National Realtors Association, the largest PAC contributor in the nation.

In the past two months, many of the nation's top PACs increased by up to twofold the amount of money contributed to federal candidates, the figures indicate.

The realtors' PAC contributed nearly $700,000 in August and September, bringing to just over $2 million the amount it has given to lawmakers since Jan. 1, 1989.

That proportion of money unloaded during those two months was similar for other leading business and labor PACs, according to Federal Election Commission records.

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters contributed $400,000 of its $1.6 million total during the two-month period, while the National Education Association donated $502,000 of its $1.3 million contributions over the two months.

Other top labor PACs that dispersed huge sums of money to candidates during the period included the Letter Carriers' union, the Carpenters' association PAC and the United Auto Workers PAC.

Among business groups, the American Medical Association PAC donated $518,000 of its $1.4 million during August and September. The AMA was followed by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Inc. PAC, which donated $213,000 of its $1.2 million, and the American Bankers Association PAC, which contributed more than $700,000 of its $1.1 million during the same period.

While PACs commonly donate hefty amounts of money during the waning months of an election cycle, many longtime participants in the process say lawmakers have become increasingly demanding of PACs.

''We feel under a good deal more pressure to respond to incumbents who have been very supportive and are calling up and saying, 'God, are we scared,''' said John Motley, chief lobbyist for the National Federation of Independent Business.

Motley said many lawmakers are frightened by the same campaign reform they are seeking and are unnerved over the strong showing in recent elections of relatively unknown candidates.

The Senate and House each passed campaign reform measures last summer that in sharply different ways would have restricted the behavior of PACs. In fact, House and Senate negotiators have not even met to iron out the differences. They concede that campaign finance reform will have to wait at least one more year to be resolved.

But the climate was far different up until two weeks ago, when business and labor leaders received stacks of invitations from lawmakers for fund-raising events.

''Some of them acted as if they were dipping at the trough for the last time '' said Steven Stockmeyer, executive vice president of the National Association of Business Political Action Committees.

Stockmeyer said he received more than 100 fund-raising invitations over a two-week period during the congressional August recess. He added, ''There wasn't a night that went by in September when there wasn't a fund-raiser. It's almost dreadful what's going on.''

Stockmeyer and other observers said that in addition to widespread fears about proposed restrictions on PACs and electoral discontent with incumbents, many lawmakers are busy amassing money for their retirement.

The House created a sort of golden parachute for itself when in a 1989 pay raise bill it included a provision allowing members elected before 1980 to transfer campaign donations for personal use if they retire by the end of 1992.

''You have a situation where members who don't run for re-election the next time can take the money and run,'' Stockmeyer said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Studies of identical twins reared apart show genes play a major role in determining a person's psychological makeup, influencing everything from intelligence to religious interest, researchers said Thursday.

Reporting in the journal Science, the University of Minnesota's Thomas Bouchard Jr. assessed results of his team's 12 years of research involving more than 50 sets of identical twins or triplets who were separated shortly after birth.

Identical siblings share exactly the same genetic makeup. Rare instances in which such twins were raised separately due to adoption or other factors provides researchers with a powerful method of exploring whether nature or nuture plays a bigger role in shaping humans.

Bouchard said his study has led to two ''general and seemingly remarkable conclusions'' concerning what causes psychological differences between people.

''Genetic factors exert a pronounced and pervasive influence on behavioral variability, and the effect of being reared in the same home is negligble for many psychological traits,'' Bouchard wrote.

The Minnesota psychologist conceded his findings probably do not surprise many people, expecially behavioral geneticists who have made similar observations.

But he said the conclusions ''challenge prevailing psychological theories on the origins of individual differences in ability, personailty, interests and social attitudes,'' which tend to emphasize the environment in which a person is raised.

Bouchard's ongoing study, which began in 1979, involves subjecting more than 100 identical twins who were reared apart to 50 hours of medical and psychological testing. Participants have come from the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia, Canada, China, New Zealand, Sweden and West Germany.

Some of the twins were raised in homes markedly different socially and economically.

In his article, Bouchard combined new data on IQ scores with pieces of information he had previously presented at scientific meetings and published in other scientific journals. Many of his findings have received widespread attention in the past. But the new paper represents the first time a comprehensive review of Bouchard's results have been published in a leading scientific journal.

In summary, the researchers found genetic factors appear to account for:

-About 70 percent of IQ variability.

-About 50 percent of personality differences, including such traits as extroversion.

-About 50 percent of differences in religiosity, as measured by factors like how often someone attends religious events.

-About 40 percent of job interest variations.

-About 50 percent of differences in ''traditionalism,'' which involves the tendency to adhere to or rebel against societal norms.

''For almost every behavioral trait so far investigated, from reaction time to religiosity, an important fraction of the variation among people turns out to be associated with genetic variation,'' the Minnesota team stated. ''This fact need no longer be subject to debate.''

But Bouchard emphasized that his work did not find that any psychological trait is 100 percent influenced by genes, and in many cases only about half of the influence appears to be genetic.

''The argument we make in the paper is certainly not that environment is unimportant. In fact, environment is a key part of our theory,'' Bouchard said in a telephone interview.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) UPI - The Dow industrials plunged to their lowest levels since early 1989 Thursday as concerns about the effects of a recession at home and heightened tensions in the Mideast sparked a selling spree.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which sank 37.62 Wednesday, set its second straight 52-week low, plunging 42.82 to close at 2365.10.

The close was the weakest since April 17, 1989, when the blue-chip average finished at 2337.79; it left the Dow down almost 20 percent since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 and oil prices skyrocketed.

The exchange's rule curbing program selling when the Dow falls 50 points was triggered for the third straight day.

Broader market gauges extended their lows for the year. The New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 2.77 to 162.20. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 4.93 to 295.46. The price of an average share slid 48 cents.

Declines thumped advances, 1,285 to 304, among the 1,998 issues crossing the Big Board tape. Volume totaled 180,060,000 shares, up from 167,890,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Analysts said concerns about the recent tensions between Israel and the Palestinians weighed on the market and pushed oil prices up sharply, which pressured stocks. Oil prices closed up $1.73 to $40.42 a barrel.

In Jerusalem's Old City Thursday, police dispersed hundreds of demonstrating Palestinians near the Temple Mount, Islam's third holiest site, where 21 Moslems were killed in rioting Monday.

On Monday, Palestinians threw hundreds of stones from the Temple Mount area over the Western Wall. Thousands of Jewish worshippers were in the Western Wall plaza when the violence began but most escaped injury and fled.

''The tensions have magnified concern, heated up the rhetoric,'' said Alfred Goldman, market strategist at A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis. ''And in a bear market, folks accentuate the negative and eliminate the positive.''

On the domestic front, Goldman said concerns flared about how the faltering economy would affect soon-to-be-released third-quarter corporate earnings.

''There's a growing fear of recession and its impact on earnings,'' Goldman said. ''We're in a stressful world and domestic environment, nobody knows how low is low. We're down 640 points from the highs almost 3000 in July in the

Dow.''

And from a technical standpoint, Goldman noted that the market has fallen below the 52-week low it set in late September. ''The bears haven't done their dastardly deed yet. The market hasn't reached levels where potential buyers feel compelled to step up to the plate.

''The only thing to do at this point is pick quality stocks, and when we get irrational selling, people throwing stocks out the window, stand down on the street with a basket,'' he said. ''They're not going to ring a bell at the bottom.''

On the trading floor, IBM was the most active issue, sinking 2 1/2 to 101. Analysts said the drop was apparently in sympathy with heavy selling in NCR, which was said to be the object of negative comments from analysts. NCR slid 2 3/8 to 50 3/4.

Wal-Mart followed, up 1/4 to 25 3/8 after Wednesday's loss. Anticipation of a weak September sales report took the stock down Wednesday, analysts said, but when the figures came out Thursday its sales were strongest among the major retailers. It posted a 9 percent increase in sales among stores that were open at least a year.

Other retailers, though, lost ground after the sales data, which was generally poor and indicated a recessionary trend, according to analysts. K mart lost 1/2 to 24 3/4, J.C. Penney fell 3/8 to 38 1/8 and The Limited skidded 1/2 to 12.

Philip Morris was third, down 3/4 to 44 3/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T bucked the trend, up 1/8 to 31 1/4 after reports saying it planned to unveil an inexpensive chip for personal computers that combines several functions. But General Motors lost 5/8 to 35 5/8 and Sears, which reported a rise in September sales but one that failed to keep pace with inflation, fell 7/8 to 22 1/2. McDonald's fell 7/8 to 35 3/4 and USX lost 1 to 30 7/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 219,031,020 shares, compared with 202,735,650 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices plunged in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index fell 5.55 to close at 293.71. Declines pounded advances, 467 to 132, among the 812 issues traded. The price of an average share lost 18 cents. Composite volume totaled 16,537,900 shares, vs. 12,986,600 traded Wednesday.

Fruit of the Loom led the Amex issues, unchanged at 7 1/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index closed down 7.65 to 325.60, its lowest level in more than 2 1/2 years.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - The Senate passed a $19.3 billion appropriations bill for several departments Thursday that seeks to end the United States' ''deadbeat'' status at the United Nations.

The Senate voted 91-7 for the 1991 spending bill for the Commerce, Justice and State Departments and the federal judiciary. The House approved a roughly $19.4 billion bill in June and differences between the measures will be worked out by a conference committee.

The Senate bill, like the House measure, provides all of the administration's $695 million request for dues to the United Nations and other international organizations and another $93 million under a five- year administration plan to pay off U.S. arrearages to the international organizations.

Also included in both bills is $90.6 million for U.N. emergency peacekeeping efforts in 1991 and about $31 million in arrearages.

Congress recently has held back U.N. funds to show its displeasure with the organization for actions such as declaring Zionism to be a form of racism and accepting the PLO observer delegation as a member of the General Assembly.

However, the U.N. role in backing U.S. policy in the Persian Gulf crisis has made the failure to pay the dues an embarrassment to U.S. officials.

In testimony last month before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Secretary of State James Baker agreed with Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., when he said it was ''outrageous'' that the United States was ''the world's biggest deadbeat'' in terms of arrearages at the United Nations.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the Foreign Relations Committee's ranking Republican objected to the U.N. funding in a floor speech, saying he was not convinced ''all of the sins and blemishes of the United Nations' past have been swept away.''

He added, ''The American people must be alert to a direct potential threat to our national sovereignty as a result of the heavy reliance this administration has placed in resolutions of the U.N. security council regarding Iraq's aggression.''

The United States is assessed about 25 percent of the regular U.N. budget and of the budgets of specialized U.N. organizations such as the World Health Organization, as well as about 30 percent of the peacekeeping budget.

Also included in the $19.3 billion bill is $117 million to pay for investigations into savings and loan fraud. That is $17 million more than requested by the administration and $42 million more than in the House bill.

The bill provides only $10 million of the $270 million that the administration requested to tear down the bug-riddled U.S. Embassy in Moscow and build a new one.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money-market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Farmers are harvesting a whopping 8.02 billion bushels of corn, 1 percent less than estimated one month ago but still the fifth largest crop ever and a follow-up to a huge wheat crop, the government said Thursday.

The new forecast - the most accurate gauge of production yet - was considered likely to encourage the government to try to restrain next year's feed grain acreage, just as it already is cutting back on wheat acreage.

U.S. grain production is up 10 percent from 1989. Wheat stockpiles are projected to nearly double due to bountiful crops around the world and less demand for export grain. Wheat prices have plunged since mid- summer.

Corn stockpiles were projected to shrink slightly, thanks to higher domestic demand offsetting a projected 300 million-bushel decline in exports.

In its October crop report, the Agriculture Department estimated the soybean crop at 1.82 billion bushels, down 5 percent from last year and 1 percent less than the 1.83 billion bushels forecast last month. Yield was projected for 32.3 bushels an acre, the same as last year and down 0.1 bushel from last month.

Farmers expanded corn acreage by 3 percent - 2 million acres - this year and are projected to reap a record 120.3 bushels an acre, 1.4 bushels less than estimated in September but up 4.1 bushels an acre from last year.

The department said it lowered its forecast of the corn crop by 1 percent because early harvest yields were lower than expected. Dry weather cut into yields in Iowa and while corn borer damage hurt Illinois yields.

The forecast corn crop of 8.02 billion bushels, along with ranking fifth in the record books, would be the first since 1986 to top the 8 billion-bushel mark. The record is 8.87 billion bushels in 1985.

The corn and soybean harvest is one-fourth complete. A wet spring and cool summer delayed crop development in the central states. Maturity is lagging several points behind normal but a warm September reduced the risk of freeze losses.

Wheat production was estimated at 2.74 billion bushels, the third largest ever and 35 percent larger than the weather-damaged 1989 crop although the new estimate is down 10 bushels from last month. Yields were a record 39.6 bushels an acre, up 6.9 bushels an acre. Harvest acreage is up 12 percent from 1989.

Spring wheat output, at 585.8 million bushels, would be a record and up 5.2 millon bushels from last month. Winter wheat production was downgraded by 18 million bushels.

The wheat set-aside for next year has been set at 15 percent, compared to 5 percent this year.

Feed grain farmers were required to idle 10 percent of their land to qualify for farm program benefits, such as loans and support payments, this year.

In a report accompanying the crop estimates, the Agriculture Department estimated market prices for this year's corn crop would average $2.20 to $2.60 a bushel, compared to the $2.36 average for 1989's crop. The corn stockpile was projected to shrink to 1.27 billion bushels by next fall, compared to 1.34 billion at the start of this year's harvest.

Wheat prices were projected to average $2.35 to $2.85 a bushel, much lower than the $3.72 paid for the 1989 crop. The wheat stockpile was estimated to total 923 million bushels next summer, compared to 536 million bushels last June 1. The ''carryover'' figure is down 20 million bushels from last month.

Cotton growers were projected to harvest 14.5 million bales, 1 percent less than last month but 19 percent more than last year's 12.2 million bales. The increase is due mostly to a 14 percent increase in acreage. Dry weather has stunted production in the Southeast and Deep South.

Tobacco production was projected for 1.57 billion pounds, up 2 percent from last month and well above last year's 1.37 billion pounds. More land is in production this year and per-acre yields are up.

In its first estimate for the new citrus crop, the Agriculture Department forecast the orange crop would fill 231 million boxes. That would be a 24 percent increase from the freeze-slashed harvest of 186 million boxes last season.

Sorghum production was forecast at 562 million bushels, down 1 percent from last month and 9 percent less than in 1989. Yields were forecast for 60.7 bushels an acre, 5.3 bushels more than last year but 1.1 bushels less than expected in September.

NEW YORK (OCT. 11) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, known as M1, rose $7.7 billion in the latest reporting week. The broader monetary aggregate M2 increased by $8.5 billion, and the broadest measure of all, M3, increased by $2.3 billion.

M1, including cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money available for immediate spending - rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $829.3 billion in the week ended Oct. 1, from a revised $821.6 billion the week before.

Over the past 13 weeks, M1 averaged $816.1 billion, up 4.3 percent from where it stood over the previous 13-week period, the central bank said.

The more broadly defined M2 averaged an estimated $3,324.2 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $3,315.7 billion. M2 includes M1 plus passbook savings, small time deposits such as money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and other short-term assets.

M3, defined as M2 plus large time deposits, securities repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts, and institutional money market funds averaged $4,087.7 billion in the latest week, ahead from a revised $4,085.4 billion, the Fed said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Growers will harvest 1.58 billion pounds of tobacco this year, the government said Thursday as it raised its estimate for the crop by 2 percent for the second month in a row.

The increase was due to higher yields than initially expected. Fields were projected to average 2,166 pounds an acre, 39 pounds more than forecast last month and 150 pounds more than last year's 2,016 pounds.

In addition, acreage is up 7 percent to 727,520 acres.

This would be the fourth year in a row for higher tobacco production. Output has been rebounding since the small 1986 harvest of 1.16 billion pounds, the smallest crop since 1936.

Flue-cured production was forecast at 906 million pounds, up 2 percent from last month and 12 percent larger than last year. Acreage is up 7 percent and the yield, forecast for 2,169 pounds an acre, is up 36 pounds since September and would be 100 pounds higher than last year.

The harvest is nearly complete.

Burley production was projected at 582 million pounds, up 2 percent from last month's estimate of 568 million pounds, and 21 percent larger than last year. The average yield, forecat for 2,211 pounds an acre is up 53 pounds from last month and would be 236 pounds higher than last year's 1,975 pounds.

The crop was reported to be the best in years in eastern Tennessee.

The department's estimate of the 1990 tobacco crop in major producing states, based on Oct. 1 conditions, with 1989 production shown in parentheses:

Georgia 98.90 million (87.00 million), Kentucky 437.64 million (398.84 million), North Carolina 622.45 million (541.55 million), South Carolina 104.55 million (102.48 million), Tennessee 102.76 million (89.89 million) and Virginia 104.94 million (95.78 million).

DALLAS (OCT. 11) UPI - Texas Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams, angered by inquiry into questionable practices of his bank, refused to shake hands and called his Democratic opponent Ann Richards ''a liar'' to her face Thursday.

He also compared negative campaigning by Richards with the actions of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, whose persecution of suspected communists in the 1950s eventually was labeled a ''witch hunt.''

Williams set the tone for another bitter round of negative politics in the campaign's final weeks at the first face-to-face meeting of the two candidates in more than two months.

The clash occurred as Williams arrived at the head table of the Greater Dallas Crime Commission luncheon.

Williams, who had earlier met with reporters, arrived in the middle of the invocation. When he walked over to greet others at the table, she stood up to shake hands. He refused.

''Ann, I'm here to call you a liar today,'' Williams said.

''I'm sorry, Clayton...'' Richards started to respond.

''That's what you are,'' Williams said. ''You lied about me. You lied about Mark White. You lied about Jim Mattox. I'm gonna finish this deal and you can count on it.''

White and Mattox were her opponents in the primary.

Williams then shook hands with others at the head table, crossed behind Richards without looking at her and took his place.

Williams said Richards had crossed the line by talking about his business.

Richards suggested Wednesday that her opponent is refusing to debate her because he fears questions about his connections with Lloyd Williams, a Houston insurance broker, who directed a credit insurance program for ClayDesta National Bank, which is owned by candidate Williams.

Authorities in Austin are investigating allegations that high-risk car buyers in Houston and Dallas were forced to purchase costly, unwanted insurance as a condition for getting loans through ClayDesta.

The program was halted in February after federal banking authorities raised questions. Lloyd Williams, who is not related to the GOP candidate, also is under federal investigation for drug-money laundering in a Houston case.

Richards called on Clayton Williams ''to cooperate with the investigation and tell the voters of Texas what his relationship was with Lloyd Williams.''

''I resent the lies where she attacks my businesses and business record unfairly. I think maybe all the holds are off,'' Williams told reporters before the luncheon.

During his speech, Williams said he knows politics is a tough business, but ''even politics has boundaries.''

Williams then addressed Richards as he spoke of the McCarthy era witch hunts.

''The words that brought Joe McCarthy to a halt were these. They were uttered to your predecessor some 36 years ago and they were, and I repeat to you, 'Have you no sense of decency? Man, have you at long last lost all your decency?''' he asked, looking at Richards.

Williams rushed from the platform immediately after his speech, not waiting to hear his opponent's response.

Richards made no reference to her opponent during her speech.

Richards showed she would not back away from discussion of Williams' business dealings late Thursday when she issued a press release citing quarterly financial reports from ClayDesta National Bank that indicated the bank lost $6.1 million from its opening in 1982 until December 1989.

''However, since ClayDesta began its association with Lloyd Williams in a $12.5 million car loan and insurance venture in Houston and Dallas the bank has reported more than $500,000 in profits in the first six months of 1990,'' the Richards release said.

CHICAGO (OCT. 11) UPI - UAL Corp. proposed a discount stock-purchase plan for United Airlines employees Thursday - two days after rejecting the latest employee buyout proposal - and got a brusque response from union leaders.

UAL proposed to permit individual employees to purchase up to 20 percent of the company's stock at a 15 percent discount off the market price. The proposal also included an option allowing workers to by non- discounted stock in various investment plans offered to both union and non-union employees.

''It is ironic that UAL proposes to sell 20 percent of its stock to its employees at a discount only two days after rejecting our offer to buy all of the stock at a significant premium above the current market price,'' union leaders said in a joint statement.

''While the unions representing the flight attendants, pilots and machinists, and other employees of United agree that United employees should own UAL stock management's proposal for limited stock ownership raises numerous issues which must be addressed in negotiations,'' the statement said.

Joining in the statement were Fred Dubinsky of the Airline Pilots Association, V. Diane Robertson of the Association of Flight Attendants, and John Peterpaul of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace workers.

All three unions had been working under expired contracts while pursuing efforts to make United the world's largest employee-owned company, and are returning to contract negotiations with UAL.

The unions and non-union employees joined forces earlier this year to mount a $4.4 billion, $201 a share bid for parent UAL. UAL directors agreed to the offer by the employee group - United Employee Acquisition Corp. - last April and gave them until Oct. 9 to come up with financing.

But UEAC was unable to obtain the needed bank loans, and the UAL board terminated the merger agreement Tuesday offer after rejecting two alternative bids that included little cash.

While the unions set the value of one of the alternative bids at $205 a share and the other at $203 a share, but analysts estimated the values at considerably less.

The first alternative included only $70 a share in cash, with the remainder in preferred stock and debt. The second included no cash at all, consisting entirely of preferred stock and debt instruments.

Analysts set the value of the offers at significantly below the amount quoted by the unions.

United's 13,000 flight attendants have been working without a new contract since March 1987, while the airline's 6,000 pilots have been working under an extended contract since April 1988.

The contract betweeen United and the International Association of Machinists - its biggest union, with some 23,000 members - expired last November.

The three unions had agreed to contract concessions totaling $2 billion as part of the buyout, will be seeking major improvements in wages and benefits.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 11) UPI - New Orleans quarterback Bobby Hebert, frustrated by the Saints' failed attempts to trade him, filed suit in Superior Court Thursday to force a deal.

Hebert, a holdout since the start of the season, is seeking an injuction to prevent the Los Angeles Raiders from continuing to participate in what the National Football League Players Association called the league's ''unlawful system of player restraints.''

The quarterback alleges that the Raiders have publicly stated their desire to acquire Hebert, but they have done nothing because of the NFL's rules for player movement. The Raiders have stayed with Jay Schroeder, who is the AFC's top-rated quarterback.

The suit was filed in California state court under a state law which makes it unlawful for an employer to prevent an employee from pursuing his livelihood.

Attempts to reach the Raiders for comment were unsuccessful.

Attorney Louis Meisinger, who represents Hebert, would not rule out additional action against the Saints and NFL.

''Beyond having filed the initial lawsuits, plans for other lawsuits are in the future,'' Meisinger said. ''Those are matters or private deliberation.''

A preliminary hearing on the suit was scheduled for Oct. 26.

''The case of Bobby Hebert is only the latest example of how the NFL's illegal Plan B system is destroying the careers of NGL players,'' said NFLPA Executive Director Gene Upshaw.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 11) UPI - Former Lincoln Savings and Loan head Charles H. Keating Jr., having exhausted his options at the state court level, asked a federal court Thursday to reduce his $5 million bail.

In court documents, Keating's attorneys argued that the banker's current bail is in violation of his constitutional rights and noted that two co-defendants ''charged with identical crimes received bail 50 times lower than Keating's.''

Keating, 66, has been held in County Jail since Sept. 18, when his bail was set by Superior Court Judge Gary Klausner, who said Keating was a flight risk.

Keating, the former operator of the failed Lincoln Savings & Loan in Irvine, just three years ago estimated his wealth at nearly $40 million. But he now claims he is $5.2 million in debt and therefore cannot post the bail.

After Klausner denied an initial defense request to lower the bail, defense lawyers appealed the $5 million bail to the state's 2nd District Court of Appeal, but were turned down Sept. 25.

They then appealed to the California Supreme Court, but it declined to enter the dispute Wednesday. If rebuffed in U.S. District Court, the defense can then appeal to a federal appellate court and ultimately to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A federal court hearing could be scheduled as early as Friday, court officials said.

In the court documents filed Thursday, attorneys for Keating said he could post a $60,000 cash bond and up to $500,000 by pledging the homes of his children as collateral.

''Keating has known that he was the subject of several ongoing criminal investigations for more than a year, yet Keating did not flee'' before his indictment, the documents said.

Klausner set Keating's $5 million bond minutes after a special grand jury indictment was unsealed, accusing Keating and his three co- defendants of defrauding 23,000 investors out of $250 million in the sale of now-worthless junk bonds.

The indictment charges the four defendants with 42 state securities fraud counts for allegedly scheming to sell the junk bonds issued by Lincoln's parent company, American Continental Corp. of Phoenix, without telling investors that the bonds were high-risk and uninsured. Authorities say many of the victims lost their life savings.

The three co-defendants are Judy J. Wischer, 42, former president of American Continental, Rob S. Symes, 37, former Lincoln chief executive officer, and Ray C. Fidel, former Lincoln president.

Wischer is free on $200,000 bail; Symes and Fidel are free on $100, 000 bail each.

The defendants have pleaded innocent to the charges. If convicted, they could be sentenced to up to 10 years in state prison.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - U.S. grain production this year will total 312.3 million metric tons, the Agriculture Department estimated Thursday, down slightly from September estimate of 315.3 million tons.

If the estimate holds up, U.S. production would be 10 percent larger than last year's 281.9 million tons and a vast improvement from the drought-slashed harvest of 204.2 million tons in 1988. There are 2,204.6 pounds in a metric ton.

Here is a list of estimates for each crop, compared to the September estimate and production in 1989 and 1988:

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - United Press International announced Thursday it would concentrate its editorial resources in 15 of the nation's most populous states and the District of Columbia and enter an ''attack mode'' in big cities with six new MetroRegional wires.

The 83-year-old news service plans to intensify its reporting of business and finance, economics and trade, government, crime and ''quality of life'' issues UPI Executive Vice President Pieter VanBennekom said.

''UPI will serve primarily the general news, business and sports clients who are most serious about news - news executives who rely on newswire reports and programming to help shape the personality and competitiveness of their own news services,'' VanBennekom said.

The 15 states linked to the MetroRegional wires are California, New York, New Jersey, Texas, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Florida, Ohio, Massachusetts, Indiana, New Hampshire, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

VanBennekom said the new plan would also improve coverage in Connecticut, Georgia, and Rhode Island. He said more MetroRegional wires may be launched in 1992, depending on the program's success.

Other states will be covered with ''outstanding reporters'' scattered throughout the country, VanBennekom said.

The new plan is based on the fact that UPI derives approximately 82 percent of its revenue from the 15 target states, he said.

VanBennekom told an afternoon meeting of the editorial staff it would be a ''safe guess'' that the new plan would result in some layoffs, but he did not say how many. He said some reporters laid off in the last two months may be rehired for the new MetroRegional wires.

He said there would be little change in the international or photographic reports.

UPI has shifted its emphasis from being a ''duplicative, confirmatory'' second wire service alongside the Associated Press and Reuters, to becoming an ''entrepreneurial news and information service'' that pursues ''front page stories, ... gets behind the news and follows the dollar.''

He said the new MetroRegional plan would put UPI into an ''attack mode.''

VanBennekom said UPI's Washington news operation will continue to center around beat reporting of the White House, and federal regulatory and congressional affairs. He said UPI will also continue its practice of covering events at the request of individual clients, with pricing based on hourly or assignment fees.

Asked whether financial problems faced by UPI's parent company, Infotechnology Inc., and its sister company, Financial News Network, were affecting the wire service, VanBennekom said it was a factor in bringing UPI to ''cash-flow self-sufficiency.''

SACRAMENTO, CA (OCT. 11) UPI - The former mayor of South Lake Tahoe was sentenced to nine years in prison on drug and money-laundering charges Thursday, but not before he tearfully accused federal investigators of threatening to kill him if he didn't commit illegal acts.

''I was told if I went to the police, I'd be killed,'' said Terry Trupp, his voice cracking with emotion as he read a statement to U.S. District Judge Milton Schwartz.

Trupp, 47, said he became involved in the illegal scheme because he thought he was helping the CIA and that prosecutors orchestrated the entire transaction.

He was arrested in June 1989 with his wife, Kimberly, as the result of an elaborate 20-month federal sting called Operation Deep Snow. Soon after his arrest, he resigned from office.

Investigators said Trupp received $48,500 in commissions for laundering $655,000 in what he thought was drug money, but was really money supplied by undercover agents.

Investigators said Trupp had told an undercover agent that he had a way to launder or disguise the source of money outside the United States so that it would appear to have come from a legitimate source.

Trupp also told agents in the sting that his money-laundering system had been in place for 20 years, and left no trail or tax liability.

He later pleaded guilty to two counts of money laundering and using a telephone in a drug transaction.

In court Thursday, he said he was lured into the scheme by agents who led him to believe the money was being laundered as part of a CIA ''Contra-related'' operation.

Many of the early conversations had to do with Oliver North, the one- time White House aide who was a central figure in the Iran-Contra scandal, but weren't secretly recorded by undercover agents as other conversations were, he told the judge.

Once embroiled in money laundering, he said, ''the talk turned from freedom fighting to drug dealing'' and it became clear he was involved not with the CIA, but with members of a Colombian drug ring.

He told of being taken on a yacht off the coast of San Diego that he was told was equipped with anti-aircraft guns and surface-to-air missiles. Once aboard, he was told of another member of the ring who had been killed in Mexico and his head and hands cut off.

He said the message was clear to him that if tried to back out, he would be killed.

After making his statement, Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Flynn said it appeared that Trupp didn't believe he was guilty, even though he had pleaded guilty.

Schwartz noted that he had ruled months ago, after a protracted hearing, that there was no ''outrageous government misconduct,'' as defense lawyers claimed.

The judge also denied a request by Trupp to be freed for 60 days so he could visit his 81-year-old mother in Arizona. Trupp has been held without bail since his arrest.

Kimberly Trupp, 25, is serving a 21-month sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of using a telephone for a drug transaction.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - The Senate unanimously adopted legislation Thursday aimed at curbing the worldwide use of large-scale drift nets, a fishing practice highly destructive to dolphins and other marine life.

The bill bans drift nets of more than 1 1/2 miles in length from being cast in U.S. waters and prohibits their use by American fishing fleets anywhere on the high seas.

It also directs the secretary of state to negotiate agreements with other nations leading to a worldwide abolition of large drift nets, and gives the president power to order an embargo on fish products from any country that violates international drift-net conventions.

Drift nets, made of fine monofilament mesh, are hung in the water from floating cork lines to form virtually invisible curtains in the ocean extending for up to 40 miles in length.

Used by Asian fishing fleets in the North Pacific ostensibly to catch squid, drift nets are known to indiscriminately snare and kill large numbers of dolphin, sea birds, turtles and fish.

''They literally strip-mine the ocean,'' said Sen. John Kerry, D- Mass., a chief sponsor of the bill. ''One-third of the catch from those driftnets is thrown away, not useable for commercial purposes.''

The drift-net restrictions were adopted as part of a bill to reauthorize spending for the next five years under the 1976 Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act.

The bill cleared the Senate on a 98-0 vote, with Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Pete Wilson, R-Calif., absent.

The legislation now goes to the House, which can either accept the bill or request negotiations with the Senate to iron out differences with a House-passed version of the legislation.

The Magnuson law, named for its chief author, the late Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., was enacted 14 years ago in response to concerns that foreign fleets were depleting fishing stocks off U.S. shores.

A key provision of the bill extends federal authority to manage fisheries under the Magnuson act to cover tuna, a highly migratory species that currently is regulated only by international convention.

The legislation also gives the commerce secretary power to close a U.S. fishery to new fleets for up to 36 months if stocks are found to be seriously diminished.

Sponsors of the Senate bill say the drift-net provisions were written to dovetail a U.N. resolution adopted in December that calls for a moratorium on large-scale driftnets in the South Pacific by July 1991 and worldwide ban a year later.

Japan announced in July that it was suspending its South Pacific drift-net fishing this year and Taiwan has said it would meet the 1991 deadline. However both nations and South Korea continue to use drift nets in the North Pacific.

Large driftnets are generally not used in U.S. waters or by American fishermen on the high seas, but the U.S. ban is intended to keep it that way, an official for the National Marine Fisheries Service said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - The new orange crop will fill 231 million boxes, up 24 percent from last season's freeze-damaged crop and led by a 50 percent upturn in Florida, the government said Thursday in its first estimate of the crop.

A Christmas weekend freeze knifed into production in Florida and Texas last year. The Agriculture Department said damage was so severe in Texas the new crop ''is virtually eliminated.''

''The freeze reduced acreage by about a third of the pre-1989 level. Heavy pruning and hedging was necessary in surviving groves,'' it said. ''Hot, dry conditions hampered regrowth ... Regrowth, however, looked good in most groves.''

Oranges are the dominant U.S. citrus crop and Florida is the No. 1 orange state, producing about two-thirds of the nation's total. Last season's crop totaled 186 million boxes, 11 percent smaller than the 1988-1989 crop.

The department projected Florida would harvest 165 million boxes of oranges, up 50 percent from last year. Early and mid-season varieties were projected at 95 million boxes, up 40 percent. Valencia production was pegged at 70 million boxes, up 66 percent.

California growers were expected to harvest 64 million boxes, down 12 percent from last season. The new crop was projected to include 40 million boxes of navel oranges, 9 percent less than last season, and 24 million boxes of Valencias, 4 percent less.

No estimates will be made for Texas production because of freeze damage to trees, the government said, ''unless sufficient commercial supplies become available.''

Frozen concentrated juice yield from Florida oranges was estimated at 1.52 gallons per box, up markedly from last season's 1.23 gallons per box. The low yield is a sign of freeze losses. The record is 1.55 gallons, set in 1987-1988.

The U.S. grapefruit crop was forecast for 56.6 million boxes, 30 percent more than last season. Damage from last year's freeze will mean only a limited supply of Texas grapefruit will be grown.

Florida's grapefruit harvest was projected at 50.5 million boxes, up 41 percent from last season. California was expected to harvest 3.9 million boxes of desert grapefruit. Production from other parts of the state will not be estimated until April.

Citrus measurements vary from crop to crop and from state to state. For example, California and Arizona orange boxes are 75 pounds each. Florida orange boxes weigh 90 pounds each.

Value of last season's citrus crop was $2.24 billion, 16 percent less than the preceding season.

Here are Agriculture Department citrus estimates of the 1990-1991 crop, based on Oct. 1 conditions, with the 1989-90 harvest in parentheses:

Oranges: Arizona 1.75 million boxes (1.57 million), including 1.2 million of Valencias (1.19 million); California 64 million boxes (73.1 million), including 24 million of Valencias (29 million); Florida 165 million boxes (110.2 million), including 70 million of Valencias (42.1 million); Texas NA (1.2 million boxes, including 155,000 of Valencias).

Grapefruit: Arizona 2.2 million (2.2 million); California 3.9 million boxes excluding ''other areas'' (8.7 million); Florida 50.5 million boxes (35.7 million); Texas NA (2 million boxes).

Lemons: Arizona 3.1 million boxes (2.9 million); California 17 million boxes (15.7 million).

Tangelos: Florida 3.1 million boxes (2.95 million).

Tangerines: Arizona 650,000 boxes (600,000); California 2 million boxes (1.6 million); Florida 2.1 million boxes (1.7 million).

Temples: Florida 3.1 million boxes (1.4 million).

BUENA PARK, Calif. (OCT. 12) UPI - Lucky Stores, fighting for market share in the highly competitive Southern California market, began offering shopping by phone Thursday with same day delivery from more than 150 stores.

The service is being provided by Shoppers Express, which operates home delivery service with major supermarket chains in 11 other states and Washington D.C.

Lucky and Shoppers Express said their service, which is available in Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego counties, is the first home shopping and delivery offered through a major supermarket chain in the region.

The service costs $12.50 for same-day delivery and $11.95 for next- day service. Seniors pay 95 cents for the service.

Aside from the delivery charges, customers pay the same prices as those in the store.

The orders can be placed 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Deliveries are made between noon and 3 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays.

The stores will provide a free catalog with 5,000 items, but all ''Home delivery coupled with our everyday low prices can save shoppers both time and money,'' said William Yingling III, president of the Southern California Division of Lucky.

Salt Lake City-based American Stores operates both the Lucky and Alpha Beta chains in Southern California. They are battling the Vons, Ralphs, Albertson's and Stater Bros. chains in that market, one of the nation's most lucrative.

Kevin Sheehan, director of operations for privately held Shoppers Express, said the key customers for the home delivery service are working people with tight schedules.

''We do get some business from seniors, but most of the business comes from time-pressed people,'' Sheehan said.

Shoppers Express of Bethesda, Md., was founded four years ago by Elan Blutinger, its president. It began offering the service two years later in Washington, D.C. through the A&P chain, then expanded to New Jersey through the Shopright stores.

It now offers the service in Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Northern California, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Washington D.C.

(OCT. 11) UPI - The Pentagon today announced that the Air Force imposed a safety stand-down as a result of three recent crashes in Saudi Arabia that killed six airmen. The Air Force grounded its training flights in Saudi Arabia for 24 hours. A Pentagon spokesman says Air Force officials wanted to get the pilots together and once again stress safety.

President Bush is calling on lawmakers to adopt the basic elements of the 500-BILLION-dollar deficit-reduction plan rejected by the House last week. Bush is once again championing the measure because it does NOT address a cut in the capital gains tax NOR a tax hike for the nation's wealthy. The president today expressed little hope in working out a deal that would provide for both elements in a new budget plan.

Tropical Storm Marco is sweeping northward along Florida's Gulf Coast past Tampa Bay with its top winds now down to 40 miles an hour. Officials say the most serious injury caused by the storm occurred today when a Sarasota County man's car was smashed by a tree blown down by fierce winds. The man was listed in critical condition at a Sarasota hospital.

NATO nations were united today in welcoming a U-S-Soviet agreement on conventional forces in Europe reached last week in New York. Western officials downplayed a Warsaw Pact split over tank levels agreed to in the pact. Authorities believe a finalized agreement will be ready for signing at a 34-nation summit in Paris next month.

The African National Congress today accused the South African government of endangering talks on ending apartheid. The A-N-C charges that Pretoria has breached understandings reached in preliminary talks. A-N-C officials now question the integrity of South African President de Klerk.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (OCT. 11) UPI - The Justice Department has revealed in court papers that it intends to sue Exxon Corp. to recover government costs of responding to the nation's worst oil spill and to obtain damages from Exxon.

Federal criminal charges already have been filed against Exxon and subsidiary Exxon Shipping Co. over the spill. And the state of Alaska and thousands of plaintiffs have filed some 160 civil damage suits against the oil giant for dumping 11 million gallons of oil into Prince William Sound when its tanker smashed into a reef in March 1989.

But for the first time since the wreck of the Exxon Valdez, the Justice Department has openly acknowledged that it will file a civil damage suit in addition to its criminal case against Exxon.

Government lawyers declined to comment on the brief statement of Justice Department intentions contained in documents filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Anchorage in connection with the pending civil case.

The Justice Department filed papers protesting a proposal by U.S. District Court Judge H. Russel Holland that civil plaintiffs rely on a $100 million trans-Alaska pipeline liability fund to settle their damages with Exxon.

Federal lawyers supported plaintiffs' objections to the proposal, arguing that the $100 million was insufficient to pay existing claims and that the Justice Department would be making additional claims against Exxon.

''Although it is not presently a party to these actions,'' Justice Department lawyers wrote in their Exxon civil suit brief, ''the United States is actively preparing to bring civil claims in this forum or another against at least some of the defendants for, among other things, costs that it has incurred for cleanup of the spilled oil and damages for injury to, destruction of or loss of natural resources resulting from the oil spill.''

No dollar amount for damages was specified. But the 21-page brief, filed by the department's Environment & Natural Resources Division, said: ''Because there is a $100 million limit on recovery from the (trans-Alaska pipeline liability) fund for each oil spill, the fund is obviously inadequate to satisfy the claims of the current plaintiffs, much less the additional, very substantial claims of the United States.''

The Justice Department brief said: ''The United States has not yet asserted its civil claims arising from the oil spill largely because it has a pending criminal case relating to the oil spill against two of the primary civil case defendants'' - Exxon Shipping and Exxon.

If convicted in the criminal case, Exxon faces fines of more than $700 million ''excluding natural resource damages,'' according to a Justice Department statement. Trial in the criminal case is set for April.

In objecting to the Justice Department filing a brief in the civil case, Exxon lawyers said: ''A year and a half after the spill, the government still keeps the court and the parties in the dark as to the nature of its claims, the forum in which they will be asserted and the parties against whom they will be directed.''

Last month, Exxon filed its own claim against the Coast Guard for $2.2 billion - Exxon's spill response costs plus partial out-of-court settlements with some fishermen. The administrative claim, a precursor to a lawsuit, also asks the Coast Guard to pay any damages for which Exxon is held liable in court.

Exxon said the Coast Guard was responsible for the spill because it licensed the allegedly unfit tanker crewmen and because it failed to warn the ship it was heading into Bligh Reef.

MONTREAL (OCT. 12) UPI - Alcan Aluminum Ltd. Thursday reported third-quarter earnings of $97 million, or 41 cents a share, down 46 percent from $180 million, or 77 cents a share, in the year-ago period.

The aluminum producer's revenues increased to $2.24 billion from $2.19 billion in the third quarter of 1989.

For the first nine months, Alcan reported earnings of $353 million, or $1.50 a share, down from $693 million, or $2.98 a share, in 1989. Revenues slipped to $6.5 billion from $6.75 billion in 1989.

Alcan's chairman David Morton said poor earnings from the company's operations in Europe and Latin America contributed to the overall decline but ''industry fundamentals remain sound in the longer term.''

Alcan said shipments of fabricated products were off just 3 percent but that margins were 30 percent lower than a year ago.

Alcan is a leading integrated producer of primary aluminum and manufacturer of aluminum products. In 1989, Alcan's produced 1.76 million tons, or 12 percent of the western world's total.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Soviet farmers are reaping a grain crop of 235 million metric tons - only 2 million tons short of the record - but the Kremlin still will import large amounts of grain, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The department's forecast of the Soviet crop was up 5 million tons from last month due to Soviet reports about the progress of the harvest. As of Oct. 1, 211.5 million tons of grain had been harvested, matching last year's total of 210.9 million tons, and a sizable portion of the crop was still in the field.

Eight percent of the sown area, excluding corn, and most of the corn was yet to be harvested. Farmers planted grain on 110 hectares, or about 273 million acres, this year.

Soviet ''grain imports for the 1990-1991 marketing year continue to be estimated at 30 million tons,'' the Foreign Agricultural Service said. ''The level of ... imports is believed in part dependent on the amount of domestic grain procurements.''

The state has acquired 59 million tons of grain ''with another 5 million to 8 million tons likely to be delivered,'' the FAS said, compared with last year's total of 59 million tons, when the Kremlin bought 38 million tons of foreign grain.

Slumping wheat prices were expected to steer the Kremlin away from feed grains and toward wheat, which can be used as a livestock feed as well as serving as a food grain. The Soviets were projected to buy 14 million tons of wheat, the same as last year, and 15 million tons of feed grains, an 8 million tons reduction.

The Soviet Union bought 255,000 tons of soybean meal last week, its first major entry into the U.S. market since before the fall harvest.

''Prospects for a bumper 1990 grain crop, some temporary financial constraints and the uncertainty caused by economic and political reforms probably have delayed (Soviet) grain purchases,'' the FAS said.

As an inducement, the United States is offering to subsidize the sale of up to 500,000 tons of wheat flour, the first offer of discount prices to the Soviets on anything other than wheat.

Agriculture Department officials also have been arguing within the administration in favor of granting the Kremlin access to U.S. export credit guarantees.

The Soviet Union became a major grain importer during the 1970s as part of a decision to increase production of meat, poultry and dairy products.

The Kremlin is the No. 1 customer for U.S. export grain. It bought 20.3 million tons of corn and wheat during fiscal 1990, following a record 21.7 million tons in fiscal 1989.

A new grain agreement between the superpowers will take effect Jan. 1. It obligates the Kremlin to buy at least 10 million tons of U.S. grain annually for the next five years.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - The House approved a compromise plan Thursday that supporters hope will end a year-long controversy over government funding of art projects that may be considered obscene.

The bill, passed on a 349-76 vote and sent to the Senate, would reauthorize funds for the National Endowment for the Arts with the directive that the NEA may not fund obscene art.

The bill leaves it up to the courts, not the NEA, to determine if specific art projects are obscene. If a project is found to violate obscenity law the NEA could order the artist to return whatever federal funds were provided for the project.

The compromise plan offered as an amendment by Reps. Pat Williams D- Mont., and Thomas Coleman, R-Mo., also would shift more federal grant money to the states. Under present rules, 80 percent of the grant money is awarded by the federal agency and 20 percent by state arts agencies. That would be changed to a 65-35 percent ratio.

Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., the House's most outspoken critic of the NEA, tried unsuccessfully to amend the bill to include specific guidelines on the kind of art projects that could not be funded, including works that are sexually explicit or denigrate the flag or religion. His amendment was rejected on a 249-175 vote.

An amendment by Rep. Phil Crane, R-Ill., to abolish the NEA was defeated on a 361-64 vote.

The NEA came under fire in Congress last year for providing grants that were used in the production or exhibition of a few controversial art works, including an exhibition of photographs by Robert Mapplethorpe. Critics charged the material was obscene and said the federal government should not be funding such projects.

Officials of a Cincinnati art museum were charged with obscenity violations after showing the Mapplethorpe collection, but a jury just last week acquitted them and said the exhibition, while offensive in part, was not obscene.

During debate on the bill, Coleman said that in the 25 years the NEA has existed the agency ''has proved a worthy guardian and sponsor of our nation's cultural history.''

He noted the NEA recently sponsored the acclaimed television series on the Civil War and overall has provided some 41,000 grants totaling $2 billion and ''only a handful'' have gained notoriety.

Williams said the compromise plan would ''make substantive changes in almost every phase of the NEA's grant application and approval funding process,'' and places ''ultimate accountability'' with the chairman of the NEA.

''On the issue of content, the subsitute makes clear that the constitutional prohibitions against obscenity shall apply to the National Endowment for the Arts.''

Rohrabacher said his amendment was intended to ensure that the government ''is not subsidizing obscenity, child pornography, attacks on religion, desecration of the American flag or any other of the outrages we have seen in the past.''

He described the rules in his amendment as ''common sense standards for NEA funding.''

The Yugoslavian team took a 102-97 victory over Spanish League champion Barcelona in the second game of the double-header. Velimir Perasovic scored 24 points and Toni Kukoc, a second-round draft pick of the Chicago Bulls, added 23 to lead Pop 84 Split.

Barcelona, the host team, will face Scavolini Pesaro in Saturday's consolation game.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 11) UPI - Former Washington Redskins defensive star Dexter Manley, banned from the National Football Leaue for violating the league's substance abuse policy last fall, said Thursday he has overcome his cocaine addiction and will play again in the NFL.

On ABC-TV's ''Primetime Live'' news program Thursday night, Manley said he has ''been clean and sober for 10 months'' since enrolling in the John Lucas Drug Rehabilitation Clinic in Houston.

Manley's third violation of the league's drug policy in November 1989 prompted his lifetime banishment from the NFL. He intends to exercise his right to apply for reinstatement after a year.

''As sure as I am a black man sitting here, I will be back,'' said Manley, the Redskins' all-time leader in quarterback sacks.

While in Houston - his wife and two children remained in the Washington area - Manley has been attending regular sessions with a psychiatrist and has been lifting weights and training for his possible return to football.

The 32-year-old Manley, who also overcame illiteracy and now can read at a high-school level, said he believes he finally has beaten his addiction ''because I don't want to live through the pain anymore.''

''I had enough problems. I've been through hell,'' he said. ''You know, I don't give a damn if I don't play football again. But I want to stay sober for me - for me.''

Despite his drug rehabilitation efforts and rigorous workouts, Washington Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs refused to indicate whether the team will take back one of the most popular Redskins of the 1980s.

''I am not going to speculate on what is going to happen in the future because I can't answer those questions now and it may never come up,'' Gibbs said during the broadcast.

Manley's attorney, Bob Woolf, told United Press International last week that if the Redskins do not want him, he would find it ''hard to believe'' no one in the NFL would sign his client.

Manley, who earned notoriety not only for his prowess on the field but his flamboyant personality and wild statements off the field, said he abused alcohol first and then cocaine.

Asked by ABC if he liked cocaine, Manley said: ''Of course I did.''

''I mean, here it was my best friend in the beginning and at the end it turned into an enemy.''

Manley said that at the height of his cocaine use, he was spending ''anywhere from $300 to $400'' a night on the drug, and his addiction made him ''a liar and a cheat.''

Manley said that despite making promises to himself to stop using cocaine, ''I would wind up doing it again.''

(OCT. 11) UPI - House Democrats unveiled an alternative budget plan that would increase the tax on the wealthiest Americans... much more than President Bush is willing to accept. It also retains most of the summit agreement's so-called ''sin'' and luxury taxes, and cuts the proposed gasoline tax hike from 12 cents to three cents. The bill also provides funding for several government departments. The measure would pay off Washington's U-N debt during a period of five years.

BOSTON (OCT. 12) UPI - In a case of industrial espionage against the U.S. government, a unit of North American Philips Corp. pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Thursday to receiving stolen documents to help it win an Air Force contract.

The company's Magnavox Government and Industrial Electronics Co. unit hired a private consultant ''in part to provide hard copy of certain confidential government documents'' from a procurement office at Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford, the government charged.

The Magnavox subsidiary, based in Fort Wayne, Ind., eventually won and completed the $8 million first phase of the contract to produce Scope Shield hand-held, two-way radios for Air Force personnel worldwide, said S. Theodore Merritt, the assistant U.S. Attorney who prosecuted the case.

Judge John J. McNaught fined the company $150,000 on the criminal charge based on events between January 1985 and May 1986.

One document stolen from Hanscom's Electronic Systems Division, which administered the Scope Shield project, was a cost estimate of the program, Merritt said. Another was an Air Force evaluation of a potential competitor's prototype of the proposed Scope Shield radio system, Merritt said.

The consultant, Edward Zicenzi, of Wellesley, Mass., ''obtained these procurement-sensitive documents from a civilian government employee of ESD by providing him with tickets to sporting and theater events, liquor and lunches '' the U.S. Attorney's office said. ''These documetns were then disseminated and used by Magnavox employees for their use in preparing a bid proposal.''

Both Zicenzi and Donald Gesin, the former ESD employee, were convicted on similar charges in earlier cases and were cooperating witnesses in the Magnavox case, the U.S. Attorney's office said.

Both men served two-month prison terms on the earlier charges.

Merritt said the damage to the government in the Magnavox case is difficult to determine because no one bid against Magnavox ofr the contract, though one other company had been considered a likely bidder.

However, ''civil recoveries'' against North American Philips are possible, Merritt said.

Merritt declined to say whether individuals at Magnavox might be charged. They hired (Zicenzi) on his representation that he could provide certain documents. They renewed his contract. But beyond that, I ''contract. But b

SALT LAKE CITY (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Plexus Resources Corp. (NASDAQ:PLUSF)(TOSE:PXS.) announced results for the fiscal year and fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, as follows:

Plexus Resources Corp.
Financial Highlights

	Fourth Quarter ended June 30,		Fiscal Year ended June 30,
	1990	1989	1990	1989
Revenues	$2,382,000	$ 175,000	$2,830,000	$ 611,000
Net income (loss)	$ 168,000	$(812,000)	$ (567,000)	$(1,234,000)
Earnings (loss) per share	3 cents	(17 cents)	(10 cents)	(26 cents)

Revenues for the fourth quarter and fiscal year increased over the corresponding periods of 1989 as a result of (1) precious metals revenues ($456,000) from Plexus' participation in the Denton-Rawhide gold-silver mine which began commercial production in May 1990, and (2) the gain on sale of 300,000 shares of Plexus' 633,334 share holding of Crown Butte Resources Limited ($1,797,000).

Net income (loss) and earnings (loss) per share for the same periods showed improvement primarily due to the gain on the sale of Crown Butte shares with a partial offset from increased interest expense and amortization of debt issuance expense ($976,000).

Amortization of debt issuance expense for both the fourth quarter and 1990 fiscal year reflected a substantial write-off of debt issuance costs ($644,000) consistent with the repayment of a significant portion of the debt incurred to finance Plexus' participation in the Denton-Rawhide project.

The private placement of 6 million Plexus shares with TOTAL Energold Corp. for $14,007,000 cash plus all shares of Sovereign Explorations Inc. during June 1990 provided funding for the repayment of such debt and also resulted in a $1,218,000 increase in cash and cash equivalents to $2,253,000 as of June 30, 1990.

SACRAMENTO, CA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - California's Board of Education Friday unanimously approved an innovative new series of social studies textbooks and other instructional materials for use in the schools of the most populous state.

As a result of the vote of approval, state funds may now be used to purchase the Houghton Mifflin Social Studies Program which has won broad praise and support from some of the nation's top educators and scholars.

They cite the program's quality and balanced presentation of multiculturalism and religion as being far better than any other instructional materials currently available.

The program, published by Houghton Mifflin Co. of Boston, one of America's most highly respected publishers of instructional materials, received California approval because it meets the state's internationally acclaimed framework for teaching social studies.

The series also responds to a national movement for social studies reform. It has already been adopted in Arkansas, is being considered for adoption in several other states and has been recommended for use in local school districts across the country.

''The Houghton Mifflin program has been published in response to a national call from educators to improve the quality of history and geography education '' said John Schram, Houghton Mifflin's executive vice president, school publishing.

''It is a history-centered curriculum with a full and integrated treatment of geography, economics and all the social sciences. This program represents multiculturalism and religion in the context of the pluralistic nature of our society and of history.''

Broad support for the program has been received from respected educators including Professor Margaret Washington, Department of History, Cornell University, ''As an historian, as the parent of a fifth-grade daughter and a ninth-grade son, as an African-American woman, I remain impressed with the quality of the textbooks and the team of educators whose combined expertise and sensitivity produced this multidimensional approach to American history and vision.''

Classroom teachers from across the country are also praising the kindergarten through eighth-grade series. Betty Jackson, a teacher from Richmond, Calif., says that it is ''an excellent social studies series because the treatment of people of different races and national origins are positive and their contributions to the development of the nation are highlighted throughout the text, thus making the study of social studies a stimulating experience for all children.''

In California, the new Houghton Mifflin Social Studies Program was recommended for adoption and use in the state's schools by a curriculum commission panel of the state's teachers and educators as being far superior to anything now in use and as the program which most closely meets the California History-Social Sciences Framework.

The Board of Education, after considering the Commission's recommendation and the publisher's acceptance of suggestions for change, approved the series.

''This new series was specifically designed to help teachers by encouraging students to go beyond the classroom and apply the lessons of social studies to the world through its presentation of the roles of men and women of all races, classes and conditions and through differing viewpoints on controversial issues,'' said Schram.

Dr. Diane Ravitch, noted Professor of History at Teachers College, Columbia University, and one of the authors of the California Framework, added her support to the series of textbooks, ''They contain a marked increase in attention to the history of Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe and to the experiences of blacks, women, American Indians and Latinos in the United States.

''In reviewing the newly approved social studies program, the editor of the prestigious Social Studies Review wrote, 'Houghton Mifflin sets the standard for a new generation of social studies textbooks.'''

HOUSTON (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The Conrad N. Hilton College of Hotel and Restaurant Management administration and students have created a ''Hilton

PROUD'' (Professionals Reaching Out For Undergraduate Development) day, in which Hilton executives returned to the classroom as ''professors for a day.''

This first-time event promoted interaction and idea exchange between students and Hilton professionals, provided students with experienced industry role models and encouraged development of future faculty and executive exchange programs.

Visiting executives included: Carl T. Mottek, president of Hilton Hotels Division; Peter Kleiser, senior vice president of food and beverage; Michael A. Ribero, senior vice president of marketing; Jorgen H. Hansen, senior vice president of the Eastern Region; Hilmar A. Rosenast, senior vice president of the Western Region; and James M. Anderson, vice president of labor relations and personnel management.

''By providing an opportunity for key Hilton executives to address students in an informal classroom setting, the educational advantages of 'Hilton PROUD' benefited our students and staff immeasurably,'' said Joseph J. Cioch, dean of the school.

Course lectures ran concurrently on Oct. 12, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., highlighting subjects such as: Hilton Perspective of the Hotel Industry; Food Production Management; Trends in Hospitality Marketing; Lodging Management; Decision Support Systems; and Human Resources Management.

In recognition of the importance of education in shaping the future of hospitality, Conrad N. Hilton established the Conrad N. Hilton College of Hotel and Restaurant Management at the University of Houston in 1969. The $28 million Hilton college complex offers students the opportunity to study lodging and food service management, sales and marketing and financial management in a commercial setting.

SUNNYVALE, CA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Micro Devices Friday reported third-quarter revenues of $254,173,000 which resulted in a net loss of $17,776,000.

After the preferred stock dividend, the loss amounted to $0.25 per common share.

The results reflect a revenue decrease of 5 percent from the immediate-prior quarter when AMD reported revenues of $267,700,000, which resulted in a net loss of $5,921,000, or $0.10 per common share after the preferred dividend. The net results of the prior quarter included a one-time gain of $0.07 per common share from the sale of a long-term investment.

Sales declined by 7.5 percent from the third quarter of 1989 when AMD reported sales of $274,847,000 and a net income of $12,086,000, or $0.12 per common share after the preferred stock dividend.

For the first nine months of 1990 the company reported revenues of $793,345,000 with a net loss of $10,578,000, or $0.22 per common share after the preferred stock dividend. In the first nine months of 1989 AMD reported revenues of $819,351,000 and a net income of $34,230,000, or $0.32 per common share after the preferred stock dividend.

The company's operating loss for the quarter amounted to $19,810,000. ''The operating results in the traditionally slow summer quarter belie the progress AMD made toward positioning us for a return to profitability through leadership in submicron CMOS technology,'' said W.J. Sanders III, chairman and chief executive officer.

''The high investment levels necessary to prevail as a major player in the industry preclude earnings at current sales levels.

''CMOS sales grew by $15 million, or nearly 20 percent over the immediate-prior quarter, to a record $96 million. CMOS sales accounted for 38 percent of total revenues, also a new record. Most importantly, the CMOS growth was led by logic products and programmable logic devices (PLDs), where good market demand is expected to continue for leading-edge devices.

''AMD also made progress in migrating CMOS EPROMs (erasable programmable read-only memories) from 1.35-micron technology to 1-micron and submicron geometries. The first significant shipment of 2- megabit EPROMs helped offset aggressive pricing for lower-density EPROMs. Overall, EPROMs remain under severe pricing pressure,'' Sanders continued.

''Weakening demand, particularly in Southeast Asia, for older products such as the NMOS 286 and bipolar PLDs more than offset the sales gains in CMOS. We expect to grow CMOS sales by more than 20 percent in the current quarter.

''Uncertain market conditions make it difficult to predict the extent to which anticipated CMOS sales gains might be offset by further erosion in sales of bipolar and certain older NMOS products. Nevertheless, we do expect that the summer quarter represented a trough in sales. Bookings were flat with billings in the quarter.

''Heavy capital spending for the year 1990 -- projected to be almost $300 million led by a nearly $200 million investment in our newly occupied Submicron Development Center -- is winding down in the current quarter. We expect that capital spending in 1991 will be substantially less than depreciation, reversing the negative cash flow of 1990.

''Our balance sheet is strong, with more than $128 million in cash at quarter's end,'' Sanders concluded.

The two organizations have reached a general agreement through a letter of intent signed earlier this week. The purchase price and specific details and terms will remain confidential.

Acquisition of the STS division, which Tektronix has sought to divest, provides Credence Systems with a family of high-performance test systems designed for application-specific integrated circuits (ASTCs), programmable logic devices (PLDs), and other advanced semiconductor devices.

SANTA CLARA, CA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Just moments ago Dennis Paboojian, former president of billion dollar Rolm Inc., agreed to a $31 million settlement against six defendants, stemming from a 1987 airplane crash that left him partially paralyzed and burned over 65 percent of his body.

Twenty million dollars of the settlement was agreed Friday during a jury trial in Santa Clara County Court against Teledyne Continental Motors.

The settlement agreement will be recorded in Judge Stone's courtroom, Dept. 8, Friday at 3:30 p.m. in San Jose. This is believed to be one of the largest personal injury settlements ever recorded in Santa Clara County.

Background:

Dennis Paboojian, former president of billion dollar Rolm Inc., sought a $50 million award against Teledyne Continental Motors, in a jury trial that started Oct. 10, stemming from a 1987 airplane crash that left him partially paralyzed and burned over 65 percent of his body.

Paul Eberle, director of engineering for Teledyne Continental, has conceded the aircraft engine fire resulted from a faulty thinwall cylinder and piston design. More than 150 similar cracking incidents were reported prior to the Paboojian crash. Records indicate Teledyne was aware of the problem and had organized a committee to investigate the engine design, but the committee failed to recognize the cause of the engine failure.

Soon after the Paboojian incident, Piper's entire Malibu fleet was grounded and the cylinder design was changed.

Paboojian's attorney, aviation specialist Terry O'Reilly of Menlo Park, filed suit against six defendants: Piper Aircraft, Teledyne Continental Motors, Million Air, S&G Flight Services Inc., Allied Signal and The Garrett Corp. in April of 1988. O'Reilly accepted a $5 million settlement last year from S&G Flight Services, the maximum limit allowed on their insurance policy.

Paboojian was injured while receiving flying instructions from John Spiesman, an instructor at S&G Flight Services Inc., of San Jose, on Nov. 29, 1987.

Their Piper Malibu failed south of the Long Beach International Airport and crashed on the San Diego freeway killing Spiesman and seriously injuring Paboojian. The aircraft did not cause any serious ground injuries despite the fact the freeway was packed with rush-hour traffic.

Paboojian received third-degree burns over virtually all of his body. He lost his left forearm, the fingers of his right hand and suffered spinal cord damage resulting in paraparesis. He also miraculously recovered from a separated diaphragm. Presently his doctors estimate at least another year of care and extensive plastic surgery are required. Medical bills to date exceed $7 million.

An economist for the plaintiff estimated Paboojian's lost earnings exceed $30 million.

The case went to trial Wednesday, Oct. 10, 1990, in Santa Clara County before Judge David W. Leahy, Dept. 6.

KENT, WA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Sun Sportswear Inc. (NASDAQ: SSPW) Friday announced that the company expects net sales for the first nine months of 1990 to be approximately $61 million, or 5 percent above the $58.4 million for the comparable 1989 period.

The company said it anticipates net sales of approximately $14 million for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, 15 percent below net sales of $16.9 million for the third quarter of 1989.

Net income for the third quarter and the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, is expected to be below that of the comparable 1989 periods due to lower second and third quarter sales levels. The company said it expects to be approximately break-even for the third quarter.

Sun attributed lower third-quarter sales levels to slower consumer spending and retail inventory reductions, resulting in order cancellations and delivery postponements by major customers. The company said it was cautiously optimistic about the outlook for 1991.

Sun Sportswear's proprietary designs remain popular. The company also is experiencing continued strong acceptance of its new girls and junior apparel lines launched in fall 1989 and expects growth in its licensed business as it introduces new licensed products.

SAN DIEGO (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Beeba's Creations Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:BEBA) Friday announced operating results for its fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Aug. 31.

For the fourth quarter of the current year, the company reported net income of $485,000, or 11 cents per share, on net sales of $43.3 million, as compared with net income of $1.1 million, or 22 cents per share, on net sales of $35.4 million in the like period last year.

For the year ended Aug. 31, 1990, net sales increased 22.9 percent to $158 million, up from the $128.6 million reported for fiscal 1989. The company reported a net loss of $3.4 million, or 76 cents per share, for the current year, as compared with net income of $4.1 million, or 89 cents per share, in fiscal 1989.

The company's $4 million non-recurring manufacturing write-off recorded in its third fiscal quarter ($2.4 million on an after-tax basis) accounted for 54 cents per share of this loss. The remainder of the company's loss for fiscal 1990 was due to divisions and product lines that the company has recently discontinued.

The company also announced it had suspended its dividend payments until further notice.

Steven P. Wyandt, chief executive officer and president, commented: ''Fiscal 1990 started out to be very promising, with the company generally meeting its objectives through the second quarter and into the third quarter.

''However, the combination of prolonged unseasonably cold weather through May, the Chapter 11 filings by Campeau and Ames, the weakened economy in many parts of the country and excessive inventory generally available in the marketplace forced us to liquidate a significant portion of spring and summer inventory at prices lower than originally planned.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Alan V. Kaufman, president of Sandwich Chef Inc. (NASDAQ:SHEF), Friday reported increased revenues and net income for the first fiscal quarter ended Sept. 29, 1990.

Net sales for the quarter advanced 11.3 percent to $9.9 million compared with $8.9 million in the first quarter of fiscal 1990. Net income increased 9.4 percent to $180,000, or 12 cents per share, compared with $165,000, or 11 cents per share, in the same quarter last year.

Earnings per share have been restated to reflect the three-for-two stock split effected in the form of a 50 percent stock dividend distributed to shareholders in September 1990.

''Our improved sales and income continue to reflect the contribution of our newer stores,'' stated Kaufman. ''In particular, our new Wall Street Delis have been very successful in generating higher sales volumes.

''Same store sales increased by 1.4 percent in the first quarter. Although this was our 11th consecutive quarterly improvement in same store sales, we began to experience a slowing in sales late in the first quarter. We believe this was the result of the generally lack- luster economy and the effects of higher gasoline prices in the market,'' continued Kaufman.

In the first quarter, Sandwich Chef closed or sold four units and opened six new Wall Street Delis. The company has plans to open an additonal five stores in the second quarter. ''We are being more cautious with new projects and plan to closely monitor future expenditures and cash flow,'' concluded Kaufman.

Sandwich Chef owns and operates a chain of 136 delicatessen-style sandwich shops in nine markets. The company's stock is traded in the over-the-counter market under the NASDAQ Symbol SHEF.

COSTA MESA, CA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Archive Corp. (NASDAQ:ACHV), a leading supplier of computer backup products, Friday said that it has amended its third quarter consolidated unaudited financial statements.

The amendment results in increased earnings for the 13 weeks ended June 29, 1990 of $2,205,000 from the $962,000 previously reported, or 16 cents per share instead of 7 cents per share reported prior to the amendment.

Earnings for the 39 weeks ended June 29, 1990 were increased to $9,713,000 from the $8,470,000 prevously reported, or 71 cents per share instead of 62 cents reported prior to the amendment.

The amended financial statements result from adjustments relating to the accounting for the purchase of Cipher Data Products Inc., acquired by Archive in April 1990.

At the time of the acquisition, Archive had identified assets of Cipher that it intends to sell; these assets were not segregated at the time of the preliminary price allocation as shown on the balance sheet for June 29, 1990.

The income statements for the periods ended on June 29, 1990 also reflected the loss from operations associated with these assets. The revised financial statements now segregate the assets identified for sale with the estimated loss from operations reflected in the net realizable value of the assets rather than in the income statements.

The income statements also have been revised to reflect changes in foreign currency translation. Prior to its acquisition by Archive, Cipher used the local foreign currency as the controlling or functional currency and carried any resulting unrealized gain or loss on foreign translation as a separate component of stockholders' equity.

As a result of operating changes made by Archive to the foreign operations of Cipher, the functional currency for these entities is now the U.S. dollar, which is the functional currency used by Archive in its other foreign operations. The impact between these two methods is now shown on the revised financial statements.

Founded in 1980, Archive Corp. today is the leading manufacturer and supplier of removable data storage products to original equipment manufacturers and resellers.

Archive and its companies offer a complete selection of drives and subsystems for economical computer data storage for minicomputers, workstations, multi-user systems, and personal computers.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Just up the hill from where its first biotechnology laboratory was created in a corner of a warehouse, Genentech Inc. will build a new $75 million Genentech Research Center on an eight-acre site.

The three-building center, which will rank among the largest commercial or academic biotechnology research centers, will house Genentech's research staff and is scheduled to be completed in mid-1992.

It is the largest single construction project ever undertaken by Genentech and the first major project announced since Roche Holding Ltd. completed its 60 percent equity investment in Genentech on Sept. 7. Following Roche's investment, Genentech has more than $600 million in cash.

The new research buildings are designed to blend with the Genentech campus, which consists of eleven existing buildings spread over approximately 72 acres on the edge of San Francisco Bay. Except for its sales force, all of Genentech's U.S. operations and employees are located in South San Francisco. The most recent major additions to its campus were commercial manufacturing and quality control laboratories, built from 1987 to 1989.

The new buildings, each of which will have three floors of research laboratories, will be interconnected with elevated walkways and share a common outdoor courtyard, the focal point of the center. The new buildings will total 225,000 square feet and can accommodate 420 persons when complete.

Two floors of the three-building center will remain unfinished for future expansion. Additional expansion also is possible on the 24 acres Genentech owns at the site, of which only eight acres will be used for this project.

The design for the new facility integrates building and parking functions with the rugged bay-front topography. The buildings will blend with the natural slope of the land and are directed toward San Francisco Bay. Landscaping will be designed to enhance the natural site conditions and enable the buildings to fit into the natural setting.

Approximately 50 percent of the eight-acre site is devoted to landscaped areas 25 percent for parking and 25 percent for buildings.

(NASDAQ:PENT), Pennsylvania Gas & Water Co., the Pennsylvania Office of Consumer Advocate and OI-NEG TV Products Inc., have signed a settlement agreement that withdraws a protest filed against a joint application of NUI, PEI and PG&W with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC) seeking approval to merge PG&W and PEI into NUI and to transfer PG&W's rights to provide gas service in Pennsylvania to NUI.

In addition to the withdrawal of the protest filed by the Office of Consumer Advocate against the joint application, the settlement establishes conditions upon any certificates of public convenience issued to NUI with respect to providing gas service in Pennsylvania.

WHITE PLAINS, NY (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - IBM is helping to bring college classrooms into the electronic information age with its announcement Friday of the Academic LANkit(a) which allows faculty who are not computer experts to manage, customize and administer computer-based lessons for students to complete on computers that are connected in the classroom.

The Academic LANkit is a local area network (LAN) offering with software already loaded on computers, so it can be installed easily by higher education faculty and administrators, rather than computer network experts. A LAN is a group of computers that are linked together electronically so that users can easily share data and programs.

LANkit is also easy to operate because it's based on a graphical user interface. Faculty and administrators can, for example, change computer-based curriculum and distribute to students, or update student records, or add and delete other software applications, all by using a mouse to click on icons, rather than by keying in complicated commands.

The Academic LANkit comprises an IBM Personal System /2(a) Model 80 that acts as the LAN server, the central hub of the network; 15 PS/2(a) Model 55SX student workstations, plus software. It is available in two different network systems -- Token Ring or Ethernet, so it works with networks used on most campuses. LANkit is compatible with IBM's Advanced Academic System, an integrated package of hardware and software introduced last June that allows faculty to easily create their own computer-based curriculum and classroom exercises. With LANkit, those custom applications can now be easily personalized and distributed among students. The Academic LANkit is also compatible with IBM's Selected Academic Solutions for students -- seven packaged and pre-loaded hardware and software offerings specially designed with student computing needs in mind.

The LANkit server uses Operating System/2(a) Extended Edition, so faculty can run several programs simultaneously. CHICAGO (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Bally Manufacturing Corp. (NYSE:BLY) announced Friday that at a special meeting, its board of directors decided to conduct a complete review of the company's financial condition and operations with a view towards restructuring the company's balance sheet.

In connection with this decision, the board determined that the company's subsidiary Bally's Grand Inc., which owns and operates the company's Nevada casinos, would not make a scheduled Oct. 15, 1990 interest payment of approximately $18.4 million on its 11 1/2 percent First Mortgage Notes due 1996.

The board will use the 30-day grace period provided by the indenture governing these notes to perform an in-depth review of Bally's financial condition and prospects, and to explore various restructuring alternatives.

By availing itself of this grace period, the board noted that such an action, by itself, would not create cross-defaults on the indebtedness of the parent company and of its other subsidiaries and would give the company time to develop a comprehensive plan. The board believes that it is in the company's best interests to take these steps, it fully inteds to have the company's Nevada operations continue s a viable entity.

The board also decided to suspend the payment of dividends on its common stock.

The company also announced several board and management changes which the board believes will better enable it to explore and implement a restructuring. In this regard, the company announced that Arthur M. Goldberg has been appointed to the position of interim chief executive officer replacing Robert E. Mullane, who retired.

MOBILE, AL (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Delchamps Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:DLCH) announced Friday that sales for the 13-week period ended Sept. 29, 1990, were $252,686,000, an increase of 7.7 percent, compared with the same period last fiscal year.

Net earnings were $2,369,000, a decrease of 20.1 percent from the comparable period last year.

Randy Delchamps, chairman of the board of directors, president and chief executive officer, said that the decrease in earnings during the quarter was a result of increased promotional activity in the market by competitors combined with a soft economy in most of the company's operating area resulting in sales and gross margins being below expectations.

Net earnings per weighted average share outstanding were 33 cents, compared with 42 cents reported for the first quarter of last year. Sales for stores open in both 13-week periods increased 3 percent.

During the quarter, the company remodeled and expanded two stores. Delchamps now operates 110 supermarkets in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida and seven liquor stores in Florida and has over 9,200 employees.

MONROVIA, CA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Barry's Jewelers Inc. (NASDAQ:BARY), Friday announced sales and operating results for the first fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31.

Barry's reported a loss of $1,537,000, or 31 cents per share, for the quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, as compared to net income of $152,000, or 3 cents per share, in the same quarter last year. Sales were $30,870,000 in the current quarter, as compared to $32,426,000 last year.

The loss in the current quarter is primarily due to lower sales and an increased provision for bad debts. Comparable stores sales decreased by approximately 3 percent in a traditionally slow jewelry buying period that was adversely effected by a further deterioration in the general retail environment.

Four under-performing stores were closed during the quarter, which further lowered sales. The increased provision for bad debts reflects the continuing adverse retail and consumer credit environment as well as increased uncollectable account write-offs this year, as compared to the same quarter last year.

Barry's Jewelers Inc. operates 224 stores nationwide under various trade names including: Barry's, Gold Art Creations, Hatfield Jewelers, A. Hirsh & Son Jewelers, Keidan's Jewelers, Milens Jewelers, Mission Jewelers, The Ringmaker, Samuels Jewelers and Schubach Jewelers.

AMSTELVEEN, THE NETHERLANDS (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The KLM Project Group assigned the task in early July of analysing the possibilities open to the company for reducing cost levels has presented its analysis and recommendations to KLM Management.

As a result the management has drawn up a three-year plan to achieve a permanently competitive cost level for KLM.

This plan was presented to senior management, employee organizations, Joint Staff Council and sector staff committees and, through a detailed internal report, to the entire KLM workforce.

The KLM Management's presentation outlined the situation within the company and industry wide. KLM is taking into account that the current fiscal year will show a significant loss. In spite of positive traffic growth expenditure is increasing faster than revenue.

KLM faces increasing competition from low-cost airlines. KLM cost levels have risen in the course of the years. Among the factors causing this rise have been large-scale investment, essential quality improvement and a productivity gain which failed to meet target.

Sharp increases in fuel prices and insurance costs, the negative influence of weakening currency exchange rates and the threatening situation in the Gulf have caused a substantial decline in results industry wide. Other airlines are equally affected and are similarly engaged in introducing drastic cost-cutting programs.

In its plan KLM indicates what measures will have to be implemented to hold costs at a permanently competitive level in order to achieve the target of a net profit margin equivalent to 5 percent of turnover.

This profit margin is essential to preserve a healthy capital/debt ratio and to safeguard KLM's future as an independent airline.

The company has determined its strategy, restructured its organization and invested in people, training, the Kick-Plus quality-raising program, automation, buildings and, above all, in fleet renewal.

KLM strategy is directed at delivering 'quality at competitive prices'. This demands competitive cost levels. To achieve this goal the total cost level must be cut by at least an extra NLG 400 million within three years.

By doing so the company will achieve two goals: preventing further decline in results during a period of protracted 'rough weather' and structural improvement of its basic position within three years.

Company policy is directed at avoiding forced redundancies as much as possible among other by: - Increasing flexibility of staff deployment - Stopping recruitment of indirect personnel (excepting incidental cases) - Redeploying personnel by use of retraining programs - If necessary, by making use of the existing KLM redundnacy scheme.

In the undesirable event of a decline in traffic growth, KLM will have to readjust its plans.

The KLM Management closed its internal announcement to the personnel with the following words:

''We have faced great challenges in the past. We emerged in good shape. The task we face now is clear: A joint effort to achieve structural reduction of cost levels - an essential precondition for a healthy future for KLM.''

ANSONIA, CT (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - A Connecticut Superior Court has rendered its decision regarding a lawsuit filed on Oct. 12, 1989 by a group led by G. Clay von Seldeneck against Great Country Bank and certain of its officers and employees.

The suit challenged the results of the Bank's 1989 Annual Meeting after which Great Country Banks' Inspectors of Election determined that four of the Bank's nominees and only one of the opposition slate (Clay von Seldeneck) had received sufficient votes for election to the board. The von Seldeneck group sought an injunction ordering Great Country Bank to rescind the election results and install all five of the von Seldeneck nominees on the board. They also sought damages for expenses and attorney's fees.

The court's decision filed on Oct. 5 confirmed the election of Great Country Bank's four nominees (Messrs. Bassett, Buckley, Bustelos and Quinn) together with von Seldeneck and ordered them seated. The von Seldeneck group was not awarded damages for expenses or fees which they incurred during the year-long litigation.

Regarding the decision which reaffirmed Great Country Bank's position, Frederick J. Quinn, president of Great Country Bank, commented, ''We're pleased with the court's ruling and can now focus on the business of banking which in today's environment deserves our complete attention. Quinn further stated that, ''The seating of Mr. von Seldeneck has been complicated by his insistence on greater representation on the board.''

PORTLAND, ME (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - ImmuCell Corp. (NASDAQ: ICCC) announced Friday that it has been awarded a grant from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases for the study of immunotherapy of Cryptosporidium infections.

This Small Business Innovative Research (SBIR) Phase I project will investigate the role of specific antibodies to various Cryptosporidium surface antigens in the treatment of cryptosporidiosis in an animal model system.

Infection with Cryptosporidium parvum, a coccidial parasite, causes severe, chronic diarrhea in immunocompromised individuals. In the United States, the company estimates that Cryptosporidium infections occur in approximately 6,000 AIDS patients; associated mortality, however, can be as high as 60 percent in this population. Additionally, in developing countries the incidence of Cryptosporidium infection rates is greater than 30 percent in the AIDS population, and higher infection rates are reported in the general pediatric population. There is currently no chemotherapeutic agent that can be used to control or eliminate the disease. Recent scientific studies have suggested that oral administration of specific antibodies to Cryptosporidium can cure severe infections in AIDS patients.

ImmuCell develops, produces, and markets antibody-based disease prevention products for both human and animal health care applications. The company anticipates that its first immunopreventive product--for the prevention of enteric disease in cattle--will be marketed in January 1991. Adelman has estimated that the total domestic market for similar animal and human immunopreventive products could potentially exceed $400 million per year.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (OCT 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The Enstar Group Inc. (OTC NASDAQ Symbol: ENST) Friday announced a downward revision to its earnings projections for 1990.

The company previously projected earnings of $30 to $33 million for the year. However, earnings for the year are now expected to be in the range of $15 to $20 million. This reduction in the company's estimated earnings reflects the recent downturn in the economy due to recessionary pressures and events in the Middle East.

Concurrent with the revised numbers, the company has today announced a reduction in its corporate staff of approximately seventy people. This represents approximately 15 percent of its corporate staff. In addition, the company has taken steps to further reduce overhead in other areas of its operations. The combination of corporate staff reduction coupled with other expense savings measures will benefit the company approximately $5 to $6 million annually.

Mr. Grassgreen, chairman and chief executive officer, stated, ''These measures have been taken to ensure continued growth and future profitability for the company in ensuing years.''

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 11) BUSINESS WIRE - Roosevelt Financial Group Inc. (NASDAQ/RFED), the holding company for Roosevelt Bank, reported net income for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 of $1.4 million, or 25 cents per share. This compares with a loss of $4.4 million, or 75 cents per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company had a loss of $1.6 million, or 29 cents per share. This loss and the loss for the quarter ended

Sept. 30, 1989 are attributable, as previously reported, to the liquidation of Roosevelt's high yield bond portfolio which was completed in March, 1990.

''We are pleased to be able to show another quarter of steady progress toward our goal of sustainable earnings growth,'' said Clarence M. Turley Jr., chairman of the board.

Asset quality remains outstanding, as Roosevelt's ratio of non-performing assets to total assets stands at 0.30 percent. The marginal increase from 0.28 percent at June 30, 1990 is a result of shrinkage in total assets rather than an increase in non-performing assets.

Company officials announced that the company has repurchased 63,550 shares as part of its stock repurchase program as of Sept. 30, 1990. The company previously announced its intent to repurchase up to 575,000 shares of its own stock before September, 1991. As of Sept. 30, 1990, the company had 5,651,523 shares issued and outstanding.

Company officials also reported that the company anticipates receiving a one-time benefit of approximately $1 million attributable to the expected settlement of its previously reported outstanding Internal Revenue Service examination. Company officials expect that the benefit will be reported as part of future earnings.

With $2.4 billion in assets, Roosevelt Bank is the largest St. Louis based savings institution. Roosevelt now conducts operations through 22 full service offices in Missouri and Illinois, including 20 in the metropolitan St. Louis area.

PRINCETON, N.J. (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Total Research Corp. (NASDAQ:TOTL) Friday announced results for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Revenues totalled $8,611,331 vs. $8,014,828 last year. The company reported a loss of $1,064,999 or 14 cents per share, the vast majority of which reflects a strategic accounting decision to write off a number of intangible assets which should enhance future years profitability. This compares to earnings of $375,545 or 5 cents per share in 1989.

In making the announcement, Lorin Zissman, chairman and chief executive officer, said, ''The company continued its revenue growth although for the first time in 10 years reported a loss. In addition to the write-offs, this loss was attributable to a number of factors including the termination of an international joint venture with The Research Institute of Social Change (RISC); a delay in commencement of certain large contracts which had been booked during the year; heavier than anticiapted start-up expenses for Equi-Trend, a new product introduced during the thrid quarter, and expenses attendant to the opening of a Chicago sales office.''

He added, ''The loss while substantial, does not accurately reflect the true picture of the company's growth prospects. In fact, fiscal 1991, based on early results from the first quarter, should be the best in Total Research's history. Revenues are anticipated to exceed $12 million and net earnings should top $600,000 or 7 cents per share.''

Zissman noted that those large contracts delayed in 1990, but commenced during the first quarter of 1991, will significantly impact the company's first half of the current year.

Moreover, Equi-Trend has had excellent response from corporate clients and to date sales are approaching $1.5 million and should continue to contribute throughout 1991 and into 1992.

He said that the company had a backlog of signed contracts totalling $4.5 million as it entered 1991 and during the first three months of the new fiscal year it has booked an additional $4.2 million of signed contracts.

''These preliminary results reflect the optimism throughout the company that 1991 will be Total Research's finest year ever.

Indicative of this is the newly opened Chicago office's exceptional performance and coupled with a number of high quality market research professionals who joined the company in 1990 who also have made considerable contributions, there are many reasons to believe that 1991 projections will be met and even exceeded,'' Zissman said.

Total Research Corp. is a marketing research firm known for its predictive marketing research technologies that are applied to pricing, promotion, product attributes and other marketing variables. The company is also a recognized leader in consumer brand equity research and quality management programs. It has been consistently ranked by Advertising Age as one of the fastest-growing marketing research firms in the United States.

PORTSMOUTH, RI (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Quadrax Advanced Materials Systems, a unit of Quadrax Corp. (NASDAQ:QDRX) Friday announced that the U.S.

Department of the Army has accepted Quadrax's $50,000 proposal for Phase I of a materials development program.

Under the terms of the contract, Quadrax will develop new types of three-dimensional (3-D) ceramic matrix preforms. The 3-D preforms are shapes of braided metal-oxide and silicon-carbide fibers which are then infused with silicon carbide or silicon nitride vapor to form solid ceramic composite parts.

These parts are expected to estabish significantly higher standareds of resistance to damage from high heat and harsh chemical environments.

Successful completion of this Phase I program will justify a continuation into a broader, Phase II effort which would determine the feasibility of fabricating larger and more complex shapes.

Potential applications include fan blades and other components of gas turbine engines, piping for corrosive environments, motor components and combustion-gas filters.

Current, monolithic ceramics exhibit an inherent brittleness and low impact resistance which severely limit their reliability under typical operating conditions.

By merging an effective reinforcement technique with inexpensive ceramic matrix processing methods, the Army Laboratory Command hopes that this developmental program will lead to a low cost manufacturing route to high-performance ceramic shapes for the most demanding applications.

The Quadrax application was selected under the Department of Army's Small Business Innovation Research Program (SBIR).

WESTBOROUGH, MA (OCT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - As Hurricane Lili approaches the area, Massachusetts Electric would like to offer information and safety tips for its customers.

''Hurricanes are more than mere storms. They are accompanied by all types of extreme weather that could cause power outages,'' said John H. Dickson, president of Mass. Electric. ''Don't take these storms lightly. Being prepared is the best way to minimize the effect on your home and family.''

According to Dickson, power outages are often caused if lightning strikes poles and power lines, or if high winds cause tree limbs to fall onto wires. In addition, automobile accidents can also cause power outages if cars hit poles and bring power lines down.

Although Mass. Electric works to restore power as quickly as possible, advanced preparation could make a power outage more tolerable.

Preventive measures include the following:

-- Have candles, matches, flashlights and extra batteries handy. Have a battery-operated radio ready to use and be sure to check the batteries regularly.

-- Keep extra rolls of masking tape or other heavy tape around the house. It can be used to protect windows, if high winds are predicted.

-- Stock up on food that doesn't need to be refrigerated or cooked, such as peanut butter, bread, canned juices, dried fruit, nuts and soups. Be sure to have a manual can opener in the house.

-- Keep a few air-tight containers on hand to store drinking water. This is particularly important if your house uses well water that is pumped electrically.

-- If a hurricane is predicted, double check all your supplies. Remove any portable items from your yard such as children's toys or lawn ornaments; tie down any items that cannot be brought indoors. Fill your car's gas tank. Tape small windows and board any large ones to protect yourself from broken glass.

-- As the storm approaches, turn refrigerator and freezer controls to their highest positions to keep the contents cool during a possible power outage. Keep the appliance doors shut as much as possible. If power does go out, unplug all major appliances to avoid a power surge when the power is restored. Televisions, washers and dryers should all be unplugged. (Keep one small light on in the house so you'll be able to tell when the power comes back on.)

-- If power lines are down around your home, don't go near them and be sure to keep children and pets away from the lines too. Call Mass. Electric to take care to them.

-- Don't use charcoal burners in your home to cook or to generate heat. The coals generate poisonous cardon monoxide fumes.

-- After power is resumed, check refrigerated and frozen foods. Meat, poultry and vegetables that still contain ice crystals can be refrozen. If the color or odor of any food is ''off'', discard it.

''Following these tips can make an uncomfortable situation manageable. If you have any questions about what to do in a major storm or hurricane, please call Mass. Electric,'' Dickson said.

''Remember, during an actual storm our telephone lines are very busy. Please be patient and continue to call.''

Mass. Electric serves 906,000 customers in 146 Massachusetts communities.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) COMTEX - The Senate Banking Committee, acting on a request by Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, agreed today to provide an additional $57 billion to the Resolution Trust Corp. in fiscal 1991 for the savings and loan cleanup.

The bill, called the Resolution Trust Corporation Funding Act of 1990, provides funds to cover deposit insurance losses and refinance a series of thrift deals arranged by regulators in 1988, which RTC Chairman L. William Seidman previously testified could cost the government in excess of $69 billion over the life of the contracts.

The bill also retains the current note cap requiring the RTC to set aside a reserve equal to 15 percent of outstanding borrowings, and stipulates all funds represent on-budget financing.

Last year, the RTC received $50 billion for the S&L bailout, of which $30 billion was to be raised by the Resolution Funding Corp., an off-budget agency known as Refcorp. Roughly $23 billion of Refcorp bonds have been issued and the bill terminates Refcorp bond issuance at the end of the month, replacing them with Treasury appropriations.

Brady had sent a letter dated Oct. 10 to the congressional banking panels warning the RTC, the agency responsible for handling the thrift crisis, would "virtually cease within the next two months unless additional funds are provided."

In his letter, Brady requested $40 billion to cover the losses in RTC case resolutions through the end of fiscal year 1991. The $57 billion which the Senate panel agreed to appropriate includes the $40 billion to pay for losses in RTC case resolutions and an extra $17 billion to act as a reserve in case the money is needed for temporary short-term borrowing.

As part of the budget reconcilation process, which requires the Senate Banking panel to come up with $1.5 billion in savings during the next fiscal year, the panel also passed four resolutions, including the FDIC Premium Act of 1990.

The major changes in current law are that the bill removes all restrictions on premiums the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. may charge member banks, permits the FDIC to set semiannual changes to the bank insurance fund's assessment rate as long as it gives two months notice, and authorizes the FDIC to borrow working capital through the Federal Financing Bank (FFB). The FFB gets its money directly from the Treasury, so its borrowing rates are cheaper than the FDIC would pay on its own debt.

In addition, an amendment by Sen. John Heinz was approved which the Pennsylvania Republican said would raise additional revenues by insisting when the FDIC goes to court against directors or officers of failed thrift institutions, the RTC will get priority in receiving restitution from the guilty parties.

"This will save $60 million to $125 million over five years," Heinz said.

Current law permits the FDIC to assess a 7.5 cent per $100 of deposit increase per year, capping at 32.5 cents per $100 of deposits. The FDIC has announced an increase in the bank insurance fund rate to 19.5 cents per $100 for 1991, the maximum allowable.

The law also calls for annual assessment rates and targets a minimum reserve ratio of $1.25 per $100 of deposits while the bill removes the cap to enable the FDIC to increase the target ratio if there is a risk of substantial losses to the insurance fund. The FDIC fund's ratio of reserves to deposits stood at an all-time low of 70 cents per $100 of deposits in 1989 and is expected to fall to 50 cents to 60 cents per $100 at the end of 1990.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) - Saudi Arabia plans to raise oil production to 8 million barrels a day by the end of the year and has set a target of 10 million barrels a day production for 1995, The Washington Post reported Friday.

Citing senior officials of Saudi Aramco, the Post said the decision to raise production was aimed at stabilizing oil prices and expanding Saudi Arabia's customer base.

Saudi Arabia was producing 5.3 million barrels of oil a day before Iraq invaded Kuwait August 2, but has sinced boosted production to its current level of 7.7 million barrels a day, the Post said.

Oil workers in Saudi Arabia have been put on overtime to make up for the 4.35 million barrel a day supply shortfall caused by the loss of Kuwaiti and Iraqi oil production, the Post said.

Saudi Aramco officials said the effort involved reactivating idle wells, pipelines, pumping stations and oil-gas separators and modifying some refineries to process different mixtures of oil.

Nasr Ajmi, the state oil company's executive vice president, said Saudi oil production would up to 8 million barrels a day by the end of the year and to 8.5 million barrels a day or better by mid-1991.

"We have every reason to believe we can get to that level and sustain it," he was quoted as saying.

At 40 dollars a barrel, a 2 million barrel a day production increase would bring in an additional 80 million dollars a day in revenues, which would help pay for the military showdown against Iraq.

But Saudi planners also expressed concern that rising oil prices could prompt a shift to alternative forms of energy, putting the country's oil based economy at risk.

SYDNEY (OCT. 12) - Five Greenpeace demonstrators chained themselves to the gates of the Soviet consulate here Friday to protest against Moscow's arrest of a Greenpeace crew, including one Australian, after an anti-nuclear protest.

Greenpeace spokeswoman Michelle Grosvenor said that about 30 protesters had demanded that the Soviet authorities allow radio contact to be resumed with the crew of the vessel MV Greenpeace.

Brad Farmer, 31, of Brisbane, was aboard the ship seized by the KGB, the Soviet security service, on October 8 while protesting against planned tests of nuclear weapons on the Soviet archipelago of Novaya Zemlya.

The police snapped the chains and freed the protesters but made no arrests, Ms. Grosvenor said.

"We are still maintaining a presence there until we have spoken directly one way or another with the people on board," she added.

The protest coincided with similar demonstrations in Copenhagen, Berlin and Wellington by the environmental activist organisation, she said.

The protestors erected a large banner outside the consulate which read: "Stop testing - the world's patience. Greenpeace."

TORONTO (OCT. 12) - The director general of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) stressed the need to make progress in negotiations leading up to a ministerial meeting in Brussels in December.

"Our deadline is not December, but several weeks before. From this week onward we must consider ourselves to be de facto in Brussels," Arthur Dunkel, the GATT director general, said in a speech Thursday to the Conference Board of Canada, a business-oriented think tank.

The threat of failure already hovers over the eighth cycle of the GATT negotiations, known as the Uruguay Round because they began in Punta del Este in 1986. Key players, notably the United States and the European Community (EEC), have persistent differences over agricultural subsidies. Washington believes the subsidy cuts proposed by the EEC are insufficient.

On this issue, Mr. Dunkel was very clear: No matter what they were called, subsidies were subsidies and had a destabilizing effect on international markets.

He told reporters he was referring to "all the agricultural policies around the world which have a combination of export subsidies and indirect export subsidies through internal subsidization."

Mr. Dunkel is supposed to meet early Friday in St. John, Newfoundland with the trade chiefs of the Quadrilateral, which groups the four largest trade partners of the world -- the United States, the EEC, Japan and Canada. They will meet for two days to try to give political impetus to the GATT negotiations.

According to Mr. Dunkel, the meeting in St. John cannot be considered

"decisive" for the fate of the Uruguay Round because many other important countries are not represented. He said, however, he believed it would help advance the negotiations.

BURLINGAME, CALIFORNIA (OCT. 12) - ATT Microelectronics has unveiled a multimedia computer chip for personal computers and workstations that performs video image, sound, text and modem functions.

The chip, called the DSP3210, will allow users to work simultaneously with video images and compact disc-quality sound, said ATT Microelectronics, a subsidiary of U.S. telecommunications giant ATT.

The new chip is compatible with Intel and Motorola 32-bit microprocessors that power IBM-compatible and Apple personal computers, the company said Thursday.

"The DSP3210 is designed for the emerging market in PCs (personal computers) and workstations that let users escape the limitations of low-resolution images and beep-quality sounds," said Kreg Ulery, marketing director for ATT Microelectronics.

"We expect the DSP3210 to become the worldwide standard architecture for multimedia applications," he said.

ATT plans to start producing the chip in the fourth quarter of 1991 and estimates it will cost less than 50 dollars in quantities of 100,000.

The announcement was made here at a Microprocessor Forum West seminar.

The multimedia chip market is currently estimated at 6.4 billion dollars and is expected to reach more than 24 billion dollars in 1994, according to Information Workstation Group, based in Alexandria, Virginia.

Industry experts predict that multimedia computing devices will be the growth market of the 1990s.

BEIJING (OCT. 12) - The production of cotton, China's most important cash crop, is expected to rise by 10 percent this year, to total 4.15 million to 4.25 million tons, the China Daily said Friday.

Following last year's 3.8 million ton harvest, which was not enough to satisfy the demands of the textile industry, the central government this year increased the official purchasing price of cotton by nearly 30 percent, to encourage farmers to grow more, the English-language daily said.

All of the cotton produced in China is bought exclusively by the state.

In 1984, China harvested a record six million tons of cotton -- more than the Soviet Union and United States combined -- which far exceeded the country's needs at that time and led to the government reducing cotton acreage the following year.

Consequently, many farmers turned to cereal production for which the government was offering financial incentives. But as the demand for cotton increased, the ministry of agriculture this year was forced to backtrack and increase incentives for cotton production.

Some 5.5 million hectares (13.8 million acres) of cotton have been sown this year, an increase of 290,000 hectares (725,000 acres) over last year. The yield per hectare (2.5 acres) is expected to reach 750 kilograms (1,670 pounds), the China Daily said.

BEIJING (OCT. 12) - Beijing Jeep Corp. (BJC), one of China's showcase joint ventures, expects 1990 to be its "most prosperous year" following higher-than-projected demand for its products, it was reported Friday.

BJC spokesman Zhang Cailin, quoted in the official China Daily, said the Sino-U.S. automaker was forecasting a 6.8-per-cent rise in profits this year, compared to 1989, on a turnover increase of 18.7 per cent.

Total expected profit figures were not given, but Mr. Zhang said: "If the plan is realized, this year will be BJC's most prosperous year since it started seven years ago."

BJC is a joint venture between state-owned Beijing Automotive Works and Chrysler Corp., which took over the original joint-venture partner, American Motors Corp., in the late 1980's.

It produces Jeep Cherokee station wagons, assembled mainly from imported parts and BJ-2020 four-wheel-drive utility vehicles, the latest in a series of Chinese army-style jeeps based on a Soviet design.

BJC's rosier fiscal year suggested a recovery in China's auto industry, hard hit last year by a state-imposed austerity program that left manufacturers stranded with huge inventories and no buyers.

Mr. Zhang said BJC expects to turn out 41,831 vehicles this year, instead of 40,000 as previously planned, after sales in January through September were up 23.3 percent from the same period last year.

Total output last year was 39,310 vehicles.

Chrysler's share in the joint venture, which is to last 20 years, has increased from 31.35 percent to 38.25 percent, bringing fresh capital into the enterprise, Mr. Zhang said.

He added that BJC would ask the Chinese Government to no longer tax imported parts used in Jeep Cherokees, as 40.3 percent of the parts used in the car were now Chinese-made.

An end to tariffs on imported parts could come by the end of the year, making BJC the first Sino-foreign joint-venture automaker to enjoy such tax-free status.

Other joint ventures include Germany's Volkswagen in Shanghai and Peugeot of France in the southern city of Guangzhou.

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND (OCT. 12) - A small Auckland company has been named the consultant for a four billion U.S. dollar project to build an industrial zone in Vietnam, the New Zealand Herald reported Friday.

The project includes a harbor, industrial area, international airport, 350 kilometres (220 miles) of roads, three hospitals, five hotels, 15 schools, 120 restaurants and 100,000 apartments.

The zone is planned for Vung Tau, a coastal city southeast of Ho Chi Minh City.

A director of the Auckland Consulting Group, Dennis Pettid, said the company won the contract almost by accident. Six weeks ago he was staying in a Malaysian hotel where Vietnam's deputy chief minister was also staying.

They met, and as a result a message arrived from Vietnam on Wednesday giving the group the right to negotiate the deal. The letter gave them six months to negotiate a management contract with the Vung Tau People's Committee.

They will be responsible for breaking up the development into 30 or 40 smaller contracts and selecting companies to carry them out. Financing will be through the Asian Development Bank.

Tokyo (OCT. 12) - Opposition members of parliament jeered and whistled Friday as Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu outlined a controversial government plan to send Japanese troops to the Gulf.

The premier asked the Diet or parliament to support the creation of a peace corps to assist United Nations operations to resolve international conflicts.

If the legislation is approved, it would be the first time that Japanese troops would be sent overseas since World War Ii. Their first role would be to assist the multi-national force in the Gulf.

Opposition parties strongly oppose the move, arguing that Japan's war-renouncing constitution forbids the foreign deployment of self-defence forces, as the country's army is called.

Kaifu described the Gulf crisis as ''a major testing time for Japan and the most severe trial we have faced since the end of the war.'' He said Japan, while desiring peace, ''should not sit back and watch international efforts to restore peace.

The troops would be allowed to carry light arms for self-defence and work alongside civilian, medical and transport teams in a non-combat role.

Some leading members of Kaifu's ruling Liberal-Democratic Party are also opposed to the plan, which they feel has been drawn up under strong American pressure.

''Japan has built a strong economy in a non-military country with a defence force only. It is important that we maintain this with pride,'' said former Premier Takeo Fukuda.

Johannesburg (OCT. 12) - The South African government Friday lifted a curfew in three townships imposed on September 25 after two months of communal fighting that claimed up to 800 lives.

The 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. curfew was lifted in the eastern townships of Vosloorus, Katlehong and Thokoza by Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok a week after he ended the measure in the black city of Soweto, south-west of Johannesburg.

The minister said many blacks had asked that the curfew be continued, but violence had dropped dramatically in these areas and the curfew had always been seen as a temporary measure.

However, he would not hesitate to reimpose it, Vlok said.

The curfew was part of of measures taken to end the fighting between supporters of the Zulu Inkatha Freedom Party (Ifp) and the liberation movement, the African National Congress (Anc).

The measures included the imposition of states-of-emergency in 27 townships and stepped up security.

Accra (OCT. 12) - The West African peacekeeing force in the Liberian capital of Monrovia has taken control of the centre of the city, according to reports reaching here Friday.

The reports quoted the field commander of the five-nation force, Major-General Joshua Dogonyaro, as saying forces loyal to rebel leader Charles Taylor had been pushed out of the centre.

The 6,000 peacekeepers have been battling Taylor's National Patriotic Front of Liberia, which is opposed to the presence of foreign troops.

Fighting was reported to be moving to areas where thousands of Nigerian and Ghanaian refugees are being held virtual hostage by Taylor.

Taylor's rebels invaded Liberia from neighbouring Ivory Coast last December with the aim of toppling President Samuel Doe's government. Doe was killed last month but remants of his army continue to resist.

Jerusalem (OCT. 12) - Israeli police have recommended the prosecution of Interior Minister Rabbi Arye Deri on charges of fraud, breach of trust and submitting false documents, newspapers reported Friday.

The revelations prompted senior members of Deri's Shas party, which holds the balance of power in the Israeli parliament, to demand the minister's resignation from the coalition led by Prime Minister Itzhak Shamir.

The police recommendations came in the closing stages of a four-month investigation into De'ri and other senior members of the ultra-orthodox Shas party.

They were under investigation on charges of masterminding an illegal system to transfer millions of dollars in Interior Ministry funds to party institutions and supporters.

The officials are also suspected of ordering phonetaps on journalists covering the affair, which has been described as Israel's Watergate scandal.

FREETOWN (OCT. 12) - The United Nations World Food Program (WFP) is to send a consignment of 2,300 tons of rice in the next two days for thousands of people trapped in the war-torn Liberian capital of Monrovia, a WFP official said.

Bai Bojang told Agence France-Presse late Thursday that 168,000 tons of rice had already been shipped to Monrovia and were waiting to be distributed at centers around the capital where 89,000 people have registered.

He said a Greek vessel, the Triana, is to carry the rice in two trips between Freetown and Monrovia under the supervision of officials from the humanitarian group, Medecins Sans Frontiers (MSF-Doctors without Borders).

A local non-governmental organization, the Special Emergency Life Food (SELF), was also to help members of a West African expeditionary force (ECOMOG) distributed the food.

Meanwhile, ECOMOG military sources in Freetown have refuted allegations made by National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) rebel leader Charles Taylor on Wednesday that Guinea had withdrawn troops from ECOMOG, which also comprises troops from Nigeria, Ghana, Sierra Leone and the Gambia.

Western diplomats here said the vacant German Embassy in Monrovia's eastern district had been shelled by forces loyal to the late President Samuel Doe. The embassy was evacuated in August. It was not known if anyone was injured in the attack.

A battalion of Nigerian and Ghanaian troops was expected to arrive here by Friday and is to leave by sea for Monrovia next week. The arrival of troop reinforcements would boost the multinational force to over 7,000.

TAIPEI (OCT. 12) - Taiwan government leaders Friday vowed they would not accept a move by a Japanese group to set up a lighthouse on an offshore island claimed by the Republic of China.

Taiwan legislators said Japan's decision to allow the rightwing Japanese Youth Society to build a lighthouse on Tiaoyu Tai island was tantamount to Japan claiming sovereignty of Chinese territory.

In an address on Friday, Taiwanese representative Liu Sheng-liang unfurled a Republic of China (Roc) flag in Taiwan's lawmaking Legislative Yuan, imploring premier Hau Pei-tsun to replace the lighthouse with the national flag.

"Our government will take all necessary steps to maintain our territorial claims," Hau said, referring to the Tiaoyu Tai archipelago.

Hau did not specify what steps might be taken.

The Tiaoyu Tai islands, located 85 nautical miles northeast of Taiwan, were officially given to Japan in 1970 by the Us government. That move sparked protests among Taiwanese students, who felt under no condition should the Roc give in on territorial claims.

Today the islands are undeveloped, but Taiwanese fishermen sometimes seek protection there during storms.

Japan maintains no official ties with Taiwan, and instead recognises the Chinese government in Beijing.

GENEVA (OCT. 12)- The Geneva-based World Council of Churches (WCC) released a report on Friday denouncing the brutal treatment of the "innocent Tamil population" by government forces in Sri Lanka, and claiming that more than 3,000 civilians have been killed in the last four months.

Officials of the WCC asked that the author of the report, a church dignitary from Sri Lanka, not be identified for fears of threats against his life.

The three-page report stressed that contrary to government claims, military actions in the eastern and northern provinces have been directed not only against the rebel Tiger forces (LTTE) but also against civilians, through "incessant bombardments of civic and town centers".

According to the report, 3,324 "innocent civilians" have been killed since June 11, the largest number - 1,190 - in the Amparai district, and over 17,000 wounded. Nearly 900 people have been arrested and are still missing.

There are now more than one million refugees in the eastern and northern provinces and 115,000 people have fled to India. A total 900,000 people have become jobless as a result of a total blockade of fuel, which has paralyzed all public transport and work on agricultural farms.

Electricity has also been cut off to most of the northern province and in particular in the Jaffna district, the report said.

"As a result", the community has been badly affected over food supplies," it added. Relief provided by humanitarian organizations has only trickled through. In the last three months, only a few tons have gotten through which is "not enough even for two week's supply", the report said.

It also mentioned a "desperate" lack of drugs and medical supplies, and a great shortage of cash due to the closure of banks.

Stressing that the "innocent Tamil population is being brutally treated", the report called for an urgent ceasefire and the resumption of negotiations. It also said there can be "no justification for the aerial attacks unless the government is bent on genocide".

MANILA (OCT. 12) - Three people were killed and 12 were injured when an illegal firecracker factory hidden inside a house exploded, the official Philippine News Agency (PNA) reported here Friday.

The two-storey structure housing the factory in the central city of Bacolod was also destroyed in the explosion that killed three people including a nine-year-old girl late Thursday, the PNA reported.

LONDON (OCT. 12) - Britain's annual inflation rate in September reached 10.9 percent, up from the August rate of 10.6 percent, the Office of Statistics reported here Friday.

The rise above all reflected the increase in the price of oil.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major expects the inflation rate to have topped out and to fall markedly in 1991.

Pound sterling's placement in the European Monetary System's exchange rate mechanism last week, combined with Major's high interest rates policy are expected by London to produce the turnaround in price developments.

TAIPEI (OCT. 12) - Taiwan Premier Hau Pei-tsun on Friday shrugged off a reported threat by paramount Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping to invade Taiwan and unify China within five years.

"Our present military strength may not be adequate (for us) to counterattack (China), but it is more than enough" to repel an invasion, Mr. Hau told parliament.

"There is definitely no problem about ensuring Taiwan's security," he said. "Taiwan should have confidence and the will to survive."

He was responding to a question by Kuomintang (KMT) legislator Hsieh Lai-fa, who had asked Mr. Hau to comment on a Hong Kong newspaper report that Mr. Deng had mapped out a five-year plan to unify China at all costs, even if it meant invading Taiwan.

The KMT forces fled to Taiwan in 1949 after losing a civil war with the communists on the Chinese mainland. Both the KMT and the Chinese communists vow to unify China one day, albeit on different terms and using different methods.

During Taiwan's National Day celebrations on Wednesday, President Lee Teng-hui reiterated that China should be unified, but said reunion should not endanger the island's security and stability.

TOKYO (OCT. 12) - Japan's Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu indicated Friday that the government planned to maintain its virtual ban on rice imports despite international efforts to liberalise trade in agricultural products.

"In view of the special importance of rice and rice farming, and in line with the spirit of relevant Diet resolutions, I intend to deal with this with our basic policy of self sufficiency," he told parliament.

The remarks by Mr. Kaifu, who was speaking on the first day of an extraordinary session of the lower house, were echoed by a senior official at the International Trade and Industry Ministry.

"Mr. Kaifu made it clear that Japan is keeping its position on rice," Noboru Hatekayama, director general of the ministry's International Trade Policy Bureau, told a news conference.

Mr. Hatakeyama acknowledged that agricultural liberalisation was an important part of the Uruguay Round of talks, due to end in December, under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

But he added that Japan's priorities were to clarify how to settle disputes, to prevent unilateral trade laws aimed at specific countries and to introduce a new multi-fibre arrangement governing international trade in textiles.

"In agriculture, the most important issue is not Japanese rice but the dispute between the United States and the EEC," he said.

Japan recently proposed to the Uruguay Round a 30 per cent reduction in agricultural subsidies.

But it argues that any country should be allowed to remain self-sufficient in the production of staple foods, a position which has been strongly opposed by the United States.

TEHERAN (OCT. 12) - President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani accused the United States on Friday of "following an ostrich policy in connection with the bloody events in the (Israeli) occupied territories" and called on Moslem countries to show unity "in coping with the Islamic world's problems".

Speaking as imam at the Friday prayer service at Teheran University, Mr. Rafsanjani criticized the United States for having vetoed a United Nations Security Council draft resolution condemning Israel for the violence.

He said he was surprised that "the Security Council has adopted so many resolutions on Kuwait, while the United States, pooh-poohing the realities in the territories occupied by Israel, rejected the U.N. resolution".

Noting "dissensions found at all levels in the Islamic countries", the president said that "the Islamic world must agree to choose a spiritual guide able to mobilize the required resources and forces to cope with the problems rending the Islamic countries".

He added: "We have huge possibilities and tools, such as oil and the unity of all Moslems, which can be useful in defending Islam".

BONN (OCT. 12) - Germany and the Soviet Union signed a treaty here on Friday covering the withdrawal of Soviet troops from former East Germany by the end of 1994.

The agreement provided a solid basis for both the continued temporary stationing of the Red Army and its phased pullout, German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said. The presence of the 380,000 troops and their families, making 600,000 people in all, would be "a measure of trust between the two countries", he said.

Co-signatory Vladislav Terechov, the Soviet ambassador here, hailed the treaty as a "new step taken to close the post-war period and open a new epoch in European history".

It would enable people to view the future calmly, he added.

A first financial treaty was signed on Tuesday, under which Bonn is to pay Moscow 7.8 billion dollars over four years and extend an interest-free credit of two billion dollars for the troops' repatriation and resettlement.

An overall treaty on Germano-Soviet relations was initialled in Moscow last month and is to be signed early in November by Chancellor Helmut Kohl and President Mikhail Gorbachev at a summit in Germany.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 12) - Police shot dead two rioters after they had set fire to a police station Friday in a northern Indian town to protest a government job quota scheme, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported.

Nine others were injured in the shooting in Haryana state's Bhiwani township when the officers opened fire to quell rampaging protesters who also set ablaze a state bank branch, an official's house and three private shops, PTI said.

PTI said those killed were protesters who oppose an August 7 scheme that reserves almost half of government jobs for the lower castes, which constitute a majority of India's 850 million people.

Meanwhile, a 13-year-old schoolgirl set herself ablaze Friday in Haryana's state capital Chandigarh, PTI said, adding that she had been hospitalised with her entire body charred.

Another 19-year-old student hanged himself from a fan in his house Thursday night in Agra city, and in a protest note said it was "useless to live" as the government was unmoved by the student suicides, PTI said.

Students say the job quota scheme makes a mockery of merit and should be dismantled.

Another 13-year-old student who poisoned herself Tuesday in Palampur town of northern state of Himachal Pradesh died Friday, PTI said.

Total suicide bids attributed to the quota protests stood at 122 Friday.

There were no early reports on casualties, the agency said.

A quake measuring six on the Richter scale can cause severe damage in a built-up area.

Around 40,000 people were killed in the northwestern province of Gilan in an earthquake on June 21 measuring at least 7.3.

PARIS (OCT. 12) - President Francois Mitterrand and U.S. President George Bush had a telephone conversation late Thursday about the Middle East situation, Elysee spokesman Hubert Vedrine said Friday.

They also discussed negotiations currently under way within the United Nations Security Council, he said.

The council has been trying for several days to agree a resolution in the wake of the incidents in Jerusalem on Monday in which Israeli police shot dead 21 Palestinians.

Late Thursday it appeared to be close to agreement on a resolution condemning Israel for the death of the demonstrators, diplomats in New York said.

Such a resolution was expected to call for the dispatch of a U.N. mission of inquiry into the incidents in Jerusalem last Monday, they said.

The single draft resolution under discussion contained elements of a Yemeni proposal supported by nonaligned nations, and one put forward by the United States, a traditional supporter of Israel.

MANAMA (OCT. 12) - The whole of Kuwait's exiled political class, headed by the ruling as-Sabah family and including the opposition, is to meet on Saturday in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, to discuss the consequences of the Iraqi invasion of the tiny Gulf state.

Some 500 figures, including state dignitaries, former members of parliament and representatives of social and professional organizations will assemble until Monday at the Kuwaiti People's Congress.

The aim of the meeting, according to Crown Prince Sheikh Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah, is to draw up ways to "free the country, restore legality" and reflect on "the new Kuwait" which will emerge if and when the country is liberated from Iraqi occupation.

Although this order of priorities has not been contested, the last point concerning the "new Kuwait" may lead to differences between the various political groupings, heirs to a parliamentary tradition that has been unique in the region.

While the August 2 Iraqi invasion united Kuwait's politicians around the royal family, it did not eliminate the differences in views that had earlier become apparent.

A huge majority of Kuwaitis are concentrating on the freeing of their country from foreign occupation, but some at the same time are already raising questions about the future.

Islamic faction member and former MP Mubarak Douila hinted in an interview Thursday with a Saudi newspaper that he would ask the royal family for "guarantees" on the future.

"For the moment we shall content ourselves with guarantees offering the Kuwaiti people the chance to call (the royal family) to account and to take part in building the new Kuwait," he declared.

On the other hand, the daily Al-Qabas, published in London since the invasion, argued that the congress should be a "war council" promoting "national unity."

The argument for national unity had been emphasized by the leadership and the media in June before the election of the National Council, a toothless consultative body imposed by the emir Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah despite opposition from most members of the former parliament dissolved in 1986.

The Council, composed of 75 members including 50 elected by universal suffrage and 25 nominated by the emir, was judged by more than 30 of the 50 former MPs to be anti-constitutional.

Opponents to the idea of a National Council said the 1963 constitution, calling for the election of a 50-member assembly with wide-ranging legislative powers, should be respected.

They said the constitution had been breached when the former parliament had not been renewed within two months of its dissolution and that the National Council had no place under the basic law.

The division of Kuwait's political world made the Iraqi invasion easier, according to Western and Arab diplomatic sources, but afterwards many politicians, including some who had been imprisoned by the as-Sabah regime, chose not to ally themselves with Baghdad.

In addition to refusing to collaborate with the occupiers, the Kuwaiti opposition has since the invasion suppressed its grievances against the ruling family, which it had accused of running the country badly.

HONG KONG (OCT. 12) - Chief Secretary Sir David Ford and other Hong Kong government officials met with hundreds of business leaders here Friday to promote the colony's planned new airport and port complex.

At a two-hour briefing sponsored by the Hong Kong General Chamber of Congress, the government sought to allay concern in the business community over financing for the mammoth project and its feasibility.

Answering doubts over whether Hong Kong could afford the project, Financial Secretary Sir Piers Jacobs said the territory could not afford to continue depending on the single-runway Kai Tak airport, which is expected to reach saturation by 1993 at 24 million passengers per year.

The new airport, when fully operational, will accommodate 80 million passengers per year and 4.4 million tonnes of cargo, and will handle 70 aircraft movements per hour, round the clock.

This capacity is expected to meet the territory's needs through 2040, according to Secretary of Economic Services Anson Chan.

Sir Piers, who stressed the colony's balanced budget and high reserves, also noted that the overall price tag of 16.3 billion U.S. dollars at current prices covered all associated projects, including road and rail links.

The airport itself, to be built primarily with public funds, is estimated at 4.87 billion dollars, while the port, estimated at seven billion dollars, will be 80 per cent underwritten by the private sector, he said.

Also Friday a team of Chinese experts arrived here for 10 days of talks on the airport and port project.

BERLIN (OCT. 12) - Mercedes-Benz has become the first truck maker to invest heavily in the former territory of East Germany, unveiling plans to inject a billion Deutsche marks (650 million dollars) in an assembly plant south of Berlin.

Nine-tonne LN-2 trucks will start rolling off the lines at Ludwigsfelde from January, using a plant owned by Ifa GmbH, the former state-owned East German truck maker, Mercedes managing director Werner Niefer told a press conference here Thursday.

Mercedes will also invest a billion marks to build a new assembly line at Ludwigsfelde that will have an output of 40,000 trucks a year from 1994, he said. Around 2,000 jobs will be created.

Assembly of the LN-2 will be managed by a company, to be set up next year and capitalised at 100 million marks (65 million dollars), in which Mercedes will have a 25 per cent stake, he said.

Mr. Niefer said the deal had been approved by the Treuhandanstalt, the agency charged with privatising state assets after unification.

Production of the W-50, Ifa's last product, will cease at the year's end, he said.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 12) - The Indian government is to slash supplies of oil and petroleum products by 15 percent to avert a financial crisis caused by the spiralling cost of oil due to the Gulf crisis, a senior minister said Friday.

"Across the board, supplies will be cut ... starting in a day or two," Finance Minister Madhu Dandavate told a press conference here on his return from an International Monetary Fund-World Bank meeting in Washington.

He said industry, government, private consumers and airlines would not be exempt from the nationwide cut, and that the only exception was likely to be kerosene, which is widely used for cooking.

Mr. Dandavate also said the government was contemplating raising the cost of oil and petroleum products "to reflect current international prices" but declined to specify the amount of the hike under consideration.

"We are prepared to take the risk," he said when asked whether the planned hike would fuel inflation, currently running at about nine per cent.

Conceding that the 15 percent supply cut would affect industrial output and risked rampant black-marketeering, the minister promised that major steps would be taken to counter the black market.

He said the defence ministry would be the only sector exempt from the cut.

India has estimated the direct additional cost of oil imports this year resulting from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait at some 2.4 billion dollars.

Mr. Dandavate said New Delhi was keeping its options open on whether to apply for an IMF loan to help tide over the crisis.

DHAKA (OCT. 12) - A top Bangladesh opposition leader Friday challenged President Hussain Mohammad Ershad to stand in free and fair elections, saying that the people would reject him.

Sheikh Hasina Wajed, chief of the Awami League, said before slogan-chanting supporters at a protest rally: "I challenge you (Ershad) to stand trial in the people's court and find out for yourself if you have popular support."

She said the president would not get even "one vote" if polls demanded by the opposition were permitted.

The crowd responded to her challenge with slogans like "Hang, Hang, Hang Ershad" and "Martyrs' blood will not go in vain."

Major opposition groups Friday mourned those killed in police gunfire during anti-government demonstrations Wednesday and held special mass prayers and protest rallies to condemn the incidents.

Participants in the rallies also repeated their demand for the resignation of Mr. Ershad and free and fair elections under a neutral caretaker government.

The government has acknowledged the deaths of five activists, but the opposition has said at least six were killed.

Friday's demonstrations were called by the eight-party alliance dominated by Sheikh Hasina's Awami League, the seven-party alliance led by Begum Khaleda Zia's Bangladesh Nationalist Party and the left-leaning five-party grouping of Nirmal Sen.

The opposition leaders have condemned the killings and observed a half-day strike Thursday to protest alleged police brutality.

Sheikh Hasina charged that plainclothes policemen opened fire from the building housing the ruling Jatiya Party's city office, killing three people, while two others were shot dead in another incident.

"Ershad, your hand is tainted with blood and people will not spare you," she said. "They will take revenge."

Deputy Prime Minister Shah Moazzem Hossain refuted the charges, saying the opposition was engaged in a "dirty game with the dead" because it had failed to win public support through normal means.

MANILA (OCT. 12) - President Corazon Aquino and the leaders of the two houses of congress agreed Friday that further domestic oil price increases were needed even as a key aide warned the move could trigger fresh instability.

The government's policy had been to try to limit the impact of price rises due to the Gulf crisis "especially on those who can ill afford to take its shocks " Mrs. Aquino said in a statement

"But hard decisions and choices will have to be made and faced and we shall do this without fail."

House Speaker Ramon Mitra said after meeting with Mrs. Aquino that "we can no longer hold (oil prices)" although he did not specify when oil prices would be raised.

The official Energy Regulatory Board (ERB) said Thursday that the local subsidiary of Caltex intended to petition for an 89 centavo (3.4 U.S. cent) increase on top of the 28.5 per cent increase in fuel prices approved on September 21.

The local subsidiary of Shell would also file for a price increase, ERB said.

Officials say Philippine oil prices are based on an international crude price of 24 dollars per barrel even though the price has risen to 40 dollars.

Justice Secretary Franklin Drilon, head of the cabinet's national security sub-committee, said "you cannot divorce the oil price from the political stability of this country."

He noted that the latest and bloodest rightwing coup attempts in October 1987 and December 1989 immediately followed oil price hikes and that the short-lived military mutiny in the southern island of Mindanao last week also followed the September increase in oil prices.

"I am opposed to any oil price petition at this point in time. We will do everything in order that we will be able to maintain the (present) prices at least until the end of the year," he said.

Leftwing trade unions have threatened to launch massive protests, including a nationwide strike, if the government announces a new round of oil price increases.

SRINAGAR, INDIA (OCT. 12) - A huge fire broke out in a residential district of downtown Srinagar Friday as 25 people died in another blaze that flared after a gun battle in a frontier Kashmir town.

Residents accused paramilitary Indian Central Reserve Police Force (CPRF) troopers combing the area for militants of setting the blaze in Srinagar, but there was no immediate comment from the government.

The residents said a huge column of smoke hung over the city, the summer capital of Jammu and Kashmir state.

"We could see fire and smoke bellowing from houses," said Mohammad Rehman, press secretary of Kashmir's Chief Moslem Priest Mirwaiz Umar Farooq.

"We can hear gunfire ... there is a lot of crossfiring going on," Mr. Rehman said.

He added that the security authorities had reimposed a curfew, relaxed Friday for seven hours, at 3 p.m. local time and ordered people to leave the area.

It was not immediately known whether there were any casualties in the new fire which started just before midday according to residents.

Fires have razed more than 1,000 houses in the city's downtown area since Sunday, when pitched street battles between the militants and the CPRF broke out in the old city and the army was called out.

Meanwhile, Srinagar police sources said at least 20 Moslem militants were burned alive Thursday evening in a devastating fire that started just after a gun battle between the separatists and the security forces in a border village.

They said the fire was reported from the town of Kalaroos in Kupwara district, some 120 kilometres (75 miles) north of here in Kashmir, adding that five security men also died in the incident.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 12) - India's leading Sikh politician, Simranjit Singh Mann, resigned his parliament seat Friday and called for United Nations-supervised polls in Punjab, now again under the direct rule of New Delhi.

The Sikh leader stalked into a news conference an hour after he quit parliament's lower house protesting the "colonisation" of the northern state and warning that other MPs from his Sikh party would soon "follow suit."

"Punjab has been under 41 months of continuous President's (federal) Rule. ... It is not aimed at restoring normalcy in the state but to deny the people of Punjab their constitutional, democratic, political, civil and economic rights " Mr. Mann's resignation letter said.

The policeman-turn-politician, in his letter to parliament speaker Rabi Ray, listed eight points charging India with "colonising" Punjab and "enslaving the Sikhs" and said his community had the right to self-determination.

Mr. Mann, who leads 10 of Punjab's 13 parliamentary seats, said the United Nations should be called in to allow the Sikhs to exercise their right of self-determination in the frontier state where more than 2,000 people have died so far this year in raging separatist violence.

"Call in the U.N. and let the people of Punjab bring in what they want. ... India backs U.N. interventions in other countries like Cambodia, so why not in Punjab?" Mr. Mann said, referring to his Sikh Akali Dal's demand for free elections or a referendum in Punjab.

"The United States is most welcome to open a consulate in Punjab to keep a close watch on the regular violations of human rights over there," Mr. Mann said and warned that his next course of action after the resignation would be to "internationalise" the Punjab issue.

"This is the beginning. They (India) might arrest me after this, my liberty is at stake," Mr. Mann said.

KUALA LUMPUR (OCT 12) - Malaysian miners on Friday repeated a call for a free tin market, saying the export quotas of the Association of Tin Producing Countries (ATPC) had not succeeded in reducing the stock overhang.

Ibrahim Menudin, president of the Malaysian Chamber of Mines, said that the quotas had little impact on prices and were pointless because Brazil, the world's largest tin producer, was not a member of the ATPC.

The ATPC, grouping Australia, Bolivia, Indonesia, Malaysia, Nigeria, Thailand and Zaire, agreed early this month at a meeting in Bolivia to reduce total quotas by six percent to 95,849 tonnes this year.

Mr. Ibrahim said that the tin industry was weak because supply far exceeded demand, mainly because of a lack of control over excessive production by Brazil and China, another country that does not belong to ATPC.

Tin prices, which recovered to a post-1985 market crash of about 11 U.S. dollars a kilogram (five dollars a pound) here last year as a result of the ATPC's efforts, have fallen to around six dollars (2.75 dollars) as stocks build up.

BERLIN (OCT. 12) - The west German chemicals giant BASF AG on Friday bought a polyurethane firm in former East Germany, Synthesewerks Schwartzheide AG, in the first major takeover in the chemicals sector under German unification, BASF Managing Director Alfred Strube said.

The contract was signed between BASF and the Treuhandanstalt, the agency overseeing the privatisation of state assets in the five former East German states.

It requires the approval of the German federal monopolies board, the Bundeskartelamt, Mr. Strube said. He did not reveal the purchase price.

BASF will invest several hundred million Deutsche marks in the firm, which is based in the southeastern city of Schwartzheide, he added.

One of the top three chemicals firms in Germany, BASF this year is expecting turnover of 2.6 billion marks (1.6 billion dollars) in polyurethane production, he said.

Schwartzheide, which has a payroll of 5,100 people, is expected to contribute 600 million marks (375 million dollars) towards that total, he added.

BETONG, MALAYSIA (OCT. 12) - Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad Friday accused Malaysia's loose opposition alliance of duplicity in trying to win support from the country's many races before elections later this month.

Making the first stop in a nationwide campaign swing before the elections due October 20 and 21, Dr. Mahathir arrived by helicopter in this remote town 256 kilometers (160 miles) east of Kuching on Borneo island.

He told an audience of 2,000 supporters, most of them government workers and farmers, that only his National Front coalition could ensure a genuine sharing of political power to avoid racial conflict.

The prime minister accused the fundamentalist Parti Islam of making contradictory campaign promises to different racial groups.

"They speak in different tongues to different people. They don't quite know where they are headed," Dr. Mahathir said.

Meanwhile in Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian Trades Union Congress (MTUC) threw its support behind the opposition alliance.

The alliance, known as "Gagasan Rakyat" (People's Might), is led by Dr. Mahathir's arch rival, former trade minister Tengku Razaleigh Hamzah.

Gagasan Rakyat groups Mr. Razaleigh's "Semangat '46," a dissident group from Dr. Mahathir's United Malays National Organisation (UMNO), with the mostly ethnic Chinese Democratic Action Party and smaller parties representing ethnic Indians and socialists.

Semangat '46 is also a member of the Angkatan Perpaduan Ummah, a grouping of Islamic parties including Parti Islam.

Mr. Razaleigh's two opposition pacts have fielded common candidates to force straight fights against the National Front in most of the 178 constituencies of the lower house of parliament, the Dewan Rakyat.

SANTIAGO (OCT. 12) - Chile shipped cluster bombs to Ethiopia last month in a deal concluded before President Patricio Aylwin took power from the military regime headed by General Augusto Pinochet, the Defense Ministry said Friday.

The ministry said Gen. Pinochet's government authorized the sale of 1,658 cluster bombs to Ethiopia's regime, which is locked in a decades-long struggle with rebels in the north of the country.

The last 76 of the deadly anti-personnel weapons were sent to Addis Ababa in September by the Chilean weapons manufacturer Industrias Cardoen, the ministry said.

Mr. Aylwin, who took over from Gen. Pinochet in March, has not authorized any new weapons sale to Ethiopia or Iraq, it added.

Industrias Cardoen, which the government in the past said also supplied Iraq with cluster bombs, had denied as late as Wednesday that it had any dealings with the Ethiopian Government.

Human rights groups have accused Ethiopia of using the cluster bombs, which explode above ground and spray metal pellets over a wide area, against civilians in rebel-held areas.

PARIS (OCT. 12) - An Irish tax haven is likely to be chosen as the base for financial engineering to provide funds for the future A-321 European Airbus aircraft, aero industry sources said Friday.

The executive committee of the French Airbus Industrie company is due to meet next Friday to study several proposals for raising the finance, sources close to the consortium said.

One of the proposals is to create a finance company in Ireland which would be owned by the lending banks.

Development of the A-321 aircraft, an extended version of the A-320 airliner, will cost 500 million dollars compared with investment of about two billion dollars in the first version.

Airbus industrie has four partners in the Airbus programme: Aerospatiale, Deutsche Aerospace, British Aerospace and Casa. They decided in November 1989 to launch the programme without state aid, by raising funds in the commercial market.

A banker informed on the matter said that Airbus and its partners were likely to create a finance company in the tax-exempt area of Dublin docks. The banks involved would provide capital, instead of loans, to the company and would become non-voting shareholders.

The European Investment Bank might participate to the extent of about 150 million dollars.

This arrangement would offer big tax advantages since corporation tax within the area is levied at 10 per cent and the tax on dividends is five per cent. Consequently Airbus would benefit from loans charged at a rate of interest of about one point below the market rate.

French financial circles said that the Credit National and the Credit Foncier might be among the French investors, but it was not possible to confirm this on Friday.

Some leading French and European banks have reportedly declined to participate because the financial advantages do not interest them, or because the proposal in Ireland could cause legal problems with Irish authorities which are often reluctant to authorise tax advantages for projects of relatively short duration.

VIENNA (OCT. 12) - A supersonic airliner will not be ready to succeed Concorde before 2005, a senior manager of the Pratt and Whitney engine manufacturer said here late Thursday.

The manager, Mark Sullivan, is director of communications for the company, a subsidiary of the U.S. group United Technologies, which agreed a few days ago to carry out a feasibility study with the U.S. company General Electric into the development of a successor to the Franco-British aircraft.

He told journalists that a decision on whether to continue with the project would be taken in 1992.

The project concerns an aircraft capable of carrying 250 passengers at 3.5 times the speed of sound for a distance of 6,000 to 7,000 miles (9,600 to 11,200 kilometres).

It would be bigger, faster and have a bigger range than the 20-year-old Concorde.

The technology was not a problem, but account would have to be taken of profitability and environmental impact, he said.

It was estimated that the cost of developing the engines would be three billion dollars, and the risks could not be carried by a single company.

PARIS (OCT. 12) - A Gulf war would not bring about an interruption in oil supplies, the Kuwaiti finance minister said Friday, but he warned that oil prices would only fall once the Gulf crisis was resolved.

Sheikh Ali Khalifa al Sabah, in an interview in London with the French daily Le Monde, said that "fears of a destruction of Saudi oil fields are unfounded, as these fields cover huge surface areas."

"Even the terminals are not easy to destroy, and there is sufficient redundancy in the system to guarantee the oil flow whatever happens," he went on.

To underscore his point, he noted that the Iranian oil terminal on Kharg island in the Gulf had continued to work, despite Iraqi attacks, during the Iran-Iraq war.

As far as the oil price is concerned, "if the situation stays as it is, prices will remain high. If the crisis is resolved, not by accepting concessions but by applying the U.N. resolutions, peacefully or by war, then prices will fall again."

He added that if war broke out, following the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, "it would inevitably be short. Maybe not two or three days, but not too long".

He stressed that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein should be "rapidly forced" to implement U.N. resolutions, notably calling for the evacuation of Kuwait, the restoration of the Kuwaiti government, and the release of foreign hostages.

"But I doubt that he will accept," he went on.

The finance minister also revealed that at the time of the Iraqi invasion, the Kuwaiti central bank had "relatively little hard currency -- about 10 million dollars -- and gold stocks worth 350 million dollars".

But he added that the gold was stamped, and that Iraq would have to melt it down and re-mark it to be able to sell it.

The central bank was designed in such a way that the safe would fall into the sea if an attempt to blow it up took place. "Unfortunately, the Iraqis eventually found the people with the keys and the combination. They threatened to kill their family in front of them if they did not yield," he said.

LONDON (OCT. 12) - British conglomerate Hanson said Friday it was suspending plans to sell its 49 percent stake in U.S. concern Newmont Mining Corporation.

The decision had been taken because of "present market conditions," Hanson said in a statement, citing the fall in Newmont share prices since Tuesday when it indicated it would be selling its stake in the U.S. mining concern, the country's leading gold producer.

Hanson, whose interests range from cigarette production to building materials, said it would "explore other alternatives" for its Newmont stake, acquired las year when it bought Consolidated Goldfields.

The 49 percent stake has an estimated value of 350 million dollars.

BELGRADE (OCT. 12) - Libyan leader Moamer Kadhafi has warned Yugoslavs not to dump public busts and portraits of Tito, the country's late communist leader, or face the severing of bilateral ties, the Borba newspaper reported here Friday.

Speaking on the Libyan New Year on October 2, Colonel Kadhafi said he was outraged at reports that Yugoslavia was considering removing "symbols of the one person, who freed the country from Nazism and created the non-aligned movement of which Libya is a member".

"We will not accept the destruction of Tito's work, nor will we tolerate any unseemliness toward him."

Borba reportedly quoted the speech from the Libyan daily Al Arab.

BRASILIA (OCT. 12) - Brazil's agriculture minister warned here that agricultural protectionism and farm subsidies, notably in Europe, were contributing to the devastation of the Amazon jungle.

Antonio Cabrera, meeting with reporters prior to negotiations next week in Geneva on world farm trade policy, said Brazilian farmers, struggling to compete with subsidized food imports, were forced to minimize their costs -- notably by burning Amazon jungle to expand farmlands and grazing areas.

"Confronted with unfair competition from European farm products subsidized on the world market, the only solution for (Brazilian) farmers is to try and maximize profits by minimizing costs," Mr. Cabrera said Thursday.

"This is how farmers, who could be among the best protectors of the environment, become predators," he said. "Their least expensive investment is a box of matches to extend their fields or pastures at the expense of the tropical forest."

The Brazilian official complained that beef cost 900 to 1,200 dollars per ton to produce in Brazil, compared to about 3,000 dollars per ton in Western Europe, but that thanks to government subsidies EEC countries are selling the meat on the international market for some 600 dollars a ton.

"The difference is paid for by the taxpayers in the developed countries, which is unjust and provokes immense social problems in poor producer nations," Mr. Cabrera said.

The official made his remarks prior to a meeting next week in Geneva of farm officials within the framework of the 96-member General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The issue of farm subsidies has emerged as the main stumbling block to a successful conclusion of GATT negotiations due to end in December, dividing member nations roughly into two camps, one led by the United States and the other by the European Economic Community (EEC).

Washington is pushing for a phased but drastic reduction in state aid to farmers -- by as much as 80 percent, while the Europeans oppose such deep cuts in support for their politically powerful farm populations and have offered subsidy reductions of just 30 percent over 10 years.

Mr. Cabrera scoffed at the European proposal, saying "it amounts to proposing no reduction whatsoever" in subsidies since many EEC governments have already been forced to reduce payments to some farmers due to mounting stockpiles of unsold meat, butter and milk.

KABUL (OCT. 12) - The Afghan air force Friday carried out heavy bombing attacks on mujahedeen positions near the capital Kabul as the resistance launched a major offensive to take the city, officials and diplomats said.

Heavy artillery and medium-range rockets fired from government bases here rocked the city through Thursday night and early Friday. Residents also observed intense air activity over the capital.

Diplomatic sources said Afghan air force jets were operating out of the Bagram airbase, north of the capital, heading towards mujahedeen positions about 40 kilometres (25 miles) to the south and southwest of Kabul.

The government Thursday said the mujahedeen had launched a major assault overnight Tuesday aimed at overrunning the capital but security forces beat off the attack.

Fighters of the Hezb-i-Islami group led by hardliner Gulbuddin Hekmatyar and another faction headed by Abdul Rasul Sayyaf launched the two-pronged offensive from Arghandi to the west and Khakijabar to the southeast, an official spokesman said.

He added that the government had recovered 71 mujahedeen bodies from Arghandi while 31 were reported to have been seriously wounded. Casualties in Khakijabar and the government's own losses were not immediately known.

(The resistance said in Peshawar, Pakistan that the mujahedeen had overrun 10 posts and killed 38 government soldiers, including five officers.

(The mujahedeen put its own losses at five dead and 21 injured, the pro-mujahedeen Afghan Islamic Press reported, adding that the resistance had destroyed one enemy tank.)

Diplomats here said the government had also taken heavy losses in the two battles fought with artillery, missiles and heavy and medium machine guns.

"By now both areas must have been bombed out of sight. So long as the government rules the skies, the mujahedeen have no chance," a military attache here said.

BRUSSELS (OCT. 12) - The Belgian coalition government is split over whether to maintain Belgian paratroops in Rwanda to prevent widespread bloodshed or withdraw them to avoid complicity in human-rights violations, political sources said here Friday.

The division might be due to support by Social Christian parties for the Roman Catholic church, which is close to the authorities in Rwanda, they said.

The Belgian government distanced itself from the authorities in Rwanda on Thursday when it refused to send additional military aid, after reports of human rights violations, but has hesitated to go further.

The government has held daily meetings on Rwanda and met for a particularly long time late into Thursday night. Rwanda, a former Belgian colony, is the scene of fighting sparked by a rebel force which entered from Uganda at the beginning of the month.

The dilemma is whether to order the withdrawal of 535 Belgian parachutists despite the presence of 1,300 Belgian nationals who have decided to remain in the country, or maintain the military presence and be accused of complicity in human-right violations.

The Social Christians, who dominate the centre-left coalition, have insisted that the soldiers should remain in the former colony, now riven by fighting between forces loyal to the Hutu regime of Major-General Juvenal Habyarimana and Tutsi rebels, dissidents and former refugees.

They say the safety of Belgian nationals cannot be guaranteed without the troops, who have been detailed to guard Kigali airport and its access routes.

SRINAGAR, India (OCT 12) - A Canadian tourist said here Friday that she was gang raped after being taken in for questioning by Indian security forces.

Laura Lambie, 24, told reporters that she believed the five men who raped her were from the Indian security forces.

She said she had been walking along a road skirting Kashmir's picturesque Dal Lake early Friday when she stopped to talk with some Kashmiri youths.

Suddenly a vehicle of the National Security Guards drove up, stopped and drove her away to Chesmashahi Garden for questioning, she said.

Ms. Lambie said she was later taken to a place that "looked like an army camp (where) I was criminally assaulted" by the five men.

The men then took her back to the spot where she was picked up, she said. An unnamed houseboat owner had helped her to recover from the "trauma."

Ms. Lambie, who said she had arrived in Kashmir as a tourist last week, added that she had been given medical aid by a private doctor in Srinagar, Kashmir's summer capital.

A spokesman from the Canadian High Commission (embassy) in New Delhi said it was unable to confirm the account but was investigating the case.

ACCRA (OCT 12) - Ivory Coast Foreign Minister Simeon Ake on Friday delivered a special message from President Felix Houphouet-Boigny to Ghana's head of state Jerry Rawlings, officials here said.

The contents of the message were not disclosed. It was received on behalf of Flight-Lieutenant Rawlings by Kojo Tsikata, a member of Ghana's ruling Provisional National Defence Council in charge of foreign affairs and national security.

The message follows repeated accusations by former Liberian government officials that the Ivory Coast and Burkina Faso have supported Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) rebel movement.

Ivory Coast has also alleged that a group of people who wanted to assassinate the pope during his visit to that country September 10 were led by an American friend of French mercenary Bob Denard based in Ghana.

Ivorian authorities said a Beninese youth was to have confessed to the plot to kill the pope, who consecrated the world's largest basilica in Mr. Houphouet-Boigny's home village of Yamoussoukro.

The government of Togo, meanwhile has charged that the Beninese man unveiled a plot by the same group based in Ghana to destablize the Togolese capital Lome last Friday.

On that day, students and other youths went on a rampage, burning administrative vehicles and attacking six police stations after security forces cracked down hard on demonstrators protesting the trial of two men accused of distributing anti-government tracts.

Authorities said four people were killed and 34 others injured in the incident.

WARSAW (OCT 12) - A statement of intent whereby the Soviet Union would be prepared to supply 10 million tonnes of oil to Poland in 1991 was due to be signed in Moscow on Friday during an official visit by Polish Foreign Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski, official sources here said.

The Soviet Union, which had recently informed Polish authorities that it did not plan to sell oil to Poland in 1991, has gone back on its decision, Polish vice Finance Minister Andrzej Podsiadlo told a press conference.

But he said the document was only a statement of intent since precise contracts would have to be negotiated with the Soviet companies concerned.

Poland, which expects to consume about 14 million tonnes of oil next year, will have to pay in dollars for Soviet oil from January 1, 1991, instead of in rubles.

Polish officials have estimated that the entire Polish trade surplus in 1990 of four billion dollars would scarcely be sufficient to pay for its 1991 oil bill.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) - The State Departement said Friday it would interview remaining members of a Cambodian dance company that has been plagued by defections during its U.S. tour to find out whether they want to return home.

"The purpose of the interviews is to verify that the dancers are all departing voluntarily from the United States," State Department spokesman Mark Dillen said.

The interviews will be conducted in New York, at a date to be determined by State Departement and Immigration and Naturalization Service officers, he said.

Following standard policy, he declined to say how many, if any, dancers had expressed the intention of defecting.

The New York Times reported Friday that four of the 36 members of the Cambodian Classical Dance Company had already defected. Asked about the reports, Mr. Dillen said, "We will not comment specifically on asylum cases."

Once it is determined that a foreigner wants to remain in the United States, it becomes an asylum case, on which the U.S. Government usually keeps mum.

Final decisions on granting asylum are made by the INS.

The visit of the dance troop, now performing in New York, is the first cultural exchange between the U.S. and Cambodia since the end of the Indochina war in 1975.

PARIS (OCT 12) - Talks here between Poland and its main public creditors led to "continued progress on the debt question" on Friday, the secretariat of the Paris Club said.

The Club, which brings together creditor nations and banks to negotiate rescheduling and other agreements with debtors, said the participants had agreed to continue work to draw up a new agreement with Poland.

The country owes some 43 billion dollars to foreign creditors, with around two-thirds of that sum due to public bodies.

The Club also said that the impact on the Polish economy of energy price rises caused by the Gulf crisis had been raised during the talks.

In August Poland had asked its creditors for compensation for the effects of the crisis on its heavily-indebted economy.

When the crisis erupted, with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2, Poland was obtaining its oil from Iraq as repayment in kind of Iraq's 500-million-dollar debt to the country.

The embargo against Iraq ended those supplies, and forced Poland to obtain its oil at sharply-increased prices on world markets.

The Club of Paris statement also said that data on Poland's economic recovery programme, presented at the meeting by Deputy Finance Minister Janusz Sawicki, were "positive."

In July, 17 of Poland's creditor countries, acting under the umbrella of the Club of Paris, agreed to reschedule some 9.4 billion dollars of Poland's debt.

BUENOS AIRES (OCT. 12) XINHUA - U.S. INVESTMENTS IN ARGENTINA ARE EXPECTED TO REACH SOME 3.1 BILLION DOLLARS, ACCORDING TO THE COMMERCIAL ADVISOR TO THE U.S. EMBASSY HERE.

RAFAEL FERMOSELLE SAID THURSDAY THAT, OF THE TOTAL, 508 MILLION DOLLARS CORRESPONDS TO PROJECTS THAT ARE ALREADY "WELL DEVELOPED" AND 807 MILLION DOLLARS TO PROJECTS THAT ARE STILL IN THE IMPLEMENTATION PROCESS.

FERMOSELLE SAID THERE ARE PROJECTS REPRESENTING 1.502 BILLION DOLLARS IN INVESTMENTS THAT ARE "AWAITING GOVERNMENT ACTION." KUNMING (OCT. 12) XINHUA - CHINA HAS PROVIDED ITS UNIQUE TECHNOLOGY OF PLANTING RUBBER TREES IN THE HIGHER LATITUDES TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES, ACCORDING TO AN INTERNATIONAL MEETING HELD HERE.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL RUBBER RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD WAS INFORMED THAT CHINA'S FORMER AGRICULTURE MINISTER HE KANG, AND HUANG ZONGDAO, PRESIDENT OF THE SOUTH CHINA RESEARCH INSTITUTE OF TROPICAL CROPS HAVE WRITTEN A BOOK WHICH ELABORATES ON THE NEW TECHNOLOGY.

WHEN THE DEVELOPING COUNTRIES ASK CHINA TO PROVIDE MORE DETAILED GUIDANCE, CHINESE EXPERTS ARE READY TO WORK IN THOSE COUNTRIES, ACCORDING TO A SOURCE AT THE MEETING.

TRADITIONALLY, RUBBER TREES COULD NOT BE GROWN IN AREAS WITH A NORTH LATITUDE HIGHER THAN 17 DEGREES. HOWEVER, CHINA BEGAN TO PLANT RUBBER TREES IN AREAS WITH A NORTH LATITUDE OF BETWEEN 18 AND 24 DEGREES IN EARLY 1950S.

IN THE PAST FOUR DECADES, CHINESE EXPERTS HAVE DEVELOPED A SERIES OF MEASURES TO FIGHT AGAINST THE WIND AND COLD, WHILE AT THE SAME TIME CULTIVATING STRAINS WITH A STRONGER RESISTANCE TO DISEASE.

CHINA NOW HAS 600,000 HECTARES OF RUBBER PLANTATIONS, AND PRODUCES 240,000 TONS OF DRY RUBBER A YEAR, RANKING FOURTH AND FIFTH IN THE WORLD, RESPECTIVELY.

AS THE WORLD DEMAND FOR NATURAL RUBBER HAS CONTINUED TO GROW, SOME TRADITIONAL RUBBER PRODUCERS, SUCH AS THAILAND, INDIA AND BRAZIL, ARE NOW EXPERIMENTING WITH GROWING RUBBER TREES IN HIGHER LATITUDE AREAS.

HE KANG BELIEVES THAT CHINA'S EXPERIENCE IN PLANTING RUBBER TREES IN THE HIGHER LATITUDE AREAS WILL BE A GREAT HELP TO THOSE COUNTRIES.

TOKYO (OCT. 12) KYODO - PASSENGER AIRFARES AND CARGO RATES ON INTERNATIONAL

FLIGHTS FROM JAPAN WILL BE RAISED 7 PERCENT FROM DECEMBER 1 DUE TO CLIMBING FUEL COSTS TRIGGERED BY THE PERSIAN GULF CRISIS, ON OFFICIAL AT JAPAN AIRLINES CO. (JAL) SAID FRIDAY.

THE DECISION WAS MADE IN A MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL AIR TRANSPORT ASSOCIATION (IATA) HELD IN GENEVA ON THURSDAY, HE SAID.

THE IATA IN AUGUST DECIDED TO RAISE INTERNATIONAL AIRFARES BY 5 TO 8 PERCENT EXCEPT FOR FLIGHTS FROM JAPAN.

JAL AND ALL NIPPON AIRWAYS (ANA) AT THAT TIME OPPOSED THE INCREASE, CLAIMING THAT FUTURE MOVES OF OIL PRICES WERE UNCLEAR AND THE DECISION WAS TOO EARLY, ACCORDING TO THE JAL OFFICIAL. THEY WITHDREW THEIR OPPOSITION BECAUSE CRUDE OIL PRICES HAVE KEPT RISING SINCE THEN AND IT DOES NOT APPEAR THAT PRICES WILL COME DOWN IN THE NEAR FUTURE, HE SAID.

THE PRICE OF KEROSENE, FOR INSTANCE, IN SINGAPORE ROSE TO ABOUT 60 U.S. DOLLARS PER BARREL BY THE END OF SEPTEMBER FROM AROUND 22 DOLLARS AT THE END OF JULY, HE SAID.

WITH THE NEW AGREEMENT AT THE IATA, JAL, AND ANA WILL FILE AN APPLICATION FOR THE RISE WITH THE TRANSPORT MINISTRY BY THE END OF OCTOBER, AND JAPAN AIR SYSTEM CO., WHICH IS NOT A MEMBER OF THE IATA, WILL PROBABLY FOLLOW SUIT, THE OFFICIAL SAID.

THE MINISTRY, HOWEVER, HAS APPEARED TO BE RELUCTANT TO APPROVE HIGHER AIRFARES AND THERE IS A POSSIBILITY OF THE APPLICATIONS BEING REJECTED, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL.

IF THAT HAPPENS, THE ISSUE WILL AGAIN BE BROUGHT BACK TO THE IATA, HE ADDED.

TOKYO (OCT. 12) KYODO - JAPAN'S FOUR BREWERIES ARE IN A TOUGH BATTLE FOR MARKET SHARE AFTER A MAJOR REALIGNMENT OF SHARE RANKINGS LAST YEAR.

STRONG SALES OF A NEW PRODUCT HAVE CAUSED MANY PEOPLE TO WONDER IF INDUSTRY LEADER KIRIN BREWERY CO. CAN RECOVER 50 PERCENT MARKET SHARE THIS YEAR, AFTER DROPPING BELOW 50 PERCENT LAST YEAR FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE 1966.

DESPITE KIRIN'S POPULAR NEW BRAND, ''ICHIBANSHIBORI,'' WITH A SMOOTH AND MILD TASTE, THE COMPANY'S SHARE STOOD AT 49.0 PERCENT AT THE END OF SEPTEMBER, INDUSTRY ESTIMATES SHOW.

ASAHI BREWERIES LTD. CAME SECOND WITH 25.2 PERCENT, THEN SAPPORO BREWERIES LTD. WITH 17.9 PERCENT, AND SUNTORY LTD. WITH 7.9 PERCENT.

KIRIN HAS BENEFITED FROM BEER DRINKERS RETURNING TO ITS MAINSTAY LAGER BEER AFTER YEARS OF A DRAFT BEER BOOM. CONSUMER TASTE HAS CHANGED FROM LAST YEAR WHEN SO-CALLED ''DRY'' BEER WAS A BIG HIT.

DRY BEER IS DRAFT BEER WITH HIGHER ALCOHOL AND A MILDER TASTE. IT WAS A PACESETTER IN THE MARKET LAST YEAR AS ITS PIONEER, ASAHI, BOOSTED ITS MARKET SHARE BY MORE THAN 4 PERCENTAGE POINTS TO 24.9 PERCENT, PULLING SAPPORO DOWN FROM SECOND SPOT.

BOOSTED BY A LONG SPELL OF HOT AND DRY WEATHER, THIS SUMMER, BEER SALES HAVE BEEN STRONG. THE EXCEPTION IS SUNTORY, WHICH HAD FLAT SALES IN THE FIRST NINE MONTHS THIS YEAR.

SUNTORY IS COUNTING ON ITS NEW PRODUCT, ''BEER NOUVEAU,'' TO BE LAUNCHED LATER THIS MONTH, WHICH ANALYSTS SAY WILL ADD FUEL TO TOUGH COMPETITION.

THEY SAY SUCCESS HINGES ON HOW EACH COMPANY COPES IN WINTER, WHEN BEER CONSUMPTION IS USUALLY LOWER.

TOKYO (OCT. 12) KYODO - JAPAN'S TOTAL WORK FORCE, INCLUDING FOREIGNERS, NEEDS A MAJOR INCREASE OF 9.2 MILLION WORKERS TO ACHIEVE A GOVERNMENT TARGET OF 1,800 WORKING HOURS PER CAPITA IN 1992, ACCORDING TO AN ESTIMATE RELEASED FRIDAY BY A MAJOR COMMERCIAL BANK.

AS AN ALTERNATIVE, DAI-ICHI KANGYO BANK SAID IN A REPORT THAT THE RATE OF GROWTH IN JAPAN'S AGGREGATE DEMAND, CONSISTING OF THE GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (GNP) AND TOTAL IMPORT VALUES, IS REQUIRED TO SLOW TO AN ANNUAL AVERAGE OF 1.1 PERCENT FROM THE CURRENT 4 PERCENT.

JAPAN'S ANNUAL PER CAPITA WORKING HOURS AVERAGED 2,189 HOURS IN 1988, LONGER BY BETWEEN 200 AND 500 HOURS THAN IN THE UNITED STATES AND EUROPEAN COUNTRIES.

THE FEASIBILITY STUDY ALSO NOTED THAT A FOUR-FOLD INCREASE IN THE RATE OF THE NATION'S TECHNOLOGICAL INNOVATION WILL ACHIEVE THE SAME RESULT IN SHORTENING LABOR HOURS.

"ACHIEVING SHORTER WORKING HOURS IN JAPAN WOULD NOT BE DONE SO EASILY. BUT A GOOD RESULT CAN BE EXPECTED IF THE GOVERNMENT'S SUPPORT COMBINES WITH CORPORATE EFFORTS AND INVESTMENT AIMED AT HIGHER EFFICIENCY AND LABOR SAVING," BANK ECONOMISTS NOTED IN THE REPORT.

TOKYO (OCT. 12) KYODO - INDONESIA WILL RAISE THE PRICE OF ITS BENCHMARK MINAS CRUDE OIL BY 7.26 DOLLARS TO 35.29 DOLLARS PER BARREL FOR OCTOBER SHIPMENTS TO JAPAN, INDUSTRY SOURCES SAID FRIDAY.

THIS WILL BRING THE PRICE OF MINAS TO THE HIGHEST LEVEL SINCE 1982, THEY SAID.

THE PRICE HIKE IS BASED ON A SURGE IN THE AVERAGE SPOT PRICE OF A BASKET OF MINAS AND FOUR OTHER TYPES OF CRUDE OIL, WHICH SERVES AS THE BASIS OF PRICES FOR INDONESIAN CRUDE SOLD TO JAPAN, THEY SAID.

DEMAND FOR MINAS HAS BEEN STRONG RECENTLY BECAUSE OF A TIGHT SUPPLY OF LIGHT CRUDE OIL IN THE WAKE OF THE INTERNATIONAL OIL EMBARGO AGAINST IRAQ AND KUWAIT FOLLOWING IRAQ'S INVASION OF KUWAIT ON AUGUST 2.

CRUDE OIL IMPORTS FROM INDONESIA ACCOUNT FOR SOME 12.3 PERCENT OF JAPAN'S OVERALL OIL IMPORTS, MAKING INDONESIA THE THIRD LARGEST OIL SUPPLIER AFTER THE UNITED ARAB EMIRATES AND SAUDI ARABIA.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 12) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

The LABOR DEPARTMENT reports this morning that the PRODUCER PRICE INDEX rose

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT says retail sales rose 1.1% in September, driven by fuel costs. Sales were down 0.4% in August, according to revised figures issued today.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

PRESIDENT BUSH leaves at noon today for a weekend at Camp David. ... Representatives from the UNITED STATES, CANADA, JAPAN and the EUROPEAN COMMUNITY are in Newfoundland to revive world trade negotiations.

FROM THE BULLS:

"I'm starting to get somewhat encouraged," says JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA of GRUNTAL & CO. "There's not much more downside." He explains that since the stock market projects both good and bad news, it could be close to starting to project an upturn in the economy. "The recession is by-and-large here with us now and we're working our way through it," he says, adding that if the Mideast crisis eases and a budget accord is reached so the Fed can ease credit, "then consumers and businessmen will start to feel a little better about themselves, go back to a more normal pattern of living and this recession ... will be shallow. Therefore, the stock market will anticipate ... the coming out of the recession sometime early next year." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/11)

FROM THE BEARS:

"We do not think ... that the bear market has run its course and would treat any recovery in the next couple of months as a temporary respite in a major downtrend," writes ROBERT FERRELL of MERRILL LYNCH in his current market report. (NYT, 10/12)

"The way we're going, we're going to test October 1987 levels" in the over-the-counter market, says PHILIP BENIZZI, head of OTC trading at DILLON READ & CO. (WSJ, 10/12)

"There's nothing that one can see in terms of the fundamentals which would lead you to believe there is a bottom," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." He says even though there have been "massive" downward revisions in earnings projections, they have not been down enough. "So the earnings that start pouring in next week are going to be very disappointing, even against reduced earnings expectations." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/11)

STOCK MARKET:

"There's no such thing as a straight line in this business - we should get some sort of a bounce," says LEHMAN's MICHAEL BENSON this morning from London where U.S. shares are trading higher. "Down at this level, there's very little supply. A dead cat bounce could turn into a reasonable recovery today on Wall Street." (FNN "World Market Report", 10/12)

"The technical factors are in place for a rally to begin, but this is a market which will be guided by newspapers, not chart books," says EUGENE PERONI, director of research at JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. Until Washington takes charge on the budget, any rallies will be very tentative, says Peroni. Building bearish sentiment is a bullish sign. "The unfortunate thing is that sentiment has not reached an absolute oversold condition." While some good trading rallies could develop, Peroni doubts the downward trend of stocks can be reversed. "The descending trendline resistance is in an accelerating mode ... [and] each day we're loping off 10-15 points of upside potential." (CNBC "World Business", 10/12)

BERNADETTE MURPHY of M. KIMELMAN & CO., says support levels don't mean much in the stock market these days. "There is some support at the 2300 level [on the Dow]. When you ask for support there is some there - 2280 to 2340, somewhere in there - but we seem to be just cutting through support levels. It's very discouraging." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/11)

"This is not fun, but I haven't given up all hope yet," says JOAN LAPPIN, president of GRAMERCY CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. "Everybody now thinks we're going off the cliff. But if there's a resolution of the budget - including a solid effort to close the deficit gap - we could be in for a solid bounce."(NYT, 10/12)

"October is also known as the bear killer," says CURTIS HESSLER of the "Professional Timing Service." He believes the technical keys are in place which can trigger the next tradeable rally, possibly fueled this month by interest rates. His interest rate model is turning positive as money supply increases, but he warns against buying too early. (CNBC "World Business", 10/12)

"I think we are getting a confluence of negative events," says WILLIAM KUFTA at PITCAIRN FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT. "This is a scary time." He cites diminishing hopes for a quick resolution in the Mideast, with rising oil prices, and the growing number of forecasters now starting to see a deeper recession than previously anticipated. His company has raised cash from 30% to 40%. (WSJ, 10/12)

Yesterday's "session smacked of forced liquidation," says MICHAEL METZ of OPPENHEIMER. "Any bargain hunters that had come got traumatized." He says Mideast and monetary fears are keeping money out of the market, but that he also can see the light at the end of the tunnel. "I do think we're getting to the tail end of this bear market," says Metz, who predicts the Dow will fall no further than 2250. ("Investor's Daily", 10/12)

"Obviously, everybody is starting to panic," says STAN WEINSTEIN, editor of "The Professional Tape Reader." He says the market is oversold, short-term, but should continue lower after a bounce of as much as 100 points. "The seeds of this drop were sown during the recent rally which was one of the worst bear market rallies I've ever seen." ("Investor's Daily", 10/12)

"Folks are just not sure this is the time to commit" to the stock market, says DICK HOLDEN of ALEX. BROWN & SONS. ("Investor's Daily", 10/12)

"This is a headline market," says DAN WILLIAMS of DILLON, READ & CO. "One piece of news will move this market 50 points." GENE SEAGLE of GRUNTAL & CO., says, "We're building to a strong intermediate bounce to 2700 [on the Dow]." PETER VANDENBERG of SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS says: "We'll get a bounce if we get a [federal] budget. You're not going to get a bounce just to get a bounce. Investors want to see some of these themes that plague the market go away." LARRY WACHTEL at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE says: "Investors are paralyzed. Even if they want to make a bet on the economy, they have no idea what to expect out of the Middle East." ("USA Today", 10/12)

STOCK TIPS:

JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA of GRUNTAL & CO. says DUPONT is a good example of a stock that has been hit overly hard in the bear market and one that "will be there when the economy turns." He also likes pharmaceuticals because "their earnings are going to go up rapidly in the years to come. They will take advantage of Europe." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/11)

"Head and shoulders above the rest of the [retail] industry is WOOLWORTH," says JANET MANGANO of JESUP, JOSEPHTHAL INC. "The main reason for that is its exposure to very strong trends in consumer spending in West Germany. Of course, we don't know how long the kind of trend that we have now will be sustained, but it does seem to suggest very strong results for Woolworth this Christmas." (CNBC's "Market Wrap-Up", 10/11)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 12) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The dollar was "down hard" yesterday, according to MARC CHANDLER of the consulting firm IDEA. He says that in addition to the normal economic problems, there are rumors of "Japanese life insurance companies raising their dollar-hedge ratios," says Chandler. "That means they're selling more dollars to reduce their currency risk." ("Investor's Daily", 10/12)

FRANCOISE SOARES-KEMP of CREDIT SUISSE in New York says PRESIDENT BUSH's "twisting and turning in the wind [worsens] the malaise over the U.S.'s inability" to come to grips with the economy, creating an even more negative environment and contributing to an assault on the dollar. (WSJ, 10/12)

Expect long-term rates to remain above 9% over the next 4 few weeks, says DAVID JONES, chief economist at AUBREY G. LANSTON. "If and when we get a budget deal, long rates will rally a bit. But I'm not sure how much below 9% we can go, given the oil price shock and the fact that the Fed will only move a little bit ... in response to the budget cut." Jones looks for a second round of easing in mid-November with fed funds moving to 7.5%. "We're going to have to go a lot further in order for the Fed to effectively counter this recession." (CNN "Business Morning", 10/12)

There's a two tiered Treasury market, says TELERATE's CAROLINE BAUM. "Short rates should stay where they are or prices could even improve. The long end is still the big question mark - we're not seeing any real interest to buy bonds." Uncertainties about the economy make investors want short-term securities, says Baum. Fears about the banking system have increased interest in the Treasury market: "You will get your money back." (FNN "World Market Report", 10/12)

"In recent weeks we've seen a shift in the consensus of economists toward we're now in a recession," says ROBERT MORRIS of CHASE PRIVATE BANKING GROUP. "It's introduced a new level of uncertainty for investors." He predicts that the Fed will ease to counteract the recession as soon as interest rates stop moving up. (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/11)

"The auction was not a disaster, but there is a sense that the street picked up the bulk of the issue," says WILLIAM SULLIVAN of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. He was commenting on the government's struggle yesterday to sell $8.5 billion of seven-year notes. (NYT, 10/12)

"People are not interested in buying additional securities, so they swapped securities instead," says one bond trader of yesterday's Treasury auction. "At a time when people are nervous about the market, no one wanted to commit new money to this market." (WSJ, 10/12)

THE ECONOMY:

"Business stinks," says EDWARD WELLER of MONTGOMERY SECURITIES, summing up the problems being encountered by retailers across the nation. He says he knew business would be weak, "but I didn't think it would stink this bad." KIDDER, PEABODY's DANIEL BARRY says the current "slowdown is psychological," but warns of a coming change. "When you enter the fourth quarter and Christmas with layoffs, the discounters will feel it," says Barry. ("Investor's Daily", 10/12)

"Deep down ... I believe we have to raise taxes in this country," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "Foreigners will only believe we are serious about the budget if we raise taxes. Moreover ... we've got to raise taxes on the upper- and middle-income brackets. Otherwise, the economy will not stabilize. ... Every European or Japanese you speak to - serious people, market-oriented people, not socialists and not the equivalent of left- wind Democrats - all say the United States is undertaxed." "It's very hard, really, to forecast where the [oil] price will go, but definitely it's going up," says SHEIKH AHMED ZAKI YAMANI, former SAUDI ARABIAN oil minister. "This is the prevailing psychology in the market, the fear of the future, the uncertainty, so we don't really know. It can go to $45 [a barrel] $50, or maybe above." (CNBC's "Market Wrap-Up", 10/11)

"It's a market [oil] that reacts emotionally," says BOB BAKER at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE. "It's going to stay that way as long as we have 200,000-plus troops out there" in the Middle East. (NYT, 10/12)

"The bond market was in some disarray [yesterday] and people were very anxious whether the government could sell the 30-year [savings and loan bailout] bonds " says MICHAEL SHERMAN at SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS. "More and more people understand that there is a major problem in the mortgage markets." (WSJ, 10/12)

IN WASHINGTON:

ALAN LERNER, economist at BANKERS TRUST, says budget rhetoric in Washington "is probably the most important factor" in the financial markets. "The financial markets really demand something different than the man in the street who doesn't want to give up a lot of things," he says. "There's not a great understanding of how the financial system must be stable for the economy to move smoothly. The policy makers pick up on that an aren't really that affected by the day-to-day what's going on in the financial markets." (WSJ, 10/12)

"The wimp is back," declares DEMOCRATIC POLLSTER MIKE MELLMAN, citing PRESIDENT BUSH's flips on taxes and the budget defeat. (WSJ, 10/12)

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The trustees of Mellon Participating Mortgage Trust, Commercial Properties Series 85/10 (NASDAQ: MPMTS) today announced a third quarter dividend of 17 cents per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The dividend is payable Nov. 9, 1990, to shareholders of record at the close of business Oct. 31, 1990. The trustees previously declared dividends of 17 cents for both the first and second quarters.

As of Sept. 30, 1990, approximately 97 percent of the net proceeds of the trust were invested in seven permanent real estate investments, secured by 47 properties located in 19 states. Five of the seven investments, representing 83.5 percent of the portfolio assets, are current and performing as expected. The Hall Street Industrial Complex and the Peachtree Business Center loans, however, continue as non-performing assets.

On Sept. 26, 1990, the Supreme Court of the State of New York for Kings County granted the trust's motion for the appointment of a receiver for the Hall Street Business Center. The appointment of a receiver was sought by the advisor earlier this year immediately following the failure to conclude a negotiated settlement with the borrower. The trust is actively pursuing all of its legal options, including foreclosure, to protect the interests of shareholders.

As previously reported to shareholders, on April 12, 1990, the trust acquired the Peachtree Business Center, located in Atlanta, through a deed-in-lieu of foreclosure. Following a review of local market conditions, the advisor has estimated the fair market value of Peachtree to be $1.7 million as of April 12 1990. Peachtree had been carried on the trust's balance sheet as a value of $2.6 million, resulting in a write-down in asset value of $900,000. This adjustment will be reflected in the third quarter results of operations. The trust's advisor is actively seeking tenants to lease the remaining vacant space while reviewing proposals for purchase. As reported previously, it is anticipated that a portion of the 1990 dividend payment will be a return of capital related to the write down of this property.

John McMahan, president of the trust and chief executive officer of Mellon/McMahan Real Estate Advisors, Inc., the trust's advisor, noted the discount reflected in the current market price of the trust's shares when compared to book value. McMahan stated that he believes that the discount in real estate-related securities, including REITs, is attributable to the market's reaction to the economy in general and the real estate market in particular.

Mellon Participating Mortgage Trust, Commercial Properties Series 85/10, is a finite-life real estate investment trust, fully invested in participating, shared appreciation, convertible and fixed-rate mortgages and joint venture financing secured by office, retail and research development facilities located throughout the United States.

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - James P. Lennane, chairman of the ASK Shareholders Committee, announced today that he intends to continue his lawsuit against ASK Computer Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: ASKI) and its board of directors. He said he will seek appropriate legal remedies, including damages resulting from "the breach by ASK's board of directors of its fiduciary obligations to shareholders" in approving the sale of 42 percent of its stock to Hewlett-Packard Company (NYSE: HWP) and Electronic Data Systems Corporation to finance the acquisition of Ingres Corporation and in "subjecting ASK shareholders to the harmful consequences" of delisting their stock from the NASDAQ/National Market System. Lennane also stated that the committee will continue to seek support of ASK shareholders at the Oct. 26 annual meeting to elect its three nominees.

Lennane noted that although the Delaware Chancery Court decided not to grant the extraordinary remedy of enjoining the HWP-EDS transaction, the court nevertheless found substantial merit to his claims at this stage of the lawsuit. In commenting on the claim that defendants had failed to exercise due care in electing not to submit the transaction to a shareholder vote, the court stated that "the level of formality and documentation surrounding the consideration and authorization of these proposed transactions appears, to state the matter gently, dismaying." The court further stated that "it appears at this stage that ASK is governed with a level of informality wholly appropriate to a private firm, but less than optimum for a firm with public shareholders."

The court was also "deeply troubled" by certain provisions in the agreement among ASK, HWP and EDS which may evidence an "entrenchment purpose" on the part of ASK's board of directors.

Lennane stated his belief that "the court's decision further supports the notion that ASK is being haphazardly managed by a self- interested few, without due regard to shareholders." With that in mind, Lennane concluded that he fully intends to continue his efforts "to return control over the direction of ASK to its shareholders, to restore and enforce shareholder democracy and to maximize shareholder value."

JACKSONVILLE, FL (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Barnett Banks, Inc. (NYSE: BBI) today reported third quarter earnings of $25.8 million, or $0.41 a share. For the first nine months, Barnett earned $99.8 million, or $1.59 a share.

Florida's leading banking company earned $64.9 million, or $1.02 a share, in the third quarter of 1989. The company made $191.7 million, or $3.04 a share, in the first nine months of that year, which included a $15.6 million non-recurring, after-tax gain on the sale of TeleCheck Southcoast.

Earnings in the latest quarter continued to reflect increased reserves set aside for possible future loan losses.

Barnett provided $100.7 million against possible loan losses in the third quarter increasing the loan loss reserve to $370.1 million, or 1.55 percent of loans. The reserve has increased $130 million, or 54 percent, from $240 million (or 1.11 percent of loans) on Sept. 30, 1989. Net chargeoffs were $63.5 million compared to $29.2 million last year.

Third quarter results reflect the use of a revised methodology for determining the loan loss reserve adopted in the first quarter of 1990. This new methodology is more sensitive to changes in nonperforming and other classified loans, producing a more rapid impact on earnings.

Barnett's non-performing assets increased to $598 million on Sept. 30, up from $467 million on June 30. Non-performing loans stood at 1.65 percent of total outstandings on Sept. 30. Of total non-performing loans, $102 million, or 25 percent, were either less than 90 days past due or currently paying interest.

During the quarter, a decision was made to transfer $88 million in loans in the process of foreclosure to a category of other real estate known as insubstance foreclosure. This resulted in significant chargeoffs as their values were written down to 90 percent of the properties' current appraised values. These chargeoffs represented 28 percent of net chargeoffs for the quarter.

The company continued its policy of not taking one-time gains in order to offset higher expenses related to credit quality.

The chairman noted that Barnett's earnings power continued to expand. Pre-tax income before loan loss provisions and writedowns on foreclosed property rose 5 percent to $142 million in the third quarter, reflecting Barnett's continued growth in the expanding Florida market.

Average loans for the third quarter were up 12 percent from a year ago, while deposits were up 16 percent. Loan growth continued to be paced by increases in single-family residential mortgages and consumer loans, which rose 22 percent and 15 percent, respectively, from a year ago. Barnett's chargeoffs in these areas are below industry averages. Total commercial real estate loans dropped for the third straight quarter. As of Sept. 30, consumer loans and residential mortgages represented 61 percent of Barnett's loan portfolio.

On Oct. 1, Barnett acquired approximately $800 million in deposits of the Florida division of Empire Savings Bank of America from the Resolution Trust Corporation for a premium of $3.1 million. It was Barnett's seventh acquisition of a failed financial institution this year. Those institutions had more than $2.7 billion in deposits when acquired.

Barnett's book value rose in the third quarter to $27.61 per share. The company's stockholders' equity was $1.6 billion on Sept. 30.

With $31.4 billion in assets and 590 offices in Florida and Georgia, Barnett is Florida's leading banking company and the 20th largest in the country. Its common stock (BBI) is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Genetics Institute, Inc. (NASDAQ: GENI)

today reported a net loss of $5,320,000, or 45 cents per share (after preferred dividends of $1,150,000), on revenues of $9,381,000 for the third quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990. This is compared with a net loss of $4,613,000, or 33 cents per share, on revenues of $10,365,000 for the same period last year.

For the first nine months of 1990, the company reported a net loss of $20,216,000, or $1.66 per share (after preferred dividends of $3,450,000), on revenues of $27,130,000. This is compared with a net loss of $12,359,000, or 88 cents per share, on revenues of $35,344,000 for the first nine months of 1989.

Garen Bohlin, executive vice president of Genetics Institute, said decreases in the supply of bulk protein to certain of the company's marketing partners from 1989 levels contributed to the increased loss year-to-year. However, Bohlin noted that these manufacturing revenue shortfalls were partially offset by revenues resulting from the recent market launches of the company's erythropoietin (EPO) products in Europe and Japan. "Increasing royalties on the sale of EPO products by our marketing partners are expected to contribute to improved financial performance in the future," commented Bohlin.

Genetics Institute is a leading biotechnology firm engaged in the discovery and development of human pharmaceuticals through recombinant DNA and other technologies. The company has a diversified portfolio of licensed and proprietary pharmaceutical products. Its first product, EPO, is on the market in Europe and Japan. NEW YORK (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Infotechnology, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: ITCH) and Deloitte & Touche today announced that they have mutually agreed to a termination of Deloitte's engagement as Infotech's independent accountants. Coopers & Lybrand has been retained to replace Deloitte effective immediately and will perform an audit of Infotech's fiscal 1990 financial statements as expeditiously as possible.

Deloitte also informed Infotech, and its 97 percent owned subsidiary, United Press International, Inc., that its opinions as to Infotech's and UPI's fiscal 1989 financial statements should no longer be relied upon or associated with such financial statements. Coopers & Lybrand has also been engaged as UPI's new auditors.

The decision to change auditors at Infotech, and the withdrawal of the Deloitte 1989 opinion, occurred because of issues relating to Financial News Network, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FNNI) which is 47 percent owned by Infotech and is material to Infotech's financial statements. These issues are the subject of a public announcement issued by FNN today.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Financial News Network Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FNNI) has terminated the engagement of its independent auditors, Deloitte & Touche.

FNN has engaged Coopers & Lybrand to perform the audit of its financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990. The change in auditors was made by FNN's board of directors on the recommendation of its Audit Committee because the Audit Committee was unable to satisfy itself that Deloitte would be able to complete the audit work in a timely fashion.

Subsequent to its termination, Deloitte notified FNN that its opinion on FNN's 1989 financial statements should no longer be relied upon or associated with such statements. Deloitte stated that its action with respect to the 1989 opinion was based on information that had come to its attention since the date of the opinion, and which had not been resolved at the time of Deloitte's termination, relating to (1) transactions involving FNN and United Press International, Inc. relating to payments for utilization of FNN's vertical blanking interval by UPI and other inter-corporate transactions between UPI and FNN; (2) the existence and value of assets used by FNN which were formerly used in the TelShop operations discontinued in fiscal 1989, and (3) the representations made to Deloitte in connection with its audit of 1989 financial statements by FNN's former chief financial officer.

As previously reported, with respect to the 1990 financial statements, Deloitte has advised FNN management that, based upon information provided to Deloitte by FNN, Deloitte did not agree with FNN's accounting for two related party transactions, one regarding $28 million involved in the development of the FNN:PRO product and the other, several sales and leasebacks of data receivers.

Issues remaining open at the time of Deloitte's termination, which FNN has agreed will be reviewed with its new auditors promptly, include the following: (a) revenues recognized from and advances to Institutional Research Network as to funding of development of the FNN:PRO product; (b) ownership issues and sale and leaseback transactions involving data receiver units; (c) the vertical blanking interval and other transactions between UPI and FNN; (d) the status of certain leased and owned assets and the reliability of the records related thereto; (e) the issues with respect to the former TelShop assets; and (f) the deferral of certain programming costs. Coopers & Lybrand has agreed to commence its audit immediately, so that FNN can complete and file its annual report with the Securities and Exchange Commission on Form 10-K, as expeditiously as possible. FNN has authorized Deloitte to furnish all information about its audit work to Coopers & Lybrand.

FNN also announced that it has terminated the employment of C. Steven Bolen, its former chief financial officer, who has been on administrative leave since FNN's management and Audit Committee were informed of questions about payments to him. A committee of FNN's board of directors has determined that Bolen received compensation payments that were not properly authorized and were not properly identified on FNN's books, and has also determined that certain bank accounts administered under Bolen's direction were not properly recorded. FNN believes that all funds in the bank accounts have now been properly accounted for and recorded. FNN has placed two other members of its accounting staff on leave and is reviewing their status.

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CA (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Kaiser Steel Resources Inc. (NASDAQ: KSRI, effective Oct. 16, 1990) announced today that the Internal Revenue Service has issued a credit to the company as a result of re-adjustments of prior years' tax liabilities of the company's predecessor, Kaiser Steel Corp.

Richard E. Stoddard, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "The IRS has advised us of an approximate $13 million credit resulting from the incorrect calculation of interest on certain adjustments made to prior years' tax returns." The IRS also advised Kaiser that it has offset a portion of the credit against income tax and federal unemployment tax liabilities due from the company as a result of the bankruptcy proceedings. "These previously accrued liabilities of approximately $6 million have been totally eliminated as a result of the offset," Stoddard noted.

Stoddard also stated that the application of the remaining approximately $7 million credit is unresolved at this time pending resolution of a $72 million claim by the IRS against the bankruptcy estate. "The company has successfully challenged before the Bankruptcy Court the entire $72 million claim of the IRS. Our position and the determination of the Bankruptcy Court have been upheld by the United States District Court," he added. The IRS has indicated its intent to appeal the decision to the United States Court of Appeals. Stoddard indicated that the company intends to pursue settlement discussions with the IRS regarding the remaining credit and the IRS claim, and that it currently is not possible to determine what amounts, if any, would be refunded. Under Kaiser's Plan of Reorganization, any refund would first be used to reimburse the company for remaining expenses of its bankruptcy. The remaining balance of any refund would become payable directly to former creditors of the KSC bankruptcy estate.

Kaiser Steel Resources, the restructured successor of Kaiser Steel Corp.'s Chapter 11 bankruptcy, is engaged in the development of a rail-haul solid waste landfill, land remediation and development, and water resources.

IONIA, MICH. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Independent Bank Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: IBCP), the Ionia-based bank holding company, reported today that its net income for the third quarter of 1990 was $1,044,000 or $.42 per common share, fully diluted. In 1989, third-quarter earnings were $676,000 or $.27 per share, fully diluted.

Loren C. Adgate, the corporation's president and chief executive officer, issued the report and pointed out, "Third-quarter results this year include a gain of $401,000 ($265,000, net of tax) on the sale of our credit card portfolios. But even if this non-recurring gain is not considered, income for the three-month period increased, year to year, reflecting a continued strengthening of our operations."

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, income before an extraordinary item was $2,138,000 ($.85 per share, fully diluted). Net income, which reflects a $92,000 (net of tax) extraordinary item associated with a partial redemption of convertible debentures, was $2,046,000 ($.82 per share, fully diluted). One year ago, net income for the first nine months was $1,995,000 ($.80 per share, fully diluted).

Adgate also said that in addition to the extraordinary item and the sale of credit cards, there are other factors to consider when making comparisons of 1990 year-to-date results with those of 1989:

-- 1990 income reflects an $83,000 loss on securities (largely due to the write down of certain securities held for sale) while a gain of $21,000 on sale of securities was recorded in 1989.

-- The corporation has incurred over $160,000 in expenses so far this year reviewing and consolidating additional operations. This effort could result in annual reductions in non-interest expenses of as much as $400,000 beginning in 1991.

The gain on the sale of credit card operations, which added $.10 to fully diluted earnings per share in the nine-month period, has essentially offset these charges against earnings.

On Sept. 30, 1990, the corporation's total assets were $331,767,000. Total deposits were $297,047,000, loans outstanding were $223,039,000 and shareholders' equity was $24,159,000. One year earlier, total assets were $323,254,000 and total deposits were $288,983,000. Loans outstanding were $218,148,000 and shareholders' equity was $22,357,000.

Independent Bank Corporation has three affiliate banks: Independent Bank, Ionia; Independent Bank West Michigan, Rockford; and Independent Bank South Michigan, Leslie. The three banks operate 26 offices serving 23 communities in western and central Michigan. The corporation's common stock is traded in the over-the-counter market and quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol IBCP.

DIBOLL, TEXAS (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Temple-Inland Inc. (NYSE: TIN) earnings per share of $1.02 in the quarter were up slightly from the $1.01 per share earned in the third quarter 1989. Net income was $56.5 million on revenues of $604.5 million. Combined operating earnings were down by $14.9 million to $74.4 million. Net income improved modestly due to a significantly lower tax rate resulting from the ownership and consolidation of Guaranty Federal Savings Bank.

Container and containerboard group had operating earnings of $35.3 million, down 33 percent from the third quarter of last year.

Despite record box shipments and strong mill production, margins have continued to shrink because of increased costs and price erosion. Margin erosion could accelerate as the impact of increasing oil costs is felt.

The company recently announced a box price increase, the first in two and one-half years, in order to restore prices and recover some of the substantial cost increases it has incurred for energy, labor, wood, chemicals and transportation. With record containerboard export demand, strong domestic demand, balanced inventories and high mill operating rates, conditions appear to be right for this much- needed price relief.

Earnings from the bleached paperboard group were $24.3 million, down from the $31.5 million in the third quarter of last year. Prices for the bleached paperboard products remain stable. The decline in profitability was the result of margin erosion from escalating costs and decreased tonnage production due to maintenance-related problems.

The company's building products group had a poor quarter with earnings of $1.8 million, down from the $6.4 million in the third quarter last year. Construction activities have not recovered as anticipated and, in fact, have remained at very depressed levels. Prices for most of the products declined sharply during the third quarter. Since the fourth quarter is traditionally a poor period for construction, building material markets can be expected to remain depressed throughout the remainder of the year.

The financial services group had another excellent quarter with profits of $12.7 million, in line with earnings levels of the first two quarters.

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CA (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Kaiser Steel Resources Inc. (NASDAQ: KSRI, effective Oct. 16, 1990) announced today the receipt of $3 million from a September distribution of approximately $19 million in litigation settlement proceeds. The payment reimburses the company for various litigation, tax and claims-related expenses incurred through the company's reorganization in November 1988.

Kaiser's subsidiary, KSC Recovery Inc., which made the distribution, is responsible for pursuing the adversary litigation on behalf of the bankruptcy estate of the former steelmaker, Kaiser Steel Corp. According to Richard E. Stoddard, Kaiser's chairman and chief executive officer, the subsidiary retained $2 million to pursue future adversary litigation. "The adversary litigation efforts of KSC Recovery are self-funding. No operating capital is required by Kaiser," he said.

Kaiser and Price Waterhouse are reviewing the financial reporting treatment of this third quarter transaction. Also, in the third quarter, the company received and will record $936,000 of operating revenue from the transfer of water under the terms of the 100-year lease with the Cucamonga County Water District. Due to certain disputes raised by a minority shareholder, Kaiser has elected to record lease payments on a cash basis. No revenue was recorded under this lease during the first or second quarter 1990.

Kaiser Steel Resources is an entirely new and reorganized company focused on developing its unique environmental resources in waste management, land remediation and development, and water resources.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Goldome (NYSE: GDM) today reported net income of $365,000 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Net income for the quarter, less the declared preferred stock dividend, resulted in a loss of $.01 per share for the third quarter. This compares to a reported loss of $7.3 million, or $.29 per share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989. That reported loss was reduced by a one-time gain of $11.5 million resulting from asset sales.

Results for the third quarter of 1990 constitute core earnings from operations unaided by gains from significant transactions, such as the sale of assets.

Goldome's net income for the first nine months of 1990 totaled $36.5 million, or $1.23 per share, versus a net loss of $271.5 million, or $9.76 per share, in the first nine months of 1989.

Goldome's chief executive officer Thomas A. Cooper said, "We share substantial pride with our associates and our communities in reaching our stated goal of operational profitability. However, while the basic earnings power of the bank has steadily improved during the past 18 months, we continue to have serious concerns about the ongoing viability of the institution because of continuing capital shortfall."

Cooper added, "When Goldome's comprehensive restructuring began last year we said we would return to basic consumer banking, cut expenses and clean up the balance sheet. We have kept those commitments and Goldome's fundamental business has steadily gained strength and momentum."

Net interest margin, which has risen each quarter during the past 15 months, advanced to 1.52 percent in the third quarter of 1990, compared with 1.00 percent in the third quarter of 1989. Goldome's focus on consumer banking and its reduced reliance on high-cost funding sources have enabled the bank to attain this result.

Total expenses of the bank continue to decline, with reductions recorded in most expense categories. In the third quarter of 1990, expenses totaled $60.2 million, compared with $69.5 million in the third quarter of 1989. Salaries and employee benefits, which represent the largest component of total expenses for the quarter were $20.4 million, down from $28.1 million in the third quarter of 1989.

Goldome continues to amortize $8.9 million of goodwill quarterly, a burden resulting from the mid 1980s acquisition program.

Providing evidence of the bank's strategic focus on basic consumer banking business, consumer loans continued to rise. By contrast, the bank's commercial loan portfolio is declining.

Goldome continued to narrow the bank's interest rate sensitivity or "gap," reducing the difference between assets and liabilities which reprice within one year to less than 10 percent. This compares with less than 20 percent at the end of 1989.

Cooper noted that the quality of the bank's loan portfolio is improving amd that the allowance for possible loan losses continued to be above 1 percent.

Cooper said, "Goldome's performance in the third quarter indicates the fundamental benefits of the bank's continued restructuring and its basic business strategy, which together form a solid foundation for lower expenses, higher revenue and operating profitibility. However, the key issue facing the bank continues to be its inadequate capital position, which must be resolved for the company to be viable going forward." Cooper noted that the task of raising capital continues to be a substantial challenge in the present environment.

ATLANTA (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Colorocs Corporation announced today that it is starting shipments of its plain paper full-color printer. The printer features an Adobe-compatible Color PostScript(R) controller and has a retail price of less than $30,000.

"This product brings exciting new capabilities to the Color PostScript marketplace," said Charles Muench, president of Colorocs. "No other color printer currently available can approach this product's price performance level."

Dale Ford, vice president and general manager of Lex Publishing in Atlanta and an early user of the Colorocs printer, said, "The Colorocs printer has proven to be a cost-effective addition to our business. We are impressed with the speed of the printer as well as the processing capability of the Color PostScript controller. The use of plain paper is also a real plus."

Colorocs will market and service this product directly in the following North American cities: Atlanta, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Denver, Houston, Kansas City, Kan., Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh, Naples and Orlando, Fla., St. Louis, Toronto and Vancouver, B.C. The printer will be sold in Australia through a wholly owned subsidiary, Colorocs Australia, and in the Pacific Rim by a joint venture, Colorocs Asia, located in Taipei, Taiwan.

The printer will also be marketed by original equipment manufacturers (OEM's). CSS Laboratories of Irvine, Calif., will market the printer under the "Colormagic" name. CDT Graphics of Greenville, S.C., will sell the printer as the "E.L.V.I.S.," and HCS Technology N.V. will market the "Spectrum" in Europe. The printer's operating speed in the four color (CMYK) mode is 5 pages per minute (ppm) and up to 40 ppm in black and white. Colorocs' 300 DPI electrophotographic printer uses a two belt transfer system that builds multiple color planes onto an intermediate surface and then transfers the full-color image to paper in a single step. This "single- pass-to-paper technology" allows the use of plain paper in a wide range of sizes and weights as well as the use of transparencies and pressure sensitive labels.

Colorocs designs, develops and sells full-color copiers and electronic printers.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - IBM is helping to bring college classrooms into the electronic information age with its announcement today of the Academic LANkit which allows faculty who are not computer experts to manage, customize and administer computer- based lessons for students to complete on computers that are connected in the classroom.

The Academic LANkit is a local area network (LAN) offering with software already loaded on computers so it can be installed easily by higher education faculty and administrators, rather than computer network experts. A LAN is a group of computers that are linked together electronically so that users can easily share data and programs.

LANkit is also easy to operate because it's based on a graphical user interface. Faculty and administrators can, for example, change computer-based curriculum and distribute to students, or update student records, or add and delete other software applications, all by using a mouse to click on icons, rather than by keying in complicated commands.

"Our higher education customers want the conveniences and advantages that LANs offer to help them manage both courseware and administrative data, but most don't have the time to become computer network experts," says L. G. "Buzz" Waterhouse, vice president, IBM Academic Information Systems.

"LANkit, for the first time, takes the mystique out of installing and operating a LAN. It incorporates the latest LAN technology with software specifically designed with our academic customers' needs in mind."

The Academic LANkit comprises an IBM Personal System/2 Model 80 that acts as the LAN server, the central hub of the network; 15 PS/2 Model 55SX student workstations, plus software. It is available in two different network systems -- Token Ring or Ethernet, so it works with networks used on most campuses.

LANkit is compatible with IBM's Advanced Academic System, an integrated package of hardware and software introduced last June that allows faculty to easily create their own computer-based curriculum and classroom exercises. With LANkit, those custom applications can now be easily personalized and distributed among students. The Academic LANkit is also compatible with IBM's Selected Academic Solutions for students -- seven packaged and pre-loaded hardware and software offerings specially designed with student computing needs in mind.

ATCHISON, KS (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Ladd Seaberg, president and CEO of Midwest Grain Products, Inc., (NASDAQ-NMS: MWGP) announced during today's annual stockholders' meeting that fiscal 1991 first quarter earnings are expected to be up considerably over each of the last three quarters of fiscal 1990.

"Our unaudited August and September results indicate that our rate of profitability for these two months has approached the same rate as last year's first quarter," he said.

Net income for that quarter, the company's best in fiscal 1990, was $3,058,000 or 47 cents per share, on sales of $48,769,000. Earnings declined sharply in the second and third quarters, then took a slight upturn in the final period, raising expectations of a likely but gradual turnaround.

Though unaudited quarterly results are not final, Seaberg said the available data indicates that 1991's first quarter will be much improved over the preceding three quarters. Among the indicators were substantial increases in sales of the company's fuel alcohol and high quality industrial alcohol; significantly lower raw material costs for wheat, which is used throughout Midwest Grain's fully integrated production process; increased flour milling; recovered vital wheat gluten sales; and steadily climbing sales of premium wheat starch.

July's overall performance was relatively flat in comparison to the last two months of the quarter, Seaberg said. August was the first month that lower wheat prices from this summer's bumper harvest began having any noticeable effects on the company's production costs. Other sizable improvements began taking shape in August, when gasoline prices escalated as the result of the Persian Gulf crisis, creating greater demand for fuel alcohol. Also, rising oil prices reduced the price advantage that petroleum-based alcohol had been enjoying over grain-based industrial alcohol. The turnaround in the company's alcohol business had the greatest single amount of influence on first quarter improvements, Seaberg said.

At the conclusion of today's stockholders' meeting, Cloud L. "Bud" Cray, chairman of the board of directors, announced election results for three board positions. Jim Hosier, president of McCormick Distilling Company, Midwest Grain's subsidiary operation in Weston, Mo., was re-elected by holders of common stock to a three-year term expiring in October 1993. Seaberg and Randy Schrick, vice president and general manager of the company's Illinois plant, were each re-elected to three-year terms by holders of preferred stock.

Cray also reported today that a dividend of 17-1/2 cents per share was declared for the first quarter and is payable Nov. 9, 1990, to stockholders of record Oct. 23, 1990.

NORMAL, ILL. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Diamond-Star Motors, the state-of-the-art automotive manufacturing facility in Normal, Ill., is celebrating its fifth anniversary. In October 1985, Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca and Mitsubishi Motors Chairman Toyoo Tate signed the official documents creating this highly successful joint venture and announced selection of its central Illinois location. Five years later, Diamond-Star Motors (DSM) has an impressive list of achievements, awards and community contributions.

Ground was broken for the two-million-square-foot DSM facility in April 1986. The plant was completed April 1988, two months ahead of projections. Its engineering, design and advanced technology earned it a place on the National Society of Professional Engineers' list of the Top 10 Outstanding Engineering Achievements for 1988.

The first production vehicles rolled off the line Sept. 1, 1988 -- and again, two months ahead of schedule -- and the automotive experts gave them two thumbs up. Diamond-Star's Mitsubishi Eclipse and Plymouth Laser were cited as the best car design in the auto industry for 1989 by the Industrial Design Society of America.

Car and Driver magazine included the Eclipse Turbo and Laser Turbo among its 10 Best Cars in 1989. In 1990, the cars were on the top 10 list again, joined by a third DSM car, the Eagle Talon, which went into production in May 1989.

This summer, production was expanded again to include the four-door compact sedans, Eagle Summit and Mitsubishi Mirage, which were introduced in the 1991 model year.

Diamond-Star Chairman Lino J. Piedra credits the Bloomington/Normal community with much of the company's success.

In addition to producing vehicles, DSM has been producing new business for many support services and suppliers in the area. "Our annual payroll exceeds $80 million, which ultimately filters throughout the community. In addition, we annually spend close to $50 million with McLean County suppliers," notes Piedra. "And not just for production components -- over $8 million goes to companies which provide such things as food service, security, office equipment, printing services, landscaping and so on."

Diamond-Star Motors, manufacturer of the Plymouth Laser, Mitsubishi Eclipse and Mirage, and Eagle Talon and Summit, is a 50/50 joint venture company formed by Chrysler Corp. and Mitsubishi Motors Corp.

BURLINGAME CA (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The Microprocessor Products Group of Motorola Inc. (NYSE: MOT) today introduced a low-cost version of the flagship 68030 microprocessor designed for embedded- control applications. Detailed at the Microprocessor Forum here, the 68EC030 differs from the 68030 in three areas -- packaging, die size and available memory-management functions -- while remaining totally hardware- and software-compatible with all 68000 family members.

As the newest member of the 68000 family, the 68EC030 continues the tradition of offering customers the industry's best price/performance ratio. The EC030's use of low cost dynamic memories allows customers to have performance levels comparable to embedded RISC processors with substantially lower overall system cost while retaining complete 68000 software compatibility. The 32-bit microprocessor's performance exactly matches that of the 68030; specifically, it has a throughput of up to 9.2 VAX-equivalent MIPS when clocked at 40 MHz.

The EC030 also matches the 68030 in the following key features: -- Object-code compatibility with the 68000, 68020 and 68030 microprocessors;

-- Burst-mode bus interface for efficient DRAM access; -- Separate, 256-byte, on-chip data and instruction caches; -- Dynamic bus sizing for direct interface to 8- and 16-bit devices; -- Sixteen 32-bit general-purpose data and address registers; -- Two 32-bit supervisor stack pointers and eight special-purpose control registers; and

-- A 4-gigabyte addressing range. Cutting Costs, Not Value When designing the EC030, the objective of Motorola's engineers was to reduce the cost of a 68030 by one-half. It was achieved, through a combination of manufacturing advances and product engineering.

Motorola is one of the world's leading providers of electronic equipment, systems, components and services for worldwide markets. Products include two-way radios, pagers, cellular telephone systems, semiconductors, defense and aerospace electronics, automotive and industrial electronic equipment, computers, and data-communications and information-processing and handling equipment.

FLINT, MI. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Citizens Banking Corporation (NASDAQ: CBCF) reported 1990 third-quarter earnings.

Net income increased 16.7 percent to $5,027,000 for the third quarter of 1990 compared with $4,306,000 for the same period last year. On a per-share basis, net income increased 17.2 percent to $.75 per share compared with $.64 per share a year ago. For the first nine months of 1990, net income increased 6.4 percent to $14,771,000 or $2.21 per share, compared with $13,882,000 or $2.07 per share for the same period of 1989.

Charles R. Weeks, president and chief executive officer, stated that the increase in net income in both periods was due primarily to higher net interest income and a reduced provision for loan losses. These improvements were offset partially by lower non-interest income and increases in operating expenses.

Net interest income increased $512,000, or 0.7 percent, when the first nine months of 1990 is compared with the same period of 1989. This increase resulted from a higher volume of earning assets offset in part by a decline in net interest margin. A lower overall interest rate environment caused yields on earning assets to decrease which resulted in a decline in net interest margin.

The provision for loan losses was $4,142,000 for the first nine months of 1990 a decrease of $1,531,000 compared with the same period of 1989. Net loans charged off to date during 1990 totaled $3,766,000, a decrease of $827,000 when compared with last year. The ratio of the allowance for loan losses to total loans on Sept. 30, 1990, was 1.29 percent, approximately equal to the 1.31 percent ratio of a year ago.

At Sept. 30, 1990, total assets were $2,436,471,000, up 3.5 percent over third quarter 1989. Total loans and leases increased $41,972,000 or 2.8 percent to $1,527,336,000 compared with $1,485,364,000 a year ago. Total deposits were $1,974,202,000 at Sept. 30, 1990, up $55,152,000 or 2.9 percent from a year ago. At Sept. 30, 1990, shareholders' equity was $203,799,000 or $30.76 per share compared with $193,331,000 or $28.87 per share a year ago.

SAN MATEO, CA (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Electronic Arts (NASDAQ: ERTS) announced today that it expects September quarterly results to continue its recent trend of strong quarter-to-quarter growth in revenues and profits.

Trip Hawkins, president and CEO, said, "Our strategy to lead the 16-bit entertainment software market is really paying off. We expect this to be the first big 16-bit Christmas."

Factors in the September Quarter Electronic Arts' growth in its September quarter was fuelled primarily by increases in sales of 16-bit Electronic Arts label products.

During this three-month period, EA's core computer software business continued to show year-over-year growth. The company placed two 16-bit EA products in the Software Top 20, Centurion: Defender of Rome(TM), and Populous(TM). EA introduced several new products to strong initial orders, including Stormovik(TM), the first Soviet flight simulation, and a "Save on SONY(R)" promotional pack. IBM(R) also bundled an EA product for the first time; purchasers of selected PS/2 computers will receive PGA Tour(R) Golf free through January 1991.

As previously announced, EA's first 3 Sega(R) Genesis(R) titles accounted for almost $5 million in revenues from June through September, including a $1 million week in September. Electronic Arts also shipped its first Nintendo(R) title, Skate or Die 2(TM), in September, on schedule.

December Quarter Outlook EA expects continued growth in demand for entertainment software through Christmas, based on the 30-percent growth rate in demand during the first half of 1990 reported by the SPA, and the introduction of several important low-cost computers from IBM, Apple and Tandy.

The company will back its September releases with an exciting slate of new software releases for Christmas, including Powermonger(TM), the follow-on to Populous, a best-selling product worldwide. Ocean, its newest Affiliated Label and a leading publisher in Europe, has announced plans to introduce six new titles through EA into the U.S. market this quarter as well.

Electronic Arts is experiencing continued demand for its 16-bit videogame titles. In Europe, where the Sega "Megadrive(R)" was introduced last month, EA's opening orders have been significantly higher than planned. In the United States, EA's next two Genesis titles, John Madden Football(TM), and Lakers vs Celtics & the NBA(R) Playoffs(TM), have been well received by reviewers and retailers alike.

An additional unplanned bonus is that EA's second Nintendo title is expected to ship three months earlier than planned. The Immortal(TM), a highly acclaimed dungeon combat adventure, will be released in early December and is expected to be on store shelves for Christmas.

Electronic Arts is a diversified entertainment software company, that develops publishes and distributes worldwide.

(AMEX: VR) today announced that net income for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1990 amounted to $3,209,000 as compared with the prior year's $2,982,300, a 7.6 percent increase. Earnings per share for the 12-month period were 80 cents as compared with 78 cents for the preceeding year. Weighted average shares outstanding at Aug. 31, 1990 were 4,036,286 as compared with 3,822,786 at Aug. 31, 1989. The increased shares resulted from the 350,000 common share offering in February 1990.

Charles H. Goss, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Valley Resources, said, "Each of the corporation's subsidiaries saw improved earnings in fiscal 1990. The utility operations experienced growth in firm Mcf sales and customers. Propane operations improved its net income through the addition of customers. Merchandising operations offset decreased sales through cost controls and improved inventory management. The rental and service contract programs continued to attract new customers."

Revenues were $61,407,600 for the 12-month period ended Aug. 31, 1990 as compared with the previous year's $59,686,000. The increase in revenues is attributable to the utility operations.

Revenues for the fourth quarter were $9,850,800 as compared with $9,997,200 for the same period of the preceeding year. The net loss in the fourth quarter amounted to $994,400 as compared with the prior year's $920,600. Loss per share for the fourth quarters amounted to 24 cents. Traditionally, the fourth quarter is a loss period because of a lack of heating sales by Valley Gas Company.

Valley Resources, Inc. is a public utility holding company with five wholly owned subsidiaries: Valley Gas Company, a regulated natural gas distribution company; Valley Appliance and Merchandising, a merchandising, appliance, rental, sales and service company; Valley Propane, Inc., a retail propane gas sales and service company; Rhode Island Development and Exploration Company, an inactive corporation; and Morris Merchants, Inc., d/b/a/ the Walter F. VOORHEES, N.J. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Plasma-Therm Inc. (NASDAQ: PTIS) today reported a net loss for the three months ended Aug. 31, 1990, of $40,470 (Nil per share) on sales of $8,479,905 as compared to net income of $425,196 ($.05 per share) on sales of $7,122,924 for the third quarter 1989.

Income per share was computed based on 8,278,119 and 8,085,435 outstanding shares for 1990 and 1989, respectively.

For the nine months ended Aug. 31, 1990, the company reported that sales increased by 32 percent to $24,946,377 as compared to $18,846,256 for the same period in the previous fiscal year. The company reported net income of $760,293 or $.09 per share, compared to net income of $924,402 or $.12 per share for the corresponding period in the previous fiscal year. Income per share was computed based on 8,206,440 outstanding shares for 1990 and 7,935,759 shares for 1989.

Management stated that 1990 third quarter results were negatively affected by $225,000 ($317,000 for nine months) of start-up expenses at its Florida subsidiary and a $200,000 charge off for obsolete and excess inventories.

Management further stated that new orders, particularly for inline systems, remain slow. In order to reduce costs, the company has laid off some personnel. To further reduce overheads and take advantage of lower Florida operating costs, the company will transfer virtually all of its inline operations to Florida. This operation will combine with the batch system group previously transferred there. MIAMI (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - As previously estimated and announced on Sept. 21, Southeast Banking Corporation (NYSE: STB) today reported a third quarter net loss of $86.9 million. On a per fully diluted common share basis, the loss was $2.62.

On Sept. 21, Southeast also reported that it is in discussions to sell its credit card portfolio. It is expected that the gain from this sale will more than offset the third quarter loss. Southeast expects to complete the transaction by year-end.

The third quarter loss was primarily the result of a $115 million provision for possible credit losses, also previously estimated and reported on Sept. 21 and carrying costs for non-performing assets.

Southeast's non-performing assets declined during the quarter to $613 million as of Sept. 30, down from $619 million reported at June 30, 1990.

In line with the company's prior announcement, the reserve for possible credit losses at Sept. 30, 1990 was $309 million. The reserve is 63 percent of non-performing loans. The reserve for possible credit losses as of Sept. 30 as a percent of period-end loans was 3.2 percent.

"We find a strong indication under current economic conditions that the portfolio is stabilizing," said Charles J. Zwick, chairman and chief executive officer. "As we look to 1991, we believe our non-performing assets will trend down."

During the third quarter, Southeast completed the sale of the residential servicing rights and certain related assets of Southeast Mortgage Company to Sears Mortgage Corporation. The gain on the sale was $31.6 million, of which $11.4 million was recorded in the third quarter with the remainder to be deferred.

Deposits at Sept. 30, 1990 were $11.7 billion compared with $11.8 billion for the same 1989 quarter. Total assets at Sept. 30, 1990 were $14.6 billion compared with $16.1 billion for the same 1989 quarter.

At Sept. 30, Southeast had total shareholders' equity of $665 million, and a book value of $18.17 per common share. Southeast's primary capital ratio was 7.36 percent at Sept. 30, compared with 7.17 percent for June 30.

HOUSTON (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Iroquois Brands, Ltd. (AMEX: IBL) ("Iroquois") reported a net loss of $2.6 million or $1.16 per share for its first quarter ended March 31, 1990 on net sales of $3.7 million. These results compare with a net loss of $238,000 or 16 cents per share for the first quarter of 1989.

According to David C. Whipple, executive vice president, "the profits generated by Iroquois' operating businesses during the first quarter of 1990 were not sufficient to offset corporate financial responsibilities." During the quarter, Iroquois incurred interest and debt amortization expense related to its outstanding subordinated debentures of approximately $1.0 million. In addition to ongoing corporate expenses, the company also incurred significant legal, auditing and investment banking charges as part of its acquisition of Benzole (UK) Limited which was completed on May 11, 1990.

On Sept. 17, 1990, Iroquois announced that it was unable to meet its sinking fund requirement pursuant to the terms of its subordinated debentures. Iroquois also failed to meet its semiannual interest payment on the debentures due on Sept. 15, 1990. Iroquois' external auditors noted in their report on Iroquois' 1989 financial statements that the requirements to make these payments, combined with certain other obligations of the company, raised doubt about Iroquois' ability to continue as a going concern without restructuring of the company debt. Iroquois' management remains committed to explore all avenues to resolve matters associated with the subordinated debentures in the best interest of all concerned parties.

BLUFFTON, IN (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Earnings of Franklin Electric Co., Inc. (NASDAQ: FELE) for the third quarter of 1990 were $3.4 million or $.41 per share, compared to third quarter 1989 earnings of $2.7 million or $.88 per share, William H. Lawson, chairman and chief executive officer, reported today.

For the first nine months of 1990, earnings were $9.6 million or $1.12 per share compared to $8.9 million or $2.99 per share for the first nine months of 1989.

Third quarter and first nine months 1989 earnings per share would have been $.23 and $.86, respectively, had the plan of recapitalization, which was completed on Oct. 3, 1989, been in place at the beginning of 1989.

Sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $46.0 million compared to $41.5 million for the same period a year ago. For the first nine months of 1990, sales were $136.8 million compared to $133.7 million for the first nine months of 1989.

Lawson stated, "Given the ongoing contraction in the American economy, we are pleased that our third quarter results are not only a significant improvement over last year, but are also on target with our 1990 business plan. We continue to vigorously pursue our four-part corporate strategy of aggressive global expansion, especially in Europe, a focus on profitable niche markets in North America, relentless productivity improvement, and tight expense control. In today's turbulent world there can be no guarantees for the future, but our strategy is working and we are approaching 1991 thoughtfully and with caution."

OMAHA, NEB. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - America First Federally Guaranteed

Mortgage Fund 2 (NASDAQ: AFMBZ) announced today that it has entered into an agreement to sell a 100 percent participation interest in its mortgage on Posada Vallarta, located in Phoenix. The mortgage, which is in default, was purchased by the Fund in 1986 at 93 percent of its remaining principal balance. This mortgage is insured by the FHA and management has the option to either assign the mortgage to HUD for 99 percent of the remaining principal balance of $13,379,772 or to sell the participation interest in the defaulted mortgage.

Because of the current interest rate environment, management has taken advantage of the opportunity to sell the participation interest in the mortgage for approximately 101.5 percent of the remaining principal balance. By selling the participation interest, rather than assigning the mortgage to HUD, the Fund will increase its gain by approximately $330,000 for a total gain of approximately $1,100,000.

A special distribution of $1.3124 per unit, which represents the amount which would normally have been distributed from HUD insurance proceeds, will be paid on Oct. 31, 1990, to holders of record as of Oct. 15, 1990. Of the $1.3124, $.0559 represents gain on the sale, and $1.2565 represents a return of capital. Distribution of the remaining proceeds in contingent upon the buyer's receipt of HUD debentures and conclusion of the transaction. Accordingly, the remaining proceeds will be held in escrow and distributed to investors who are holders of record when the debentures are issued.

The Fund continues to hold 21 FHA-insured mortgages with a carrying value of 82 percent of their remaining face value.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - "While we feel the court award is substantially more than the amount to which Polaroid is entitled, we view the court's decision as a confirmation of our good faith in entering the instant photography business," Eastman Kodak Company (NYSE: EK) chairman, president and chief executive officer Kay R. Whitmore said today.

Whitmore's remarks were made in response to the opinion released today by U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone, assessing damages in the 14-year old Polaroid-Kodak patent infringement suit. In his opinion, Judge Mazzone ruled that Kodak's infringement was not willful and awarded Polaroid a total of $909.5 million.

"Based on our understanding of the facts and applicable law, we can say that the award is substantially more than the amount to which we believe Polaroid is entitled," Whitmore said. "However, we are pleased that Judge Mazzone ruled that the patent infringement was not willful. It has always been our firm policy to respect the valid patent rights of others and the avoidance of any patent infringement was uppermost in our minds in the design of our instant cameras and film."

"This award will have no material financial impact on the company and will be paid from earnings," Whitmore added. "More importantly, this decision establishes that our infringement was not intentional and not due to any willful act on the part of Kodak."

In 1985, U.S. District Court Judge Rya Zobel ruled that Kodak had infringed seven Polaroid patents. Judge Zobel also issued an injunction barring Kodak from the manufacture and marketing of its instant cameras and film, which became effective Jan. 9, 1986.

"While Judge Mazzone's damage award is higher than we believe appropriate, it still represents less than five percent of the amount Polaroid requested," Whitmore noted.

NEWARK, OHIO (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Park National Corporation (NASDAQ/NMS: PARK) today announced results for the third quarter and nine months of 1990. The results include those of Mutual Federal Savings Bank, Zanesville, Ohio, acquired by Park on Aug. 31, 1990. All current and historic figures have been adjusted to reflect pooling of interests accounting treatment used to effect the combination. Per share figures have been adjusted for the 180,000 shares of Park common stock issued pursuant to the acquisition of Mutual.

Park's net income is $3,657,000 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990 and $3,656,000 for the third quarter of 1989. Net income was $2.06 per share for the three months in both years. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Park's earnings increased 8 percent to $10,974,000 or $6.19 per share, compared to $10,151,000 or $5.73 per share for the same period of 1989.

Park's total assets and Stockholders' Equity at Sept. 30, 1990 were $1,107.6 million and $72.8 million respectively.

William T. McConnell, president and chief executive officer of Park said the increased earnings in 1990 over 1989 are a result of increases in earnings at all bank subsidiaries and the addition of Mutual Federal's earnings in both years. He noted that the consummation of the Mutual Federal acquisition expands Park's primary service areas to counties contiguous to Park's current service area. He said Mutual Federal will continue to offer a high level of customer service under the same management and will operate in an autonomous mode in all customer-related areas. He added that Park has infused capital into Mutual Federal so that Mutual Federal meets all regulatory capital requirements.

Park National Corporation is a holding company whose subsidiaries include Park National Bank with 13 banking offices in Licking and Franklin counties, Fairfield National Division with three banking offices in Fairfield County, Richland Trust Company with nine banking offices in Richland County and Mutual Federal Savings Bank with 10 full service offices and two mortgage production offices in seven Southeastern Ohio counties.

BOWLING GREEN, OH (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Mid Am, Inc. (NASDAQ: MIAM) announced that it has once again achieved record earnings. Income for the first nine months was $7,016,000. This represents an increase of 7.0 percent over the $6,557,000 recorded the first nine months of 1989. Per share earnings reflect a slight decline from $1.42 per share to $1.38 per share, due to the additional shares issued in the recent stock offering, of which part of the proceeds were invested in short-term, lower-rate assets until the completion of the acquisition of Home Saving and Loan Association.

The increase in earnings is particularly satisfying in light of the unprecedented barrage of negative news battering the industry's image in recent months, said a Mid Am representative. Regretfully, it is the tendency of the investment community to focus on difficulties in certain sectors of the industry and to assume that they apply to all financial institutions, the representative added. Mid Am is pleased that the market price of its stock has fared quite well in comparison to that of its peers.

Mid Am's dividend reinvestment plan continues to be a very popular means by which to conveniently increase shareholdings. This program is especially attractive for shareholders, given the recent trading price of common stock. Mid Am currently is working to enhance the program and plans to announce details of an updated, more attractive plan by year-end.

The board of directors declared a 10 percent stock dividend which was paid on Sept. 7, 1990 and also paid a third quarter cash dividend of $.24 per share, which represents a 5 percent increase from last year's third quarter dividend.

The acquisitions of The Citizens Loan and Building Company and Home Saving and Loan Association have been completed, resulting in the holding company exceeding $1 billion in total assets at Sept. 30, 1990. This marks an important milestone for the Mid Am family. The economies of scale made available with the recent acquisitions will provide excellent opportunities for the company to achieve greater returns for shareholders and to better serve customers.

Mid Am views the current banking environment as an opportunity to further solidify strong customer relationships and garner additional business opportunities as they become available.

#90285p4442 10/12/1990 ~PR Newswire

TROY, MI (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Energy Conversion Devices Inc. ("ECD") (OTC: ENER) today reported its operating results for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, ECD and its consolidated subsidiaries which excludes ECD's subsidiary OIS Optical Imaging Systems, Inc. ("OIS") received total revenues of approximately $14,071,000. ECD's business agreements to license and develop new products and production technology generated revenues of approximately $3,561,000. Product sales were approximately $3,091,000, gains on sales of shares of ECD's OIS Common Stock totaled approximately $6,263,000 and other income was approximately $1,156,000.

In January 1990, ECD and Canon Inc. ("Canon") entered into an agreement which provided for the formation of a joint venture in the field of photovoltaics and provided for an $8,000,000 loan from Canon to ECD to fund its pre-joint venture photovoltaic and non-photovoltaic operations. In connection with the formation of the joint venture, in June 1990 the outstanding balance of the loan was converted into a portion of Canon's equity in the joint venture. As required under Generally Accepted Accounting Principles, ECD recorded the credit of $8,000,000 as additional paid-in capital rather than as revenue. Had this item been recorded as revenue for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, ECD's operating results would have been a loss of approximately $350,000.

As a result of recording this item as paid-in capital, ECD incurred net losses for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, of approximately $8,366,000, primarily as a result of costs associated with the further development of the photovoltaic manufacturing process, the development of the battery manufacturing facility, marketing expenses and other related costs associated with the initial stages of manufacturing. This compares to a loss of approximately $2,236,000 for the year ended June 30, 1989, which included revenues of approximately $13,500,000 from an earlier agreement with Canon and included a loss of approximately $1,273,000 incurred by OIS. Without this OIS loss, the consolidated loss for the year ended June 30, 1989, would have been approximately $963,000, or $.16 per share.

In commenting on the company's results, Stanford R. Ovshinsky, ECD's president and chief executive officer, stated that the company is extremely pleased with the business alliances formed during the past fiscal year. United Solar Systems, Inc. ("USSC"), the company's joint venture in photovoltaics with Canon, commenced operation in July 1990 and Sovlux, ECD's photovoltaics joint venture in the U.S.S.R., was formed in April 1990. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, the company's metal hydride battery subsidiary, Ovonic Battery Company, Inc. ("OBC"), expanded its license agreements with Hitachi-Maxell Ltd., of Japan ("Hitachi-Maxell"). OBC is currently supplying negative electrodes to a battery manufacturer in Hong Kong for manufacture into batteries and is negotiating additional licenses with other consumer battery manufacturers. OBC is also in active negotiations with automotive companies in the U.S., Japan and Europe to scale-up its proprietary batteries for use in electric cars.

ECD's business activities have been directed in large part toward the goal of developing new products and production technologies which can reduce the world's dependence on the use of non-renewable resources and environmentally dangerous processes. The global importance of these goals has been recently underscored by the serious international attention that is being given to dependence on foreign oil and national conflicts over control of oil, as well as, concerns over such environmental problems as atmospheric pollution and the greenhouse effect.

ECD has established joint venture and licensing agreements and is currently negotiating and discussing new business, licensing and financing agreements which it expects to generate sufficient near-term funds to not only continue its operations but also to expand its business in batteries as well as in the areas of superconductivity, magnets, and optical memory to bring its products in large volume to the market place.

Ovshinsky further stated: "The successful consummation of important business agreements concluded during the past year underscores the company's strategy of forming alliances with well-established partners who have the production and marketing abilities to advance ECD's products and technologies throughout the world."

ECD's operating results for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1990 and 1989 are as follows:

ENERGY CONVERSION DEVICES INC.

	Year Ended June 30,
	1990	1989
	(In thousands)

REVENUES
Revenues from business agreements	$ 3,561	$18,857
Product Sales	3,091	4,335
Gain on sale of stock of OBC		1,000
Gain on sale of stock of OIS and Option	6,263
Other	1,156	1,376
TOTAL REVENUES	$14,071	$25,568
TOTAL EXPENSES	$22,437	$27,804
NET (LOSS)	$(8,366)	$(2,236)
NET (LOSS) PER SHARE	$(1.36)	$(.37)

Had ECD been able to record the $8,000,000 received from Canon as revenue rather than paid-in-capital, ECD's operating results for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, would have been a loss of approximately $350,000.

Without the effect of OIS, ECD's consolidated loss increased by approximately $7,403,000. The increased loss in 1990 was due to inclusion in 1989 of revenues from the photovoltaic license agreement with Canon partially off set by (a) reduced losses at Sovonics, OSMC and OBC in 1990 and (b) a reduction of expenses in 1990 due to cost-cutting measures and the 1990 gain on the sale of OIS stock.

Product sales decreased from $4,335,000 in the year ended June 30, 1989, to $3,090,000 for the year ended June 30, 1990, due to the fact that OIS product and prototype sales of $506,000 for 1989 are included in 1989 and the timing for accounting purposes of international sales through ECD's foreign subsidiary in 1989. This decrease was partially offset by increases in 1990 in sales of OSMC products.

The decrease in revenues from business agreements from $18,856,000 in the year ended June 30, 1989, to $3,560,000 in the year ended June 30, 1990, was primarily due to (a) the inclusion in 1989 of revenues from both the photovoltaic license agreement with Canon and the OBC agreements with Varta Batterie A.G. of Germany and (b) the inclusion of OIS revenues of $2,289,000 in 1989. This decrease was partially offset by revenues in 1990 from (a) an OBC license agreement with Hitachi- Maxell (b) the agreement regarding the formation of Sovlux in the U.S.S.R., (c) an agreement in superconductivity and (d) an agreement regarding the formation of a joint venture in India.

ECD, based in Troy, is the pioneer in amorphous materials technology. The company and its subsidiaries form joint ventures, license technology and manufacture and sell products in the fields of energy, information and synthetic materials based upon technology ECD and its subsidiaries have developed. ECD's photovoltaic and battery products are environmentally safe and address such environmental problems as atmospheric pollution, protecting the ozone layer, reducing hazardous waste and the greenhouse effect.

TAMPA, FL (OCT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The Celotex Corporation announced today that it and its wholly owned subsidiary, Carey Canada Inc., have filed voluntary petitions for reorganization under Chapter 11 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Middle District of Florida, Tampa, Division.

Kenneth E. Hyatt, Celotex's new chairman, president and CEO, indicated that the Chapter 11 filings will enable Celotex to continue its currently successful and profitable manufacture and sale of a broad range of building materials while receiving the protection of the Bankruptcy Court from claims arising in asbestos-related litigation. Hyatt and several key employees of Jim Walter Corporation, the parent of Celotex, recently joined Celotex to lead the reorganization effort.

Hyatt stressed that Celotex will continue to operate its business as in the past. "Celotex will be open for business today and into the future and intends to meet its commitments to its customers, suppliers and employees," he said.

"Even though the construction sector of the economy has been weak, Celotex is profitable and performing well which reflects positively on its management and employees," Hyatt said. "The decision to file Chapter 11 was forced solely by an inability to continue to obtain insurance proceeds to fund the enormous costs associated with the massive asbestos-related litigation pending against them."

Celotex and Carey Canada have been engaged in defending asbestos-related litigation for over 15 years. What began with the filing of a handful of personal injury law suits in the early 1970s has grown to the point that, at the end of Septetmber 1990, there were more than 140,000 personal injury suits pending against the companies in state and Federal courts throughout the country. Since the inception of this massive litigation, the settlement and defense costs for personal injury and property damage claims paid by the companies have exceeded $587 million. The great majority of these funds have been paid by proceeds of insurance coverage which was available to the companies.

It is the companies' expectation that there will become available additional insurance coverage to pay existing and future personal injury and property damage claims. The companies have been engaged in litigation and other efforts to recover under these policies. However, several insurance carriers have disputed coverage. This refusal of the companies' insurance carriers to respond to covered losses from asbestos-related litigation has resulted in the companies inability to fund the cost of settlement and defense. The companies have to date settled over 50,000 personal injury claims. However, many of the recent claims have been filed by claimants who are not suffering from any impairment or disease, and the cost of investigating and defending against such cases can no longer be sustained by the companies.

The companies expect, under the protection of the Bankruptcy Court, to be able to resolve their remaining insurance coverage disputes and to develop a plan which will permit fair and equitable payment of their current and future asbestos-related liabilities, as well as satisfaction of other creditor claims.

Reorganization, Hyatt said, "permits us, in a much more orderly and structured environment, to deal with the complex asbestos related litigation issues facing the companies. Given that opportunity, I am confident we will emerge from Chapter 11 as an even stronger and more viable company."

The rate reductions apply to AT&T's long-distance service, Reach Out California(R), PRO WATS California(R), One-Line WATS, and MEGACOM WATS/800.

"We're cutting prices because it's a competitive necessity," said Chris Ensign AT&T's California State Manager. "These rate reductions are important to maintain the competitiveness of AT&T's services in the state."

Three holes (90-142A, 90-143, and 90-144) were drilled south of or below the Bear Main deposit. All holes were successful in extending the Bear Main Fault complex about 200m to the south. Only hole 90-142A returned encouraging results as reported above.

Only two underground holes remain to be reported from this 19-hole drill program.

As previously reported, the roaster at Golden Bear requires a major retrofit. The retrofit of the roaster is progressing and it is expected the roaster will be on line within the three-month schedule. The plant, without the roaster, has operated above design capacity since early August.

(OCT. 12) UPI - A 10th planeload of Western hostages landed in London carrying 386 foreigners, most of them American women and children, and U.S. officials said the flight could be the last for some time to leave Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

The chartered Iraqi aircraft arrived in London Thursday morning and most of the 142 Americans on board were expected to arrive in Raleigh, N.C., Friday afternoon. Officials said 27 Britons, 149 Jordanians and five Australians were on the flight along with other Arabs and Westerners.

It was the 10th airlift of Western hostages trapped by the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the first since Sept. 22.

Voice of America quoted U.S. officials as saying the flight could be the last carrying Westerners for some time from Iraq and Kuwait, where thousands of Western men are being held as human shields at key installations.

In other developments in the 2-month-old Persian Gulf crisis, a 63- year-old grandmother who volunteered to serve with the U.S. Air Force returned home from Saudi Arabia and a 22-year-old U.S. Marine who refused to board a flight for Saudi Arabia faced court-martial in Hawaii.

Cpl. Jeff Paterson of Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station said he does not want to fight for ''imperialistic economic interests'' and is seeking conscientious objector status. He refused to board a flight when his unit was deployed and sat down in the hangar as his sergeant tried to push him onto the plane.

The U.S. Air Force, imposing a safety standdown, grounded its training flights in Saudi Arabia for 24 hours in response to three recent Air Force plane crashes that killed six airmen.

From noon Saudi time Wednesday until noon Saudi time Thursday, ''The Air Force declared a flying standdown for one day to conduct safety awareness meetings with Air Force pilots,'' Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

President Bush told a group of military veterans in Washington that ''it's very clear that the strength of the our arms and the strength of our will is up to the challenge in the gulf.''

''The (Iraqi) regime is up against not only the law of nations, but also the law of mathematics,'' Bush said. ''The numbers are against them. Today, it's not Iraq vs. Kuwait, it's not Iraq vs. the United States. It's Iraq against the entire world.''

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said a decision must be made ''in a matter of weeks'' on whether military force should be used against Saddam Hussein. Hurd told British Broadcasting Corp. television Thursday that the United States and Britain should decide whether diplomatic isolation and economic sanctions were sufficient to get Iraq out of Kuwait.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said the Persian Gulf crisis should not be linked to the Arab-Israeli problem despite outrage over the killings of dozens of Palestinians in Jerusalem.

Saddam has tried to link his invasion of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip in hopes of winning support in the Arab world.

In other developments Thursday:

-Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath said he would depart Friday on an unofficial mission to meet with Saddam in Baghdad and try and negotiate the release of sick and older Britons held in Iraq and Kuwait.

-Iraq resumed negotiations with Iran, its former bitter enemy in the 1980-88 Gulf War. Saddam, seeking allies where he can, has made a number of concessions to Tehran and the neighboring countries are considering restoring diplomatic relations. Tehran has called for the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait but has made it clear the issue will not affect Iraqi- Iranian ties.

-Lloyds Shipping Service reported that an Indian vessel carrying 1, 859 passengers had arrived in Dubai from the Iraqi port of Um Qasr. India has been ferrying hundreds of refugees from Iraq and Kuwait in ships.

-Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal said the Iraqi invasion had divided the Arab world to the point where it could not contend with the Israeli occupation of the territories. ''That's why the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait is so shocking to us because it creates a division in the Arab world so that it weakens our ability to face the Israeli occupation of Arab lands,'' he told a news conference in Bonn before meeting with Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

-The PLO Central Council accused Washington of ''turning its back on international legality'' as far as Jerusalem is concerned and called on Moslems to work ''for the immediate departure'' of U.S. forces from the Persian Gulf.

In a statement at the end of the two-day meeting in Tunis, the Central Council of the Palestine Liberation Organization also urged all Arab countries, the world community and the U.N. Security Council ''to act rapidly and with force so as to put an end'' to what it described as terrorist activities by the Israeli forces in the occupied territories.

(OCT. 12) UPI - President Bush offered Thursday to trade higher taxes on wealthy Americans for lower ones on capital gains. But he was pessimistic about his offer's chances in Congress. Also Thursday, House Democrats unveiled their alternative budget plan. It would dramatically increase taxes on the rich- far more than Bush is willing to accept. It also contains so- called ''sin'' and luxury taxes.

The House approved a compromise plan Thursday that supporters hope will end a year-long controversy about government funding of art projects that might be considered obscene. The bill re-authorizes funds for the National Endowment for the Arts, with the directive that the N- E-A may NOT fund obscene art. The bill leaves it up to the courts to decide if specific art projects are obscene.

Iraq's ambassador to the United States dismissed as ''nonsense'' reports that terrorist Abu Nidal had moved his operations to Baghdad. But he says other Palestinian groups are welcome in Iraq. HOT SPRINGS, Va. (OCT. 12) UPI - The U.S. economy faces a significant chance of recession and very weak growth through the middle of next year, economists for the Business Council said Friday.

A majority of the council's economists agreed that slower growth is looming, although only five of the 19 economists said a recession already likely to have begun.

The probability of recession by year's end has increased to 39 percent from 22 percent at the time of the council's spring report.

Lewis Preston, chairman of J.P. Morgan & Co. and the council's vice chairman, said the economists may even be too optimistic.

Preston said he believes the recession is already here and that it will be more severe than many economists expect.

''I'm afraid it is going to be a little longer and a little deeper,'' he said.

Several members of the Business Council, the upper crust of corporate America, said a recession is either here or just around the corner.

''Our three economists think we're already are in one. When you look at the mood of the consumer, it is clearly one of caution and slower pace,'' said James Robinson, chairman of American Express Co.

Should the economy slip into recession, generally defined as two consecutive quarters of little or no economic growth, the council's economists said the pinch would not be as severe as the recessions of the mid-1970s and early 1980s.

Economic growth is expected to average about 2 percent during the second half of this year and about 2.5 percent next year, the economists said.

The economists said the economy had been slowing prior to the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait by Iraq. Rising oil prices have only worsened the economic environment.

Still, the majority of the council's advisers expect positive overall growth through the middle of next year.

Weakness is forecast to be concentrated in housing, consumer durable products and capital spending, the report said.

Housing activity is expected to ease by 4.5 percent between the second quarter of this year and next year while auto sales slip to an annual rate of 9.2 million units from 9.5 million units.

The outlook for the industrial sector is likely to mirror the economy. Little or no growth is seen for orders, sales and profits, the report said.

That should come as little surprise to the executives gathered at the posh Homestead resort. Many already are hearing gloom in the voices of their clients.

''As I go around the country talking to customers I don't find anybody talking very positively about the current environment,'' said David Kearns, chairman of Xerox Corp.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - With the tax storm still raging from one end of Pennsylvania Avenue to the other and a budget deadline a week away, Congress and the White House are working against the clock and must ''get their act together'' on a deficit reduction plan, said a ranking House Democrat.

While President Bush was reviving and then effectively killing the idea of raising tax rates for the wealthiest Americans in exchange for reducing the captial gains tax, House Democrats unveiled a plan on Thursday that would hike taxes for the rich and retain most of the ''sin'' and luxury taxes included in a budget plan defeated last week in Congress.

Trying to explain his way out of the tax confusion, Bush went public with his willingness to support a higher maximum tax on high-income Americans in exchange for a sharp cut in the tax on capital gains.

While interpreted by some Republicans as a green light to keep the capital gains issue alive, Bush noted the plan attracted broad opposition in weeks of budget talks with Congress and said compromise was not ''now possible.''

Instead of urging renewed consideration of an income tax-capital gains tradeoff, Bush called for adoption of the basic elements of a $500 billion deficit-reduction plan rejected by Congress last week, which did not address either tax issue.

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said, ''We're now at the end of the rope. And I think this is the point where, frankly, everybody's got to get their act together, both Congress as well the president.''

''Obviously it's not very helpful to have a lot of mixed signals about where the president is, or is not,'' Panetta said. ''It also isn't very helpful, frankly, to have a lot of members of Congress interpreting where the president does or does not stand.''

Panetta also said Congress ''probably will'' fail to meet the Oct. 19 deadline for finishing the budget process and urged Bush not to shut down the federal government for a second time.

In remarks conveyed to reporters by White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, Bush said he was ''quite concerned'' that even pursuing a tax swap ''may not only fail'' but ''legitimize something farther to the left that we cannot accept.''

Hoping to end 48 hours of chaos, triggered by public perceptions of a flip-flop in his readiness to tamper with income taxes, Bush said he could accept a new 31 percent rate on income above about $185,730, if coupled with a reduction to 15 percent in the tax on capital gains.

Rep. William Archer, R-Texas, told reporters that scenario would constitute ''a leveling out'' of an anomoly in the tax system that taxes income near or above the $200,000 mark at 28 percent and income at some lower levels at 33 percent.

''He said without equivocation this is what he wanted to do,'' said Archer, who is the ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee.

''Now, we have a fixed target,'' added Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn. ''We're through negotiating.''

What Frenzel and others may have perceived as a mandate to move forward lacked anything close to a full-fledged White House endorsement.

''There is certain flexibility,'' Bush acknowledged to reporters, ''but I'm not going to vary from the terms I've just spelled out. (If) they get that done, fine. I think it's a waste of time because I just don't think it can get through both houses of Congress.''

While lawmakers and lobbyists struggle to reach a budget deal, there are grumblings Bush has lost political ground by appearing indecisive and seeming to retreat on the tax question. The extraordinarily high popularity ratings Bush sported after the Persian Gulf crisis began have tumbled and there is even hushed talk that Bush has been ''Carterized'' by the intractable budget issue.

The president, however, is willing to take his lumps. ''These things come and go,'' he said philosophically. ''We got a deal, forget the name-calling. We're trying to get something done. Nobody thinks you can be popular by standing up and having to compromise (on things) you wouldn't necessarily want.

''I'll do my best and take the slings and arrows. ... I haven't felt too much pressure.''

Meanwhile, the Democratic proposal would dramatically increase the tax on the wealthiest Americans far more than Bush is willing to accept. The alternative included a 33 percent marginal tax rate for the richest Americans - about 1.5 million to 2 million people.

It also would impose a 10 percent surtax on taxpayers with earned taxable income over $1 million, retain most of the summit agreement's ''sin'' and luxury taxes, and cut the proposed gasoline tax hike from 12 cents to 3 cents.

(OCT. 12) UPI - A planeload of Americans evacuated from Iraqi-occupied Kuwait along with other Westerners on Thursday... will fly to Raleigh, North Carolina on Friday. They spent Thursday recovering from what was described by the U-S State Department as a long ordeal without food and water. American officials say many of the evacuees told of being interrogated and threatened by Iraqi soldiers.

The chairman of the House Budget Committee says the time has come for both Congress and the president ''to get their act together'' and come up with a deficit-cutting agreement. But California Democrat Leon Panetta thinks Congress ''probably will'' fail to meet next Friday's deadline for finishing the budget process. He urged President Bush NOT to shut down the federal government for a second time.

A spokesman for the United Nations says the Security Council's 15 member states will continue negotiations Friday in hopes of reaching a compromise on a resolution condemning Monday's killing of Palestinians in Jerusalem. The only common position among Security Council members, including the United States, has been to condemn the killings by Israeli police officers. The disagreement centers on how to carry out an inquiry into the matter.

A nuclear weapons test scheduled Thursday at the Nevada Test Site was delayed until Friday morning because winds were blowing toward Las Vegas, 105 miles away. An Energy Department spokesman says as a precaution, nuclear tests are NOT conducted when winds might carry an accidental radiation leak toward a populated area. The test will be the seventh announced nuclear weapons test this year by the United States.

(OCT. 12) UPI - The Philadelphia Flyers can't seem to shake the injury bug that has dogged them in recent seasons.

Philadelphia lost goaltender Ron Hextall with a strained left groin in the second period of a 7-4 victory Thursday night over the New Jersey Devils. Hextall, who played in only eight games last season because of a series of groin injuries, had to be helped off the ice after stopping a shot by Walt Poddubny.

The Flyers said Hextall should be sidelined for 10 to 14 days, but he reinjured himself several times last season when he tried to return to action before the injury was fully healed.

''It's not that bad,'' Hextall said. ''It's not as bad as the others I have had.''

The Flyers lost Tim Kerr and defenseman Mark Howe for long stretches because of injury last season and saw rookie Mike Ricci, their top pick in this year's draft, break a finger in the opening game this season that will sideline him for three to four weeks.

Gord Murphy and Ron Sutter scored 32 seconds apart in the third period and Jiri Latal tallied a pair of goals to lead the Flyers' offense. New Jersey closed within 4-3 on a goal by Kirk Muller before Murphy fired a 55-foot slap shot past goaltender Sean Burke and Sutter beat Burke through his pads for a 6-3 Philadelphia lead.

Tim Kerr, Rich Tocchet and Norm Lacombe also scored by Philadelphia. New Jersey got goals from Poddubny, Patrik Sundstrom and Peter Stastny.

The Flyers, who managed only a single goal in each of their first two games, struck for seven goals for the second time in a row.

''For us to score seven goals in two consecutive games is mind- boggling,'' said Flyers Coach Paul Holmgren, who expects his team to win with its defense this season.

Sutter said the secret was simple - hard work.

''We're playing tough and we're banging in there,'' Sutter said. ''Our coaching staff has been working hard to get us to go at the other team's net and we had all better realize that that's how we will score goals.''

In other NHL action Thursday night, Chicago defeated Pittsburgh 4-1, Minnesota and Boston played to a 3-3 tie and Edmonton and Los Angeles tied 5-5.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Blackhawks 4, Penguins 1

At Chicago, Jeremy Roenick struck for three goals to lead the Blackhawks and goaltender Ed Belfour improved his record to 3-0 this season. Mike Hudson also scored for Chicago, while Pittsburgh got its only goal from Kevin Stevens.

North Stars 3, Bruins 3

At Bloomington, Minn., Mike Modano's power-play goal midway through the third period gave the North Stars the tie. Boston blew a 3-0 lead but remained one of three unbeaten teams with a 4-0-1 record.

Kings 5, Oilers 5

At Los Angeles, Wayne Gretzky scored with 49 seconds left in regulation and assisted on the four other Los Angeles goals. Gretzky, whose five points leaves him 12 away from the 2,000 mark in his career, took a 35-foot crossing pass from Steve Kasper and wristed a 10-footer into the right side of the net.

A ranking House Democrat says the White House and Congress are working against the clock to agree on a budget deficit reduction plan. House Democrats yesterday UNveiled a plan to raise taxes for the wealthy and keep most of the luxury taxes in a budget plan defeated last week in Congress.

Financial analysts say poor sales last month at U-S retailers provide further evidence of the economy's recessionary trend. Analysts say lower spending shows consumer anxiety about job security, inflation and higher gasoline and heating oil prices due to the Middle East crisis. Analysts expect the trend to continue through Christmas.

MOSCOW (OCT. 12) UPI - The reactionary Pamyat Society's leader was ordered Friday to serve two years at hard labor for directing an attack on Jewish writers in a landmark case the government said showed it will not tolerate anti-Semitism.

''For the first time, anti-Semitism has been officially condemned by the state '' said Andrei Makharov, a human rights attorney who served as one of three ''public prosecutors'' in the case. ''The next anti-Semite and fascist will stop to think that he might find himself behind bars if he propagates his views.''

The defendant, Konstantin Smirnov-Ostashvili, surrounded by four soldiers standing at attention, repeatedly disrupted the proceedings by raising clenched fists and shouting Russian nationalist slogans during the 50-minute reading of the findings and sentence against him. About 100 of his supporters crowded into the courtroom to hear the sentence read.

''This couldn't happen, even in South Africa!'' he yelled at one point.

Pandemonium nearly erupted several times as dozens of his supporters in the hot, packed courtroom applauded, held up signs, shouted back their own chants and hurled bouquets of red carnations at him.

''Court - Are you serving the law or Zionism?'' read one sign.

Smirnov-Ostashvili, whose trial began July 26, was convicted of inciting racism and anti-Semitism when he led a group that broke into a meeting of liberal writers, many of them Jewish, in January.

In the incident at Moscow's Central House of Writers, the bald, stocky 54-year-old Smirnov-Ostashvili grabbed a microphone and delivered an anti-Semite diatribe that sparked a chair-throwing brawl.

Smirnov-Ostashvili jeered Friday as the court read parts of his tirate in its findings.

The official Tass news agency said the case demonstrated ''the law's efficiency in reacting to manifestations of nationalism, chauvinism and anti-Semitism, very sensitive in Soviet society at present.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - U.S. wholesale prices shot up 1.6 percent in September on record high gasoline prices but food costs tumbled across the board, the Labor Department said Friday.

The huge increase - generally in line with economists' estimates - follows a jump of 1.3 percent in August in the aftermath of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait's oilfields and a dip of 0.1 percent in July.

A 20.6 percent jump in wholesale gasoline prices in September was the largest on record, a government spokesman said. Home heating oil also contributed to higher wholesale prices, advancing 21.6 percent during the month.

Natural gas costs were up slightly.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said that September's total energy prices surged 13.8 percent, but food prices were off 0.9 percent. Not counting food and energy, the government's Producer Price Index was up 0.6 percent.

The 13.8 percent leap in wholesale energy costs was the worst showing since the government started tracking the data in 1974.

The Labor Department attributed the drop in wholesale food prices to lower costs for beef and veal, eggs, fresh vegetables, shortening, pasta, dairy products and pork.

Wholesale prices for consumer goods other than food, meanwhile, climbed 3.3 percent in September.

The overall increase in September wholesale prices was the largest since a 1.9 percent jump in January in the wake of a nationwide winter cold snap that wiped out crops and sent home fuel oil costs rocketing.

If U.S. wholesale prices were to continue increasing at their current pace, inflation at the producer level would be running at 20.9 percent, a government spokesman said.

For the first nine months of the year, wholesale prices have climbed by 6.3 percent, and the increase over the last two months is the biggest since 1980, the spokesman said.

The Labor Department also reported that September wholesale prices for crude goods advanced 4.6 percent and prices for intermediate goods - the stage between crude and finished - were up 1.8 percent.

OMAHA, NE (OCT. 12) UPI - Former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, whose nomination for defense secretary was rejected by the Senate in part because of allegations he had a drinking problem, inserted similar allegations into the Senate race in Nebraska.

Tower appeared on Omaha radio station KKAR Thursday while campaigning for former Rep. Hal Daub, R-Neb., who is challenging Democratic Sen. J. James Exon.

When asked about senators who had voted against his nomination to be defense secretary in 1989, Tower said it was never established ''that I had done anything disqualifying.''

Tower then said there was ''a massive amount of hypocrisy'' in Exon's vote against him, Exon was the first member of the Armed Services Committee to come out against Tower's confirmation.

Pressed to explain his remark, Tower said, ''Senator Exon bore down on me heavily on the drinking thing, when he's got the reputation of being one of the two or three biggest boozers in the Senate. So, you know, why should he take up the cudgel on that?''

When it was suggested by program host Steve Brown that he had made a serious charge, Tower responded, ''We're talking about reputation. We're talking about rumor. Specific comments that have been related to me by others. So I would have to say that I don't have firsthand knowledge. I would establish that because that is the fair way to do it.''

Exon told Nebraska reporters he blamed Daub for the ''truly ugly and negative turn'' in the campaign. He described Tower as a ''convenient mouthpiece for the irresponsible Republican opponent I am facing.''

Daub, in a telephone interview with The Washington Post late Thursday, said he was ''most surprised'' by Tower's remarks. But he added, ''If anybody owes an apology maybe it is Jim Exon to John Tower for the way he handled these same isses - alleged alcoholism and fitness to serve in public office - when John Tower's nomination was on the Senate floor.''

JERUSALEM (OCT. 12) UPI - Thousands of Moslems attended Friday prayers at the Temple Mount in Jerusalem's Old City amid tight security and a large deployment of Israeli security forces to forestall violence.

The prayers at one of Islam's holiest sites, known in Arabic as the Haram esh Sharif, passed with little trouble four days after police opened fire at demonstrating Palestinians on the Temple Mount Monday and killed 21 Moslems.

After Friday prayers, small groups of worshippers shouted slogans of ''God is Great'' and ''In spirit and blood we will free Palestine'' before leaving the Temple Mount. The police did not intervene.

Outside the walls of Jerusalem's Old City, police dispersed more than 100 Palestinian youths with water cannons near the Lion's Gate after the Arabs were not allowed into the Temple Mount complex, the site of the Dome of the Rock and Al Aqsa Mosque. Shortly after, the youths stoned Israeli cars in Arab East Jerusalem, Army Radio reported.

Israeli authorities prohibited residents of the Israeli-occupied territories from entering Jerusalem and forced Moslems who wished to pray at the Temple Mount to pass through strict security checks. An estimated 3,000 Moslems, mostly older men and women, attended the Friday prayers.

Yossi Tuvias, Jerusalem Border Police commander, said authorities decided to limit access to the Temple Mount because they had received information indicating at least 15,000 worshippers were expected to attend Friday prayers and ''large riots were planned for after the prayers.''

In limiting access, ''we prevented these disturbances,'' he said.

Paramilitary Border Police stood several yards apart outside the Old City gates where Moslems entered, keeping watch over the smaller than usual crowds. Patrols also stood atop roofs and roamed the Old City in an effort to prevent violence.

''There were a few localized events at the outer gates of the Old City, but over and above these localized events, all of Jerusalem and the Old City is quiet at the moment,'' Tuvias said after Friday prayers ended.

''We are at the moment directing our forces toward the Arab villages in the area and we are prepared for any incident that might occur,'' he said.

Security force patrols also were more prominent than usual Friday in downtown West Jerusalem.

While the Unified Leadership of the Uprising called for three days of general strike by Palestinians in mourning for the Moslems slain Monday, Arab shops not in areas under curfew remained closed for a fourth day Friday and were not expected to reopen until next Monday. The military maintained curfews on the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and much of the West Bank Friday.

Because of tension in Arab villages and towns within Israel in the wake of Monday's slayings, police canceled seven soccer matches between Jewish and Arab teams scheduled to take place in Arab villages Saturday, Army Radio reported.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - Retail sales increased 1.1 percent in September, driven by gasoline and automobile sales, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The 1.1 percent gain follows a decline of 0.4 percent in August and an advance of 0.5 percent in July, according to the data compiled by the department's Census Bureau.

Not counting gasoline, September retail sales increased 0.8 percent, a government spokesman said. Not counting auto sales, retail sales were up 0.6 percent during the month, the spokesman said.

A 4.9 percent increase in retail sales at gasoline service stations in September reflects higher costs in the weeks following Iraq's conquest of Kuwaiti oilfields and the jitters that have sent world oil prices to beyond $40 a barrel.

A separate report released Friday by the Labor Department said wholesale gasoline prices jumped by a record 20.6 percent during the month.

Despite recession fears, the 2.9 percent surge in sales by ''automotive dealers'' reflects continued strength in consumer spending, the driving force in the nation's longest post-war economic expansion.

The Commerce Department said that overall sales of durable goods, those expensive items made to last three or more years, were ahead 1.4 percent in September, while retail sales of non-durable goods advanced 0.9 percent for the month.

Sales at clothing stores, usually strong as children return to school, fell last month 1.5 percent. Department store sales were off 0.9 percent in September, the department said.

But sales gained 1.6 percent at supermarkets, increased 1 percent at restaurants and bars and edged up 0.4 percent at drug stores. Sales at hardware stores, meanwhile, were off 0.5 percent while sales at furniture stores headed up by 0.7 percent.

Despite recession fears, the 2.9 percent surge in sales by ''automotive dealers'' reflects continued strength in consumer spending, the driving force in the nation's longest post-war economic expansion.

The Commerce Department said overall sales of durable goods, those expensive items made to last three or more years, were ahead 1.4 percent in September, while retail sales of non-durable goods advanced 0.9 percent for the month.

Sales at clothing stores, usually strong as children return to school, fell last month 1.5 percent. Department store sales were off 0.9 percent in September, the department said.

But sales gained 1.6 percent at supermarkets, increased 1 percent at restaurants and bars and edged up 0.4 percent at drug stores. Sales at hardware stores, meanwhile, were off 0.5 percent while sales at furniture stores headed up 0.7 percent.

(OCT. 12) UPI - Germany withdrew all personnel from its embassy in Kuwait, where food, water and electricity were in short supply, but stressed it is maintaining diplomatic relations with the Iraqi-occupied country.

Meanwhile, a jetliner carrying former American hostages flew from London and was scheduled to arrive Friday afternoon in Raleigh, N.C.

In another development, four machine gun-wielding motorcyclists killed Egypt's speaker of Parliament in Cairo. The assassins also shot to death three bodyguards of Speaker Rifaat El Mahgoub and the driver of an accompanying car, the Middle East News Agency and witnesses said.

Egyptian interior ministry sources said it was unclear if the slaying of el Mahgoub carried out by pro-Iraqi extremists or Egyptian Islamic fundamentalists.

Egyptian Interior Minister Lt. Gen. Abdul Halim Moussa revealed this week that arrested pro-Iraqi terrorists had received arms and explosives from Egyptian fundamentalists in upper Egypt opposed to the presence of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf region.

The shooting came a day after a national referendum to decide whether Parliament should be dissolved, and days after Moussa said at least 30 Iraqi and Palestinian alleged terrorists were rounded up on suspicion of belonging to a group headed by notorious Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal.

Moussa said his security forces had discovered that pro-Iraqi terrorists were planning to assassinate senior Egyptian political figures, amid reports of possible terrorist retaliation against countries participating in the multinational military force opposing Iraq.

In Bonn, Germany, the foreign ministry said over the past days, food and water were getting scare in their Kuwait embassy and so the German government decided to move the staff to Baghdad. Six weeks ago Iraqi authorities cut electricity to the embassy, but the staff had worked with an emergency electricity supply.

A German foreign ministry spokesman said ambassador Claus Saenksen, his wife and the remaining skeleton staff left for Baghdad Thursday night. German officials said they did not close the embassy, which like others in Kuwait has withstood pressure since Iraq's Aug. 2 conquest of Kuwait.

Voice of America quoted U.S. officials as saying the flight of the former hostages to America could be the last of Westerners for some time from Iraq and Kuwait, where thousands of Western men are being used as human shields against military attacks.

Iraq has allowed some Westerners to leave, mostly women, children and men of Arab background.

In London, Iraq instructed former British Prime Minister Edward Heath to postpone for one week his planned visit to Baghdad, where he hoped to persuade President Saddam Hussein to release old and sick British male hostages.

Officials say about 250 British males are being held in Iraq, and between 50 and 60 are believed to more than 55 years old or medically unfit.

Heath had said he would leave Friday on the unofficial, humanitarian mission but Baghdad sent an overnight message instructing him Oct. 21 would be a better date to allow preparation. Heath had planned to leave early Friday.

''It does not burn out any hopes at all,'' he said of the Iraqi directive. ''It is worthwhile making the attempt for these people who are sick and dying.''

But other politicians appeared to fear Saddam may try to exploit the presence of Heath, who served as prime minister from 1970 to 1974.

''The Iraqis would not let him come unless they saw some advantage in it,'' said Defense Secretary Tom King. ''We are all very torn over it. There is a very great danger in it appearing to give respectability, aid and comfort to a regime as totally unacceptable as Saddam Hussein's in international terms.''

British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said Thursday a decision must be made ''in a matter of weeks'' on whether military force should be used against Saddam. Hurd told British Broadcasting Corp. television that the United States and Britain should decide whether diplomatic isolation and U.N. economic sanctions were sufficient to get Iraq out of Kuwait.

The U.S. Air Force, imposing a safety standdown, meanwhile grounded its training flights in Saudi Arabia for 24 hours in response to three recent Air Force plane crashes that killed six airmen.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (OCT. 12) UPI - The ruling party held a partial shake-up of key jobs Friday in hopes of reopening dialogue with the opposition and settling a 5-day-old hunger strike by opposition leader Kim Dae Jung.

The Democratic Liberal Party appointed Kim Yoon-whan, 58, as its new floor leader and Choi Gak-kyu as the chairman of its policy committee. Former floor leader Kim Doug-young, 54, succeeded Kim Yoon-whan as state minister for political affairs.

The reshuffle was part of an effort to improve strained relations with Kim Dae Jung's Party for Peace and Democracy, which has boycotted the National Assembly since July in protest of 26 controversial laws legislated by the government party.

Kim Yoon-whan is a skillful political negotiator and has many friends among opposition politicians. He was not directly involved in the disputed July legislation process.

Kim Dae Jung's party welcomed the move, which came one day after Kim Young-sam the No. 2 leader of the ruling party, paid a call on the main opposition leader and urged him to call off the hunger strike.

Kim Dae Jung started fasting Monday, demanding that President Roh Tae-woo drop an attempt to revise the Constitution, adopt a parliamentary Cabinet form of government and implement promised local autonomy without delay.

He also demanded that the government disband the Defense Security Command, which has conducted illegal surveillance on more than 1,300 noted civilians. He said the government must take a firm move to keep the military out of politics.

Opposition parties and dissident groups planned a protest rally in southern Seoul Saturday afternoon to denounce the political surveillance by military security agents.

Kim Dae Jung said the rally must end peacefully, but political observers said radicals may stage violent street demonstrations after the gathering.

The controversial military spying on civilians was disclosed by Pvt. Yoon Suk-yang, 24, who defected from a branch office of the Defense Security Command.

He said the surveillance targets included politicians, civic and church leaders, lawyers, professors, journalists, labor activists and dissidents.

Roh replaced his defense minister and the head of the Defense Security Command as the controversy snowballed. Officials said measures will be taken to keep the command from such illegal activity.

About 4,000 students held rallies on nine campuses in Seoul on Friday, protesting the military surveillance and demanding the disbandment of the Defense Security Command, which is in charge of criminal investigations and intelligence for the armed forces, news reports said.

Elsewhere, prosecutors arrested seven educators Friday on charges of illegally admitting students into a Seoul university in return for bribes of more than $4 million.

Arrested were Lee Hui-sun, 69, a treasurer, and six faculty members and administrators of Hansung University. Lee is the wife of the founder of the school.

A prosecution spokesman said the group is accused of feeding forged examination results into a computer in January and illegally admitting 94 students after receiving bribes of nearly $4.5 million.

The spokesman said part of the money was deposited with banks as school funds, part used for investment in the stock market and the rest used to expand school facilities.

The spokesman said the seven were arrested for prosecution because forging examination results for illegal admission is against law.

TORONTO (OCT. 12) UPI - Canada's largest charter airline Worldways Canada Ltd. has temporarily ceased operations due to a cash-flow crisis stemming in part from rising jet fuel costs.

Worldways said in a statement late Thursday it suspended operations to ease its current cash-flow problems ''due to the dramatic rise in jet fuel prices.''

The airline, which also laid off about 1,000 employees, said it hoped to resume flying in ''a few weeks.''

Tour operators were making alternative arrangements for thousands of people booked on Worldways flights to the Caribbean and Europe for this weekend.

Worldways has been struggling since last spring when the Ontario government provided it with a $5.1 million line of credit to keep it aloft. That line of credit expired Sept. 30.

Last month, Worldways agreed to sell four DC-8 planes for $36 million to pay down loans to a consortium of Canadian banks. The deal has not yet been completed.

During the past two weeks, tour operators had to pay for fuel to keep Worldways flying but now have stopped paying. Several flights were delayed earlier this month when fuel suppliers refused to refuel planes at Toronto's Pearson International Airport unless cash was paid for the fuel.

The decision to suspend operations was the second major blow to Canada's airline industry this week.

On Tuesday, Canada's largest airline Air Canada of Montreal said it will lay off 2,900 employees, sell four planes and cut unprofitable routes in an effort to cut costs.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (OCT. 12) UPI - Infantry desert combat is not unlike the ground game in football: five yards and a cloud of dust, five yards and a cloud of dust.

The famed 82nd Airborne Division practiced taking enemy positions in the desert Friday, this time using live amunition to keep their marksmanship honed.

And the quality of the training showed when two gunners who have never fired the Dragon II anti-armor each hit their target with the $6, 000 rockets, each raising a loud cheer from their comrades when the rounds hit the targets.

In the six to eight seconds after the round fired, they successfully kept the cross hairs of the aiming device on target, allowing a computer to send steering signals to the rocket, which then fired little pulse rockets to stay on course.

In the live-fire exercise that followed the rocket firing, the troops of Bravo squad of the 2nd Battalion of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment worked in pairs, rushing foward 5 yards and dropping first to their knees and then letting momentum lay them out prone.

An M-60 machine gun barked out covering fire as two teams working as a platoon ran forward two at a time, slowly reaching the objective at what was a slow walk for following news reporters. Once within about 30 yards, they jumped up and charged, with their sergeant yelling at them to spread out instead of bunching up as they closed on the bunkers of make-believe enemy. They took a bit of sadistic joy in hitting their targets - empty cartons of vacuum-packed meals they have been eating.

Carrying the squad automatic weapon, essentially an M-16 that will fire up to 200 rounds without reloading, was Spec. 4 James Weirz of Gainsville, Fla., a 20-year-old whose wife and son, James, are waiting for him in Troy, N.C.

He and others in various units of the 82nd have been busy. The 82nd saw action in Panama, then some units went on multinational force duty in Egypt, and had hardly been home long enough to run to a joint training center for two months when they were rushed off Saudi Arabi.

Consequently, Weirz has seen his 2-year-old son for just three months in the past year. His wife is sending him pictures so he can keep up with his son's progress. And Sgt. Joe Caughenbaugh, 22, of Waco, Texas, has been home for two months in the past 10. He and his wife are expecting their first child in March.

''I'd like to be home then for my first child,'' said Caughenbaugh.

These soldiers are hoping to make their first jump in Saudi Arabia in November and when they jump, it likely will be with the 90 to 100 pounds of gear they each haul into the field with them. They let their packs dangle below them on a line once they've jumped so the impact with the ground is lessened, letting the ground ''surpise'' them with the impact to reduce injuries from tensing up in anticipation of landing.

LONDON (OCT. 12) UPI - British Airways said Friday it is discussing the creation of a new Soviet airline, Air Russia, in a joint venture with Aeroflot the Soviet state-owned airline and the world's largest.

An agreement to continue studying the feasability of the project was signed in Moscow between British Airways Chairman Lord King, and Boris Panjukov, the Soviet Minister of Civil Aviation, said a British Airways spokesman.

''We are delighted to be so closely involved with the Soviet government, the government of the Russian Federation and Aeroflot in their plans for the possible development of a new airline in the Soviet Union,'' said King.

''With the momentous changes taking place in the U.S.S.R., an efficient, compeitive international airline will be a commercial necessity.''

The agreement was signed following initial conversations between British Airways, Aeroflot, and Soviet government officials, the British Airways spokesman said.

British Airways would be a minority partner in the joint venture and initially invest approximately $40 million in the new airline, provisionally named Air Russia, the spokesman said.

Although no definitive timetable has been set, the planned airline has been scheduled to begin operations in 1992, covering routes in Western Europe, North America and the Far East, said the spokesman.

The new airline would be based at Moscow's Domodedovo airport.

MANCHESTER, N.H. (OCT. 12) UPI - A BankEast official said Friday that a municipality's decision to pull its account out of the bank because of a bankruptcy threat was unwarranted.

Bedford town councilors voted this week to switch banks because of the financial condition of BankEast Corp., the bank's holding company. The company may be forced to file for bankruptcy because of a lawsuit by two creditors seeking immediate payment of $13 million in loans.

The Bedford account is worth $2 million to $3 million.

''We are disappointed by their decision,'' said David Blake, senior vice president of BankEast Corp. ''As we've said time and time again, (the suit) is an issue being faced by the holding company and not the bank. Depositors are not affected.''

Bedford Town Council Chairman John Miville said he wanted to move the account to a ''more secure'' bank. The council has scheduled a special meeting for Wednesday evening to choose a new bank.

Blake said he did not know if bank officials would try to persuade the town not to change banks. He said no other large depositors had withdrawn funds because of the creditors' suit.

''We have had great support from the majority of depositors,'' Blake said.

State Banking Commissioner Roland Roberge said that BankEast is meeting all of its capital requirements. He termed the action by Bedford officials ''irresponsible.''

John Alden Life Insurance Co. of Miami and Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., last Friday filed suit to force the immediate payment of notes they issued to BankEast Corp. Officials of the holding company said they could not pay and could be forced to seek bankruptcy court protection by the action.

The suit means that the company has technically defaulted on the loans. Bank officials say all interest payments had been made on time and principal payments were not due to begin until November 1992.

No hearings in the case have yet been scheduled.

Day-to-day banking operations have not been affected by the dispute.

BankEast Corp. is a New Hampshire-based holding company with assets of $1 billion.

CHICAGO (OCT. 12) UPI - The October crop report provided most of the early support for corn and soybean futures at midmorning Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Thursday's Agriculture Department reports were generally considered bullish. The government lowered its estimates of corn and soybean production and also reduced the ending stocks for both commodities.

Clearing weather has enabled the harvest to resume in the western Corn Belt, and that activity is expected to spread eastward during the next couple of days. Forecasters predicted drier weather in the Midwest during the weekend, except in eastern sections, and mostly dry weather in the Wheat Belt.

Country movement of corn picked up in Illinois and Iowa, although many farmers continue bullish and are waiting to see the trend in the market before selling their crops.

Wheat futures were lower, despite the sale of 100,000 tons to Jordan under the export bonus program.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Dec 2.34 up 1 1/4; Mar 2.43 up 1 1/4; May 2.48 1/2 up 1.

Soybeans Nov 6.27 1/2 up 7; Jan 6.42 1/2 up 7; Mar 6.55 1/4 up 7 1/2; May 6.64 up 6 1/4.

GAINESVILLE, FL (OCT. 12) UPI - Game officials declared the recent state-sponsored alligator hunt a success Friday, saying licensed trappers bagged more than 90 percent of their quota for the third year in a row.

The trappers also avoided the injuries that marred the hunt last year, when one man shot off his finger and another had an arm bitten by a gator, said Mike Jennings, a biologist with the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission.

''We feel we've done a good job educating them on the dangers of hunting alligators,'' Jennings said.

Officials have tallied 2,390 gators thus far - less than the 2,655 quota.

The hunt, which ended Sept. 30, could prove the most lucrative yet for the hunters. Gator hides are fetching $60 to $65 per foot, about $20 more than last year.

The gators are also yielding an average 30 pounds of meat, worth about $5 per pound, said Jennings.

''You're looking at $500 to $600 average value on animals taken during the hunt,'' he said.

Last year's hunt brought about $1.5 million to the hunters, minus their permit fees and other expenses, Jennings said.

There were 178 licensed hunters this year, out of 10,000 who applied for the limited number of permits. Each may bag 15 gators.

Validation tags the state provides makes it easier to sell gator skins on the open market. Japan is a leading consumer of alligator skins. A gator skin suitcase can fetch $15,000 in Tokyo.

The alligator spent 15 years on the endangered list, but officials said it has recovered well enough to support the annual hunt.

The state drew 132 letters of protest from animal rights activists, but complaints have slacked off since last year, officials said.

Half the protests were from outside Florida.

''The letters generally say it's immoral to kill all living things,'' said commission spokesman Henry Cabbage. ''When you consider that there are 12 million people in the state and 220 million people in the country, 132 letters is something we'll pay attention to, but it won't bring the commission to its knees.''

ATHENS, GREECE (OCT. 12) UPI - Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz has renewed an invitation to his Iranian counterpart, Ali Akbar Velayati, to visit Baghdad the Islamic Republic News Agency said Friday.

The renewed invitation came in a meeting between Velayati and Iraqi Deputy Foreign Minister Wisam al Zahawi, currently visiting Tehran.

Monitored in Athens, IRNA said Zahawi also ''voiced the interest of his government to resume diplomatic relations with Iran and exchange diplomatic missions between the two countries.''

During a visit to Tehran last month, Aziz invited Velayati to make a trip to Baghdad and asked Iran to resume diplomatic relations with Iraq, broken off during the 1980-88 war.

Iran agreed in principle to resume ties with Baghdad, but the two sides are still in the process of exchanging low-level official visits to sort out problems left over from the war.

Last month, the families of Iranians killed in the war expressed resentment that Aziz received permission to visit Tehran, but it was not immediately clear whether Velayati delayed making a return trip to Baghdad because of this.

IRNA said the two sides agreed Thursday to set up committees to examine the demarcation of their common border, review the question of prisoners taken during the war and reopen embassies in each other's capitals,

During Zahawi's discussions with Velayati, the two officials also agreed in principle to the formation of a joint military commission. IRNA did not say what function the commission would serve.

Iraq began moves to normalize relations with Iran in an apparent bid to secure its eastern flank after the United States and other nations began a military build-up in Saudi Arabia after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

On Aug. 15, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein accepted all Iranian demands for a durable peace between the two countries, including a division between them of the Shatt al Arab waterway at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Iraq has withdrawn its troops from Iranian territory taken during the Iran-Iraq war, but reports from Tehran said hitches have developed over Iranian POWs whom the Iraqis said they were not holding. Baghdad said the men were missing in action and were probably dead.

Iran has reportedly also sought information on the whereabouts of its former oil minister, Mohammad Javad Tondguyan, captured by Iraqi forces in September 1980, shortly after the war began. The minister is believed to have died under torture in an Iraqi prison.

Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani has made it clear that he considered the current Persian Gulf crisis a separate issue from those arising out of the Iran-Iraq war.

Rafsanjani has insisted that Iraq should pull its troops out of Kuwait and said he would not accept any compromise in which Iraq is given Kuwaiti territory, including the strategic island of Bubiyan.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 12) UPI - Edgars Inde, a Latvian immigrant accused of Nazi war crimes, died at a Minneapolis nursing home. He was 81.

In August 1988, Inde was linked by the federal government to a secret Latvian police unit that executed tens of thousands of Jews and other Lavians during the German occupation of Latvia during World War II.

Inde, who died Wednesday, vehemently denied he was with the secret police and he had aroused no suspicions within the local Latvian community, where he participated in theater and was an active church member.

The Minneapolis man was one of more than 60 men to be investigated by the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigation.

In a civil case seeking to strip him of his U.S. citizenship and deport him, investigators accused Inde of concealing his identity when he entered the United States more than 40 years ago and lying about his membership in the police unit.

But the case had stalled and the government recently placed it in ''indefinite continuance'' because of Inde's health was failing. For the past several months, he had been in poor health at the Willows Central Convalescent Center.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 12) UPI - Like Minnesota's fall weather, the men's open division of the ninth Twin Cities Marathon is unpredicatable.

''We've always had a clear-cut favorite or two,'' says race director Bruce Mortenson. ''But this year it is more of a crap shoot.''

Although last year's winner, Don Janicki, will be missing, three former champions are in Sunday's field, including two-time winner Allan Zachariasen of Denmark, Danny Boltz of Switzerland and Californian Bill Donakowski. Janicki and 1987 Twin Cities Marathon winner Marty Froelick of Colorado are preparing to run in the Columbus (Ohio) Marathon in November, which is an Olympic qualifiying race. The Twin Cities race is not.

''Any one of the top three seeds can win again,'' said Mortenson, ''and we have several others like Jose Luis Chuela who was second here in 1988 Thom Hunt, who was third in 1985.''

The field lost three of its original top 10 seeds in the last two weeks. England's Dave Long scratched because of a stress fracture in his foot. Belgian Eddy Hellebuyck withdrew because he had not recovered from a previous marathon and Paul Gompers of Boston dropped out with pneumonia.

''Long would have been the runner most would have keyed upon,'' said Mortenson. ''That will make it more difficult for a lot of runners. There will likely be more probing to see who has got what. But the scratches haven't wrecked the race. If anything it has made things more interesting.''

The top three finishers in the men's and women's open division collect $25,000 $15,000 and $10,000 respectively from the total purse of $221,500. Zachariasen, 35, has a personal best of 2:11:05. He won the TCM in 1982 with a 2:11:49 and repeated in 1983 with a 2:13:20. This year, he was first at the Barcelona and second at the Houston-Tenneco marathons.

Donakowski, 34, won with a 2:10:41 in 1986, the second fastest TCM time ever, which also is his personal best. Phil Coppess holds the TCM mark with a 2:10:05 in 1985.

Boltz, 28, who won with a 2:14:10 in 1988, ran his best time in the 1987 TCM when he was 2:13:24 for fourth.

The women's division also is missing the defending champion. Last year's winner, Kim Jones of Spokane, Wash., will only run in Saturday's 5,000 kilometer event.

Four-time New Zealand Olympian Anne Audain is the women's top seed with Sylvie Bornet of France ranked second and Sissel Gottenberg of Norway third. Audain, 34, a former world record holder for the 5,000 meters, has a personal marathon best 2:32:05 set in Los Angeles in 1984. Bornet, 30, won the TCM with a 2:30:11 in 1987.

The top two American women are Minnesotan Marie Boyd (fifth seed) and Gordon Bloch (fourth).

Boyd, 30, a surgical resident at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, grew up in Buffalo, Minn., and began running as a undergraduate at Gustavus Adolphus College. Bloch, 29, a freelance editor from New York City has a best of 2:33:01.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - A powerful new radio receiver began scanning the sky from the Southern Hemisphere Friday for messages from intelligent life from outer space.

About 100 people gathered at the Argentine Institute of Radioastronomy outside Buenos Aires as the high-tech receiver was switched on at 10:09 a.m. EDT and began monitoring more than 8 million radio frequencies. Nothing was immediately detected.

''Nobody thinks it's going to get turned on and there will be a, 'Hello, how are you?' sitting there. But this is clearly a significant step forward,'' said astronomer Carl Sagan beforehand.

The new receiver allows astronomers for the first time to systematically search the part of the cosmos visible from the Southern Hemisphere for radio signals from extraterrestrial beings.

''If we were extremely lucky, and there were some relatively nearby civilization broadcasting us a message, but they were in the Southern Hemisphere, we could have blithely been going on all these year and never heard it,'' said Sagan, president of The Planetary Society, which set up the receiver.

Although there is no evidence intelligent life exists on other worlds, it is theoretically possible, Sagan said.

''A lot of scientists, the overwhelming majority, expect there's a lot of life and intelligence,'' Sagan said. ''The whole point is we don't know.''

Astronomers are anxious to scan the sky from the Southern Hemisphere because they will have access to some of the stars nearest Earth, including those in the heart of our own Milky Way galaxy.

''For the first time, we will be a very capable of searching for extraterrestrial intelligence in the other half of the sky,'' Sagan said by telephone from Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

The $150,000 META II or Megachannel Extraterrestrial Assay II receiver will complement META I, which has been scanning the Northern Hemisphere's sky from the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics' Oak Ridge Obseratory in Harvard, Mass., since 1985.

''We've sometimes detected some strange signals,'' said Thomas McDonough, who runs the SETI, or Search for Extraterrestrial Intelligence project, for the Pasadena, Calif.-based Planetary Society, which promotes space exploration.

''In most cases we've been able to track them down as being from the sun or our own civilization. We have on occasion detected strange signals. But they have not repeated. The most likely explanation is they are from our civilization. But we don't know for sure,'' McDonough said.

With its dish antenna 98 feet in diameter, the new receiver can simultaneously scan 8.4 million radio frequencies, systemically moving across the sky in search of incoming signals.

There have been previous searches, but the new receiver, run by the Organization of Argentine Astronomers, will be the first permanent outpost that will continuously sweep the entire sky, McDonough said.

NASA, meanwhile, is trying to get money for a 10-year, $100 million SETI project that would monitor 20 million radio channels every second.

MOSCOW (OCT. 12) UPI - The Russian Federation Supreme Court overturned the Moscow City Court's dismissal of a suit by a fired KGB general Friday and ordered the local court to re-examine the case against Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov.

The high court's ruling gave new life to the complaint by Oleg Kalugin, who claims that the government's June 29 edict stripping him of his rank of major general was a political decision provoked by his criticism of the KGB.

''I am convinced, as before, that Oleg Kalugin will win this case,'' the KGB dissident's attorney, Boris Kuznetsov, told the independent Interfax news service.

Kalugin has also filed suits against President Mikhail Gorbachev, who in a separate decree stripped him of all state awards, and KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov, who took away his pension after Ryzhkov removed his rank.

The Moscow City Court had said it rejected Kalugin's case against Ryzhkov last month because the decree was technically issued not by the prime minister, but by the government he heads.

''The decision is revoked,'' the official Tass news agency said of the lower court's ruling. ''A new decision has been made - to reconsider the complaint of Oleg Kalugin in the city court.''

The Russian republic's high court also instructed Kalugin to specify whether his suit is directed against Ryzhkov personally or against the Soviet government.

Kuznetsev had presented the Moscow court with letters from 14 Soviet ministers saying that Kalugin's case was never discussed at a meeting of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers even though the order stripping him of his military rank was issued in the name of the government.

In the separate suit against Kryuchkov, attorneys for the KGB chief argued that Soviet law required him to take away Kalugin's pension once he had been stripped of his rank.

Kalugin, who served 32 years in the KGB as an agent and then senior intelligence officer before his forced retirement in March, burst into public prominence early this year when he criticized the KGB at political rallies and in newspaper interviews with Western reporters.

Kalugin said the intelligence agency was still controlled by the Communist Party, run by corrupt men and obsessed with internal political protest despite Gorbachev's glasnost reforms.

His attacks against the secret police reviled by many Soviets made him into an instant folk hero and carried him to election victory last month, when he defeated a hard-line Communist to gain a seat in the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies.

PANMUNJOM, KOREA (OCT. 12) UPI - The U.S.-led United Nations Command called on North Korea Friday to return the remains of U.S. soldiers and other UNC personnel held in North Korea since the 1950-53 Korean War.

The request was made amid some heated exchanges between U.S. and North Korean representatives at the 458th meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission held at the truce village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul.

U.S. Navy Rear Adm. Larry G. Vogt, the UNC senior delegate, touched on the remains question while asking North Korea to agree to measures for confidence building and relaxation of tensions between the two sides.

''An easy confidence building measure for you to do is to return the remains of all the United Nations Command personnel in your possession,'' Vogt told his communist counterpart, North Korean Army Maj. Gen. Choe Ui-ung.

''Your side publicly stated on Oct. 4 that you are holding the remains of 11 United Nations Command military personnel from the Korean War.

''We welcome welcome this notification. The United Nations Command stands ready to receive those remains. Let us know the earliest date our secretaries can meet to arrange repatriation.''

North Korea invaded the South on June 25, 1950, starting the three- year conflict. The United States led 15 other U.N. member nations to help South Korea repel the invasion.

More than 33,629 U.S. military personnel and 3,143 soldiers from the other U.N. member countries were killed during the hostilities, according to official records. A total of 8,177 U.S. soldiers are still listed as missing in action while 389 U.S. prisoners of war are still unaccounted for.

On May 28 this year, North Korea returned the remains of five men purported to be U.S. soldiers. Positive identification of the remains has not yet been completed.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 12) UPI - National Steel Corp. said Friday an industrial park site in Windsor, Ontario, has been chosen for a new $200 million joint venture continuous galvanizing line with Canadian and Japanese partners.

The Pittsburgh firm is linking up with Dofasco Inc. of Canada and NKK Corp. of Japan to purchase the land. A conditional offer will be finalized when the city of Windsor completes site preparation, officials said.

The 28-acre site is in the Ojibway Industrial Park near the Detroit River in the southwest area of the city. Construction of the 400,000- ton-per-year line will begin soon and should be completed in early 1993.

State-of-the-art production equipment, already in place in NKK's No. 2 Fukuyama facility, will be used to produce high quality, hot-dip galvanized steel for automotive markets in both the United States and Canada.

National Steel will own 10 percent of the new company; NKK, 40 percent; and Dofasco, 50 percent. The facility will operate as a toll coating line, with marketing and distribution shared by Dofasco and National Steel.

TAMPA, FL (OCT. 12) UPI - Brenda Urban wanted to have her baby delivered in the comfort of a birthing center. Instead, she got a reclining passenger's seat in a Hyundai stuck on a three-mile bridge in the middle of a tropical storm.

Garrett Michael Urban, 6 pounds, 2 ounces, came into the world early Thursday while Tropical Storm Marco battered the Tampa Bay area and his terrified father tried to get around a slow-moving tractor-trailer.

''I kept saying, 'He's coming out, I can feel it!''' said Urban, 27, from her home in Carrollwood.

''It didn't register with my husband that he was really coming out,'' she said. ''He finally turned on the car light and looked and said, 'He's coming out!' And I said, 'Yeah, I know.'''

''It was scary, being stuck on the Howard Frankland with no end in sight,'' said her husband, Rick, 26, a computer salesman. ''I was prepared to stop on the middle of the bridge and take care of it right then.''

''He just kind of delivered himself,'' Rick Urban said. ''I was driving with one hand and with the other hand making sure he didn't slide off the seat.''

The couple had prepared well for their child. They had taken Lamaze classes, selected a midwife who would deliver little Garrett at The Birthing Center in St. Petersburg, and even had a compact disk of soothing jazz music to play during the delivery. Marco spoiled all that.

What was going through Rick Urban's mind when his son was being born? ''How often do we have these storms?'' he said. ''Why is this happening to me?''

Once he reached the end of the Howard Frankland Bridge, Rick Urban stopped the car, the couple unwrapped the cord from the child's neck and Rick laid him on his mother to keep him warm. He then drove to The Birthing Center.

Unfortunately, midwife Ivy Richmond, in a rush to reach Brenda Urban, accidently locked the door to the center, and the trio rushed to nearby Bayfront Medical Center, where Richmond cut away the umbilical cord.

Garrett was pronounced in good health and went home with his parents Thursday afternoon, just about the time the first rays of post-storm sunlight were peeking through the clouds.

''In the emergency room, they said we should name him Howard Frankland or Howard Marco,'' Brenda Urban said. ''But I wouldn't want to name him Howard.''

Rick Urban said the couple should not have been surprised by the storm. After all, the compact disk he selected was titled, ''After the Rain.''

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 12) UPI - Mark DeJohn has been named the manager of the Louisville (Ky.) Redbirds, the Class AAA affiliate of the St. Louis Cardinals, team officials said Friday.

DeJohn, who managed the Johnson City (Tenn.) Cardinals rookie league team to a 28-42 record last season, is entering his sixth full season of managing professional baseball.

The 37-year-old DeJohn replaces Gaylen Pitts, who earlier this week was chosen by St. Louis Manager Joe Torre to join the parent club's coaching staff. This year, Louisville finished third in the American Association under Pitts.

DeJohn began his managerial career in 1985 with Detroit's Class AA affiliate in Birmingham, Ala.

In 1986, DeJohn was named manager of the Savannah (Ga.) Cardinals and led the club to a 75-60 record. DeJohn managed the Savannah Cardinals for two seasons before taking the helm at Class A Springfield (Ill.) in the Midwest League. He managed the Springfield club to a first-place finish in the Southern Division's second-half.

DeJohn was drafted by the New York Mets in 1971 and played in the Mets' farm system until 1977. He then signed with the Toronto Blue Jays but never played in their organization.

The former infielder saw his only major-league action in 1982 when he played 24 games with Detroit and finished his career the following season.

He served as a minor league instructor for the Tigers in 1984. He left his position as manager in the Detroit organization in 1985 to become a coach for the Kansas City Royals' Eugene (Ore.) club in the Northwest League.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - President Bush met with Estonian leaders Friday and agreed all three breakaway Baltic republics should take part next month at the 34-nation summit meeting of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Though the once heated question of Baltic secession has been largely pushed from the front pages by the twin crises of the gulf and the budget, Bush spent 40 minutes in the Oval Office discussing the status of the republics' efforts to gain independence from the Soviet Union.

After the session, Estonian Prime Minister Edgar Savisaar said a growing number of countries in Eastern Europe were backing Baltic participation in the CSCE process.

''Our contacts recently with Scandinavian countries and what used to be called East European countries have shown that Baltic participation is regarded as necessary,'' Savisaar told reporters. ''If at the same time a strong attitude is taken by the United States ... this would leave the Soviet Union in political isolation, and hardly would the Soviet Union want that.''

The Estonian foreign minister, Lennart Meri, also attended the session with Bush and Secretary of State James Baker and said the president had ''absolutely'' agreed that Baltic representatives should attend the CSCE summit meeting scheduled for Paris Nov. 19-21.

''We stressed that three independent Baltic countries would be a major stabilizing factor in northern Europe,'' said Meri. ''And I'm very glad to say that we had exactly the same views.''

Though some ''technical questions'' remained to be solved, he added, ''I think that it is only a matter of time that (the required) consensus (for full membership from CSCE nations) will get achieved.''

Asked if the republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, each which has expressed a desire for a break with Moscow, should attend the summit, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, ''We support observer status.''

Earlier this month, Baker told a gathering of CSCE foreign ministers in New York that the United States would be in favor of the Baltic states joining the CSCE but would not press the case because ''there does not appear to be a consensus for that right now'' - presumably referring to Soviet opposition.

The Baltic challenges to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev initially were championed by Bush but the issue has largely fallen to the wayside as Bush has sought international consensus in handling the gulf crisis. Independence talks between Estonia and the Soviet Union also have stalled.

The United States does not recognize the Soviet annexation of the Baltics.

Meri also remarked that though ''pressing a superpower'' was not the best way to go, the leaders had entered ''a new phase of cooperation'' and that Bush had accepted an invitation to fish for salmon.

''So it's the beginning of cooperation,'' he said.

HONOLULU (OCT. 12) UPI - Portland Trail Blazer guard Clyde Drexler said he has agreed to terms on a 1-year extension of his 5-year contract with the NBA Western Conference champs, paying him more than $8 million for the 1995-96 season.

That one-season payout is believed to be the highest agreed upon for one season for any athlete in a team sport.

Drexler said Thursday night he had not yet signed the contract but had reached agreement with the team on the deal adding a sixth year to his existing contract, which pays him an estimated $1.2 million this season.

The $8 million payment brings his average salary to $2.5 million, making him the highest-paid Blazer.

''I think this shows good faith on the part of the organization,'' Drexler said. ''It's a fair contract. I'm happy about it.''

''It's a tribute to (owner) Paul Allen and Geoff Petrie that it was done,'' he added. ''I'm happy it's over with. I think this might be my last contract. I hope I retire in Portland and that I've got two or three championships by then.''

Petrie, the team's senior vice president-operations, said he expected Drexler to sign the contract before the team begins its exhibition schedule Friday night against the Los Angeles Lakers. The two teams play again Saturday night, also in Honolulu.

''Obviously, we'll be very happy to get it completed,'' he said. ''It's a fulfillment of the club's commitment to look at Clyde's deal.''

BRUSSELS, Belgium (OCT. 12) UPI - Mediterranean countries in the European Community are resisting an proposal to cut subsidies on all farm products in world trade-liberalization talks, diplomats said Friday.

The EC executive Commission has proposed subsidy reductions of 10 percent on fruits, vegetables and wine - compared to 30 percent on other farm products - but Spain, Portugal and Greece are resisting even the 10 percent cuts, diplomats said.

Northern countries in the EC - including Britain, Holland and Germany - have indicated subsidies must be cut across the board.

British Agriculture Minister John Gummer has referred to the principle of ''equal misery'' in the context of talks in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The EC Commission proposal would cut farm supports on cereal, livestock, certain dairy products and other items 30 percent over a 10- year period, using 1986 as the base year.

Agriculture ministers of the 12-nation EC meet in Luxembourg Tuesday to consider the Community's proposal for the GATT talks, and differences between the Mediterranean and the North are expected to be discussed.

The EC foreign trade ministers will then meet Thursday to finalize an EC proposal.

The United States plans to submit its GATT plan Monday. The U.S. proposal calls for cuts of 90 percent in export subsidies and 75 percent in internal supports and tariff barriers.

Italy, which holds the rotating EC presidency, has been sympathetic to its Mediterranean neighbors, and some EC diplomats in Brussels have privately criticized Italy for running sloppy meetings on GATT.

''There's not a lot of evidence that Italy is trying to pull it all together '' said one EC diplomat.

The current round of GATT talks, known as the Uruguay Round, is slated to end in Brussels in December.

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) UPI - Mayor David Dinkins Friday planned to call for slashing $2.3 billion in spending for city construction projects over the next four years to reduce the rising cost of city debt at a time of grave fiscal problems.

Mayoral aides said the city adopted a ''no growth'' policy in the $22 billion four-year capital budget program unveiled this spring but now was being forced to take more severe actions because of the rapidly deteriorating economy.

The only projects exempted will be those mandated by federal or state government programs or those that are substantially completed, said spokesman Lee Jones.

Many agency projects may have to be delayed or postponed indefinitely, he said.

Jail construction may be exempted. Some bridge repair work, mass transit and housing contruction could be spared as well, but some of those projects may have to be put off, Jones said.

Details of the $2.3 billion cost-cutting program were not available, but the mayor was to send a message to all city agencies telling them how much they have to cut and asking them how they plan to meet that goal, he said.

This was separate from the mayor's efforts to cut agency spending on operations to close a $1.4 billion gap in its expense budget, which funds city programs and salaries.

The administration last spring already called for reducing debt service costs by $2.1 billion over the next four years.

Debt service on the city's borrowing to pay for construction projects cost $1.6 billion in the current Fiscal 1991 budget year or 7 cents out of every city budget dollar. It was up from $1.2 billion in the previous year despite the administration's effort to cut debt service costs.

Debt service as a percentage of total city revenues was about 10.5 percent in 1984 and fell to about 6.5 percent in 1990.

But the administration's plan released last spring projected it would rise to more than 9 percent by Fiscal 1992, hit 10 percent the following year and 11 percent by Fiscal 1994. Those figures could get even higher because of the worsening economy.

Of the city's $22 billion capital spending program, $7 billion goes for environmental protection and sanitation projects such as sewers and sewage treatment; $4.5 billion goes for transportation and transit; $3.4 billion goes for education; $2.4 billion for housing and human resources; $1.3 billion for health and hospitals; $1.7 billion for criminal justice and public safety; $0.9 billion for public buildings; $0.7 billion for recreation and cultural; and $0.3 bilion for ports and economic development.

The bulk of projects financed by non-city funds are transportation, water quality and housing construction programs.

(OCT. 12) UPI - Egyptian officials and witnesses report that four men on two motorbikes machine-gunned to death the speaker of the Egyptian Parliament, his driver and three bodyguards. The shooting erupted near the heavily guarded U-S and British Embassy compounds in downtown Cairo. There was NO immediate claim of responsibility for the attack. One witness near the scene reported that one of the gunmen may have been hit by gunfire in the attack. An intensive manhunt was launched.

Effects of soaring gasoline prices last month are showing up in two major economic reports released in Washington this morning. The record 20-point-six percent jump in gasoline prices shoved wholesale prices ahead one-point-six percent last month. That leaves inflation at the wholesale level up six-point-three percent for the first nine months of the year. The increase for the past two months is the largest since 1980.

Gasoline sales also pushed overall retail sales up one-point-one percent last month. The Commerce Department said the increae would have been eight-tenths of one percent if gasoline is left out. Department store sales were off nine-tenths of one percent. Clothing stores reported sales down one-point-five percent. And this came during a month when parents should have been buying new clothing for children heading back to school.

Economists for the Business Council say the American economy faces a significant chance of a recession and very weak growth through the middle of next year. A majority of the council economists agreed that slower growth is ahead, but only five of 19 economists said a recession is already likely under way. The economists put the probability of a recession by the end of the year at 39 percent... up from 22 percent in the Spring.

KIGALI, RWANDA (OCT. 12) UPI - The shooting war in Rwanda intensified Friday, official reports and western diplomats said, as government troops and rebels pushed each other from town to town through the forests and bush in the northeast of the country.

''Our forces were fighting hard to defeat the invading rebels,'' official Radio Rwanda said, claiming to have driven them out of two towns - Gabiro, in a forest national park 40 miles northeast of the capital Kigali, and Muvumba, the same distance north of the capital.

But Belgian media reports said the Gabiro claim was outdated, that rebels had retaken the town, killing 57 Zairean soldiers, part of a 500- strong contingent sent to help Rwandan President Juvenal Habyarimana last week.

Western diplomats in Kigali said they feared the war, begun Sep. 30 by several thousand refugee exiles from Uganda, could settle into an extended unwinnable guerrilla contest.

The Rwandan goverment, meanwhile, at pains to defuse reports its armed forces were massacring civilians in the name of defending the state, said it released 1,193 people arrested on suspicion of supporting the rebels.

Rwandans fleeing into Uganda, from where the rebels launched their attack, claimed Wednesday at least 1,000 civilians had been rounded up and shot, probably because they were members of Rwanda''s minority Tutsi tribe.

Rwanda, ruled by the majority Hutu since independence in 1963, had a history of tribal killings in the 1960s, the very massacres that drove the rebels, or their parents, out of the country.

Belgium and France, who sent troops to Rwanda last week to protect their citizens in the former Belgian colony, demanded a full explanation of the massacre reports from Habyarimana's government and asked that International Red Cross representatives be allowed to visit detainees in Kigali.

Over 3,000 people were arrested in the capital earlier in the week as suspected rebel sympathizers. They included prominent intellectuals, churchmen and army officers of both Tutsi and Hutu origin.

MONTREAL (OCT. 12) UPI - The Seagram Company said Friday its Florida-based Tropicana Products Inc. subsidiary will join forces with Kirin Brewery Co. Ltd. to produce and market juices and fruit-based beverages in Japan.

The new joint venture company, Kirin-Tropicana Inc., will be based in Tokyo.

The deal with Kirin is the first major expansion into worldwide markets since Tropicana's International Group was established in 1989, said Tropicana President Robert L. Soran.

Soran said in a statement that the deal will give Tropicana ''a meaningful position in the fast-growing Japanese market.''

Kirin will be Tropicana's equity partner as well as exclusive distributor for the joint venture's products. Tropicana will supply a variety of chilled and non-refrigerated juices and fruit beverage products while Kirin-Tropicana will be responsible for product development and marketing.

Tropicana, headquartered in Bradenton, Fla., is a leading producer of premium fruit juices and juice-based beverages in the United States.

Kirin, the world's fifth largest brewery, controls 50 percent of the Japanese beer market and is one of Japan's leading soft drink producers.

The deal between Seagram and Kirin builds on a relationship that dates from 1971 when Kirin-Seagram Ltd. was established to help Seagram expand into markets in Asia. Kirin-Seagram distributes Seagram's distilled spirits and liquors in Japan.

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) UPI - Brash Bart Simpson took on Bill Cosby in head-to-head original episodes last Thursday and the overnight figures released Friday show ''The Simpsons'' edging out ''The Cosby Show'' in the time period.

That assures ''The Simpsons'' and Fox Broadcasting at least a close second when the national figures are released, since in the past there has been a drop-off from the 24-city overnights to the comprehensive nationwide viewing figures.

In the overnights, ''The Simpsons'' had a 19.9 rating and a 30 share, while ''The Cosby Show'' on NBC had a 19.3 rating and a 29 share.

''The Simpsons'' apparently brought viewers to television that do not ordinarily watch during that time period, because ''Cosby'' was down only slightly from its national numbers of the previous week, while ''Simpsons'' was way up. The three major networks and Fox combined in the overnights for an 84 percent share of the viewing audience, compared to their normal 79 percent.

It was the first time both shows were face-to-face with original episodes - until now ''Simpsons'' has been on reruns.

The previous week, with an original ''Cosby'' against a repeat ''Simpsons,'' ''Cosby was the No. 2 show for the week with a 19.5 rating and a 33 share, while ''Simpsons'' was in 65th place on the A.C. Nielsen list with a 9.6 rating and a 16 share.

Fox reported that this was the second highest overnight delivery ever for ''The Simpsons,'' which last March 18 scored a 20.7 rating and a 30 share, which translated into a national rating of 17.5 with 26 share.

Each ratings point represents about 921,000 households. A share is the percentage of TV sets in use that are tuned to a particular show or network.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (OCT. 12) UPI - A Nebraska native who collected art, jewelry and built a $1 million home in a pricey Kansas City-area development has been charged with embezzling $3.3 million from Citibank N.A., a newspaper said Friday.

Becky Schafer, 28, pleaded guilty Thursday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan to charges she embezzled the money from Citibank, her former employer, the Kansas City Star said.

A Citibank spokesman in New York told the Star the theft was the biggest the bank has seen in a decade.

Schafer, free on $50,000 bond, is scheduled to be sentenced in January.

She was arrested Aug. 3 at a house she bought on the Lake of the Ozarks, three days before she and her husband Peter were to move into their new home in Hallbrook Farms, a development in the Kansas City suburb of Leawood, Kan.

Citibank has repossessed the Hallbrook house and the lake home, valued at $150,000, the Star said.

''It was a Cinderella story in which the glass slipper didn't fit,'' said Max Geiman, an FBI spokesman in Kansas City. ''She didn't have time to enjoy the profits she wanted to have.''

Schafer moved to New York after her 1984 marriage to Peter, an agriculture student at the Unversity of Nebraska-Lincoln. Both got jobs at a large corporation.

Schafer later joined Citibank's Corporate Trust Services department as operations manager, where she handled billings and payments. She found several trust accounts that had been unused for years, according to federal investigators in New York and Kansas City.

The criminal complaint against Schafer claims she stole readily from the unused accounts.

She had access to Citibank checks and also was authorized to sign corporate-trust checks. By the time Citibank became aware of the scheme, the Star said, she had made off with 165 checks totaling more than $3 million.

The checks went directly to pay the Schafers' personal debt, court records say.

The bank and federal prosecutors said Schafer began stealing from the bank in 1987.

In 1989, her lifestyle became lavish. She and her husband and infant daughter flew across the Atlantic on the Concorde and the couple bought jewelry and art in Paris.

Schafer, whose salary at Citibank was $40,000 a year, wrote $1 million in checks to a Kansas City builder. In June, she wrote the last check to the builder and also applied for membership to Hallbrook Farms Country Club.

A country club officer in late July called Citibank to check Schafer's references. She had just left the bank, which checked its records and alerted the FBI.

Peter Schafer, also 28, was not charged with a criminal offense. However, Citibank accused him of complicity in the embezzlement in a suit filed in Johnson County, Kan., District Court. The suit, filed in August, seeks unspecified damages.

Becky Schafer faces a sentence of up to 20 years in jail, the Star said.

MOSCOW (OCT. 12) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev issued a decree on property Friday that appeared designed to protect the huge holdings of the Communist Party and official trade unions.

Gorbachev's decree was a response to ''illegal confiscations of property belonging to state and public institutions and organizations as well as encroachments on the property of individuals,'' the official Tass news agency said.

Nearly all property in the Soviet Union is still owned by the state, the Communist Party or official organizations, despite talk of privatization as part of economic reform plans.

The decree came four days after the city of Ternopol in the Ukraine ordered an inventory of Communist Party property as a first step toward the city taking ownership of the buildings and land.

Friday's decree ordered that Interior Ministry troops ''take under protection, if need be, the items of state and collective property in case they are threatened with illegal confiscation.''

LONDON (OCT. 12) UPI - Stock prices closed mixed Friday on the London International Stock Exchange, caught between hopes of diplomatic solutions in the Persian Gulf and poor company performances.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 19.6 points Thursday eased 1.8 points to 2,100.4. The narrower top 30 industrial average added 3.1 points to 1,622.0.

Volume amounted to around a light 375 million shares compared with 361 million shares changing hands on Thursday.

News that Soviet diplomats reached an understanding with Saddam Hussein over a possible pull-back from Kuwait, helped push the market higher, but was discounted by dealers later in the day.

Analysts said investors largely ignored a Central Statistical Office report on Britain's September inflation figure of 10.9 percent, the highest in eight years.

Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer John Major said September's rise in the inflation rate ''was expected.''

Major commented at the ruling Conservative Party's conference in Bournemouth.

On Thursday Major forecast that inflation will ''no doubt'' fall sharply in the next year but declined to give any specific forecast on when interest rates might ease.

Among the most widely traded stocks, banking stocks were hit by news released after the close on Thursday that Chemical Banking Corp. in the U.S. was reducing its cash dividend by 63 percent.

Barclays Bank PLC lost 15 cents to $6.58 and National Westminister eased 6 cents to $4.76. Standard Charter and Midland Bank also lost ground.

Media shares were hard-hit by news of financial difficulties facing global media barons Rupert Murdoch and Robert Maxwell.

Maxwell Communications slumped 8 cents to $2.54 on announced asset sales.

In the oil patch, oil and related issues were hit by profit-takers and a slight easing of crude prices. British Petroleum lost 9 cents $6.63.

Elsewhere, in Frankfurt, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed higher spurred by hopes of a possible peacefuly settlement in the Middle East.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 21.27 points Thursday, added another 31.22 points or 2.2 percent to 1,459.70.

Analysts noted the gain was spread broadly across the market and followed market leading blue chips in more active trading that has been in recent weeks.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 12) UPI - Britain introduced documents Friday that appeared to balance the views of U.N. Security Council members and the Palestine Liberation Organization while seeking a special condemnation of ''acts of violence'' by Israel in Jerusalem's Old City.

The documents were given to the council's 15 members as they resumed negotiations on one of the most divisive issues the council has dealt with since its unanimous stand against Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The council took a one-day pause Thursday so its members could consult with their home governments and discuss positions held by the PLO, non-aligned countries and the five permanent members of the council on the Palestinian issue.

''We are now at a stage where we have to fish or cut bait on this particular effort,'' U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering told reporters as he joined other government representatives for closed negotiations.

The president of the council, British Ambassador David Hannay, said a drafted resolution and a statement by him were distributed Friday, and he was waiting for reaction.

''I would not say we are near anything,'' Hannay warned.

Pickering said there has been some ''opening of position and the non- aligned (countries) have begun to respond to the needs of the council.''

Diplomats said non-aligned countries were split between pro-Western and pro-PLO groups.

Pickering said the non-aligned, which represent the largest voting bloc in the United Nations, have indicated that they would not automatically support demands by the PLO.

''This is a healthy sign, and we are moving in the right direction. We are firmly supported by our friends here,'' Pickering said.

''I am upbeat today about the possibility to move to a vote ... as soon as possible,'' the ambassador said.

The British-drafted resolution contained modifications that were ''acceptable'' to the United States, Pickering said.

The resolution stipulated that the council was ''alarmed by the violence'' by both sides at the Temple Mount's Western Wall in Jerusalem on Monday, in which rock-throwing Palestinian demonstrators attacked Jewish worshipers. An intervention by Jerusalem police using rubber bullets and live ammunition killed at least 21 Palestinians.

It said the council ''especially condemns the acts of violence committed by the Israeli security forces and deplores the resulting injuries and loss of human life.''

The resolution made no mention of a PLO demand that a U.N. investigation should provide recommendations on ''ways and means'' to protect Palestinian civilians in Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. The United States opposed that the PLO demand be written in the resolution, which said only that a mission by Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar should report its findings before the end of October.

The PLO demand, however, was included in Hannay's statement, which will be read to the council whenever the resolution is adopted. The statement said Perez de Cuellar's mission would ''attempt to determine what might be done to enhance the safety and protection of the Palestinian civilians living in occupied territories.''

The statement reminded Israel, as the territories' occupying power, that it is responsible for the protection of Palestinians living in the regions according to Geneva conventions that protect civilians in a war zone.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - A group of Messianic Jews - those who accept Jesus as the promised Messiah - asked Israel's parliament Friday to change the Law of Return, which grants automatic citizenship to returning Jews but currently excludes members of the sect.

The request, by the Union of Messianic Jewish Congregations, stems from a December 1989 Israeli Supreme Court ruling, which held that Jews who accept Jesus as their savior hold a faith other than Judaism.

But leaders of the group argue that the ruling amounts to official discrimination against Messianic Jews and note that secular Jews, who may not believe in God, are granted automatic citizenship under the Law of Return.

Messianic Jews generally remain closely tied to Jewish religious and cultural practices, keeping the Shabbat (sabbath) and observing Passover and other Jewish holy days but break with Judaism over the question of whether Jesus was the promised Messiah, a contention Judaism rejects.

''The decision to exclude Messianic Jews from automatic citizenship under the Law of Return sets a dangerous precedent,'' said Elliot Klayman, past president of the UMJC. ''Today the Messianic Jews are barred. Tomorrow it could be the Reconstructionist, Reform, atheist or any other Jew whose thoughts do not conform to that of the powerful religious parties.''

The Law of Return was adopted in 1950 shortly after the establishment of the state of Israel.

It has been the focus of a great deal of controversy in recent years as the Israeli religious establishment - controlled by ultra-Orthodox groups - has sought legislation aimed to add restrictions to the law.

Orthodox leaders have sought to bar from automatic citizenship converts to Judaism if the conversion was performed by a Reform or Conservative rabbi.

The Messianic Jewish group said it is filing a formal petition with Speaker of the Knesset Dov Shilanski on the issue and that it is writing Israeli president Chaim Herzog and Prime Minister Yitzak Shamir as well as President Bush on the matter.

UMJC officials say there are some 100,000 Jews around the world who believe in Jesus. The UMJC claims 60 congregations in the United States, Canada and South America.

In the letter to the Knesset, UMJC officials said that public opinion polls in Israel have shown that 75 percent of Israeli citizens believe Messianic Jews should have the right of citizenship under the Law of Return.

Refusing to do so ''creates a double standard at a time when the question of 'who is a Jew?' is far from settled throughout the Jewish world,'' the letter said.

''The state of Israel was established as a refuge and homeland for Jewish people,'' the letter said. ''It was designed to gather the scattered back to the land as a safe haven from persecutors. The intent of the founding fathers was to not to be exclusive but inclusive.

''Messianic Jews fought and dies in the war against the Nazis. Messianic Jews perished in ghettos. Messianic Jews have always paid the price of being Jewish just like other Jews. Must we now pay a price exacted from us by our own brethren?'' the letter asked.

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (OCT. 12) UPI - The United States detonated a nuclear weapon 2,000 feet beneath the Nevada desert Friday, the third such test since the Iraq-Kuwait crisis.

The blast registered 5.7 on the Richter scale at the Earthquake Center in Golden, Colo., and was felt in Las Vegas, 105 miles away, less than one minute after the 10:30 a.m. blast.

Some Las Vegas residents reported feeling a slight swaying in the wake of the blast.

U.S. Department of Energy spokesman Jim Boyer, speaking from a control point 34 miles from ground zero, said no radiation leaked into the atmosphere.

Airplanes and helicopters equipped with cameras and radiation detection equipment circled ground zero at blast time.

''The test was successful. Everything went well,'' Boyer said.

The test of the nuclear weapon, with a yield of 20 to 150 kilotons, was code named ''Tenabo'' and was the seventh announced nuclear detonation by the United States this year. It was the third U.S. nuclear weapons test in the past four weeks.

The atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima during World War II was a 13 kiloton weapon.

The nuclear weapon detonated Friday was positioned in a mined out chamber at the bottom of a vertical shaft sunk into Pahute Mesa, a 5, 000-foot high volcanic plateau located deep within the boundaries of the Nevada Test Site.

The test shaft was plugged with grout and cement to prevent radioactive material and gasses from escaping into the atmopshere.

The detonation, originally scheduled for 7 a.m. Thursday, has been delayed several times - once because of a technical difficulty and other times because adverse winds would have carried an accidental leak of radiation toward Las Vegas.

Since the Nevada Test Site became operational in 1951, a total of 706 nuclear tests have been conducted at the facility, including 501 since the signing of the Limited Test Ban Treaty with the Soviets in 1963. The treaty, in effect, requires that nuclear weapons tests be conducted undergound to prevent accidental radiation releases from drifting across international borders.

The Nevada Test Site, the heart of the country's nuclear weapons testing, is a 1,350-square-mile outdoor nuclear testing laboratory the size of Rhode Island.

SOFIA, BULGARIA (OCT. 12) UPI - The government fired more than two-thirds of Bulgaria's secret police force since the ouster of hard-line leader Todor Zhivkov in November, Interior Minister Pencho Penev said Friday.

Penev, in testimony to Parliament, said a total of 5,139 ministry positions were cut between Nov. 10 and the end of August.

A few former security workers were reassigned to regular police duty but most were either retired or released to find work outside the government, he said.

The secret police network was one of the Zhivkov government's main tools for rooting out dissention and enforcing an official policy of repressing the country's ethnic Turkish minority.

Penev said candidates for security positions were now being evaluated for moral character as well as mental and physical fitness.

ATHENS, GREECE (OCT. 12) UPI - NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner held discussions Friday with Greek Prime Minister Constantine Mitsotakis and other Greek leaders on the Persian Gulf crisis and NATO's role in it.

Woerner, who arrived in Athens late Thursday and also met President Constantine Karamanlis, discussed the changes in NATO's role in Europe because of changes sweeping the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Officials said the NATO chief discussed the gulf crisis and NATO's role in the crisis. The Cyprus problem, Greece's relations with Turkey and the situation in the Balkans were also taken up.

Details of the discussions were not disclosed, but Foreign Minister Antonis Samaras told reporters after a one-hour meeting with the secretary-general that Greece would have the right to receive some surplus NATO weapons.

He said the Atlantic alliance was planning to get rid of the surplus that it would have on its hands after an agreement on the reduction of conventional weapons in Europe.

Samaras said he also discussed with the NATO chief the increased importance of the alliance's southern flank. He said he told Woerner the alliance should show the same sensitivity to the Cyprus issue as it did to the gulf crisis.

Greece has drawn parallels between the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2 and the Turkish invasion of Cyprus in 1974. Athens wants NATO-ally Turkey to pull its troops out of northern Cyprus.

''Greece unreservedly backs the restoration of legality and international law in the gulf crisis but at the same time the Cyprus problem is comparable,'' Mitsotakis said.

He said, ''We expect equal sensitivity from all our allies and from the entire world community.'' But he said that ''as a friend and ally of Turkey, (Greece) will settle the differences between us in a spirit of justice.''

The prime minister said Greece did not oppose the entry of Turkey into the European Community, but this should happen after, or simultaneously with, a settlement of the Cyprus issue and other problems outstanding between Athens and Ankara.

The NATO chief said he hoped ''Greece and Turkey will achieve progress in their mutual relations, resolving the problems that divide them in a spirit of cooperation.''

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 12) UPI - Stock of MCA Inc. jumped more than $3 a share Friday on reports that it has begun providing confidential data to Matsushita Electric Industral Co., which may buy the entertainment giant for up to $8 billion.

MCA stock was up $3.25 share to $57.125 in early afternoon trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

''The stock has been very volatile since the negotiations were disclosed on even the slightest change in perception of how likely the deal is to go through,'' said Steven Hill, an entertainment analyst with Sutro & Co. in San Francisco.

MCA spokeswoman Christine Hansen said the company would have no comment on the report, which said that the Japanese company would be able to view extensive private information about MCA in return for a promise not to disclose the data to others.

MCA has imposed a news blackout on the negotiations since confirming last week that it was talking with Matsushita.

''Any kind of disclosure agreement would make investors more confident that a deal is going through,'' Hill said.

MCA's shares jumped more than $26 a share in two days following the initial disclosure on Sept. 25 that it was holding acquisition talks. The stock reached a peak of $64.125 last week, but has fallen since then as investors reacted to reports that Matsushita does not want to buy the MCA theme parks in California and Florida.

MCA also owns Universal Studios, several record labels, an extensive film library, $500 million worth of Los Angeles real estate, several publishers, and half-interests in the Cineplex Odeon chain and the USA Network cable channel. It could not sell its WWOR television station in New Jersey to a foreign buyer.

Analysts have valued the company at $85 a share, or about $8 billion.

Several Japanese news reports have speculated that Matsushita wants to pay about $65 a share, or about $6 billion, for MCA.

WARSAW, POLAND (OCT. 12) UPI - Former Communist Party leader Edward Gierek made his first public appearence Friday since his ouster in 1980 following a revolt and said communism can still be reformed.

Gierek, 78, said at a news conference in the luxurious Holiday Inn hotel he still believes in the communist ideology despite the fact that communism did not stand a test of time in Poland nor in other East Bloc countries.

''I believe in communism but in another one,'' he said.

Gierek arrived in Warsaw from the southwestern city of Katowice where he has lived since his ouster to attend a conference promoting his book he wrote about his 10-year rule.

The book titled ''A broken decade'' became a bestseller and more than 1 million copies were sold across Poland.

He defended his economic policy under which Poland's debt in the West grew to $28 billion. It now totals $42 billion.

According to Gierek, the revolt that led to the formation of the Solidarity labor union was inspired by secret police agents from the Interior Ministry.

''Nobody should blame communists for this what they did,'' he said, adding that the credits tied Poland with the West.

''We could have become one of the Soviet republics if we had not implemnented that kind of policy,'' he said.

The opinion of the economists is that huge credits were wasted because of the mismanagement and inefficiency of the communism system.

Gierek admitted that ''there was something that did not work in the previous system'' but expressed his conviction that ''communism is reformable.''

Turning to the period when he was in power and had many supporters, including present President Wojciech Jaruzelski, he said most of them turned a cold shoulder to him now.

He recalled that Jaruzelski jailed him briefly along with thousands of Solidarity activists following the imposition of martial law in 1981 and avoided meeting him.

''I invited Gen. Jaruzelski to visit me in Katowice but he has not given any reply,'' he said.

''Many of my friends betrayed me and it was my biggest defeat,'' he said with bitterness. ''They crept in front of me when I was in power and later they spat on me.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - Negotiators put a pro-environment stamp on the new farm policy bill Friday, agreeing to create a wetlands reserve to preserve up to 1 million acres - a companion to a new program to help farmers prevent water pollution.

The final compromise version of the farm bill, being written by a House-Senate panel, also toughens the so-called swampbuster program that protects wetlands from conversion and extends the life of the Conservation Reserve.

The Conservation Reserve was created by the 1985 farm policy law, as were the swampbuster program and the ''conservation compliance'' rule that requires farmers to practice conservation in order to qualify for benefits such as crop loans and subsidies. The 1985 farm law was the first to link farm program and environmental goals.

Still to be decided by conferees were two hotly debated issues - the ''circle of poison'' language to ban the export of pesticides not allowed for use by U.S. farmers and proposals to require farmers to keep records on their use of pesticides.

Negotiators also faced the task of agreeing on how to cut the cost of the farm program by $13.6 billion for the next five years. The bill now would spend about $55 billion, or about as much as if current law were unchanged.

Environmental spokesman Ken Cook applauded the committee's decision to expand soil and water safeguards, despite the budget crunch.

''This is a change in direction. Conservation usually is the first to go,'' said Cook, of the Center for Resource Economics.

The wetlands reserve would have a goal of acquiring easements on up 1 million acres while the water quality initiative program would help farmers alter production methods to reduce the chance of chemical pollution on environmentally sensitive land. It has a goal of up to 10 million acres.

Environmentalists have high hopes for the water quality plan because it would alter farming practices - possibly for years after the program ends - at a lower cost than for idling land. Payments of up to $3,500 a year for five years would be available, plus up to $1,500 a year in cost-share aid.

Under swampbuster, farmers face the loss of all farm program benefits if they drain a wetland and convert it to crop use. The farm bill would tighten the program by making it a violation simply to drain a wetland. However, a graduated set of penalties would be created and farmers would have the chance to convert ''nuisance'' spots into cropland if they restore a former wetland.

The Conservation Reserve, already the nation's largest long-term land retirement program with 36 million acres of highly erodible land enrolled, would be given a goal of a minimum of 40 million acres, possible expanding to 45 million.

#90285u1168 10/12/1990 ~United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)- While official U.S. spokesmen have reaffirmed the strength of U.S.-Israeli relations, other officials said Friday the past week has put severe strains on those ties and more potential problems are ahead.

The administration officials said the killing of 21 Moslems by Israeli police during a riot in East Jerusalem was a blow that will have lasting effects. In the aftermath of the shooting, the United States, for the first time since 1982, took the lead in the United Nations Security Council in pushing for a resolution which condemned Israel by name for the use of excessive force.

In the past eight years, the United States routinely vetoed such resolutions on the grounds the criticisms of Israel ''were not balanced.''

An important consideration this week, officials said, is the need to maintain the alignment of states, including Arab nations, arrayed against President Saddam Hussein of Iraq for his invasion of Kuwait.

A U.S. veto of the resolution condemning Israel, according to foreign diplomats at the United Nations, would shatter that anti-Iraq coalition.

Since 1981, the United States vetoed 19 resolutions to condemn Israeli behavior and supported only two - one condemning the Israelis for the bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor in 1981 and another, in 1982, for incursions into Beirut.

A State Department spokeswoman reaffirmed this week that U.S.-Israel relations remain strong and the United States remains committed to defending Israel's security.

The U.N. maneuvering, in which Israeli officials took part, was not the only sign of strain this week.

After Secretary of State James Baker had negotiated the terms of a letter of agreement on a $400 million housing loan guarantee for Soviet immigrants to Israel, Israeli officials almost immediately made public statements that appeared to disavow the carefully drawn conditions.

The letter, signed by Foreign Minister David Levy, for the first time acknowledged that East Jerusalem, which was annexed by the Israeli government in 1967, is different and separate from the rest of Israel.

The letter pledged that none of the new housing for Soviet immigrants would be placed ''beyond the green line,'' a boundary that marked Israel's national borders before June 5, 1967 - that is, before the Six- Day War.

Levy also agreed to report to the United States on the plans for future settlement activity, something Israel had never done before. Also for the first time, the United States will send representatives of the U.S. Agency for International Development to Israel to monitor and audit the housing loan guarantees.

Previously all AID money was simply handed over to Israeli authorities, without any check on how it was used.

However, as soon as the agreement was announced, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir announced the Israeli government would be building ''new neighborhoods'' in East Jerusalem. Levy also said that he would not be ''reporting'' to American officials, an apparent reversal of his pledge to keep the United States informed about settlement activity.

Shamir, in an interview, was asked if he was annoyed about the American conditions in the housing loan letter. He said, ''I am not pleased, but why talk about annoyance? It is their money and in policy this sentiment plays no role.''

He acknowledged that without the loan guarantees by the U.S. government, it would have been impossible for the Israeli government to borrow the necessary housing money from international banks.

MONTREAL (OCT. 12) UPI - The number of union paperworkers on strike against Canadian Pacific Forest Products Ltd. doubled Friday, when 1,700 workers in Ontario settled in at newly set up picket lines.

CP Forest's Thunder Bay newsprint and pulp mill operations were shut down Thursday afternoon as a result of strike action, a company spokesman said.

CP Forest's Pierre Despres said mediation talks with the union were held earlier this week but talks had broken off. He said there were no plans now for future talks.

Despres said two other CP Forest's mills in Gatineau, Quebec, and Dalhousie, New Brunswick, remained closed. The 1,800 workers at the two newsprint mills set up their picket lines Sept. 12.

The affected mills collectively produce 1.45 million tons of newsprint a year, more than half of the company's annual capacity.

The union's national representative in the CP Forest talks was meeting with local officials in Thunder Bay and could not be reached for comment.

The striking Quebec and New Brunswick workers earlier rejected an offer from the company thought to be based on a pattern settlement that the CPU negotiated in July.

On Tuesday, 3,800 Abitibi-Price Inc. paperworkers returned to their jobs after a four-week strike at seven mills in Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland.

The workers settled for a wage package similar to the pattern set in talks between the CPU and Stone-Consolidated Inc..

Under the three-year deal the Abitibi-Price workers will get wage increases of 5.5 percent each year, a paid 30-minute lunch for day workers on an eight-hour shift, an increase in the differential paid to workers on the overnight shift and improved benefits.

The Abitibi-Price deal also includes job security provisions for permanent employees who may face layoffs due to technological or processing changes.

The settlement apparently was reached after both sides compromised. The company got greater flexibility in assigning tasks to tradesmen in return for the locals getting the right to decide on operating the mills on Labor Day and New Year's Day.

The Abitibi-Price settlement was expected to help break the deadlock at CP Forest.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - The House, reluctant to make further defense cuts with U.S. troops in the Middle East, passed a $268 billion Pentagon appropriation bill Friday that complies with the House's new budget plan.

Attempts to cut the bill by 10 percent, 5 percent and then 2 percent were defeated. The proposed 2 percent cut, which failed on a 215-201 vote, came the closest to being approved.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, is $14.7 billion less than the 1990 appropriation, and fits the spending levels set in the budget resolution passed by Congress earlier in the week.

The appropriation does not include any specific funds for the deployment of U.S. troops to the Middle East. Those operational costs will be covered by a separate appropriation bill.

Rep. James Traficant, D-Ohio, offered the first two cutting amendments, arguing that Pentagon spending threatens needed domestic programs and is pushing the country toward a depression.

In a raucus debate, in which Traficant berated his colleagues for not being willing to make deeper cuts in defense spending, he asked, ''Is it going to be guns or is it going to be education? Is it going to be guns or is going to be bankruptcy?''

Rep. Tim Penny, D-Minn., proposed the 2 percent cut. He said the ''changing world ... has all but eliminated'' the threat from the Soviet Union or the need to keep troops in Europe.

Penny said the spending cut would not affect U.S. troops sent to the Middle East, but opponents argued it would affect the support services for those troops.

''We've got 200,000 people deployed,'' said Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa. ''We hope that 200,000 deployment has averted a war. We hope we won't have a war. But surely we can't cut the defense budget at this point and have them believe that we don't support their deployment.''

The bill provides no funds for the purchase of B-2 stealth bombers in 1991, but provides $1.6 billion for continued research and development as requested by the administration.

The bill cuts nearly in half the administration's $4.2 billion request for the Strategic Defense Initiative, popularly known as ''Star Wars.''

(OCT. 12) UPI - A mandatory evacuation has been ordered of communities along the Outer Banks in the Atlantic off North Carolina as Hurricane Lili moves toward the mainland. Winds are approaching 75 miles an hour. The latest hurricane advisory reports that hurricane warnings are in effect for portions of North Carolina and the Virginia coasts. Lili was located 400 miles southwest of Cape Hatteras, North Carolina. It is moving west-northwest at 18 miles an hour and is expected to make a gradual turn toward the north over the next 24 hours.

Germany says it will maintain diplomatic relations with Kuwait, even though it is moving its Embassy staff out of the Iraqi-occupied nation. The Foreign Ministry in Bonn cited a short supply of food, water and electricity as the reason for the move. Iraqi authorities cut electricity to the Embassy six weeks ago, but the staff had worked with an emergency electricity supply.

A 4-H club in the central Illinois community of Monticello wants to bring a reminder of the changing seasons to soldiers in the Persian Gulf. Spokesperson Karen Kaufman says 4-H members plan to mail bundles of dried, fall-streaked leaves to 12 to 15 Illinois servicemen and women in Saudi Arabia. She told the Decatur Herald and Review newspaper- quoting now- ''We thought it would be great if they could open a box and just fling handfuls of leaves in the air.''

BEIRUT, LEBANON (OCT. 12) UPI - Christian Gen. Michel Aoun narrowly escaped an assassination attempt Friday shortly after he vowed to fight an expected Syrian-backed thrust into his enclave aimed at ending a mutiny against pro-Syrian President Elias Hrawi.

Christian officials said the attempt on Aoun's life occurred while he was addressing a speech to thousands of followers who demonstrated outside his bunker.

An 18-year-old youth among the protesters attempted to shoot and kill Aoun, but some demonstrators pushed him and the bullets missed the general, the officials said. They said a bodyguard of Aoun was hit and wounded in the attack.

The suspect was identified as Francoise Hallal.

''I thank those who caught the attacker and delivered him to the guards,'' Aoun said in a radio broadcast. ''This was not the first incident against me and it will not be the last one.''

''We will continue the march ignoring what happened,'' he said.

Aoun said the attacker apparently had crossed from the Syrian- patrolled west Beirut with a concealed pistol.

''The gunman was caught, and he was being interrogated,'' said a Christian political source in a telephone interview. Aoun's bodyguards immediately caught the attacker, the officials said.

After nightfall, fighting broke out between Aoun's troops and Samir Geagea's Christian militiamen along a demarcation line splitting east Beirut into two halves, police said.

Police said the Christian rivals, engaged in a bloody power struggle since last January, exchanged mortars, rockets and automatic weapons.

Geagea had expressed support for Hrawi's intentions to end Aoun's mutiny.

Radio reports said Aoun cut his speech when gunfire erupted, causing chaos but continued after his troops took the attacker for interrogation.

Earlier, the 55-year-old Christian Maronite general said he would confront an imminent attack. He made the stand as thousands of Syrian troops took up offensive positions around his enclave.

Syria's anticipated military movement came following reports that Hrawi asked the Damascus regime of Hafez Assad to intervene militarily to oust Aoun.

''We will keep up the resistance. We will fight to death. We will fight until victory,'' Aoun told reporters at his headquarters before the assassination attempt. ''We have two alternatives: either to win or to lose.''

Aoun has refused to step down since he was appointed as head of a transitional government by former President Amin Gemayel Sept. 22, 1988, after Parliament failed to elect a new president.

Thousands of steel-helmeted Syrian soldiers, armed with tanks, artillery batteries and minesweepers dug in along frontlines around Aoun's enclave, creating a war atmosphere in the Beirut region.

''Dozens of tanks rolled down the road heading to the demarcation line throughout the night,'' said Hussein Ayash, a resident of Beirut's southern suburbs. ''The roaring of the tanks kept my family awake most of the night.

''We were afraid that hell may break loose at any moment.''

Witnesses said the Syrian troops dug mortar batteries of various caliber among shell-poked buildings and directed guns's muzzels towards east Beirut while taking up positions in the city's poor southern suburbs.

The news about military maneuvers spread panic in east Beirut. All businesses were closed.

Aoun has some 15,000 war-tested regular troops under his direct command, while Hrawi has an ill-equipped 20,000-man force.

Syria has deployed some 35,000 troops on Lebanese territory since 1976, when the Arab League called on Damascus to intervene and stop the Christian-Moslem civil war.

Aoun has been waging a war against the presence of Syrian troops which last year killed more 1,000 people.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 12) UPI - Police, under orders to limit access to Jerusalem from the occupied territories, fired water cannons to disperse Palestinian youths after several thousand Moslems attended Friday prayers at the Temple Mount amid extremely heavy security.

Also Friday, a West Bank human rights group said Monday's riots on the Temple Mount were not planned beforehand and charged Israeli police who shot and killed at least 20 Palestinians and wounded 170 were not in a life-threatening situation.

Yossi Tuvias, Jerusalem Border Police commander, said authorities decided to prohibit residents of the occupied territories from entering Jerusalem because they had received information indicating at least 15, 000 worshippers were expected and ''large riots were planned for after the prayers.''

The military maintained curfews on the occupied Gaza Strip and much of the West Bank, but Israeli toops killed one Arab and wounded at least eight others defying curfews, Palestinian sources said.

Outside the walls of Jerusalem's Old City, police dispersed more than 100 Palestinian youths with water cannons near the Lion's Gate after the Arabs were not allowed into the Temple Mount complex. A short time later the youths stoned Israeli cars.

Earlier, about 3,000 Moslems - mostly older men and women - attended Friday prayers at the Temple Mount amid extremely heavy security.

Afterwards, small groups of Moslems shouted slogans such as: ''God is Great'' and ''In spirit and blood we will free Palestine.'' Police did not intervene.

Al-Haq, a West Bank affiliate of the International Commission of Jurists, said its preliminary investigation into the slayings found that Moslem worshippers had not intended to attack Jews at the nearby Western Wall.

Jonathan Kuttab, an Al-Haq lawyer, said although some aspects of the incident were still unexplained it was clear international and Israeli law had been violated and that ''there is room for prosecution.''

Israeli authorities charged that Palestinians planned the demonstrations in advance and that police were forced to use live ammunition when their lives were endangered. They said the demonstration was a carefully orchestrated attempt to divert world attention from the Persian Gulf crisis to the Palestinian cause.

''It's clear to us, without any doubt, that there was no public call to stone (Jewish) worshippers at the Western Wall,'' said Raja Shehadeh, an Al-Haq lawyer. ''Nor was this purpose (Moslem leaders) had orginally called these people for.''

He said the stones that fell in the Western Wall area apparently were aimed at paramilitary Border Police standing on the wall separating the Temple Mount from the Western Wall plaza below. Several Jews among the thousands celebrating the Succot holiday at the wall were lightly wounded by the falling rocks.

About 5,000 Palestinians had gathered at the Haram esh Sharaf, as the Temple Mount is called in Arabic, in response to calls by Moslem leaders to protect the holy site from a fringe Jewish fundamentalist group that wanted to lay the cornerstone of the third Jewish Temple, Shehadeh said.

Al-Haq found the disturbances were initiated not by the Palestinians but by the firing of teargas into a group of Moslem women. Shehadeh told a news conference it was not clear why the tear gas was fired.

Responding to calls from the women, Arab men rushed a detachment of Border Police who opened fire, wounding at least 20 people. From that point, the violence escalated and at least 20 people were killed and 170 wounded, Shehadeh said.

''Once Border Guards started firing, they did so without restraint, and at times, used automatic gunfire,'' Al-Haq's chronology of the incident reported. ''The Border Guards and police at no time were in a life-endangering situation and were thus wholly unjustified in resorting to the use of excessive and lethal force.''

Al-Haq also charged that Israeli authorities did not contact Moslem leaders beforehand in an effort to prevent the violence and police made no effort to warn the crowds before using force.

Moslem religious leaders have rejected Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's appointment of a three-member team to investigate the slayings.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - The White House rejected proposed revisions in a major civil rights bill Friday and again threatened to veto the measure that it said would lead to unacceptable job quotas.

Backers of the legislation promptly said they believed they had enough votes to hand President Bush the first veto override of his administration. Bush has been sustained on 15 others.

''We think we could beat him on this one,'' said Paul Donovan, a spokesman for Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., a chief sponsor of the bill.

Both chambers approved earlier versions of the bill by margins that fell just short of the two-thirds vote needed to override a veto. Donovan said revisions made Thursday by House and Senate conferees appeared to bolster support.

White House deputy press secretary Steve Hart declined to say if the administration believed it could sustain a veto, but promised, ''We'll work hard to do so.''

Hart also said: ''We're prepared to continue to try to work with Congress (to reach a compromise). The president wants a civil rights bill he can sign.''

Time was running out, though. This session of Congress is to adjourn Oct. 19, and on Friday talks had broken off between Congress and the White House.

''You never rule out the possibility of a compromise, but it appears that in this case the administration just isn't interested,'' said a congressional aide.

A presidential veto of a civil rights bill, just weeks before the Nov. 6 congressional races, could deal a heavy political blow to the Republican Party which has sought to attract minority voters.

The proposed bill would reverse six 1989 Supreme Court decisions that made it more difficult for workers to sue their employers for sex or race discrimination.

The White House has said Bush would veto the bill on the grounds that it could force employers to impose hiring and promotional quotas based on race and sex in order to avoid costly lawsuits.

House and Senate conferees adopted a seven-point compromise late Thursday that they said would give employers more latitude in defending themselves against discrimination suits.

They also said the changes would likely generate more support for the bill in the House and Senate, and expressed hope that the White House would accept them.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, however, in a letter to Congress, rejected the revisions as inadequate and said Bush ''will be compelled'' to veto the bill.

''In our view,'' Thornburgh wrote, ''the new amendments adopted in conference do not offer substantial improvement ... indeed in some respects they make the bill worse.''

He said, ''The trouble with the bill is not that it explicitly 'encourages' or 'requires' quotas, but that it will inevitably result in quotas being adopted surreptitiously to avoid the cost and trouble of disparate impact lawsuits under the bill's new ground rules - which the bill makes much more difficult for employers to win.''

(OCT. 12) UPI - Lebanon's rebel General Michel Aoun narrowly escaped an assassination attempt today. The attempt on Aoun's life came shortly after he vowed to fight an expected Syrian-backed thrust into his enclave aimed at ending a two-year mutiny against Lebanon's pro- Syrian president. Christian officials say an 18-year-old Christian youth among thousands of followers demonstrating outside Aoun's bunker tried to shoot and hill him while Aoun was making a speech to the crowd. Officials say that some demonstrators pushed the gunman and the bullets missed the general... wounding a bodyguard.

Syrian troops by the thousands... backed by tanks and heavy artillery... have moved to the demarcation line marking the 100 square miles of Lebanon controlled by Aoun. The move is being called the ''last warning'' before military operations begin to move Aoun and his forces out of positions they have held for the past two years east of Beirut.

Egyptian President Hosni Mobarik has named his interior minister as the nation's Speaker of Parliment after motorcycle-riding assassins shot and killed the current holder of that post this morning. Three bodyguards and a driver also died in the attack near the heavily guarded U-S and British embassy compounds in Cairo. Egypt's Speaker is the second-ranking government official in the country, something akin to a Vice President in the United States. Foreign-trained terrorists are suspected in the slaying.

Troubles continue to mount for members of the controversial rap group 2 Live Crew. All three showed up late for an obscenity trial in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, today and were cited with contempt of court for their troubles. The trial involves charges of giving an obscene performance at a Hollywood, Florida, nightclub back in June. Mark Ross, who finally showed up about 90 minutes late, told the judge he had trouble organizing a car pool with some friends.

Japan's parliament today opened debate on sending Japanese troops to the Persian Gulf for non-combat duty. Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu urged lawmakers during the emergency session to back his proposal to deploy Japanese troops overseas. He said- ''This crisis is a major time of testing for Japan as a nation of peace and the most severe trial we have faced since the end of World War Two.

If E-T ever calls home, the world might be able to listen in to the conversation, thanks to work at a powerful new radio receiver that was switched on for the first time today in Argentina. It will scan the Southern Hemisphere looking for radio emissions beaming down on earth. It joins another radio receiver that has been operating in Harvard, Massachusetts, since 1985, covering the Northern Hemisphere.

Florida game officials today are hailing the success of the recent state-sponsored alligator hunt. Officials say licensed trappers bagged more than 90 percent of their quota for the third year in a row. Officials say the hunt could prove the most lucrative yet for the hunters, with 'gator hides fetching 60 to 65 dollars a foot... about 20 dollars more than last year.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - Corporate donations to pro-business Senate candidates have far outpaced contributions to House candidates during the third quarter of 1990, financial disclosure records showed Friday.

With three weeks remaining before the fall elections, political action committees representing business interests appear to have split their formidable resources between safe pro-business incumbent senators and Senate challengers who have shown strong support for business initiatives, the United Press International review suggests.

Most of the top 15 Senate recipients watched their business PAC coffers grow by 20 percent between July and September.

The top House recipients of corporate PACs, with few exceptions, have seen slower growth of around 10 percent over the 3-month period.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who led the field at the end of June, continued to rank first, topping $1.1 million from corporations, Federal Election Commission records show. Gramm received $278,000 during the last three months, which equals $3,000 a day in business contributions.

Gramm has raised nearly $14 million for a re-election bid that does not even feature a particularly strong Democratic opponent.

Last summer, Gramm supported Senate legislation that would have eliminated PACs. But Gramm's spokesman, Larry Neal, defended the senator's acceptance of PAC money. ''It's a relatively small minority of the overall Senate campaign '' he said. ''You can find more than a few candidates who receive 60 percent of their money'' from PACs.

One notable change in the composition of the Senate candidate list was the sharp rise of Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill., who picked up $400,000 from businesses over the last three months to catapult her into second place and push her over the $1 million mark in total PAC receipts. Martin, who has raised $960,000 from businesses since the begining of last year, is engaged in a tough Senate battle against incumbent Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who has enjoyed widespread support from labor, liberal and pro-Israel groups.

Other House incumbents like Martin who are seeking Senate seats, also benefited from business PACs over the last quarter.

Rep. Hank Brown, R-Colo., hoping to replace retiring Sen. William Armstrong, a Republican, ranked fifth in the business PAC column, pulling down $285,000 during the third quarter, for a total of $906,000.

Brown's House colleague, Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, who is challenging Sen. Tom Harkin, a Democrat, ranked seventh in business receipts, netting $260,000 during the period, for a total of $842,000.

While corporations favored Republicans in Senate contests, the same interests employed a different tactic in House races, in which they continued to strongly back senior Democratic leaders who hold liberal views but control the congressional purse.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee, ranked first, receiving $428,000 from the groups since January 1989. He was followed by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., the House Democratic leader, who placed second with $401,000 during the same period.

House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois ranked third with $398,000.

The top three recipients, unlike their Senate counterparts, received modest increases of eight to nine percent during the third quarter over the previous 18 months of the campaign.

Other differences between top Senate and House recipients emerged during the third quarter as well.

Whereas only one Senate candidate has joined the top 15 list since June - Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who ranked 15th - the House leader board consisted of eight members who were previously not among the top 15.

Most of those eight congressmen held one or more major fund-raising events toward the end of the second quarter or during the third quarter, their offices reported.

Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., widely expected to run for the Senate in 1992, raised well over $200,000 at a Washington fundraiser last May, his spokesman, Steven Otto, reported.

Matsui, a member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, ranked fourth in business PAC receipts at the end of September, with $346,000.

BERLIN (OCT. 12) UPI - Political parties Friday wrapped up campaigning in Bavaria and the five new eastern German states in advance of Sunday's elections that are expected to provide a further boost to Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative party.

The elections are widely seen as a barometer of the political mood, now that the euphoria of German unification has subsided.

They will also set the stage for Dec. 2 general elections, at which voters will determine whether Kohl will remain German chancellor.

Recent opinion polls show that Kohl's popularity and that of his Christian Democratic Union have risen sharply as a result of the former West German chancellor's role in bringing about the Oct. 3 unification of East and West Germany.

Sunday's elections will be held in five of the 16 states that now form the Federal Republic of Germany - the five states of what used to be East Germany and the state of Bavaria in the south of what was West Germany.

The CDU is expected to sweep to victory in four of five eastern states. A recent opinion poll conducted by the Allensbach Institute showed the conservative party leading strongly in Saxony, Saxony-Anhalt and Thueringia and gaining a small lead in Meklenburg-Vorpommern.

The poll showed the Social Democratic Party - the main opposition party in Germany - only leading in one of the eastern states, Brandenburg.

The CDU's Bavarian ally, the Christian Social Union, is confident of victory as it enters the first election in the southern state since the death two years ago of the charismatic, conservative Bavarian leader Franz-Josef Strauss.

A change in the Bavarian government appears unlikely but the CSU, which has ruled the state for the last 33 years, may lose its absolute majority.

This may force the party to share power with the SPD in a coalition that would be particularly uneasy after the fierce election campaign, marked by mudslinging bouts between the CSU and the SPD.

The far-right Republicans, who have in the past banked on the nationalist feelings of disgruntled CSU members, have apparently lost much ground during the German unification process and are not expected to win much more than 2 percent of the vote.

Unlike the heated campaigns in Bavaria, electioneering in the five eastern states, which came to a close Friday, was markedly low key.

Most of the candidates are relatively unknown to voters who have already gone to the polls twice this year, in general and in local East German elections.

But at least one person, whose face appears on roadside posters throughout the eastern states need not fear he will not be recognized - Helmut Kohl.

Kohl's presence largely overshadowed the candidates he appeared with at election rallies, and his obvious confidence showed clearly he is certain of victory at Dec. 2 general election - an opinion backed by several opinion polls.

PANAMA CITY (OCT. 12) UPI - More thrilling than a trip to Atlantic City or hitting the lottery jackpot, some lucky Panamanian stands to win an all-expense paid trip to the trial of former military ruler Manuel Antonio Noriega.

El Siglo, a Panama City tabloid, promises to send the winner of an essay contest to Florida next year where Panama's former dictator will stand trial on drug trafficking and money laundering charges.

''El Siglo offers you the opportunity of your life - to be in Orlando when this monsterous abortion, the ex-narco-dictator Manuel Noriega, is punished,'' the newspaper states in advertisements for the contest.

The trial is scheduled to take place in Miami, and it was not clear why the tabloid mentioned Orlando.

To win, contestents must write an essay of no longer than 12 pages double-spaced about the abuses and corruption of Noriega and Panama's military governments of the past 21 years.

U.S. troops invaded Panama, deposed Noriega and installed a civilian government last December.

Writers are encouraged to include photos, tape recordings and other materials as documentation. A ''qualified jury'' will judge the essays and El Siglo promises to publish all efforts.

The winner gets round-trip air fare to Florida plus free lodging in a hotel next to the court building where Noriega is to face trial, El Siglo said.

Advertisements for the contest, which opened last month, include the famous mug-shot of Noriega holding his prisoner's number, and urge Panamanians: ''Enter and Win.''

(OCT. 12) UPI - Egyptian officials theorize that foreign powers are behind today's assassination of the nation's speaker of Parliament. His two-car motorcade came under machine gun fire as it moved through Cairo earlier today. The speaker holds a position second to only that of president in Egypt.

Supporters of Christian General Michael Aoun pushed an 18-year-old youth today just as he fired several shots at the rebel Lebanese leader. Aoun was NOT injured. The assassination attempt comes as thousands of Syrian troops massed in what is expected to be a drive to end his two-year rebellion.

The watchful eyes of a huge Israeli security force were focused on thousands of Moslems who attended Friday prayers at the Temple Mount in Jerusalem's Old City. There were NO problems at the site of this week's slayings of 21 Arabs. But outside the walls of the Old City police used water cannons to disperse a crowd of Palestinians.

British Prime Minister Thatcher had tough words for Iraq today during a speech at the Conservative Party conference in London. Thatcher declared that every day Iraqi soldiers stay in Kuwait is- in her words- ''a new act of war.'' She also pledged that opposing nations would force Iraq out of the Persian Gulf state.

President Bush wants the Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania to take part in a 34-nation summit in Europe next month. That word comes after Bush met for 90 minutes at the White House today with Estonian leaders, discussing their efforts to gain independence from the Soviet Union.

The U-S-led United Nations Command is calling on North Korea to return the remains of American soldiers and other U-N-C personnel held there since the Korean War. The request came at a meeting today between U-S and Korean representatives at the truce village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul.

NASA officials will wait until tonight, weather permitting, before moving the shuttle Atlantis out toward launch pad 39- A. The original journey was held up as Tropical Storm Marco lashed Florida's west coast and what was left of Tropical Storm Klaus dumped rain along the east coast.

The obscenity trial of the controversial Miami-based rap group 2 Live Crew did NOT get off to a good start for the performers. All three men showed up late in court today and were cited for contempt. The judge says their sentences for contempt will be withheld until after the obscenity trial.

Police in Baltimore County say a man who opened fire in a Woodland, Maryland, car dealership today... killing one man and wounding two others... had apparently been fired from his job there two days ago. The gunman later turned his weapon on himself and committed suicide.

Police in the central Philippines blame firecrackers for the deaths of three people killed today in a house in a city 300 miles south of Manila. Authorities say a dozen other people were wounded and the two- story house was destroyed when firecrackers they were preparing exploded.

CARACAS, Venezuela (OCT. 12) UPI - The presidents of eight Latin American countries agreed Friday to present a common response to President Bush's call for a hemispheric economic block and said the time was ripe for such a proposal.

The leaders of the so-called ''Group of Rio'' also want to invite non-members from Central America and the Caribbean to join their organization, creating a unified voice for Latin America.

In two days of meetings, the eight agreed to a ''positive'' response to Bush's June call for a free trade zone stretching from Alaska to Tierra de Fuego Island at the tip of South America, said Chilean Foreign Minister Enrique Silva Cimma.

''There was agreement to consider it positive,'' said Silva Cimma, speaking of the final communique that was to be issued late Friday.

''But also to find certain points of agreement from the different countries that are represented here in order to propose them to other countries so there is a level of agreement in the Latin America proposals.''

The presidents of Venezuela, Ecuador, Colombia, Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Mexico and Uruguay, along with the Peruvian foreign minister, also accepted into the informal organization Paraguay and Bolivia, the only two major South American nations that were not members. In addition, Silva Cimma said there was agreement to invite Central American and Caribbean nations to join, creating what would be a single voice for Latin America.

The decision comes after years of criticism of U.S. domination of the Organization of America States, the regional forum of the Americas and the Caribbean with headquarters in Washington.

The presidents also agreed to study a proposed regional energy pact under which, for example, energy-rich nations such as Mexico and Venezuela would provide petroleum to countries without their own resources.

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) UPI - The dollar ended mixed in New York trading Friday, declining in early trading on rumors that peace might break out in the Mideast but later recovering as players covered their bets for the weekend.

But currency dealers and analysts said the dominant theme was bearishness on the U.S. currency, given the unpromising U.S. economic climate and a sense of deepening stalemate in Capitol Hill budget talks.

Francoise Soares-Kemp, a Credit Suisse treasury vice president commented, ''I can't emphasize how incredibly bearish the market is about the whole economic picture, the whole spectacle in Washington, the Mideast situation.''

In late New York trading the dollar was quoted at 1.5250 German marks, a gain from 1.5135 marks Thursday, and at 129.10 Japanese yen, off from 129.50.

Reports and rumors about the Gulf standoff swirled through the market. One of them said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, considering withdrawal from Kuwait, had sounded out Soviet officials and his advisors on the move.

That undermined the dollar; one reason players have been unwilling to sell it without restraint is fear that war might boost it sharply. When the rumors did not pan out, traders bought dollars to hold until Monday.

''Ahead of the weekend, you don't go home short dollars,'' said Earl Johnson, a Harris Trust & Savings Bank vice president and currency adviser.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2865 Swiss francs, up from 1.2730; 5.1090 French francs, up from 5.0690; and 1,142.75 Italian lire, up from 1,134.50.

The pound moved down to $1.9655 from $1.9770.

In Europe, the dollar closed lower on dealer conviction of its weakness amid U.S. budget wrangling and the threat of recession. Analysts said it would keep moving down if the economic climate did not change.

''It's going to be a slow movement down. There seems to be nothing new on the horizon to give one reason to buy the dollar,'' said Martin Ely, chief interbank dealer for Midland Bank, PLC.

In London, the pound strengthened against the U.S. unit to close at $1.9745, compared with $1.9635 at Thursday's close.

The dollar closed lower in Frankfurt, at 1.5210 German marks against 1.5320. The U.S. unit was also lower in Zurich, at 1.2815 Swiss francs against 1.2925 Thursday.

The dollar also closed lower in Paris, Brussels and Milan, at 5.0930 French francs vs. 5.1335, 31.28 Belgian francs against 31.59, and at 1, 140.25 Italian lire vs. 1,148.

Earlier, the dollar slid against the Japanese yen on disappointments over the U.S. economic outlook and the budget dispute. The dollar closed at 129.30 yen, down 0.65 yen from Thursday's close of 129.95 yen.

''Dealers are now expecting the U.S. economy to head into a recession and are not happy with the confusion over the budget deficit cutting plan,'' said Harumi Ban, a senior manager at Sanwa Bank.

Gold closed unchanged in Zurich at $388 an ounce, but declined in London to $387.25 an ounce from $389.50.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $388.25 an ounce, down from $390.25 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $387.50 an ounce, off from $389.70.

Silver, unchanged in Zurich at $4.35 an ounce, was steady in London at Republic closed cash silver at $4.325 an ounce, up from $4.265. Comex silver closed at $4.306 an ounce, ahead from $4.235.

BOSTON (OCT. 12) UPI - Polaroid Corp. won more than $909 million Friday in its instant-photography patent infringement suit against Eastman Kodak Co. - adamage award believed to be by far the largest in such a case in American history.

Judge A. David Mazzone handed down the long-awaited judgment in U.S. District Court Friday afternoon, more than two years after the original case had been decided in Polaroid's favor and upheld.

A separate trial had been held just to decide the amount of the damages owed Polaroid.

In February 1988, Polaroid had asked for $5.7 billion in lost profits and interest from the Rochester, N.Y.-based Kodak.

CAIRO, Egypt (OCT. 12) UPI - Motorcycle-riding assassins wielding machine guns shot and killed Egypt's speaker of Parliament, three bodyguards, a driver and a senior police officer in an attack Friday near the heavily guarded U.S. and British Embassies, officials and witnesses said.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the attack by four men on two motorcycles against a two-car motorcade escorting Speaker Rifaat El Mahgoub, 64, which took place on the Moslem day of prayers.

But Egyptian security officials said they suspected foreign-trained extremists rather than Egyptian Islamic fundamentalists. The slaying came amid fears of extremist attacks by pro-Iraqi groups opposing the presence of a U.S.-led international force deployed after Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

The French-educated Mahgoub was second in command after President Hosni

Mubarak in the absence of a vice president and supported late Egyptian leader Anwar Sadat's 1979 peace treaty with Israel.

Mahgoub will be buried Saturday in Cairo with full military honors, Cairo Radio said.

Mubarak condemned what he described as the ''evil'' slaying but said it would not divert his administration away from its policy of ''protecting the Arab and Islamic world's sacred heritage.''

Earlier this week, Egypt's Interior Minister Lt. Gen. Mohammed Abdulhalim Mussa said security forces had uncovered an Iraqi conspiracy to assassinate senior Egyptian political figures.

In a statement delivered to United Press International, Egypt's Islamic Brotherhood condemned Mahgoub's assassination.

''We received with profound regret the news of the assassination of Speaker Mahgoub and we strongly condemn this criminal act,'' said the statement from the Brotherhood, which is outlawed in Egypt.

''This criminal act is condemned by all religions,'' the statement added.

President Bush telephoned Mubarak to express his regret at the killings, Cairo Radio said, adding that Syrian President Hafez Assad and Jordan's King Hussein also expressed regret at the incident.

At least 30 Iraqi and Palestinian alleged extremists were rounded up on suspicion of belonging to a group headed by notorious Palestinian extremist Abu Nidal. Arrested pro-Iraqi extremists allegedly were receiving arms and explosives from Egyptian fundamentalists in Upper Egypt who are opposed to the presence of U.S. forces in the Gulf region.

Authorities launched a manhunt for the attackers, described as being between 20 and 25 years old, who took part in the 11 a.m. local time shooting on the banks of the River Nile near the Shepheard Hotel.

Police were reported to have surrounded a Cairo suburb near the scene of the attack and making house-to-house searches in the hope of apprehending the killers.

A United Press International reporter near the scene heard gunshots that sounded like cracks of a whip. Mahgoub's body was lying slumped in the back seat of a black 230E Mercedes in a pool of blood, with the bullet-riddled corpse of a bodyguard in the front seat.

The driver of a second car in the speaker's motorcade was killed, along with two other bodyguards. A senior police officer who was standing near the scene and tried to tackle one of the extremists died later in hospital of gunshot wounds, making him the sixth known victim of the shooting, Cairo Radio said.

One Egyptian official said Islamic fundamentalists may have targeted Mahgoub because he was considered responsible for blocking legislation aimed at strengthening Islamic Sharia law in Egypt.

Egyptian security officials said the investigation was still open.

Earlier this week Moussa said his security forces had uncovered an Iraqi conspiracy to assassinate senior Egyptian political figures.

Egyptian Islamic fundamentalists have been credited with the assasination in 1981 of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Fundamentalists were also blamed for assassination attempts between 1987 and 1989 against former Interior Ministers Nabawi Ismail, Hassan Abu Basha and Zaki Badr.

MILWAUKEE (OCT. 12) UPI - The Miller Brewing Co. said Friday it would re-open its Trenton, Ohio, brewery in January, creating an undetermined number of jobs.

Construction of the plant was completed in 1984, and it operated at ''far less'' than capacity for a few months before closing, Miller Communications Director Steven Forsyth said.

The Milwaukee-based company said it was reopening the plant because it needed more brewing capacity. The facility will reopen in January and officials said it would begin producing Miller Genuine Draft in June or July.

The number of jobs will be decided in a few months, said Richard Klemp, Miller's director of government affairs.

''We will start small and growth will depend on market demand, which products and how much of each brand are produced,'' Klemp said.

Miller said it was confident it could match or better last year's record-breaking sales of nearly 42 million barrels, a 3.7 percent increase from 1988. It was the fourth consecutive year Miller outpaced the industry growth rate.

Forsyth said the economy and a proposed increase in the beer excise tax could affect production and employment levels.

''We have to watch what's happening around us,'' he said.

Dennis Puffer, previously the plant manager at Miller's Irwindale, Calif., brewery, was named plant manager of the Ohio facility, officials said.

Miller is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Philip Morris Companies Inc.

(OCT. 12) UPI - Crude oil prices fell Friday after an unconfirmed report, later denied by the State Department, that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was considering withdrawing his forces from occupied Kuwait.

Prices of U.S. heating oil and unleaded gasoline rose, however, on heavy foreign demand, particularly in Europe where gasoline prices are much higher.

The report of the possible Iraqi pullout drove the prices of stocks up on the New York Stock Exchange where the Dow industrials rose 32.92 points to 2398.02.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery ended the day down 73 cents to $39.69 a barrel after trading as low as $38.50 a barrel. It added $1.70 on the week.

WTI reached a closing record high of $40.42 a barrel Thursday.

Prices were driven down by a late-morning report quoting an exiled Iraqi opposition party as saying Iraq is considering a withdrawal and that a questionnaire was being circulated asking the opinion of the ruling Baath party, said Steve Platt, senior energy analyst with Dean Witter Reynolds in Chicago.

''We think there's no basis to it,'' said State Department spokesman Mark Dillen.

Home heating oil for November delivery, which was down as much as 2.75 cents during the day, finished up 0.51 cent to $1.0536 a gallon on the Merc, a gain of 2.66 cents on the week.

November unleaded gasoline ended the day at 97.13 cents a gallon, up 1.13 cents on the day and 4.49 cents on the week. It sold as low as 94.7 cents a gallon in Friday trading.

''People are very nervous about the products, more so than the crude, '' said James Steel, energy analyst at Refco Inc. in New York.

''There's very heavy demand for U.S. products. A lot of it is going abroad. There's heavy demand in Europe and Asia. Prices are particularly higher in Europe. It's definitely more profitable to ship products out,'' Steel said.

Firm data on U.S. petroleum exports is delayed about two months. But Steel said, ''Sources tell me there are not enough tankers around to take the products out.''

WTI opened at $40.25 on the Merc apparently on the news the speaker of Egypt's Parliament had been assassinated, but began to sell off even before the Iraqi withdrawal report.

Motorcycle-riding assassins wielding machine guns shot and killed Egypt's Parliament Speaker Rifaat el Mahgoub, 64, three bodyguards and a driver in an attack near the heavily guarded U.S. and British embassies in Cairo, officials and witnesses said. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the attack.

The Merc's week was also marked by seesaw trading in crude:

On Monday, WTI rose 96 cents to $38.95 a barrel in light technical trading with many traders off for the Columbus Day holiday and surged another $1.45 Tuesday to a new Merc record closing high of $40.40 a barrel after Saddam threatened Israel with a new rocket to avenge the slaying of Palestinians in Jerusalem.

Prices fell $1.71 to $38.69 a barrel in a quiet Wednesday when traders took profits after WTI traded at a new intra-day high of $41.15 a barrel. It rebounded to a new Merc $40.42 closing high after the American Petroleum Institute reported a sharp drop in U.S. supplies for the fourth week in a row as Middle East imports continue to decline.

On the European spot market, where crude is bought and sold for cash, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent, was quoted at $39.50 a barrel, down $2.10 from the same time Thursday and a gain of 50 cents on the week.

The United Arab Emirates's Dubai Light - the key Middle East crude shipped mainly to the Far East - lost 55 cents on the day to $34.65 a barrel, $1.65 higher than the previous Friday.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, prompt delivery WTI fell 80 cents on the day to $39.60 a barrel.

Sun Co., of Radnor, Pa.; Marathon Oil Co., the Findlay, Ohio unit of USX Corp. and Conoco Inc., the Houston-based subsidiary of Du Pont lowered the posted price they will pay for crude at the wellhead to $38.50 a barrel for WTI. Sun reduced the posted price 50 cents; Conoco and Marathon reduced it 75 cents.

In London, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher declared that every day Iraqi soldiers remain in Kuwait is ''a new act of war'' and vowed that opposing nations would force Saddam Hussein out of the Persian Gulf state.

''You don't negotiate with someone who marches into another country, devastates it, killing whoever stands in his way. You get him out. You make him pay so he is never in a position to do these things again,'' she said.

In Hot Springs, Va., economists at the semiannual meeting of the Business Council anticipated that oil prices would average about $30 a barrel by the end of this year before slipping to $25 a barrel at the end of 1991.

Mobil Corp. Chairman Allen Murray did not foresee an oil shortage in the near future, but added that ''all bets are off'' should war break out.

Murray said. ''If God cooperates and gives us a normal winter we're going to make it.''

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 12) UPI - The U.N. chief executive warned Friday that the U.N. peace plan on the Cambodian conflict could unravel if the warring factions do not achieve a ''genuine national reconciliation.''

The General Assembly is expected to adopt by consensus Monday a resolution supported by Southeast Asian nations, which endorses the peace plan and the formation of a Supreme National Council to govern Cambodia during the transition to elections.

''Over the past 12 months, considerable progress has been achieved in the negotiating process and it appears that a solution to this tragic conflict may now be within reach,'' Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said in a report released Friday.

But Perez de Cuellar also warned the four Cambodian leaders that success of the peace plan, adopted by the Security Council Sept. 20, will hinge on their ability to put longstanding differences behind them.

''Today, the international community is challenging them to put the fundamental interests of their people above all other considerations and to turn their swords into plowshares,'' Perez de Cuellar said.

He called on the Cambodian factions to enter into a voluntary cease- fire and a moratorium on arms supplies to create the atmosphere necessary to complete the negotiating process and deploy the U.N. operation.

Since Vietnam invaded Cambodia in December, 1978, ousting the brutal Khmer Rouge regime of Pol Pot, three factions have been fighting to overthrow the Phnom Penh government led by Hun Sen. Joining the Khmer Rouge are the forces of Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Son Sann, a former Cambodian premier.

Unlike previous efforts, the latest U.N. resolution avoids mentioning issues that have been stumbling blocks in the past.

It does not mention the three-year reign of the Khmer Rouge during which more than one million Cambodians were reported to have died. Nor does the resolution condemn Vietnam, which occupied its Southeast Asian neighbor. Hanoi claims to have withdrawn its troops in September 1989.

Perez de Cuellar said approval of the peace plan by the General Assembly could allow the Paris International Conference on Cambodia to be reconvened ''in the near future'' to adopt a comprehensive political settlement.

In a letter to the United Nations, the three Cambodian resistance forces reiterated their support for the U.N. peace plan to end ''the Vietnamese war of aggression and occupation of Cambodia.''

The letter also declared their support for Sihanouk to lead the 12- member national council. The three resistance forces called for an urgent meeting, possibly in Bangkok, Thailand, to elect a chairman of the national council.

Vietnam, which opposed resolutions on the Cambodian issue for the past 11 years, said it agreed with the consensus resolution. The country's foreign minister Nguyen Co Thach told reporters Friday that all sides in the conflict now have a ''common ground'' for peace in Cambodia.

Thach was in New York to attend the General Assembly session and hold talks with U.S. officials on American MIAs and other bilateral matters.

The resolution is supported by Indonesia, Thailand, the Philippines, Singapore Malaysia and Brunei - the six Southeast Asian Nations Association - that worked together to bring an end to the conflict in Cambodia.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 12) UPI - Ron Harper, who suffered a career-threatening knee injury last season that should sideline him until at least January, Friday reached agreement on a 4-year contract with the Los Angeles Clippers.

The 6-foot-6 guard averaged 22.8 points in 28 games with Los Angeles last year after arriving in a trade with Cleveland. However, his season ended Jan. 16 when he tore the anterior cruciate ligament and cartilage in his right knee in a game against Charlotte.

The Clippers, though, expect Harper to be as strong as ever when he returns. Los Angeles forward Danny Manning has recovered from a similar injury suffered two years ago.

''Before Ron's injury he was having the best all-around season of his career '' General Manager Elgin Baylor said. ''He also provided the team with strong leadership, and we are looking forward to his return.''

Said Harper: ''We have one of the most talented teams in the NBA. I am very pleased with my contract and will be ready to play soon.''

Financial terms of the deal were not announced.

Harper, 26, has averaged 19.8 points a game over his four-year NBA career. The former Miami of Ohio star came to the Clippers last Nov. 16 in a trade that sent Reggie Williams and the rights to draft pick Danny Ferry to the Cavaliers.

Harper is expected to complete his physical examination and sign his contract Saturday. While he mends, No. 1 draft pick Bo Kimble of Loyola Marymount is expected to start in his place at off-guard.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 12) UPI - The Pillsbury Co. said Friday that a multimillion-dollar settlement of a race discrimination lawsuit filed by former employees received preliminary approval from a federal judge.

The suit was filed in May 1989 and focused primarily on alleged discriminatory practices from 1984 to 1989. Pillsbury said it has taken steps to increase the number of women and minority members in management positions.

The settlement calls for a total of $3.6 million to be allocated over four years to, or for, the benefit of the settlement class. The amount includes attorney fees and expenses.

The settlement of the suit filed by 14 plaintiffs contains no finding by the court or admission by Pillsbury or its parent firm, Grand Metropolitan, that there was any wrongdoing. The settlement is subject to final approval of the court after notice to members of a settlement class of black current and former employees and job applicants, and a fairness hearing before the court.

Pillsbury said it entered into the agreement to avoid further litigation.

''This settlement will enable us to accelerate the momentum which has been building in our cultural diversity efforts since the Grand Met acquisition,'' said Charles Wilson, vice president of cultural diversity and personnel development for Grand Met's food sector. ''The activities that will be funded by this settlement over the next few years will improve opportunities for all employees.''

Paul Sprenger, the lead attorney for the plaintiffs, said he is pleased with the settlement.

''But I am even more pleased by the willingness of Grand Met and Pillsbury to step forward from the moment the case was filed to resolve these important issues in a way that maximizes the long-term benefits to my clients and everyone involved,'' Sprenger said.

The funds would be used to settle the claims of the 14 named plaintiffs and to pay awards to eligible former employees who were involuntarily terminated between 1948 and 1989. The funds also would support the cultural diversity department at Pillsbury. In addition, the settlement will provide money to pay training and education expenses, and dependent tuition scholarships, as well as support career development for eligible current employees.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - Citing national security, the Justice Department said Friday it was standing by its decision not to release secret CIA documents relating to Iran-Contra figure Joseph Fernandez.

Special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, who is investigating the Iran- Contra scandal, promptly criticized the government for having an ''overprotective attitude'' toward classified information. A federal appeals court has upheld a lower court ruling that Fernandez could not get a fair trial without the documents.

''No matter how the administration rationalizes the non-production of this information,'' Walsh said, ''it shows a lack of concern for applying the rule of law to officials of the intelligence community.''

The disintegration of the Fernandez case would appear to insulate the CIA from serious scrutiny of its role in the worst scandal of the Reagan administration.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh previously asked that criminal charges against Fernandez, the CIA's station chief in Costa Rica from 1984 to 1986, be dropped because the release of the 5,000 documents would cause ''serious damage to national security.''

Fernandez has argued the classified information is essential to his defense against charges he aided an illegal Nicaraguan Contra supply network directed by White House aide Oilver North at a time when such aid was banned by Congress.

A district court agreed with Thornburgh and dismissed the charges against Fernandez. Walsh appealed that decision to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which upheld the dismissal Sept. 6.

The appeals court said that denying Fernandez access to the documents had ''deprived (him) of any real chance to defend himself.'' The panel gave Thornburgh until this month to review his position.

In a letter Friday to U.S. District Judge Claude Hilton, Deputy Attorney General James Reynolds reaffirmed Thornburgh's position, saying, ''The potentially serious damage to national security which could result from the disclosure of the ... information is exacerbated by the prospect for additional disclosures at trial.''

Reynolds said that during a Justice Department review of the decision to withhold the documents, Thornburgh met with the heads of government agencies responsible for national security matters.

During that meeting, Reynolds said, ''One senior official described the potential harm which could result as 'devastating.'''

In a statement Friday, Walsh criticized the government's decision.

''There is no question that the overprotective attitude toward classified information forced the dismissal of this important case,'' he said.

Thornburgh has said the documents sought by Fernandez would detail CIA offices and operations in Latin America. But Walsh has characterized the information as ''fictional secrets'' that have already been made public.

Fernandez was indicted in April 1989 on two counts of making false statements to investigative bodies and two counts of obstructing an investigation into the complex scandal involving secret weapons sales to Iran, efforts to win freedom for American hostages in Lebanon, and financing covert operations to aid the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The dismissal of the charges against Fernandez was a blow to Walsh's nearly four-year effort to prosecute government officials suspected of felonies in the worst scandal of the Reagan administration.

On July 20, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington overturned two convictions and set aside a third against North, the former National Security Council member said to have masterminded the Iran-Contra scheme. Walsh appealed the decision.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - An increasing number of women who have been married, and especially poor black women, are having unwanted pregnancies, a government study said Friday.

The National Center for Health Statistics surveyed 8,450 women, categorizing the survey respondents as never married, ''ever married'' - women who are currently married - widowed, divorced or separated who gave birth in the last five years.

The survey of births from 1983 to 1985 found that of the 16.5 million births to ever-married women, 10.3 percent were unwanted - defined as unwanted at the time of conception but not necessarily at the time of birth. In 1973, the figure was 14.3 percent but dropped in 1982 to 7.7 percent.

Those births also were considered mistimed, meaning pregnancy was wanted but at a different time in the woman's life.

Of the 2.5 million births to never-married women, about 25 percent were considered unwanted and about 40 percent mistimed. The percentages have remained stable since 1973.

''Although it appears that unwanted childbearing has increased among ever-married women since 1982, recent increases have been most pronounced for those living below the poverty line,'' the center said.

From 1982-1988, the proportion of unwanted births among women in poverty rose by almost 75 percent and twice as many black women had unwanted children than white women.

''This is a personal view, but it probably has something to do with a declining percentage of births ending in abortions,'' said the survey's author Dr. Linda Williams. ''I suspect family planning services are not getting to certain populations.''

Jane Johnson, vice president of Planned Parenthood, agreed, and chided the administration's anti-abortion stance.

''Health care for poor people has declined markedly in the last 10 years and that would certainly include access to reproductive health care,'' Johnson said.

''There is no leadership from this administration that puts reproductive health care in the context where it belongs - general health care - making it accessible and permissible. Unwanted pregnancy is one of the most important health care concerns in the country, yet it's not high on the agenda of the current administration and the past administration, and that's a tragedy,'' she said.

The study also found that among ever-married women, older women were more likely to report unwanted births, while younger women were more likely to report mistimed births.

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) UPI - The Dow industrials plunged this week as nervousness about the budget wrangling in Washington and heightened tensions in the Mideast sent the blue chips to their lowest levels since May of 1989.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the week on an up note, however, jumping 32.92 to end the week at 2398.02. It tumbled 112.62 for the week, or 4.5 percent. Prior to Friday's trading, the Dow was down 146 points on the week and even with the gains Friday, it finished at its lowest level since May 11, 1989, when it closed at 2382.88.

It was down almost 20 percent since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

Among broader market indexes, Standard & Poor's 500-stock index tumbled 11.20 to end the week at 300.03 and the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 6.28 to close the week at 164.42. During the mid- week plunge in prices, broad market indexes set lows for the year.

Declines pummeled advances 1,543-395 among the 2,154 NYSE issues traded this week. Weekly Big Board volume totaled 780,919,910 shares, compared with 824,934,860 a week earlier and 809,208,400 shares a year ago.

After closing higher in very dull Columbus Day trading Monday, the Dow went on a three-session tumble that took it down almost 159 points to its lowest levels since April 1989.

Surging oil prices and interest rates combined with more saber- rattling from Iraq to drag the Dow industrials to their second-biggest loss of the year Tuesday.

The Dow's 78-point loss was the biggest of the year after a 93-point tumble Aug. 6 and the 11th-worst ever.

Saddam, saying his forces were armed with a new missile capable of striking ''evil targets'' hundreds of miles away, warned Israel Tuesday to evacuate occupied Arab lands or face retaliation for the slayings of Palestinians in Jerusalem. The news sent the benchmark U.S. crude soaring above $40 a barrel.

Wednesday and Thursday saw new 52-week lows for the Dow as it plunged through the 2427 level it had hit Sept. 27, the previous 52-week low.

An unexpected rise in interest rates at the Treasury Department's note auction was blamed for Wednesday's tumble, and Thursday concerns about the government's budget wrangling played havoc with the market.

The administration flipflopped on whether it would go along with a deal with Congress involving a tax hike for the wealthy in return for a capital gains tax cut.

After all that, many analysts termed Friday's rebound merely a reflex bounce after a plunge.

''We're in a nasty, negative, nervous market,'' said Alan Ackerman, senior vice president at Gruntal & Co. ''We've got burdens in the Mideast and high energy prices but I think the biggest burden is the blurred vision of our leaders in Washington,'' he said.

Ackerman was referring to investors' dismay with an economy sliding into recession while the government remained unable to arrive at a deficit-cutting plan. Such a plan might prompt the Federal Reserve to cuts interest rates in a bid to rescue the economy.

''We're a country that doesn't tolerate inaction or indecisiveness and we've had both this week in Washington,'' he said. ''People are now bothered by job security, lower home values, increasing inflation, and the prospect of new taxes they don't quite understand and don't feel they ought to be paying.''

But from a technical standpoint, William Raftery, analyst at Smith, Barney Harris Upham & Co., said he was not too disturbed by the Dow's plunge to new 52-week lows.

''It didn't mean anything, it's only the Dow, the blue chips,'' Raftery said. ''Most stocks had already been hammered and people knew we were in a bear market. That was just the icing on the cake but it does say the wound will take a while to repair.''

On the trading floor this week, Wal-Mart was the most active issue, off 3/4 to 26. Retail stocks were pressured by lackluster September sales reports this week, and while Wal-Mart made the best showing, it was sold earlier in the week in anticiaption of a poor report.

Philip Morris followed, down 3 to 44 3/4. IBM was third, sinking 8 to 100 1/4 in a week that saw reports saying Big Blue would delay its new entries into the laptop computer market.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T added 1/4 to 32, General Electric lost 1 1/4 to 53, and Boeing rose 1 to 44 1/2.

Elsewhere, Motorola tumbled 5 3/4 to 54 3/4 after a disappointing earnings report.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index sank 12.51 to close Friday at 293.97. Declines pounded advances 638-181 among the 987 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 56,459,070 shares, compared with 66,455,115 traded a week earlier and 64,729,745 traded in the same week a year ago.

Energy Service led the Amex actives, off 3/4 to 2 7/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index plunged 19.80 to end the week at 327.56.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - The Senate passed a $183.3 billion spending bill for health and other domestic programs Friday that includes only a small fraction of the money authorized by the emergency AIDS-care bill named for Ryan White.

The Senate voted 76-15 for the legislation appropriating funds during the 1991 fiscal year for the Labor, Education and Health and Human Services departments. The House passed a $170.7 billion bill, and the differences between the two measures will be worked out by a conference committee.

In passing its bill, the Senate, on a voice vote, also approved an amendment requiring that any recipient of money from the appropriation provide parental notification before performing an abortion for a woman under age 18.

Included in the bill is $2.2 billion for Public Health Service AIDS programs. Total federal spending on AIDS treatment, testing and research in 1991 would be $3.9 billion when programs such as Medicaid and Medicare are included.

However, the legislation appropriates only $49 million of the $875 million authorized in the 1991 fiscal year by the bill named for White, the Indiana native who died at age 18 in April after a courageous fight against AIDS.

Ryan White's mother, Jeanne White, in a telephone interview from Cicero, Ind., called the funding level ''a very big disappointment.''

''The country has not woken up to this issue,'' she said. ''I realize that the country has to have a budget and I realize that we have to appropriate money. I'm not saying cut it off from everywhere else. But AIDS is one problem that needs to be looked at.''

The Ryan White Comprehensive AIDS Resource Emergency (CARE) Act passed both houses of Congress by overwhelming margins and was signed into law with great flourish by President Bush in August.

CARE was intended to help areas hardest hit by the AIDS epidemic by increasing the availability of non-institutional care for people with the disease through grants to cities, states and health-care providers.

The appropriations bill provides $49 million to 16 hard-hit cities, but leaves many CARE Act programs without money - including early intervention and education services.

The bill does include $110 million for state programs that pre-dated the CARE Act and recommends that another $441 million be spent in the 1992 fiscal year for Ryan White programs.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., saying the government is spending too much on AIDS in response to ''media hype,'' proposed two amendments seeking to shift funds away from AIDS progams. Both were rejected by decisive margins.

The spending bill had left the Appropriations Committee's health subcommittee with no new money under the Ryan White measure. The $49 million was added in committee, but an attempt to increase that amount by $338 million failed.

The House spending bill was passed before the Ryan White bill was signed into law and could not include money for the program. But the House created a $2.9 billion reserve for CARE and other programs in the same situation.

Daniel Bross of the AIDS Action Council said AIDS activists will focus their lobbying efforts on persuading the conference committee to shift money from the reserve fund to the Ryan White program.

(OCT. 12) UPI - Hurricane Lili churned harmlessly off the coast of North Carolina and Virginia Friday, while residents along the lower Atlantic Coast bailed out from soaking rains of two other storms that killed at least nine people.

Lili closely followed Tropical Storm Marco, which swept through Florida and Georgia Thursday with 65-mph winds that left thousands without power, prompted school and court closings and damaged homes and buildings.

The National Weather Service downgraded hurricane warnings for the North Carolina coast and Virginia to tropical storm warnings and watches as Lili veered to the north earlier than expected.

In the Carolinas, six deaths were attributed to the storms. Two were traffic fatalities and four were deaths from a collapsed dam. Georgia authorities reported three fatalities resulting from flooding near Augusta.

Officials ordered the 700 residents of Ocracoke Island, part of North Carolina's Outer Banks chain, to evacuate even though the sun shone as Lili thrashed in the Atlantic.

By early evening, Lili's center was near latitude 31.7 north, longitude 72.1 west, about 315 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C. It was moving northwest at about 15 mph. The National Weather Service Hurricane Center forecast the storm to gradually take a turn toward the north during the next 24 hours.

A tropical storm warning was in effect from Cape Lookout, N.C., through Virginia Beach, and a tropical storm watch was in effect from north of Virginia Beach to Cape Henlopen, Del.

''If this scenario pans out, the strongest side of the storm will remain over the open waters of the Atlantic,'' the Hurricane Center said in a special weather statement. ''Winds in the watch area will be gusty, but should stay well below hurricane strength.''

The weather service said the greatest impact will be on the marine community, with some beach erosion and lowland coastal flooding expected.

In Norfolk, the Navy was taking precautions related to Lili. The aircraft carrier USS Enterprise was moved from Norfolk Naval Station to Newport News Shipbuilding late Friday morning.

The battleship USS Iowa had been moved to a safer berth Thursday, at Norfolk Naval Shipyard. The Iowa, which will soon be decommissioned, can no longer sail under its own power.

More ships were to be moved as the weather warranted, Navy officials said.

At Nags Head Pier, a popular North Carolina beach area, seas were up only about 4 feet, and rain was yet to fall, but David Grana, a pier employee, said many people were apparently leaving town or busy securing property.

''There's a little rough water out there,'' he said. ''People are taking the warning, a few are evacuating. Everybody is starting to batten down.''

By early afternoon, motorists with RVs or campers already had begun to crowd the main highway leading from Ocracoke Island, in Hyde County.

''I think people in the area are familiar enough with a hurricane,'' said Hyde County Sheriff's Sgt. W.E. Gibbs. ''They know what could happen and what the probabilities are.''

In Dare County, home of Kill Devil Hills where the Wright brothers took their first flight, authorities also asked residents and tourists to leave low-lying areas and mobile homes.

The remnants of Tropical Storm Klaus as well as a cold front moving in from the west soaked most of the East Coast Thursday from Florida to Pennsylvania, dumping more than 7 inches of rain on parts of Georgia.

Augusta, Ga., was saturated with as much as 5 inches of rain overnight, leaving floodwaters 6 feet deep in some areas and at least three motorists dead in nearby Jefferson County. Three neighborhoods had to be evacuated.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Department said three motorists were killed there as floodwaters swept over highways.

''We've got several fatalities. They were caught in their vehicles and washed away,'' a Jefferson County Sheriff's Department spokesman said.

''It's bad,'' said a Richmond County Sheriff's Department dispatcher. ''There's 2 to 3 feet of water out there and south Augusta is just over-flooded. When I got out of my car, water was over my ankles. There are at least 50 cars flooded on the highways.''

Augusta Police Sgt. M. D. James said all main streets were flooded but there was no estimate of damages.

''We've had people calling this morning saying their cars are floating off. The water is up past the bumpers, and just about up to the windows in the downtown area,'' James said.

A tornado created by Marco touched down in the Florida panhandle community of Lake City shortly after 4 p.m. EDT. Lake City officials reported minor injuries, damaged mobile homes and downed power lines.

National Weather Service officials said Marco would probably weaken further as it continued northward over the next 24 hours.

Marco and Lili are the 13th and 14th named storms of the Atlantic- Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. There have not been as many since 1969, when there were 14 named storms.

Marco formed Wednesday morning from a low-pressure system that moved over Cuba Tuesday. That system swallowed up the dissipated remains of Tropical Storm Klaus, which killed six people as it moved over the Lesser Antilles last week and dumped 3 inches of rain on south Florida Tuesday.

In South Carolina, three people drowned and one child was missing when their vehicle was swept away by water from a burst dam. Two highway deaths in North Carolina were blamed on heavy rain.

UPI - The U.S. budget crisis again dominated the business scene this week, roiling financial markets and contributing in part to a steep three-day selloff in stocks, but oil priced at around $40 a barrel and renewed worries about inflation added to storm clouds hovering over the domestic economy as well.

Congress and the administration lurched toward another showdown over how to cut the size of the federal budget deficit, with political differences seemingly blocking a short-term solution to the question of what combination of taxes and cuts in spending programs should go into a deficit-reduction package.

The possibility of a full-scale shutdown of government services loomed unless President Bush and Congress could resolve their differences.

At week's end, the Democratic-controlled House rallied behind a plan put forth by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, that would, among other things, raise the top personal income tax rate to 33 percent.

The plan also would impose a 10 percent surtax on taxpayers with earned taxable income over $1 million - about 1.5 million to 2 million people - and would retain ''sin'' and luxury taxes contained in a painstakingly drawn budget summit agreement voted down by the House Oct. 5. The new plan would also scale back a federal tax hike on gasoline to 3 cents a gallon.

Meanwhile, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who heads the Senate Finance Committee, worked with Republicans on a bipartisan plan more in line with the White House's wishes.

Trying to explain his way out of the tax confusion, Bush went public with his willingness to support a higher maximum tax on high-income Americans in exchange for a sharp cut in the tax on capital gains.

But financial markets were unsettled by Congress and the administration - especially Bush's apparent flip-flop on trading off higher tax rates for a capital-gains cut - at loggerheads.

Key legislators urged conciliation in hammering out an agreement.

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., chairman of the House Budget Committee, summed up the feeling of many, saying: ''We're now at the end of the rope. And I think this is the point where, frankly, everybody's got to get their act together, both Congress as well the president.''

ATHENS, Ga. (OCT. 12) UPI - President Bush's handling of the Persian Gulf crisis drew high praise from former secretaries of state Friday, although the diplomats disagreed on the tactics necessary for a successful resolution of the conflict.

Six former U.S. foreign policymakers, in a conference at the University of Georgia, debated the timing and conditions under which military force might be used against Iraq.

''I recognize the understandable impatience to lash out before the sanctions are given a chance,'' said Cyrus Vance, who held the post under President Carter. ''There's a great deal of talk about using the military option. I think that would be a grave mistake. We've got to see whether the embargo will work.''

Alexander Haig and George Shultz, who held the post in the Reagan administration, said military action might be needed for the United States to achieve its objectives in the crisis.

Shultz took the firmest stance, saying resolution of the crisis must include elimination of Iraq's chemical weapons.

''The weapons of mass destruction have to be dealt with and destroyed,'' Shultz said. ''If you don't remove the chemical weapons capability from Iraq ... it's a great failure.''

Haig argued the first priority must remain Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

''I think it would be a mistake to suddenly escalate the conditions that we are seeking to achieve, such as the overthrow of Saddam Hussein, or the removal of all of his chemical or nuclear potential,'' Haig said. ''It doesn't mean that this should not be an implicit goal of American foreign policy, or United Nations or Pan-Arab policy.

''It must be and will be ultimately,'' Haig added. ''But the first task is to have the U.N. resolutions abided by, to get him out of Kuwait and return it to the legitimate rulers of that country.''

Other former secretaries warned the United States must take into account the positions of other nations that have contributed to the political pressure and economic sanctions against Iraq.

''The coalition rallied around the invasion of Kuwait.... They did not give us a blank check for our broader objectives,'' said Edmund Muskie, who served in the Carter administration. ''We have to keep our focus on the points agreed upon earlier. Chemical weapons were not part of the original objective.''

Dean Rusk, a professor of international law at the University of Georgia who served as secretary of state under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, joined the others on the panel in urging that economic sanctions be allowed to take their course.

''The other alternatives to me are unacceptable or very difficult,'' Rusk said. ''We learned a long time ago the American people are very impatient about war. When we get into a war they want it resolved very quickly. President Bush will have to take that into account if he decides to do anything other than what he is doing.''

William Rogers, who held the post in the Nixon administration, said the United States must avoid repeating the perception of the Vietnam War, which ''looked like a hopeless mess.''

''It looked like we were not sure what our objectives were,'' Rogers said. ''We have to state our objectives to begin with and let the American people know what we hope to achieve.''

But Muskie said questions about America's goals in the Gulf will arise ''no matter how clearly our country's leadership undertakes to state the purposes.''

''We thought we were there to deter Saddam Hussein from invading Saudi Arabia; now we're beginning to hear people say we may have to attack Saddam Hussein in order to get rid of him,'' Muskie said. ''If we use an option other than that of deterring Saddam Hussein from crossing the border to attack Saudi Arabia, webetter be darn sure that we state clearly what our next objectiveis and why.''

The former foreign policymakers participated in the conference as part of the 8th Annual Report of Former Secretaries of State, sponsored by the Southern Center for International Studies. Their tenure ranges from 1961, when Rusk took office under President John Kennedy, to 1989, when Shultz left office at the close of the Reagan administration.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 12) UPI - An elderly woman who pleaded guilty to the attempted murder of her husband at a convalescent home was placed on five years' probation Friday after her spouse asked that she not be sentenced to prison.

Superior Court Judge Michael Harwin granted Carrie Adams, 66, 17 days credit for the time she spent in custody following her arrest May 31, the day of the shooting.

Using a .32-caliber pistol, Adams shot her husband, Eugene, 68, in the back of the head during a visit to the Vernon Convalescent Hospital, where he was a patient. Adams then shot herself once in the head. The bullet remains lodged in her neck.

Deputy District Attorney Thomas Herman said that Adams shot her husband out of fear that if she died or became incapacitated, there would be no one to care for her spouse.

Herman said that Adams was suffering from depression apparently caused by her own failing physical condition - she had undergone open- heart surgery - and medication she was taking for various ailments.

In deciding against prison for Adams, the judge took into account her husband's request not to have her incarcerated and the couple's desire to resume living together once he is released from the hospital.

NEW YORK (OCT. 12) UPI - The U.S. Treasury bond market staged an end-of-week rally on a rumor of Iraqi peace feelers in the Persian Gulf.

But there was little else to encourage bond buying, given the mainly upward path oil prices have taken in recent days and the prospect for an extended Washington battle over how to reorder the nation's finances.

Even mounting signs that recession is grasping the economy, usually a bullish development for fixed-income government securities, was not drawing investors into the market in any significant numbers, analysts said.

That left the market nervous and susceptible to the reports saying President Saddam Hussein of Iraq had floated the idea of pulling out of Kuwait with some members of his Baath Party, and sounded out the Soviets on terms. The U.S. State Department later said the report had no substance.

Peaceful resolution of the Mideast crisis, opened Aug. 2 with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, would likely trigger a hefty drop in oil prices from their current level of nearly $40 a barrel. In turn, that would probably ease bond market inflation fears and give prices an upward push.

''There was no confirmation'' of the rumors, said money market analyst Scott Winningham of Stone & McCarthy Research Associates Inc., a Princeton, N.J. financial markets advisory firm, ''but we were able to trade strong for the rest of the day and close substantially higher.''

The benchmark 30-year bond, the 8 3/4 of 2020, ended at 97 25/32 to yield 8.96 percent, compared with 99 17/32 and 8.79 percent a week earlier. That made for a loss of 1 3/4 points, or $17.50 for every $1,000 face value.

But the long bond price was up more than a point from the previous day, when the security closed at 96 21/32 to yield 9.07 percent.

Winningham said, however, that the rally seemed limited to dealers and other market professionals. On the rumors, participants rushed to cover their short positions - strategic commitments to sell bonds made earlier in expectation of reaping profits when their prices fell.

Until that flurry, though, it was a bleak week.

Douglas Schindewolf, a Smith Barney analyst, reported in the firm's Credit Market Comment newsletter: ''The weight of additional increases in oil prices and the appearance of disarray in the budget process put significant downward pressure on securities prices this week.''

Disappointing results in Wednesday's Treasury auction of $8.5 billion in new seven-year bonds, in which Japanese and other foreign investors were virtually absent, depressed prices and pushed the long-bond yield over 9 percent.

Investors were still dismayed by the inability of the Congress and the White House to move ahead on trimming the deficit, but Winningham said the market no longer was obsessed with the fiscal impasse. ''People are disgusted, but it's priced in'' to security rates, he said.

However, Washington maneuvering could prove disruptive to the market over the next week if Congress and the White House lock horns.

The Treasury is tentatively scheduled to auction $10.75 billion in one-year bills on Thursday. But the sale cannot proceed unless Congress clears the way by raising the statutory debt limit.

Dealers will not trade the issue in advance of the auction on a ''when-issued'' basis unless a budget accord is passed or the government approves separate legislation enabling the government to issue more debt.

Ten-year Treasury notes ended at 99 18/32 to yield 8.81 percent, against 100 21/32 and 8.65 percent the week before. Five-year notes ended at 100 09/32 to yield 8.42 percent, compared with 100 28/32 and 8.28 percent.

Three-year Treasury notes closed at 99 23/32 to yield 8.11 percent, compared with 100 02/32 and 7.97 percent seven days before. Two-year notes were at 100 12/32 to yield 7.91 percent, vs. 100 18/32 and 7.81 percent.

BONN, GERMANY (OCT. 12) UPI - A gunman shot and seriously wounded German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaueble following a political meeting in southwestern Germany, an official spokesman said early Saturday.

The spokesman said the attack was not believed to have been carried out by an extremist organization. A police spokesman said a 37-year-old suspect believed to be associated with ''the drug scene'' was arrested following the shooting.

Schaueble was shot after he addressed a meeting of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative Christian Democratic Union in southwestern Germany.

The gunman fired three shots, two of which hit the 48-year-old Schaueble in the head, the police spokesman said. The CDU politician was immediately taken to hospital and was said to be out of immediate danger, police said.

A security official who jumped in front of Schaueble to shield him from the shots was also wounded, police said.

The incident occurred about 10 p.m. Friday in Oppenau, in the south of what was West Germany until the Oct. 3 unification. Police said the gunman stood up and fired at the minister at the end of the CDU meeting.

Because the interior ministry is responsible for ''anti-terrorism'', Schaueble was considered one of the prime targets of extremists in Germany.

PARIS (OCT. 12) UPI - The United States plans to launch a four-day blitz against Iraq on a moonless night in November, taking advantage of nocturnal vision equipment to overcome Iraqi forces but taking U.S. casualties of at least 20,000, a French news magazine reported Friday.

L'Express magazine said it had learned of the plan, codenamed ''Operation Night Camel,'' from an unidentified aide of U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

The Pentagon declined comment on the report.

In the first stage of the operation, low-flying Stealth F117-A bombers would knock out radar systems of Iraqi anti-aircraft batteries, L'Express said.

U.S. aircraft including F-15s based at Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, and FA- 18s, A-6 Intruders and A-7 Corsairs from the aircraft carrier USS Independence would then take out Iraq's ground-to-ground Scud and Al- Hussein intermediate range missiles and attack air bases where Iraqi Sukhoi, Tupolev and Mirage fighters and bombers are housed, L'Express quoted the aide as saying.

''The whole success of the enterprise depends on annihilating the Iraqi air force in the first few hours,'' the aide was quoted as saying.

B-52 bombers from the Indian Ocean base of Diego Garcia would launch cruise missiles to destroy eight key Iraqi air bases in the desert near the Saudi frontier.

The first stage destroying Iraq's air power would last just six hours, according to L'Express.

The second stage would involve destruction of Iraq's industrial- military complex under a carpet of bombs and cruise missiles. Chemical and atomic plants would be destroyed along with the eight command bunkers in a Baghdad suburb where Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would be lurking.

Also destroyed during this stage would be the 90-mile highway from the southern port of Basra to Kuwait City. U.S. airplanes also would wipe out Iraq's T-55, T-62 and T-72 tanks.

Within 24 hours after the start of the blitz, Iraq would be ''militarily and economically ruined.''

The third stage involves a ''surgical operation'' to detach Kuwait and Iraq. Green Berets and Navy undercover SEAL units sent behind Iraqi lines in the first hours of the offensive will disrupt enemy communications.

A short time later, 200 M-1 Abrams tanks will pierce the Iraqi- Kuwaiti frontier ''Rommel-Style'' at the wady of Al-Batia north of the Saudi town of Hafr al-Batin, says L'Express.

In the fourth and final stage, Kuwait would be reclaimed. A force of 11,000 marines will land on northern Kuwaiti shores while 45,000 other Marines, three U.S. Army mechanised infantry brigades as well as 4,000 French troops and 6,000 British ''Desert Rats'' will make up a pincer movement on the southern frontier of Kuwait, L'Express said.

That force will open the way for an Arab force of 50,000 Egyptians, Syrians and Moroccans who will complete liberation of Kuwaiti territory and mopping up said the magazine.

Night Camel would cost at least 20,000 casualties, according to L'Express. The magazine also questioned whether the purported plan underestimated resistance by Iraqi troops and whether Western forces would be ready if Saddam uses chemical weapons.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (OCT. 12) UPI - Rebels may be preparing to launch a major military offensive in the capital in early November, Salvadoran Defense Minister Col. Rene Emilio Ponce said Friday.

''There are certain indications that preparations are being made for strong military action in the capital,'' Ponce said. ''And we are sure the guerrillas do not want peace.''

Government and rebel negotiators are scheduled to meet Nov. 4 in Mexico City for the sixth round of U.N.-mediated peace talks. The last five rounds stalemated on the issues of army reform and demilitarization.

Ponce said a hard-line faction of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, that does not believe in the peace talks is planning the offensive. Rebels launched a massive attack on San Salvador last November.

President Alfredo Cristiani, however, said the government remains firm in its position to find a peaceful solution to the decade-long civil war.

''We are always willing to reach agreements,'' Cristiani said. ''We are maintaining a flexible attitude and are calling on the FMLN to change their instransigent position.''

Rebels have rejected government proposals to negotiate an agreement only after they agree to a unilateral cease-fire.

FMLN leaders did not immediately respond to Ponce's allegations, but said in a broadcast on clandestine rebel Radio Venceremos early Friday that they are wholly committed to reaching a negotiated end to the war.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 12) UPI - House Ways and Means Committee Democrats completed their own budget plan Friday, an admittedly partisan document that scraps gasoline tax increases and creates a capital gains tax break intended for the middle class, not the rich.

The move was partly geared to stick it to House Republicans, who remained undecided Friday on whether to offer their own alternate plan next week when the House is scheduled to debate a deficit reduction bill that implements a broader budget outline passed by Congress earlier this week.

President Bush opposes the Democratic plan. It was his indecisiveness over whether to accept a deal to trade an increase in income tax rates for the rich for the capital gains tax cut he wants that prompted the Democrats to craft their own package.

''We reject the Ways and Means Democratic plan that takes us back to the tax-and-spend days and does not reflect the bipartisan agreement,'' Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said at the White House.

Later Friday, members of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee tentatively agreed upon their own budget plan, although they avoided the issues of capital gains and an increase in the tax rate paid by the wealthiest Americans.

The committee agreed to a plan that featured a 9 1/2-cent, phased-in tax on gasoline. The plan also added airplanes to the luxury tax proposal included in last week's ill-fated budget accord, and cut Medicare by $48.9 billion, down from the $60 billion reduction proposed in the defeated budget plan, said a Senate aide. The committee was scheduled to vote formally on the plan late Friday.

The plan adopted by Democrats on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee is expected to be offered next week as an alternative to a less specific plan approved Wednesday by the full committee.

The party proposal would raise income tax rates for the richest Americans from the current 28 percent to 33 percent, impose a surtax on those making more than $1 million a year, and cut Medicare by $42 billion over five years instead of by the $60 billion called for by a defeated bipartisan budget plan.

On Thursday, Democrats reduced a proposed gasoline tax increase from 9 cents per gallon to 3 cents. On Friday they decided to eliminate all gasoline tax increases.

To help make up for the lost revenue, Democrats proposed delaying for one year the annual inflation adjustment of income tax brackets and personal tax exemptions.

And they reduced by $18 billion - from $60 billion over five years proposed by the bipartisan budget summit and rejected by the House to $42 billion - the amount of cuts from Medicare. The amount borne by Medicare beneficiaries in the form of annual premium and deductible increases would drop from $28 billion over five years to $10 billion in the Democratic plan.

Democrats rejected the kind of capital gains tax cut sought by Bush - a big tax break on profits from the sale of assets, such as stocks, bonds and real estate - opting instead for a plan aimed at helping the middle class.

The Democratic plan would allow an individual to exclude from counting as income 50 percent of their long-term capital gain, up to a lifetime cap of $200,000 in gains. That cap is equal to a $100,000 lifetime tax exclusion.

The exclusion would apply to assets held by individuals for at least a year, but would not include publicly traded securities and collectibles.

In addition, Democrats proposed allowing taxpayers to earn $1,000 in capital gains each year tax-free on assets held at least a year, but the break would be phased out for those with incomes between $100,000 and $150,000. Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., of the Ways and Means Committee defended the proposal as a ''bold package'' that will help emphasize differences between the two political parties.

''I think for the first time they (the American people) are seeing the difference between the Democratic Party and what they want to do and the Republican Party and who they want to protect,'' Rostenkowski said.

Asked why Democrats proposed eliminating the gasoline tax increases, Rostenkowski said, ''This is a political atmosphere in which we're working and many members felt that going to the polls in several days, they feel they'd be exposed to some criticism.''

''This is designed both as a substantive and a political package,'' added Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., a member of the Ways and Means panel.

The pressure would be on Republicans because by opposing the Democratic plan they might be forced to propose instead tax increases or spending cuts that fall more heavily on the middle class and less heavily on the rich than would the Democratic plan.

BEIRUT (OCT. 13) - Lebanese Justice Minister Edmond Rizk on Saturday dismissed a French offer of political asylym to renegade military leader Michel Aoun, saying he had no right to it. "Justice will decide if he (Aoun) can leave Lebanon," said Rizk.

"For political asylum to take place, the crime must be political. But General Aoun is wanted for common law crimes and has already been tried (in absentia) for embezzlement," he said.

The government earlier held an emergency session and entrusted Rizk with the Aoun case, amid reports that several politicians here have asked that the general be tried for "crimes against the Lebanese people."

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said in Paris that his country would grant the general political asylum, and was currently negotiating a safe passage for him in talks with Syrian and Lebanese officials.

General Aoun has been holed up since morning in the French embassy southeast of here, awaiting evacuation and political asylum in France after a Syrian-led attack on his headquarters forced his surrender.

But according to Lebanese law he cannot leave for France unless the authorities here agree to grant him safe passage. "Of course, we respect the diplomatic immunity of the French embassy but Gen. Aoun cannot leave Lebanese territory without our agreement," said Rizk. He stressed, however, that Lebanon "does not wish to trigger a dispute with France" over the Aoun case.

Syrian troops and members of the Syrian military intelligence service were meanwhile surrounding the embassy in Mar Takla, southeast of Beirut.

BUCHAREST (OCT. 13) - Almost 2,000 Romanian students demonstrated in Bucharest city center Saturday demanding release of people imprisoned after riots in June. Almost 1,000 people were imprisoned after anti-government riots in mid-June left six dead and 502 injured. Of those jailed, 130 are still being held.

The demonstrators, who gathered on Opera Square near the city center, shouted anti-government and anti-communist slogans, screaming "down with Iliescu, down with communism" and "Iliescu is a second Ceausescu."

They were referring to Ion Iliescu, the Romanian president, and Nicolae Ceasescu, the dictator who was toppled from power and executed with his wife Elena on December 25, 1989.

Meanwhile, some 300 people answered a call by four small opposition political parties to march through the streets of the capital and urge the release of the 130 prisoners.

Marian Munteanu, the student leader imprisoned on June 18 after being beaten by pro-Iliescu miners and freed on August 2, denounced the "humiliating conditions of detention" and demanded freedom for those still being held. "We are not frightened. The only thing which worries us is lies. All sacrifices must be made to introduce democracy, freedom and justice," he said.

ABIDJAN (OCT. 13) - Liberians are continuing to escape war and famine by pouring into neighboring countries, where their number has nearly reached 600,000, a United Nations official said Saturday.

Cahn Nguyen-Tang, in charge of the Ivory Coast office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, said the number in Ivory Coast had reached 190,000 and would soon top 250,000. In Sierra Leone, 100,000 Liberians have sought refuge, and in Guinea, the figure has reached 300,000.

Nguyen-Tang said the HCR operation is fast running out of money. "We have budgeted funds for 150,000 refugees," he said. He said the current funding would last through November and the Geneva-based organization will launch a fresh appeal to donor nations in late October.

Most of the refugees belong to the Krahn tribe of former president Samuel Doe. The rebel National Patriotic Front of Charles Taylor, which controls most of Liberia, has recruited principally among the Gio and Mano tribes. About 100,000 of the Liberians in Ivory Coast have settled near the border, where the Ivorians belong to the same tribe and speak the same language.

He said the refugees, 70 percent of whom are women and children, receive a daily ration of a pound of rice. "The men are fighting or are dead," Nguyen-Tang added.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 13) - India announced on Saturday that it will regulate exports of chemicals that can be used to make weapons, in a move apparently prompted by the Gulf crisis.

The government has prepared a list of chemicals which would require prior clearance from authorities before being exported, a ministry of external affairs spokesman said here.

Detailed rules for examining these "dual purpose" chemicals before being cleared for exports and at the manufacturing levels have been drawn up to prevent misuse, he said. India had always been firmly committed to completely abolishing chemical weapons, he added. He did not comment on foreign press reports that chemicals from India were reaching Iraq for use in weapons.

The reports have said that several Western states have contacted New Delhi on the issue, especially after Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and its threats to use chemical weapons.

The spokesman said the list of dual-purpose chemicals had been prepared according to guidelines being determined by the conference on disarmament in Geneva and taking into account the structure of the domestic chemical industry.

LA PAZ (OCT. 13) - A massive country-wide search for assailants who bombed a residence of the U.S. Embassy's Marine guards here this week has netted eight suspects and a blood-stained getaway car, authorities said Saturday.

Some five thousand police agents were searching for members of a leftist group calling itself the Nestor Paz Zamora Commission (CNPZ), which claimed responsibility for the attack, a police spokesman said.

The group is named after Bolivian President Jaime Paz Zamora's brother, a leftist militant who was killed in a 1970 guerrilla-army clash. A police guard was killed in the attack late Wednesday and another was wounded. None of the Marines were hurt.

La Paz Police Chief Jose Parada said at least one of the attackers who hurled a bomb at the door of the Marines' residence from a passing car was apparently wounded as investigators found traces of blood in the automobile used in the attack. With that lead, he added, "sooner or later we should get them."

Police said eight suspects had been arrested Friday in the police dragnet, including two university students - one of them a Chilean national - with alleged ties to the CNPZ.

President Jaime Paz Zamora, attending the funeral Friday of the dead police guard, said he felt "personally touched (by the attack) because the terrorist group bears my brother's name."

In addition to the attack on the U.S. Marines, the CNPZ also claimed responsibility for a second bomb blast Wednesday night that destroyed a monument to former U.S. president John F. Kennedy near the city's main train station and slightly injured two passers-by. The police spokesman said Saturday that the U.S. Consulate here received several telephone bomb threats Friday, but all had turned out to be hoaxes.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (OCT. 13) - Turkish President Turgut Ozal arrived here Saturday on the first leg of a five-day, five-nation tour of the Middle East, Saudi press agency SPA said.

Ozal said before leaving Istanbul earlier in the day that his tour to Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Egypt and Syria would be the occasion to discuss Turkey's position in the Gulf crisis. He was welcomed at the airport here by King Fahd, Crown Prince Abdallah, Defence Minister Prince Sultan, and other ranking officials.

Bilateral relations, notably economic, are likely to be at the center of Ozal's talks with his respective counterparts. Observers estimate that Turkey's strict observance of the United Nations' Security Council embargo against Iraq is likely to cost it four to five billion dollars in 1990.

BOGOTA (OCT. 14) EFE - Colombian left-wing rebels killed four Ecuadorean soldiers, wounded six others and are believed to be holding 14 more captive after an ambush on an Army anti-drug patrol along the border, the Colombian Army said Saturday.

Officials of the Third Army Brigade in the city of Cali said the attack occurred Thursday along the San Miguel river which divides the two countries.

Ecuadorean military sources said only three soldiers had died in the ambush, but refused to give further information on the clash.

Ecuadorean President Rodrigo Borja, in an interview with a Colombian radio station, blamed the attack on "narco-guerrillas" and pointed out that the military patrol was carrying out an anti-drug operation.

A report in the Colombian newspaper El Tiempo said the 24-man Ecuadorean patrol, which was traveling along the river in two small boats, was attacked by some 130 rebels of the leftist Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC).

It said the rebels had taken 14 soldiers who were unharmed in the clash captive.

FARC and Colombia's four other rebels groups have recently indicated they are willing to enter into peace talks with President Cesar Gaviria.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 13) EFE - U.S. Defense Secretary Richard Cheney was in London Saturday at the start of a three-country European tour that will take him to Moscow, where he is expected to ask Soviet officials for information on the Iraqi war machine.

Cheney is to meet British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Defense Minister Tom King before leaving Britain Tuesday to travel to the Soviet Union.

A high-ranking Pentagon official said last Thursday that Cheney would ask the Soviets to pass on data held by Soviet military advisers who were sent in to Iraq before the August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

During his four-day visit the defense secretary is hoping to pick up some facts about the 3,500 Soviet-made tanks and Soviet-made airplanes used by the Iraqi Armed Forces, said the official who asked to remain anonymous.

Last month the director of the Soviet KGB intelligence agency, Vladimir Kryuchkov, said his country was prepared to turn over information on the Iraqi Armed Forces to the United States.

On Friday, Baghdad warned the Soviet Union that it would reverse its decision to release the approximately 5,000 Soviet citizens still in Iraq if Soviet officials passed on information to the United States.

An Iraqi military spokesman in Baghdad said, +If the Soviet Union gives the United States the information it is seeking, we will unfortunately be obliged to act in a way that would protect our national security.+

The majority of the Soviet citizens in Iraq work in the oil fields, but 93 military advisers remain of the 200 that were in Iraq at the time of the invasion, according to the Monday edition of the Soviet daily Izvestia.

The Iraqi threat came less that six days after a Soviet envoy to Baghdad received assurances from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that Soviet workers would be allowed to leave the country once their contracts were completed.

The Soviet Union has not indicated how it would respond should Iraq bar Soviet citizens from leaving the country.

Cheney is also expected to discuss the progress of Soviet internal economic and political reforms but will not press the Kremlin to send troops to join the U.S.-led multinational force in the Gulf, the Pentagon official said.

Meanwhile, the Pentagon officially denied a report in the French weekly L'Express stating that the United States had prepared a plan to liberate Kuwait that would destroy Iraq in four days at the cost of 20,000 lives of the 200,000 U.S. troops stationed in the region.

Cheney, only the second U.S. defense secretary to visit Moscow following Frank Carlucci's 1988 trip, is to meet with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his counterpart Dimitri Yazov.

Cheney is scheduled to leave Moscow Friday for Paris where he will meet with French President Francois Mitterrand and Defense Minister Jean Pierre Chevenement before returning to Washington.

NEW YORK (OCT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Colgate-Palmolive (NYSE: CL) is the first advertiser to buy space on Soviet buses, through Transportation Displays, Inc.'s (TDI) Soviet transit network, both companies announced today.

Appearing on bus exteriors in Moscow and Kiev, the king-size posters contain the headline "Colgate - the World's Most Popular Toothpaste" in Cyrillic, using as the visual a super-wide Colgate smile created to look like toothpaste (2-foot-by-12-foot format). The agency is Young & Rubicam's Moscow affiliate.

Bus transportation is a major factor in Soviet everyday life and a constant presence on city streets. The fleet in Moscow, for example, includes 14,000 buses for a population of 9.5 million, as compared to New York City's bus fleet of 4,000 for a population of 7.4 million.

For Colgate, the bus posters are part of its oral care strategy to create steadily growing consumer demand and professional recognition among Soviet dentists. Colgate toothpaste recently become the first Western consumer product to be granted the Seal of Approval from the Soviet Ministry of Health's Central Scientific-Research Institute of Stomatology. The official Seal appears prominently on the bus poster and on all Colgate packages sold in the U.S.S.R.

Edgar Field, Colgate group vice president for international business development, said: "This is another excellent opportunity for Colgate to broaden awareness of our world-class toothpaste among the U.S.S.R.'s 280 million consumers."

"We are delighted that Colgate-Palmolive, one of the largest consumer products companies in the world, has selected the TDI network for its business-building program in the U.S.S.R.," commented TDI President and Chief Executive Office William M. Apfelbaum.

TDI obtained the exclusive license to advertise on all transportation vehicles in major Soviet cities in March. Their transit network consists of bus, trolley, tram, bus shelter and taxi cab advertising media forms in all major cities including Moscow and Kiev.

"Colgate-Palmolive's pioneering decision to advertise on TDI's network will undoubtedly pave the way for other American advertisers," said Howard Ziff, who is spearheading the effort for TDI in the Soviet Union.

Colgate-Palmolive is a $5 billion global consumer products company, selling its products in more than 160 countries. Its strategy is to focus on the core businesses of oral care, body care, household surface care, fabric care and animal dietary care. The worldwide leader in oral care, Colgate manufactures and sells four out of every ten tubes of toothpaste in the world.

SPOKANE, WA (OCT. 13) UPI - Two customers at a check-cashing shop thought they spotted a gunman on a security monitor and called police to report a robbery, but the holdup turned out to be on an episode of "General Hospital."

Police sent every available officer to the Check-X-Change Thursday afternoon, only to find the customers had mistaken a television set for a security monitor.

As police positioned themselves outside, a dispatcher called the store's unsuspecting teller, Chris Wiltse, 20. "They asked if everything was OK, and I said, 'Yes,"' Wiltse said. "And they said, 'Are you sure?" "They searched the building real quick to make sure nobody was here, " Wiltse said.

It wasn't clear how many police officers responded, but Lt. Robert Van Leuven said, "I know we had a very, very extensive response." He said any time an armed robbery in progress is reported, "You can count on the fact that you are going to see a lot of police officers."

"I think it's fascinating," ABC Television publicist Valerie Dobbins said of the incident, adding she thought the robbery report was a compliment to the show's realism.

The man at the root of the trouble was Scott Thompson Baker, the actor who plays Colton on General Hospital. When the two customers walked into the Check-X-Change, Colton, gun in hand, was seen creeping toward the roof of the hospital in an attempt to rescue hostages.

"I guess I'll never complain about the lack of reality again" on soaps, Baker said from Los Angeles. The two customers apologized to police, but Van Leuven said they did the right thing. "We would rather receive a call of that nature and have people be involved, than have someone ignore it," he said.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (OCT. 13) UPI - Infantry desert combat is not unlike the ground game in football: five yards and a cloud of dust, five yards and a cloud of dust.

Members of the famed 82nd Airborne Division practiced taking enemy positions in the desert Friday, this time using live amunition to keep their marksmanship honed.

And the quality of the training showed when two gunners who have never fired the Dragon II anti-armor each hit their target with the $6,000 rockets, each raising a loud cheer from their comrades when the rounds hit the targets.

In the six to eight seconds after the round fired, they successfully kept the cross hairs of the aiming device on target, allowing a computer to send steering signals to the rocket, which then fired little pulse rockets to stay on course.

In the live-fire exercise that followed the rocket firing, the troops of Bravo squad of the 2nd Battalion of the 505th Parachute Infantry Regiment worked in pairs, rushing forward five yards and dropping first to their knees and then letting momentum lay them out prone.

An M-60 machine gun barked out covering fire as two teams working as a platoon ran forward two at a time, slowly reaching the objective at what was a slow walk for following news reporters. Once within about 30 yards, they jumped up and charged, with their sergeant yelling at them to spread out instead of bunching up as they closed on the bunkers of make-believe enemy.

They took a bit of sadistic joy in hitting their targets - empty cartons of vacuum-packed meals they have been eating.

Carrying the squad automatic weapon, essentially an M-16 that will fire up to 200 rounds without reloading, was Spec. 4 James Weirz of Gainsville, Fla., a 20-year-old whose wife and son, James, are waiting for him in Troy, N.C.

He and others in various units of the 82nd have been busy. The 82nd saw action in Panama, then some units went on multinational force duty in Egypt, and had hardly been home long enough to run to a joint training center for two months when they were rushed off to Saudi Arabi.

Consequently, Weirz has seen his 2-year-old son for just three months in the past year. His wife is sending him pictures so he can keep up with his son's progress.

Sgt. Joe Caughenbaugh, 22, of Waco, Texas, has been home for two months in the past 10. He and his wife are expecting their first child in March. "I'd like to be home then for my first child," said Caughenbaugh.

These soldiers are hoping to make their first jump in Saudi Arabia in November and when they jump, it likely will be with the 90 to 100 pounds of gear they each haul into the field with them.

They let their packs dangle below them on a line once they've jumped so the impact with the ground is lessened, letting the ground "surpise" them with the impact to reduce injuries from tensing up in anticipation of landing.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (OCT. 13) UPI - About 700 Kuwaiti government leaders, educators businessmen, and refugees gathered Saturday for a three-day conference on the future of their nation after it was invaded and ransacked by Iraq.

The three days of public and private meetings, centered on the liberation of the country from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, will culminate with the issuing of a communique on the situation.

The Kuwaiti leadership, one government source said, hopes the meetings can remain focused on the question of freeing the country and leave the issue of what form of government Kuwait should return to for another time. There is a budding movement to shift toward a more democratic form of government and away from the monarchy run by the emir, Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmed al-Sabah. Both the emir and Kuwait's prime minister, Sheik Saad Al-Abdulla Al-Sabah, will address the conference.

The gathering, billed as the "Kuwait People's Conference," also will include descriptions by refugees of the horrors inflicted on Kuwait and its citizens since the Aug. 2 invasion.

"The very presence of this large number of Kuwaitis is itself a pledge of allegiance for the reign of the Al-Sabah family in general and for Sheik Jaber in particular," State Minister for Cabinet Affairs Abdul Rahman Al-Awadi told the English-language Arab News in an interview published Friday.

Awadi also forecast that Arab states that did not initially condemn Iraq would come around to supporting Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, which has played host both to Kuwaiti exiles and to U.S. and allied forces rushed in to stop any attempt by Iraq to invade Saudi Arabia.

And he denied suggestions that the return of the Sabah family to control of the oil state had fallen to the bottom of the U.S. agenda, saying, "The U.S. administration still believes the liberation of Kuwait and the restoration of the legitimate government are inseparably prerequisites for any solution."

The meeting is certain to be watched closely both by the allied powers gathered in Saudi Arabia and by other Persian Gulf states ruled by royal families for signs of the political direction that emerges from the session. The meetings may become confrontational over the rule of the Sabah family, The New York Times reported this week.

But it also quoted pediatrician Fawzia Al-Sayegh, a leader of the Free Kuwait Society in London who argued, "Let us first wait for our return to a liberated Kuwait. I am all for a the pro-democracy movement, but I am equally sure that once we get back, the emir and the crown prince will be very responsive to the need for greater participation in government."

WASHINGTON (OCT. 13) UPI - While the House remained mired in partisan posturing, the Senate Finance Committee early Saturday approved a compromise five-year deficit reduction plan crafted to avoid a showdown with President Bush.

The package, which included $142.1 billion in tax increases and a $48.9 billion cut in Medicare, does not include the contentious proposal for a tax rate hike for the highest-income taxpayers coupled with the capital gains tax cut that Bush covets.

The tax-writing committee approved the plan on a 15-5 vote at about 12:25 a.m. EDT, after 70 minutes of debate during which both Democratic leader Sen.

George Mitchell of Maine and Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas urged passage. The package went to the full committee only after 4 1/2 hours of fine-tuning during closed-door bargaining among panel members. "I believe we've done the job," said committee chairman Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

The panel earlier had been thrown into turmoil after President Bush appeared to reject swapping higher income tax rates on the rich for the lower capital gains tax.

Bentsen, Mitchell, and other panel Democrats said they would have preferred a plan that included raising the marginal tax rate charged to the highest-income Americans from 28 percent to 33 percent, a move Bush strongly opposes. Bentsen said he was willing to give Bush a capital gains tax cut, that is, a tax break on profits from the sale of assets such as stocks, bonds, and real estate.

But Bentsen said the tradeoff between a tax hike for the rich and the capital gains cut was scuttled as a result of Bush's indecisiveness on the issue. He added the package did not include the 33 percent rate for the wealthiest Americans because "we cannot get a package enacted without the president's signature."

The Medicare cut included in the package was well below the $60 billion included in the budget summit agreement hammered out between congressional leaders and the White House that was rejected by the House last week.

The Senate plan also included a phased-in nine-and-a-half-cent tax on gasoline down from the 12-cent proposal from the summit agreement, embraced the cigarette and alcohol taxes of the budget summit package and expanded on the luxury taxes, while scrapping some tax deductions.

Mitchell called the plan "a fair compromise" that was "far superior" in some respects to the budget summit agreement. Dole said he was optimistic about full Senate approval, adding, "I think the end result is right and necessary."

Two Democracts and three Republicans voted against the plan. Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, said, "We're walking into a buzzsaw" by raising taxes in a slumping economy and suggested a spending freeze instead. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said the plan hurt the middle class and elderly while giving tax breaks to "wealthy oil and energy investors."

On Friday, House Ways and Means Committee Democrats completed their own competing budget plan, an admittedly partisan document that scraps gasoline tax increases and creates a capital gains tax break intended for the middle class, not the rich.

The move was partly geared to stick it to House Republicans, who remained undecided Friday on whether to offer their own alternate plan next week when the House is scheduled to debate a deficit reduction bill that implements a broader budget outline passed by Congress earlier this week. The plan is expected to be offered next week as an alternative to a less specific plan approved Wednesday by the full committee.

"We reject the Ways and Means Democratic plan that takes us back to the tax-and-spend days and does not reflect the bipartisan agreement," Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said at the White House.

The party proposal would raise the income tax rates for the highest- income Americans from the current 28 percent to 33 percent, impose a surtax on those making more than $1 million a year, and cut Medicare by $42 billion over five years instead of by the $60 billion called for by a defeated bipartisan budget plan.

On Thursday, Democrats reduced a proposed gasoline tax increase from nine cents per gallon to three cents. On Friday they decided to eliminate all gasoline tax increases.

To help make up for the lost revenue, Democrats proposed delaying for one year the annual inflation adjustment of income tax brackets and personal tax exemptions. A $42 billion Medicare cut was included in the plan.

Democrats rejected the kind of capital gains tax cut sought by Bush, opting instead for a plan aimed at helping the middle class. Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., of the Ways and Means Committee defended the proposal as a "bold package" that will help emphasize differences between the two political parties.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 13) UPI - Members of the U.N. Security Council voted unanimously to condemn "acts of violence" by Israeli forces in the Old City in Jerusalem that resulted in the deaths of at least 20 Palestinians.

The vote late Friday was taken after five days of negotiations in which the Palestine Liberation Organization, backed by Arab and other non-aligned nations, sought to condemn Israel in the strongest terms and demanded U.N. protection for Palestinians in Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

It was the first time in eight years that the United States voted to censure Israel. It condemned Israel in June, 1982, when that country's armed forces invaded Lebanon.

The United States initiated its own resolution condemning its ally, but demanded also that the Security Council blame the violence on both sides, the rock-throwing Palestinians as well as the Israeli troops.

The text adopted was a compromise reflecting demands by non-aligned countries as well as the five permanent members of the council - the United States, the Soviet Union, China, France, and Britain.

The resolution expressed "alarm" by the council at the violence committed by Palestinians as well as Israeli forces at the "Al Haram Al Shareef (the Temple Mount) and other Holy places in Jerusalem" on Monday. This satisfied a demand by the United States for a balanced condemnation. Washington had threatened to veto any document condemning only Israel.

Israeli authorities said rock-throwing Palestinian demonstrators attacked Jewish worshipers at the Temple Mount's Western Wall. The intervention by Jerusalem police resulted in the death of at least 20 Palestinians.

After expressing its concern, the council "condemns especially the acts of violence committed by the Israeli security forces resulting in injuries and loss of human life."

The council's president, David Hannay, read a statement before the vote informing the 15-member body that Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar will send a mission to Israel and it would submit before Oct. 24 a report containing recommendations on "ways and means for ensuring the safety and protection of Palestinians and civilians under Israeli occupation."

Hannay said has the "principal responsibility" to provide protection for Palestinians living in the West Bank and Gaza strip.

The resolution also called on Israel, as the "occupying power" of the territories, to abide by its legal obligations under the Geneva convention protecting civilians in a war zone, which is applicable to the territories, including Jerusalem.

The Yemeni ambassador to the United Nations, Abdalla Saleh Al-Ashtal, said the report, with the Oct. 24 deadline, would allow the Security Council to take action to resolve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering told reporters after the council ended closed-door negotiations Friday evening that the two sticking points that prevented agreement on a text since Monday had been a precise mandate for the investigation and the condemnation language. He said those points were resolved. "We believe the condemnation language is now equitable and balanced " Pickering said.

(OCT. 13) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... news from United Press International: .

The Senate Finance Committee has O.K.'d a compromise five-year deficit-cutting plan designed to avoid a showdown with President Bush. The package includes 142-BILLION dollars in tax hikes and a 48-BILLION- dollar cut in Medicare. The tax-writing panel approved the plan early today at the urging of Democratic leader Senator George Mitchell and Republican leader Robert Dole.

Israeli police fired water cannons to disperse Palestinian youths after Moslems attended prayers yesterday at the Temple Mount amid heavy security. Jerusalem border police say officials decided to prohibit residents of the occupied territories from entering Jerusalem because they had information ''large riots were planned'' after prayers.

Official U-S spokesman reaffirm the strength of U-S-Israeli ties. But other administration officials say the slaying of 21 Palestinians by Israeli police Monday was a blow that will have lasting effects. In the aftermath of the deaths the United States pressed for a resolution condemning Israel for the use of excessive force.

The White House threatens to veto civil rights legislation it says could lead to job quotas President Bush wants to avoid. Backers of the plan say they may have the votes to hand Bush the first veto override of his administration. The bill reverses six 1989 Supreme Court decisions that make it difficult for workers to sue their bosses for race and sex discrimination.

So far, NO group has claimed responsibility in the assassination of Egypt's Speaker of Parliament. Security officials believe foreign- trained extremists carried out the attack yesterday on a two-car motorcade escorting Speaker Rifaat El Mahgoub. The attack came amid fears of extremist strikes by pro-Iraqi groups opposed to the U-S presence in the Persian Gulf region.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (OCT. 13) UPI - A mild earthquake struck the central Philippine island of Negros Saturday, but authorities said there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Philippine Volcanology Institute director Raymundo Punongbayan said the temblor, at 12:28 p.m., measured 5.7 on the Richter scale. It was centered in the Negros trench in the Pacific, 300 miles south of Manila, he said.

Punongbayan said the quake was felt in the cities of Iloilo and Bacolod, but added there were no reports of damage or injuries. He said an earthquake with a 5.7 magnitude was not capable of causing tidal waves. "It occurred in the sea far from populated areas," Punongbayan said.

On July 16, an earthquake measuring 7.7 on the Richter scale struck the main Philippine island of Luzon, leaving more than 1,600 people dead and causing extensive devastation.

(OCT. 13) UPI - Hurricane Lilli lost power and was downgraded to a tropical storm as it veered away from the mid-Atlantic coast Saturday, but the remnants of two dissipated earlier storms poured floodwaters as much as waist-deep on roads from the Carolinas to Pennsylvania.

The National Weather Service said Lilli, which had wielded 92 mph wind gusts, dropped below the minimum hurricane threshold of 74 mph early Saturday as it began turning toward the north.

The turn from its northwesterly track, which occurred earlier than expected, allowed the NWS to cancel the tropical storm watches and warnings that had been posted for the North Carolina and Virginia coasts.

The storm's new track was expected to bring it no closer to land than 120 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N.C., early Saturday, 100 to 150 miles east of the Virginia coast by Saturday afternoon and 100 miles east of Maryland by evening.

Despite its turn away from the beaches, the storm might still extend tropical storm-force winds to shore - mainly in squalls - tossing a storm surge of one to two feet on the coast, stirring up rough surf and causing beach erosion, the NWS said.

Rain from two tropical storms that weakened and fell apart after hitting land continued to cause problems Saturday along the East Coast, where they killed nine people earlier in the week. Flood warnings were posted as far north as central Pennsylvania, where street flooding was reported in Perry and Northumberland counties.

Warnings were also aloft and moderate to heavy rain was continuing in Maryland Virginia, and the Carolinas. Rain was falling at more than one inch an hour in parts of west-central Virginia, west-central Maryland and northeastern West Virginia.

The remains of Tropical Storm Marco - which earlier absorbed remnants of Tropical Storm Klaus - were centered early Saturday just west of Columbia, S.C., and were moving slowly northward at less than 10 mph, the NWS said.

Marco swept through Florida and Georgia Thursday with 65 mph winds that left thousands without power, forced school closings and damaged homes and buildings.

In the Carolinas, six deaths were attributed to the storms. Two were traffic fatalities and four were deaths from a collapsed dam. Georgia authorities reported three fatalities resulting from flooding near Augusta.

By early Saturday, Marco's winds were no longer significant, but heavy rainfall - as much as 2 inches in a few hours - continued in some areas, the NWS said. Water as much as waist deep was reported in low- lying roadways in Rowan, Davidson and Guilford counties in North Carolina, including the cities of Spencer, Greensboro and High Point.

There was also widespread flooding reported throughout the southern Piedmont and northern foothills in North Carolina. Elsewhere, dense morning fog developed over parts of northeastern and east-central Indiana and in northwest Ohio, cutting visibility near Richmond, Ind., to zero and at Toledo Express Airport to about 220 yards.

MORRISVILLE, NC (OCT. 13) UPI - A Kuwaiti woman aboard the latest - and perhaps last - freedom flight from the mideast said Friday she lived in terror of Iraqi troops during the final days before her release.

"I was terrified," said the woman who would not give her name because her husband remains in the mideast. "There were Iraqi troops everywhere." She was among 257 refugees who arrived Friday at Raleigh-Durham International on a flight orginating in Baghdad. Officials said the flight was delayed Wednesday night while Iraqi authorities interrogated passengers.

The woman said after she fled Kuwait and went to Iraq she remained indoors most of the time to avoid Iraqi troops. "I was afraid of what the troops would do, so I avoided them," she said.

As she described her flight, her children were being entertained by Harold Maxwell, a Raleigh magician who volunteered to work in the airport terminal's repatriation center. Maxwell twisted balloons into the shape of toys for about two dozen of the 103 children on the flight while their parents cleared immigration.

"This is great," Maxwell said as two of the children battled with sword-shaped balloons. "It relieves the stress from being cooped up on the long flight."

The flight was comprised of 154 men and women and the 103 children, 24 of whom were infants, state officials said. Aprroximately half the passengers were U.S. citizens, state officials said. Seven were Canadian citizens.

Two of the children were unaccompanied, officials said, but were met by their mother, a U.S. citizen from Chicago who left Kuwait the day before Iraq's invasion.

The mother, identified only by her first name as Connie, said by way of a North Carolina official that the U.S. government should "have already sent the Marines in before all this got started."

"She said, 'It is insane to let this man (Saddam Hussein) get away with this "' said Joe Dean, state crime control secretary. Her husband, identified as a Kuwaiti senior oil engineer, was forced to remain behind.

Dean predicted the latest flight, the fourth to arrive in North Carolina and the tenth flight since the Aug. 2 invasion, would be the last. "The State Department told us the previous flight would be the last before this flight arrived," Dean said.

The latest repatriation effort taxed the staff of the state Department Crime Control and Public Safety. As staff members worked with the repatriates, other state workers braced for the possible arrival of Tropical Storm Lilli on the state's barrier islands and coped with flooding in the western part of the state caused by two other storm systems. "We're doing the job," Dean said. He said the influx of refugees was taxing the state Department of Human Resources.

TOKYO (OCT. 13) UPI - Le Duc Tho, the Vietnamese leader who negotiated an end to U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War but refused to share the Nobel Peace Prize with Henry Kissinger, died Saturday, the Japanese Kyodo News Agency reported. He was 79.

Tho, whose most recent position was as member of Vietnam's Communist Party central committee in the political division, suffered throat cancer and died at the People's Army hospital in Hanoi, the agency said quoting an announcement by the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry.

Tho, a silver-haired poet and long-time Vietnamese communist leader, negotiated the agreements that ended U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War and then rejected the Nobel Peace Prize because he was asked to share it with Kissinger, the U.S. negotiator.

Tho was the feared political strategist behind both the bloody 1968 Tet offensive in South Vietnam and the campaign that led to the capture of Saigon on April 30, 1975.

After the war, Tho supported moderate economic reforms but insisted on a dominant role for the Communist Party. He admitted he and other Vietnamese leaders led their country into serious economic difficulties.

Tho advocated the 1978 invasion of Cambodia and oversaw its military occupation. Even after his official retirement in 1986, he led a conservative faction that opposed any weakening of the Communist Party's political dominance.

Tho was born Oct. 1, 1911, as Phan Dinh Khai. He took the name Le Duc Tho as a wartime alias. He became committed to communist revolution against French colonialism while a teenager and spent years in French prisons.

Jailed on the notorious prison island of Poulo Condore, Tho and fellow communist leader Pham Van Dong kept up their spirits despite disease and ill nourishment by teaching each other the foreign languages they knew.

"We had to face very cruel torture by the French. I consider that as the greatest trial of my revolutionary career," he said years later. By the time he was released in 1944 he had spent 11 of his 33 years in jail.

Vietnamese sources have said that Tho married twice - the second time after learning his first wife had been killed by the French. Years later he learned his first wife had survived but chose to stay with the second, the sources said.

After World War II, Tho fought with the underground Viet Minh guerrillas against the French in southern Vietnam. In 1949 he was the Viet Minh delegate from the south.

Later he joined the government of Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi. He was elected to the powerful party politburo in 1951 at the age of 39. By 1956 he was clearly among the most powerful voices in the politburo although he never occupied any of the top three posts of party leader, president or prime minister.

During the war against the American-backed government of South Vietnam Tho was the chief political strategist. He designed the 1968 "Tet Offensive" which failed to inspire a popular uprising or achieve any lasting military victories. The offensive, however, undercut the U.S. government's claim that victory was near and sharply reduced popular American support for the war.

He next emerged on the world stage as de facto leader of the Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks in August 1969. "They were tough negotiations," Tho said 12 years later. "They demanded everything, unilaterally, and we demanded everything, unilaterally." In his memoirs Kissinger called Tho "obnoxious" and "insolent."

Tho said the atmosphere was "very tense" because of the U.S. B-52 bombing raids and the bitter fighting on the ground. "I once told him (Kissinger), "You are a liar, a horsetrader, you are perfidious," Tho said.

On Oct. 16, 1973, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded jointly to Kissinger and Tho. It was the most controversial award in the history of the prize and two Nobel committee members resigned in protest.

In an interview with United Press International in 1985, Tho said he refused to share the Nobel Prize with Kissinger because it put the victims and the aggressors on the same level.

"I would have been willing to receive an exclusive prize for me. But my refusal will be on the record of history and will remind the committee of the regretful mistake they made," said Tho. The rejection cemented Tho's reputation as an austere professional revolutionary who saw negotiations as another form of guerrilla warfare.

But Tho could also display humor and charm when it suited him. During the Paris negotiations he joked with American delegation leader Kissinger that "once our work is over, perhaps you will find me a job as professor of Marxist politics at Harvard." Kissinger replied: "Certainly, if you will allow me to teach politics in Hanoi."

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (OCT. 13) UPI - Thousands of South Koreans staged a rally Saturday to protest the alleged military surveillance of civilians, as opposition leader Kim Dae Jung entered the sixth day of a hunger strike to push political demands.

The crowd at Boramae Park in Seoul was estimated at between 20,000 and 30,000, falling short of a 1 million-strong turnout the organizers had expected.

The rally was sponsored by nine organizations including Kim's Party for Peace and Democracy, two other political groups and hard-line dissident circles to denounce the Defense Security Command for what they charged was spying on more than 1,300 noted civilians.

The illegal surveillance by the Command, in charge of criminal investigations and intelligence for the armed forces, was disclosed by an army deserter on Oct. 4.

Pvt. Yoon Suk-yang, 24, said the surveillance targets included politicians, civic and church leaders, lawyers, college professors, journalists, labor activists, and dissidents. To back up his claim, Yoon produced files prepared by the Command.

Kim Dae Jung, on the sixth day of a hunger stike to push a series of political demands, did not attend the rally after his doctors advised him against it.

Kim started fasting on Monday, demanding that President Roh Tae-woo disband the Defense Security Command, separate the military from politics and implement local self-rule.

Roh's ruling Democratic Liberal Party appointed a new floor leader hoping to revive dialogue with Kim's party, which has boycotted the National Assembly since July protesting the legislation of 26 controversial laws.

Roh, meanwhile, turned his attention to crime and violence, saying he will do everything in his power to safeguard law and order, and urged the nation to overcome internal social challenges to pave the way for prosperity and national reunification with North Korea.

In his appeal made in a televised meeting with 262 people from various walks of life, Roh said he will mobilize full police and prosecution forces to cope with crime and violence. He said all police on outdoor duty will be armed and that further measures will be taken if required.

CAIRO, EGYPT (OCT. 13) UPI - President Hosni Mubarak and senior government officials led thousands of mourners Saturday at the funeral of slain Parliament Speaker Rifaat El Mahgoub as a former Interior Minister linked the assassination to the Abu Nidal terrorist group.

Also taking part in the funeral procession at Rabah Al Adwia cemetery in the Cairo suburb of Nasr City, or Victory City, were Egyptian Premier Atif Sitqi, Cabinet ministers, senior government officials, and commanders of Egypt's armed forces.

Visiting British Foreign Minister Douglas Hurd also took part in the funeral procession and expressed condolences on behalf of the British government. Mahgoub's coffin was draped in the red, black and white Egyptian flag and carried by a carriage pulled by six horses.

After Mubarak offered his condolences to Mahgoub's family and the families of three people killed in the machine-gun attack in downtown Cairo Friday. The other two people killed in the attack will be buried later, officials said.

The military funeral then moved on led by token units from Egypt's armed forces and police. The coffins of Mahgoub's bodyguards were carried on military jeeps draped with the Egyptian flag.

Egyptian security forces continued their manhunt for the four killers but an Interior Ministry spokesman said no one had yet been apprehended. The spokesman said armed guards at vital installations around the country had been reinforced and checks were being made at the country's airports and other exit routes.

Former Interior Minister Hassan Abu Basha, who himself survived an assassination attempt by Egyptian islamic fundamentalists, said he suspected terrorists belonging to the notorious Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal group were responsible for the slayings, Egyptian newspapers reported Saturday.

Basha said it was also significant that the terrorists chose the no. 2 man in the Mubarak administration as their target, because that constituted a message "that clearly states the arm of the terrorist groups which cooperate with Iraq can reach us."

But Interior Minister Lt. Gen. Mohammed Abdulhalim Mussa said there was no evidence of that yet although the attack had the hallmarks of a foreign-instigated plan.

Egypt angered Iraq by its immediate opposition to Baghdad's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. Cairo also sent troops to Saudi Arabia to help defend the oil-rich state from potential Iraqi aggression.

Egyptian police earlier this month said they had arrested some 30 suspected Iraqi and Palestinian terrorists and Mussa told reporters prior to Friday's assassination that he had uncovered an Iraqi plot to assassinate senior members of the Egyptian government.

After the assassination Friday, Mubarak condemned what he described as the "evil" slaying but said it would not divert his administration away from its policy of "protecting the Arab and Islamic world's sacred heritage."

President Bush telephoned Mubarak to express his regret at the killings, Cairo Radio said, adding that Syrian President Hafez Assad and Jordan's King Hussein also expressed regret at the incident.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 13) UPI - House and Senate farm leaders agreed to a blueprint to slash farm subsidies by 24 percent with the untested "triple base" plan, which makes some crop land ineligible for subsidies, supplying the lion's share of the savings.

Negotiators also approved reauthorization of the food stamp program Friday but found no way to pay for a proposed $5 billion expansion in benefits, virtually ensuring the proposal is dead.

In all, the pact called for cuts totaling $13.6 billion over the next five years. Farm state congressmen knew for months they would have to significantly reduce the cost of the farm program but delayed until a specific dollar target was set on Monday. Negotiators said the task, coming one month before Election Day, was especially painful because no phantom savings were allowed.

"Every member of this committee has to go home and say, 'I can't give out good news,"' said Senate Agriculture Committee chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. Leahy said the agreement would allow negotiators to complete work on the new farm policy bill on Monday.

Several sensitive policy issues still must be decided - among them, sugar import quotas, structure of the dairy program, pesticide exports and whether farmers should be required to keep records on their use of pesticides.

The farm policy bill will set the guidelines for the next five years for commodity support, export promotion, agricultural research, food aid and public feeding programs.

Leaders said the budget package includes a 15 percent triple base for 1992-1995, a one percent assessment on sugar, tobacco, peanuts, honey, wool and mohair, limits on low-interest farm and utility loans, a sharp reduction in the rate available under the proposed soybean marketing loan, and calculating crop subsidies on the basis of the 12-month average price, instead of the current five months.

The triple base was projected to account for $5.8 billion of the savings. Originated a few years ago, the triple base would declare a portion of crop land ineligible for crop subsidies but would allow farmers latitude in deciding what to grow on it. Farmers often have requested more planting flexibility but triple base could mean lower income because federal payments would be smaller.

Critics also say triple base may have little appeal to farmers in regions like the Great Plains where the climate limits the choice of crops.

"It's a solid package in my judgment. One never knows until it is implemented " said Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter, who spent most of the past two days taking part in the deliberations.

Yeutter said adoption of triple base moves the farm bill closer to the administration proposal last winter for full-fledged planting flexibility. Analysts say strict farm program rules locked farmers into growing the same crop year after year and discouraged them from looking for profit-making alternatives.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, said negotiators agreed on a 15 percent triple base because of "concern about plowing new ground." The House had proposed higher rates - 20 percent and 25 percent - in 1994 and 1995.

The straight 15 percent rate, said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., offered "some consistency, simplicity. It makes the savings through the years more consistent."

A key point in the negotiations was an administration decision to allow Congress to claim $650 million in savings from a corn setaside in 1991 of at least 7.5 percent. On Thursday, Yeutter had refused to give credit for it.

Congressional staff workers said many details were yet to be settled. The soybean marketing loan, for instance, may drop to $5 a bushel and some sort of assessment must be drafted to cut the cost of the dairy program.

Also during the negotiations, senators agreed to give up a plan to create marketing loans for wheat and feed grains. Instead, the farm bill will change the system for computing crop loan rates, effectively raising them by a few cents.

During the lengthy discussion of the package, some senators tried to prevent a change in the formula for deficiency payments on grounds it amounted to a cut in government support. Yeutter reportedly sought key policy changes if the corn setaside was going to be counted as a budget savings.

CAIRO, EGYPT (OCT. 13) UPI - Authorities arrested an undisclosed number of people using forged passports while they were attempting to leave Egypt Saturday and said they were linked to the assassination of Egypt's parliament speaker.

"Police have arrested a number of people using forged documents while they were trying to leave Egypt," an Interior Ministry source told United Press International.

The source said details of the arrests were not being disclosed for the moment so as not to endanger the investigation, but confirmed the arrests were linked to Friday's assassination of Parliament Speaker Rifaat El Mahgoub and five other people.

A former Egyptian Interior Minister, meanwhile, said he suspected the four killers belonged to notorious Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal, but the government says there is not enough evidence yet to say whether the assassins were Egyptian Islamic fundamentalists or pro-Iraqi terrorists.

Egypt angered Iraq by opposing Baghdad's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and sending troops to defend Saudi Arabia from Iraqi aggression. Pro-Iraqi terrorist groups have vowed to strike back at the United States and other pro-Kuwaiti countries.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 13) UPI - Israel denounced Saturday a U.N. Security Council resolution condemning acts of violence by Israeli forces in Jerusalem's Old City, charging the world body had fallen into "a trap" laid by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The Security Council approved the resolution 15-0 late Friday after five days of intense discussion that focused primarily on the language of the condemnation and the mandate of a U.N. commission to investigate Monday's riots. Police killed at least 20 Palestinians and wounded more than 150 during the disturbances on the Temple Mount.

"Israel regrets the Security Council resolution which failed to condemn the cause of the tragic event - an unprovoked Arab attack on Jewish worshippers in the holiest site of the Jewish people," Foreign Ministry spokesman Yosef Amihud said in a statement.

Israel did not comment on the U.N. inquiry into the riots ordered by the resolution, although Israeli officials indicated earlier in the week they were opposed to such a mission.

Israeli authorities contend the riots and stoning of Jews at the Western Wall were a carefully planned provocation to shift attention from the Persian Gulf crisis to the Arab-Israeli conflict, a scenario at odds with accounts provided by Palestinians.

According to Palestinians, Moslems had gathered on the Temple Mount, the third holiest Islamic site, to protect it from Jewish fundamentalists who wanted to lay a cornerstone for the third Jewish Temple. Violence erupted and then escalated when police fired tear gas at the Arab crowds, they said.

Amihud said, "It is also regrettable that the Security Council fell into the trap laid by Saddam Hussein and his PLO supporters who inspired the riots in order to divert attention from the Iraqi aggression in the Gulf." Israeli authorities said police, who had run out of tear gas and rubber bullets opened fire when lives were in danger.

But The West Bank human rights group Al-Haq in a report released Friday, contending the security forces were not in danger and fired indiscriminately. The organization, an affiliate of the Geneva-based International Commission of Jurists, also said the attack on Jews was not planned in advance.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Amihud said the U.N. resolution could not contribute to "tranquility and normalcy" and hoped it would not be seen by Arab extremists as international approval for further violence.

The Security Council expressed "alarm" at the violence committed by Palestinians and Israeli security forces at the Haram esh Sharif, as the Temple Mount is known in Arabic, and other holy places.

The resolution said the council "condemns especially the acts of violence committed by the Israeli security forces resulting in injuries and loss of human life."

More than 900,000 Palestinians, meanwhile, remained under curfew in the occupied territories, including the entire Gaza Strip. On Friday evening, two West Bank Palestinians were killed in clashes with soldiers, Palestinian sources reported.

ATLANTA (OCT. 13) UPI - Two groups that challenge government repression in Guatemala and Sri Lanka shared the fifth annual Carter-Menil Human Rights Prize Saturday for "exemplary performance and remarkable courage" in their fight for freedom.

The award, founded by former President Jimmy Carter and Houston philanthrophist Dominique de Menil, was given to the Consejo de Comunidades Ethicas Runujel Junam (CERJ) in Guatemala and the Civil Rights Movement of Sri Lanka (CRM).

CERJ defends the fundamental freedoms and human rights of Guatemala's indigenous population, most of whom are rural peasants. CRM is a non-partisan, inter-ethnic organization committed to the promotion and protection of civil and political rights in Sri Lanka.

"The citizens of both Guatemala and Sri Lanka have for decades bore the brunt of brutal repression, with little attention or assistance from the rest of the world," Carter said. "The growth of CERJ and CRM illustrate once again the power of the people to come together when governments no longer feel obligated to respect the rule of law."

De Menil, president of the Carter-Menil Human Rights Foundation, labeled the two organizations "role models of courage and leadership in two countries whose governments have chosen to ignore the voice of truth."

"Working under tremendous harassment and the constant threat of death, members of these two groups have struggled dauntlessly to denounce human rights abuses and prevent their future occurrence," she said.

A group of Mayan Indians and schoolteacher Amilcar Mendez Urizar formed the CERJ in July 1988 to educate the rural populace, denounce human rights violations, seek legal redress for abuse victims and work to disband Guatemala's civilian patrol system in which peasants are forced to provide unpaid service.

The CRM was founded in 1971 in response to government emergency measures that suspended individual rights in an effort to suppress the militant Sinhalese insurgency known as the JVP. The group has become a champion of human rights in Sri Lanka, working to challenge the government's suspension of due process protections, provide legal defense, search for people who disappear and organize relief for the families of those detained by the government.

"Both organizations were chosen because of exemplary performance and remarkable courage in documenting violations and seeking to promote respect for basic human rights in their respective countries," the Carter Center said in a prepared statement.

The $100,000 prize, which will be divided between the two groups, will be presented to representatives of each organization Dec. 10 at the 42nd Universal Declaration of Human Rights ceremony at New York University. Carter will use the occasion to deliver his annual state of human rights address.

The winners were chosen by an advisory committee comprised of prominent members of the international human rights community, including Amnesty International, Human Rights Internet, Human Rights Watch and others.

Previous prize winners include Soviet physicist and dissident Yuri Orlov and the Grupo de Apoyo Mutuo of Guatemala in 1986; La Vicaria de la Solidaridad of Chile in 1987; the Sisulu family of South Africa in 1988; and al-Haq and B'Tselem, Palestinian and Israeli organizations working to promote human rights in the Occupied Territories, in 1989.

(OCT. 13) UPI - The United States detonated a nuclear weapon two-thousand feet under the Nevada desert yesterday. It was the third such test since the Iraqi- Kuwait crisis. Some Las Vegas residents, 105 miles away, reported feeling a slight swaying after the blast that registered five-point- seven on the Richter Scale. An Energy Department spokesman said NO radiation leaked into the atmosphere.

A group of Messianic Jews- who accept Jesus as the promised Messiah- asked Israeli lawmakers yesterday to change the law and let members of the group become Israeli citizens. Israel's Law of Return grants automatic citizenship to returning Jews, but excludes Messianic Jews. The Union of Messianic Jewish Congregations in Washington, D-C, argues that secular Jews, some of whom do NOT believe in God, are granted Israeli citizenship under the Law of Return.

The World Chess Championship game set for yesterday was postponed until next week after challenger Anatoly Karpov took the first of his three alloted time outs. He faces champion Gary Kasparov in New York. Officials say the third game of the match was re-scheduled for Monday with Karpov playing the white pieces. The first game ended in a draw. Kasparov leads the tournament one and one-half to one-half.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 14) UPI - One of the happy side effects of the spread of democracy in key Latin American countries like Brazil is the decision by the new leaders to halt secret and ambitious missile and nuclear weapons programs.

One of the sobering discoveries, according to Bush administration officials, is to learn how close Brazil was to having the necessary components of an atomic bomb and a ballistic missile to carry it.

Even more sobering, said officials interviewed on the basis of no further identification, is to learn how hard it is to control the international spread of missile and nuclear technology when free trade is blossoming.

And even more thought-provoking is for these officials to learn, belatedly, how easy and common it was for Brazilian technicians to pass their technical secrets on to eager well-paying customers such as Iraq.

A case in point, now being studied as an object lesson, is the Brazilian Space Launch Vehicle program, ostensibly an open program for a missile that would put a 400-pound satellite into orbit, either for Brazil or any other country that would pay for the launching costs.

In October 1989, the Brazilian Embassy applied for an export license for the heat treatment of some rocket casings. The metal toughening process itself is old technology, and, therefore, the application didn't set any alarm bells ringing in the State Department, where the export license application routinely arrived. What was critical was the size of the ovens where the heating was to be done, requiring a chamber some 3 1/2 feet in diameter and up to 19 feet in length. Those ovens were most easily accessible in the United States.

Under U.S. regulations, designed to help rather than hinder U.S. businessmen sell their products abroad in the Reagan and Bush administrations, anything that is not specifically prohibited for export is permitted. So the Office of Munitions Control in the State Department, which gets some 200-300 applications every day, did not kick the request up into the next layer of scrutiny, an inter-agency review that would involve the Defense Department and all the U.S. intelligence agencies, since no high-technology was involved.

There was a further bureaucratic glitch, even after some U.S. intelligence reports suggested that Brazil may have been selling its technology to the Iraqis. The Brazilian application couldn't be found for several weeks. It turned out that the application did not come from the Brazilian space-launch agency, but from the Brazilian Embassy in Washington.

After that hitch, according to U.S. officials, there were other paper-flow gridlocks involving further months.

By June 1990, the Brazilian application had been approved and seven of the casing segments had been heat treated in an Illinois plant and had been returned to Brazil, enough for one space-launch vehicle. Another 11 segments were to be shipped later when the alarm bells finally went off in the American licensing system.

The Defense Department by then had raised the prospect that the American participation in the Brazilian missile project was indirectly potentially aiding other missile projects - including Iraq's - since a Brazilian space-launch would tell Iraq or Libya what they needed to know about the need for such an expensive heat treating process for their own missiles.

The State Department raised an opposing question: If the United States were to deny such countries as Brazil ''old'' technology like heat treating metal casings, would that not encourage those countries to go to other, easily available sources who would not be as meticulous about limiting the spread of technology? And would it not encourage Brazil and other countries at the same level of technology to drop out of the system of non-proliferation of missiles and nuclear weapons?

That question was asked in the knowledge that West German firms had been lining up to sell Brazil, or any other country, what it needed in terms of nuclear or missile technology. The German government later put limits on its export sales of military technology after pressure from the U.S. government that was described by one U.S. official as ''very blunt, very frank.''

The debate within the U.S. government, which separated the ''free traders'' from the ''arms controllers,'' in a complex inter-agency continues.

There was new fuel this week from those who want tighter controls, with the news that 82 Brazilian technicians had been in Iraq establishing a plant for the construction of a new missile, called the al-Taw-Han, which appeared to be an almost exact copy of Raytheon- designed AIM-7E ''Sparrow'' air-to-air missile.

The anti-aircraft missile has a range of about 30 miles, a speed of about 3,000 mph, 90-pound warhead and a sophisticated dual guidance system. The Brazilian team had been in Iraq since 1987.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 14) UPI - In the blink of an eye, the political world of taxes has been stood on its ear.

And for the first time in years, it's Republicans who are wailing and now, in some corners, bitterly complaining that President Bush, with a startling series of flip-flops on taxes, has undermined all the advantages the GOP has built on the issue in the last decade.

''This is an unmitigated, no holds barred, complete and utter political disaster,'' said a national Republican insider, who asked not to be identified because of fear of White House retaliation.

''We've given up on the notion that we're the no-tax party. We've given up on the advantage of the notion that we're running the White House,'' the insider said. ''This is a complete and utter kicking away of the gains this party has made since 1980.''

Bush, in the midst of a confusing series of reversals on the tax question, let it be known last week that he could agree to a top marginal tax rate of 31 percent, providing Congress would approve a cut in the capital gains tax.

But at virtually the same time, House Democrats on Capitol Hill were fashioning a plan with a top rate of 33 percent.

And, since Bush has allowed the Democrat-led congressional committees to put together the details of the nation's new budget plan, some GOP analysts are complaining the president has surrendered all the anti-tax political advantages built by Ronald Reagan.

''He has been so enamored of coalition government that at this moment when the Democrats saw the opportunity to slit his throat, they did it,'' said one Republican.

Bush's move to suggest the 31 percent top rate was seen by many as a flawed attempt to regain the advantage on taxes.

To most Americans, the 2 percent difference between a 31 percent rate and a 33 percent tax rate might seem like a minor change. But to Bush and embattled White House aides trying to escape from under an avalanche of criticism, it represented a chance to salvage something.

The president and his men would like to sell the 31 percent rate as a fairness issue, contending that all it would do is fix a quirk in the tax code in which the weathliest Americans have a temporary top tax rate of 33 percent, but then have that rate drop to 28 percent.

Enacting the 31 percent rate, says Bush, would simplify the system without changing revenues.

But Democrats on Capitol Hill, delighted in seeing Bush call for higher tax rates, are not buying and insisting that if rates are to be raised, the wealthiest Americans should pay dearly.

For years, such a stance would be considered political death. In fact, even after he became Democratic leader, Sen. George Mitchell, D- Maine, refused for a long time to push for a higher third tax rate, even though that was one of his favorite proposals in 1986.

However, once Bush earlier this year opened the door to higher taxes, Democrats rushed through. And some Republicans complain that now that Bush has waffled on income tax rates - the most sacrosanct of tax matters - Democrats are free to pursue those without fear of penalty.

In the process, Democrats have managed, at least in some quarters, to tap into a vein of middle-class resentment by painting the tax-raising effort as an effort to soak the rich and bring more balance to the nation's tax system.

Noted House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D- Ill.: ''Strategies change all the time. We had a president whose lips we had to read and that just changed. ... It's been too long a time, really, that the Republican Party has been totally negative about doing anything with respect to progress in this country. The Democrats are standing for the people that they feel are the backbone of this country - and that's the middle class.''

Even Charles Black, lead spokesman for the national GOP, admits that when it comes to painting the tax issue as a contest of the wealthy versus the middle class, ''we have not done a good public relations job on that and they (Democrats) have.''

The Democrats' effort has been so successful that Bush last week was forced to deny that the GOP only favored the wealthy. ''It isn't true,'' Bush said. ''That's the age-old Democrat cry of favoring the rich.''

But some Republican House members weren't content to simply let the president make the case.

PARIS (OCT. 13) UPI - Defense Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement left for another visit to Saudi Arabia Saturday to oversee the arrival of the last French "Dogs of War" and combat aircraft in the region.

Also Saturday, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz said he was "very disappointed" by the tough language French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas has used against Iraq.

In an interview with Le Figaro newspaper, Aziz also acknowledged France had made a link between resolving the Persian Gulf crisis and the Palestinian problem but "it is not strong enough to lead to the solution we would like."

Aziz said Iraq "neither rejects nor supports" a proposal by French President Francois Mitterrand for an international conference on the Israeli-Arab conflict, but that if "Europeans and especially the French devote as much attention to the Palestinian problem as they have to the situation in the Gulf they would contribute greatly to bringing peace and stability to the region.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has called for a link between Baghdad's occupation of Kuwait and the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza strip, saying the Arab-Israeli conflict was the core of the problem to be dealt with.

The United States and Britain have said that Saddam Hussein must first get out of Kuwait before the Palestinian issue can be discussed, but Aziz said in the newspaper interview that Iraq has "recognized that the intentions of France are different to those of the United States."

He said there is "an Israeli-American conspiracy aiming to destroy Iraq" and if France and other countries have sent troops to the region "this is because they have been pushed by the United States."

France has an estimated 5,000 men based in Saudi Arabia as part of the U.S.-led multinational military buildup in the region to counter Iraqi aggression in the wake of the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion and conquest of Kuwait.

Most of the French forces already were in position last weekend, providing cheer for Foreign Legion officers happy to have shown themselves more swift and dashing than the British "desert rats" still deploying ploddingly in the Kingdom.

The Defense Ministry said Chevenement left for Saudi Arabia and would visit the Foreign Legion "dogs of war" mercenaries and other forces of the French Republic based at Camp Khaled close to the Saudi frontier with Iraq and Kuwait as well as the Houfouf air base between Dahran and Riyadh. At least 24 French warplanes have been deployed at Houfouf to provide cover for French ground troops.

Chevenement's position has been in question for weeks for what many pundits see as his soft stance toward Baghdad and his doubtless related ambitions to lead the left-wing of the French Socialist Party.

BLUEFIELDS, NICARAGUA (OCT. 13) UPI - Cultural and educational programs on Nicaragua's Atlantic coast have been hurt by recent budget and personnel cuts and some may be eliminated completely, according to private and government sources.

In Bluefields, where four languages are commonly spoken - English, Creole, Spanish, and Miskito - October is usually a monthlong party. The feast of San Jeronimo, the birthday of Bluefields and other memorable dates all combine for celebrations that blanket the town in revelry and mischief.

This year, San Jeronimo was celebrated with the typical masked processions and night time gaming tables and dances, but the celebrations ended Oct. 7 and Bluefields birthday was all but forgotten, townspeople complained.

"Nothing is happening this year," said Alerton Gomez, assistant director of the private Cultural Programs for Autonomy. "There has been no election of a town queen. No one is doing anything. It is the government's responsibility to organize these things."

In past years, there was also a popular holiday called Mayo Ya in the first week of May when people celebrated the richness of all the cultures of the Atlantic coast with shows and exhibits. This year, the event was ignored.

People blame the lack of organization on the national government of President Violeta Chamorro and the regional government in Bluefields, headed by National Assembly member Alvin Guthrie.

Bluefields, formerly the hub of the British protectorate on Nicaragua's Atlantic coast, in many ways maintains the same pirate atmosphere it acquired during the colonial years.

Descendants of black slaves, Chinese immigrants and other foreigners have mixed with the Miskito Indian population and with the Spanish-descended Nicaraguans from the Pacific coast for a cultural mix unique in Latin America. The region, which also includes the Miskito-dominated Zelaya Norte, has limited autonomy from the remainder of Nicaragua.

Government officials, who took office April 25, said there was no time to arrange the Mayo Ya festival this year and that the nation's dire economic crisis has left no money for many of the programs.

"The real problems are financial," said Roderick Green, the Education Ministry's delegate to Bluefields. "There is not enough money to repair schools or build new classrooms. People are not getting paid, and the fund for paying substitute teachers is low."

The government has also proposed eliminating a program under which teachers receive monthly stipends of rice, beans, and sugar. The former Sandinista government deducted the value of the food from paychecks, but the Chamorro government is considering eliminating the idea altogether. "They are already behind," Green said. "For the past three months, the teachers here haven't been receiving the whole amount of goods."

Many of Bluefields cultural programs were organized in the past by the regional office of the Council for Popular Culture, a government entity, but the staff has been reduced to a skeleton of what it used to be because of layoffs and people leaving.

"Things are very disorganized," said Hermina Quinn, a librarian at the council offices in Bluefields. "Most of the workers have either left or been fired. We have lost a lot of books, and there is no money to replace them." Another employee said the office will probably shut down soon.

Gomez said the private sector is beginning to take up some of the slack. He said his organization has hired many of the government workers and that the group will break ground later this month on a new cultural school, scheduled to open next June.

The Jesuit-run University of Central America has assumed partial control of another cultural program, the Center for Investigations and Documentation of the Atlantic coast. Ugo Sujo, a director of the center, said it was privatized before April 25 to keep it from falling into the hands of the new government.

MOSCOW (OCT. 13) UPI - A Greenpeace ship that tried to inspect a northern nuclear test site was expelled from Soviet waters and is heading to Norway, the official Tass news agency said Saturday. Ordering the M.V. Greenpeace to leave apparently ended the weeklong crisis without any charges being filed against the crew of the environmental ship.

The M.V. Greenpeace, which was towed Wednesday from Novaya Zemlya test site to Murmansk, was "expelled from Soviet territorial waters after an investigation carried out by the public prosecutor's office and Frontier Guard troops," Tass said. "According to the Greenpeace captain, the ship is steering toward the Norwegian port of Tromso," Tass said.

Soviet sailors seized the ship and its 28-person crew on Monday after the anti-nuclear activists sailed into the weapons testing site north of the Arctic Circle and four of them dropped into rubber dinghies to land on Novaya Zemlya.

On Wednesday, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said the vessel violated Soviet borders and he announced it was being towed to Murmansk by a miltary vesel and a tug. Once the vessel reached Murmansk, Soviet authorities refused to allow any journalists aboard, Tass reported.

Explaining that the Soviet Union shares Greenpeace's opposition to nuclear testing, Gerasimov on Wednesday indicated the incident might be resolved without anyone being detained.

"We are for an immediate cessation of all nuclear tests, but there are some laws that have to be observed," Gerasimov said. "No matter how noble the mission ... there are some laws of the country that cannot be violated."

Greenpeace, now campaigning for a "Nuclear Free Seas Campaign," has said four tests were scheduled at Novaya Zemlya since December but each was postponed.

Gerasimov told the Wednesday news conference the Greenpeace ship visited Archangelsk nd Naryan-Mar as agreed upon but then "suddenly" changed course for Novaya Zemlya, thus violating Soviet borders.

Eleanor O'Hanlon, a representative of Greenpeace who was in Moscow Wednesday, countered that permission had been sought for the visit. "But the permission was not given," Gerasimov said.

As part of its reaching out to the world and ending its pre-perestroika isolation, the Soviet Union has allowed Greenpeace to have a representative in Moscow.

BERLIN (OCT. 13) UPI - German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's center-right party is expected to emerge as the big winner when 20 million Germans vote Sunday in the five new eastern German states and Bavaria.

The state elections will indicate the political trend for the Dec. 2 national election, in which voters will determine whether Kohl will remain German chancellor.

Recent opinion polls show that Kohl's popularity and that of his Christian Democratic Union have risen sharply as a result of his role in brining about the Oct. 3 unification of East and West Germany. Kohl was chancellor of West Germany prior to unification.

Sunday's elections will be held in six of the 16 states that now form the Federal Republic of Germany - the five former East German states and the southern state of Bavaria. Regional elections in unified Berlin will not be held until Dec. 2.

A recent opinion poll by Germany's Allensbach Institute showed Kohl's CDU leading strongly in four of the five new eastern German states. After the elections, state parliaments will assemble and elect an administration headed by a prime minister.

In Bavaria, the CDU's arch-conservative sister party, the Christian Social Union, is expected to lose one to five percent Sunday of the 55-percent majority it used to receive under the leadership of the late Bavarian Prime Minister Franz-Josef Strauss. Although a change of government is unlikely, the CSU which has ruled Bavaria for the last 33 years, may lose its absolute majority.

Contrary to the fierce battle for votes in Bavaria, campaigning in the five eastern states was markedly low-key. Many voters seemed more concerned with the economic crisis that has hit the five states since the monetary union with West Germany July 1 than with regional elections. Most of the candidates were relatively unknown to them.

Citizens of former East Germany already voted in national and local elections this year and many regard the Dec. 2 general election as more important than Sunday's state elections. "Even if you don't vote SPD at least get out and vote on Sunday," said Manfred Stolpe, the SPD candidate for Prime Minister in Brandenburg.

The only politician able to draw crowds of more than 10,000 in eastern Germany during the campaign in past weeks was Kohl. Roadside posters showing a grinning Kohl under the motto "Chancellor for Germany" has proved to be one of the CDU's best campaign gimmick.

LONDON (OCT. 13) UPI - British Prime Minister Margaret Hilda Thatcher turned 65 Saturday, celebrating with family at the prime minister's country residence Chequers.

Thatcher, unpopular in public opinion polls but firmly in control of the Conservative Party, has vowed to "go on and on," and said last month she may stay in office for five more years if the Conservatives win their fourth straight election.

On Friday, the party faithful at their annual conference in Bournemouth, gave Thatcher a nine-minute standing ovation and sang "Happy Birthday." Some chanted: "ten more years!"

The Guardian newspaper said some party officials are encouraging the theory that Thatcher, like Queen Victoria, will still hold power at the turn of the century.

While 60 is the normal retirement age for women in Britain (65 for men), Thatcher has no plans of stepping aside soon. "I am not immortal," she told a television interviewer in September in what wags called a major reversal for the "Iron Lady." "But I've got a lot left in me yet."

Several years ago, Thatcher talked of retiring at 65, but her belief that there is still so much to do and she is the one to do it, have pushed her retirement date to 1995.

Thatcher, elected in May 1979, is the first female prime minister. Her tenure at 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's London residence, is the longest consecutive period in power since Lord Liverpool governed from 1812-27.

Thatcher is also the first prime minister this century to win three consecutive general elections. The next election must be held by mid-1992, but the Conservatives are free to pick any date before then.

(OCT. 13) UPI - The Japanese news agency Kyodo reports Le Duc Tho... one of the key leaders who fought the United States to shape modern Vietnam... is dead. Tho suffered from throat cancer and died today at age 79 in a hospital in Hanoi. As a communist revolutionary... he had fought French colonialism since he was an adolescent. He negotiated an end to U-S involvement in the Vietnam War but refused to share the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize with Henry Kissinger.

A new budget plan has passed the Senate Finance Committee by a 15-5 vote. The plan approved this morning would increase taxes by 142-BILLION dollars over five years and cut Medicare by 49-BILLION. It does NOT include a capital gains tax cut combined with an income tax hike. Dissenters... like New Jersey Democrat Bill Bradley... said the plan hurts the middle class and elderly while giving tax breaks to wealthy oil and energy investors.

Hours after promising to fight to the death in Lebanon... renegade Christian General Michel Aoun has told his troops to surrender. Lebanese radio says a Syrian-backed attack drove Aoun from his Beirut headquarters to the French Embassy. Aoun narrowly avoided an assassination attempt yesterday. Aoun had refused since last year to recognize a Christian-Moslem agreement to settle Lebanon's civil war.

700 Kuwait officials, educators, and businessmen are gathered in Saudi Arabia today to discuss the future of their nation. The three-day meeting in Jeddah is meant to produce a statement concerning their Iraqi-occupied land. The Kuwaiti leadership hopes to focus simply on freeing the country. But there is a movement to shift Kuwait's future government toward democracy and away from monarchy.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (OCT. 13) UPI - Pakistan denied Saturday as baseless and malicious a U.S. news report it tried to buy sophisticated furnaces for use in making nuclear weapons. The Foreign Ministry said no Pakistani agency has contacted any U.S. firm for such purpose and no orders have been placed.

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that Pakistan tried at least three times this year through intermediaries in Europe and North America to purchase high-temperature furnaces that can be used to manufacture nuclear weapons.

The newspaper said it obtained documents that were furnished to Bush administration officials and congressional investigators that showed Pakistan tried to purchase two high temperature furnaces, which are made by the Consarc Corp. of Rancocas, N.J.

The Foreign Ministry blamed elements and groups in the United States who were trying to create and foster doubts about Pakistan's peaceful nuclear program.

Pakistan has long been suspected of trying to acquire nuclear weapons technology to maintain a balance of power with India, its foe in three wars. India exploded a nuclear device in 1974.

Islamabad has denied reports it is using a nuclear enrichment facility at Kahuta, about 25 miles east of the capital, to build a nuclear bomb but it has refused to allow internationa inspection of the plant.

There are proposals in the U.S. Congress to cut off about $600 million in annual aconomic and military aid to enforce U.S. policies against nuclear weapons proliferation. Pakistan's strategic value to Washington has been reduced sharply since last year's Soviet withdrawal of its troops from neighboring Afghanistan.

The furnaces in question, which cost $3 million each, could be used to melt zirconium, a sheathing material. Consarc had contracted to sell four less advanced furnaces to Iraq for $13 million but the deal was cancelled in July because of the furnaces' potential use in making nuclear weapons.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (OCT. 13) UPI - Christian militia leader Michel Aoun ended his two-year mutiny Saturday, ordered his forces to surrender and sought refuge in the French Embassy in Beirut after Syrian-backed Lebanese government forces attacked his headquarters.

As tank-led ground forces advanced into Aoun's enclave and aircraft bombed the Baabda presidential palace that served as the maverick general's headquarters, President Elias Hrawi announced the success of the military operation that claimed at least 45 lives and wounded 255 others.

Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Al Sharaa said the surrender of Aoun and his troops would help restore peace, security, and stability to Lebanon, where a civil war has been raging since 1975.

Shortly after the expected offensive began, Aoun fled to the French Embassy, announced his surrender and ordered his troops to obey the army commander, Gen. Emile Lahoud.

Aoun was granted political asylum to France, but official sources said Lebanese troops surrounded the French Embassy building in the Christian district of Hazmiyeh where Aoun remained holed up pending an expected government declaration on his fate.

The pro-Syrian leadership reportedly was demanding that the deposed general should refrain from engaging in political activity and deliver $75 million worth of government funds he had seized.

Aoun refused last year to recognize a Christian-Moslem agreement to settle Lebanon's 15-year-old civil war or to concede he is no longer head of a transitional government appointed by President Amin Gemayel Sept. 22, 1988, after Parliament failed to elect a successor.

His forces estimated to number 15,000 have been battling the presence of Syrian troops in Lebanon, a battle that resulted in more than 1,000 deaths last year. Aoun has also been engaged in a power struggle since last January with a rival Christian militia along a demarcation line splitting east Beirut.

In his surrender statement broadcast on his radio station, Aoun said: "In regard of the political and combat circumstances and in order to avert more bloodshed and more damage and save what has left, I call on the army command to obey orders by Gen. Emile Lahoud." The surrender occurred one day after Aoun escaped an assassination attempt and vowed to "fight to death" against the attack he said he expected.

Hrawi announced the success of the military operation and thanked the Syrian forces for backing the operation. "The military operation has been carried out swiftly," Hrawi said in a nationwide speech. "The legitimate forces with a grateful help of the brotherly Syrian forces carried out its sacred duties of protecting the country and the its institutions."

Hrawi said his government exhausted all means to end Aoun's mutiny peacefully and the military offensive was the last option. "The (military) option was difficult but inevitable," he said.

He called on all Lebanese, especially military personnel, to join "a national march aimed at restoring peace and stability and expanding the government authority on all Lebanese territories."

By late Saturday, officials said all regular units stationed in Aoun's enclave declared loyalty to Lahoud's command. Army Commander Lahoud inspected Baabda palace and the nearby Ministry of Defence as his tanks, flying white flags, manned the streets of the Christian enclave.

Officials said seven Syrian-manned and Soviet-made Sukhoi warplanes began a series of raids on Aoun's headquarters in the district of Baabda, 5 miles southeast of Beirut.

While the jets pounded Aoun's headquarters, thousands of Syrian-backed forces launched an offensive on Aoun's enclave, unleashing rockets and artillery shells. Large artillery blasts echoed across Beirut Saturday and many people in the Moslem sector of the city refrained from opening their businesses.

Presidential spokeswoman May Kahale said Aoun fled his bunker one hour after the start of the offensive and arrived in a tank along with a number of officers at the French Embassy.

Lebanese Prime Minister Selim Hoss who described the surrender as "historic," and congratulated the Lebanese people "for the end of their ordeal." "I thank God that this situation has been folded forever," he said. "We now have to heal our wounds and start a long-awaited march for peace and reconciliation."

SARASOTA, FL (OCT. 13) UPI - Former CBS newscaster Douglas Edwards, who had been a continuous anchor longer than any other broadcast journalist before retiring in 1988, died Saturday after a two-year bout with cancer. He was 73.

Edwards' wife, May, said he died at home at 10:40 a.m. She said he had been undergoing treatment for cancer of the bladder since 1988, the year he retired. "He would be okay for a while and then he would get sick," she said. "I guess he's really been ill most of the two years since his retirement."

She said services for Edwards were scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Church of the Palms in Sarasota and that Edwards was to be cremated. Edwards anchored a daily network television newscast without interruption from 1948 until his retirement.

"The trail he blazed at the dawn of television is one that broadcast journalists can follow with great confidence and enormous admiration," said Howard Stringer, president of teh CBS Broadcast Group. "His integrity, his dignity and innate gentleness made him a man for all our seasons."

Edwards had been a continuous anchor longer than any other broadcast journalist when he ended his career in journalism at the age of 70 on April 1, 1988, saing he intended to retire to Florida to write his memoirs.

"I've seen the whole span of electronic journalism," Edwards said proudly in a CBS interview on his last day on the job. "I have seen it all really from the time I got into this business at age 15 in, well, 1932 is when it was." Edwards described himself as both sad and "pepped up" about leaving CBS and said he would lecture and continue to write.

Edwards was the first anchor of a CBS News program for television, and the first of only three men to permanently anchor the evening news for the network. The other two are Walter Cronkite and Dan Rather.

"Because he was a pioneer and achieved so much as a professional, Douglas Edwards is in the pantheon of news broadcaster," Rather said upon learning of

Edwards' death. "Because of the kind of person he was - a man of unfailing decency and kindness - he is in our hearts forever."

Looking back over his almost 46-year career with CBS after his retirement, Edwards once said: "I think there were several real high spots. I've covered conventions, World War II in Europe with Ed Murrow, the sinking of the Andrea Doria - I happened to get a clean television newsbreak on that. I've covered floods and assassinations, the Nixon story.

"The story I liked very much was the announcement of the Salk vaccine. We went out with a camera crew and took our family doctor from Weston, Conn., and told the story of the Salk vaccine for polio and what it would mean to America's little folks. It was one of the nicest stories. "There aren't too many nice stories. America takes its good news for granted."

Among the most unforgettable people he encountered in his career he included Adlai Stevenson, Dwight Eisenhower, Edward R. Murrow, Winston Churchill, and Eleanor Roosevelt - "she really lit a candle."

"I interviewed her two or three times," Edwards said. "She was awfully good at television. She smiled a lot when she was talking about rather serious things and I found myself admiring that ability. One of my problems on televison has been smiling if I didn't have anything to smile about."

Edwards was born July 14, 1917, in Ada, Okla. He began his career as a radio reporter in Troy, Ala., when he was 15 and still in high school. After completing his education at the University of Alabama, Emory University and University of Georgia Evening College, he worked for radio stations in Atlanta and Detroit. He joined CBS Radio in New York in 1942.

He served with Murrow in Europe, then returned to New York in 1946 to anchor the "CBS World News Roundup." On Aug. 15, 1948, he began his anchor chores for CBS's first Monday-through-Friday evening news television program, "Douglas Edwards With The News," the forerunner of today's "CBS Evening News."

Its signal went out from a primitive studio in New York's Grand Central Terminal to five Eastern cities, and whenever trains looped under the railroad terminal, the picture would shake. Edwards anchored the program until 1962, when he moved to the CBS News daytime broadcasts and was succeeded by Cronkite on the evening news.

The CBS news correspondent at the time of his retirement anchored the midmorning edition of "Newsbreak" and the Sunday morning series, "For Our Times," which viewed the news from a religious and cultural perspective.

He retired after celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of the "World News Roundup," the country's oldest network radio newscast, which premiered on CBS March 13, 1938. He had reported on "World News Roundup" since joining CBS.

"Along with Dave Garroway and Ed Sullivan and Jack Webb and the other pioneers Doug ushered in the television era," said Don Hewitt, executive producer of 60 Minutes and associate director of the original Douglas Edwards With The News.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 14) UPI - Despite a 1988 federal law, toxic lead can still be found in many school drinking fountains in the Mid-Atlantic region, a published report said Saturday.

In a recent report, the Inspector General's Office of the Environmental Protection Agency's found that the EPA, states and local school districts are doing a poor job of implementing the laws, the Philadelphia Inquirer said.

''Our findings confirm that harmful amounts of lead exist in drinking water provided by schools,'' the report said.

The study covers schools in the EPA's Region 3, which includes Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

''We had a law passed in 1988 to protect kids in school from lead, and the EPA and the states have dropped the ball,'' said Erik Olsen, a lawyer with the National Wildlife Federation.

Exposure to the heavy metal can impair a child's neurological development and learning ability. Contamination has been a problem in some older models of water cooler that have lead-lined tanks, and the EPA has estimated that as many as 250,000 children across the nation may be drinking contaminated water.

The report said one unidentified Maryland school district found elevated levels of lead in 32 percent of its water coolers, with some found to have lead levels five times higher than the EPA standard.

In Philadelphia, 73 water coolers were tested for lead last year and 50 removed, but the report said school officials have filed to test more than 1,100 other water coolers.

Albert Dorsey, administrator of facilities for the Philadelphia School District, said the district has been waiting for the state to set up testing standards as required by the 1988 law.

Sean McIlhenny, an EPA spokesman, said the agency has been constrained in enforcing the Lead Contamination Control Act by a lack of resources and the way the law was written.

The law sets no penalties that could be levied to require compliance, and Congress has not allocated money to enforce it.

The inspector general's report criticized the EPA for not adequately enforcing a program to test water coolers for lead and not aggressively identifying water cooler models with lead lined tanks.

The report also criticized state agencies for not establishing programs to help schools and daycare centers deal with lead contamination, and local school districts for not adequately testing drinking water and for not sharing information on those tests with teachers and parents.

(OCT. 13) UPI - Rebel Christian militia leader Michel Aoun sought refuge in the French Embassy in Beirut today and surrendered in the face of an air and ground assault by Syrian-backed Lebanese forces. The surrender ended a two-year mutiny by Aoun, who called on his troops to pledge their loyalty to the Lebanese government. Aoun surrendered one day after surviving an assassination attempt.

The Senate Finance Committee voted 15-5 early today to approve a compromise five-year deficit-reduction plan that was put together to avoid a showdown with President Bush. The package includes 142-point- one-BILLION dollars in tax increases, but without a rise in tax rates on the wealthiest Americans or a cut in the capital gains tax. The bill also would cut Medicare by 48-point-nine-BILLION dollars.

Black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela personally intervened today after South African police fired tear gas and rubber bullets on African National Congress protesters. Six people were wounded in the confrontation in Soweto. Police say that as many as 35 people were arrested during the march but they were released after authorities talked with Mandela.

Between 20-thousand and 30-thousand people demonstrated in a Seoul park today to back demands for an end to alleged military surveillance of civilians. The rally was organized by nine organizations, including the part of opposition leader Kim Dae Jung, who entered the sixth day of a hunger strike to back political demands. An Army deserter disclosed the military spying on about 13-hundred noted civilians on October 4th.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL (OCT. 13) UPI - Former Brazilian soccer superstar Edson Arantes do Nascimento, better known to sports fans as "Pele," says he will run for president in Brazil's national elections in 1994.

Pele, in training for a soccer match in Milan, Italy, Oct. 31 to commemorate his 50th birthday, told the newspaper Jornal do Brasil in an interview published Saturday he was ready to begin a political career.

"To be a candidate after (Fernando) Collor de Mello is a challenge that I would like to accept ... to be able to aid the Brazilian people; I have no reason to start lower than this (the presidency)," Pele said.

Pele, known as the "king" of soccer in his playing days, said that in his many travels around the world he had become convinced that the socialist countries have achieved "better distribution of the wealth." He said he favored a system of democratic socialism that would guarantee the right to education and public order.

Pele, who grew up in poverty in a small interior city where he worked as a shoeshine boy, burst into international soccer prominence at age 17 when he led the Brazilian national team to its first World Cup soccer championship in Stockholm, Sweden, in 1958.

The Brazilians went on to win two more championships in 1962 and in 1970, becoming the first team ever to win three championships and retaining permanent possession of the coveted Jules Rimet soccer cup.

Pele retired from active play with Santos, his local team in the Sao Paulo coastal city, and the Brazilian national team after playing in the first half of a game against Yugoslavia in 1971. He later went to New York where he played on the New York Cosmos from June 1975 until December 1977 when he retired from active play. In recent years, he has taken care of his business interests and investments from his base in Santos.

SAN SALVADOR, EL SALVADOR (OCT. 13) UPI - At least 12 people were killed and 34 were injured Saturday when a geothermic well exploded beneath a village in western El Salvador, rescue workers said.

"Most of the dead are children," said Mario Medrano, a rescue worker for the Salvadoran Red Cross in Ahuachapan province. He said at least 12 people were killed at the scene and hospitals in the area reported receiving at least 34 injured, most of them with serious burns.

Medrano called the explosion "a natural disaster" that occurred in the middle of the night at the village of El Barro, 45 miles west of San Salvador in the province of Ahuachapan. "About five families have been affected, Medrano told United Press International. "In some of them the whole family was lost."

El Barro is located in the edge of a government-run geothermical plant with more than 30 functioning wells. A plant technician contacted this Saturday morning by telephone said he had just returned from the site of the explosion and that at least 19 people were killed. A technician, who asked his name not be used, said the well that exploded had not been tapped.

LONDON (OCT. 13) UPI - The Iraqi government agreed to release four British Moslems held hostage in Iraq after former pop singer Cat Stevens appealed to President Saddam Hussein on their behalf, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported Saturday

Stevens, who converted to Islam and now goes by the name Yusuf Islam, has been in Iraq trying to arrange the release of more than 40 people, including sick and elderly Britons, the BBC said, but apparently only was able to get permission for the four Moslems.

Their release, expected Sunday, would be the first of British men held hostage in Iraq and Kuwait since the Aug. 2 invasion. The four men were visiting religous shrines when the invasion took place and have been unable to leave.

On Sunday, former British Prime Minister Edward Heath is scheduled to meet Saddam Hussein in Baghdad. Heath is attempting to secure the release of sick Britons in Iraq.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (OCT. 13) UPI - Some 1,000 companies from 42 countries Saturday began displaying their goods at the 16th Bucharest Trade Fair as Romanians flocked to the exhibits, underscoring the former East Bloc nation's moves toward a free market economy.

Thousands of Romanians, including Prime Minister Petre Roman, crowded the exhibits on the opening day of trade fair to catch a glimpse of Western products not available in Romania.

Hundreds of curious teenagers jammed the entrance to the Japanese motorbike showroom and clustered round new Renault cars. "We always used to come to the trade fair, but when we saw all the Romanian goods for export, which we could never touch, it used to leave a nasty taste in our mouths," said 21-year-old student Mirea Vladescu.

A spokesman for the Agency for the Promotion of Foreign Investment and Economic Assistance admitted Romania faces huge obstacles as it moves from a state-planned economy to a free-market system.

"The ambitious intentions of our government are at odds with people's general understanding of trade. Ordinary people are not daring and don't have the guts to try something," said public relations chief Mircea Panzer. "Our task is to convince them to have courage to start up business because the treasury can't support inactivity any more."

The agency is currently drawing up legislation, due to be presented to Parliament next week, which will establish guidelines for the relationship between Romania and foreign companies.

Panza revealed most foreign capital in Romania currently comes from Germany and accused Romania's competitors in Eastern Europe of fighting a dirty battle for foreign investment. "Throughout Eastern Europe there's a struggle to compete for these funds, mostly from Germany," Panza said.

"When the west sees riots and miners on the streets they won't invest. These disturbances are initiated by our rivals in an economic war of propaganda," he asserted, referring to recent unrest by students and others who ousted dicator Nicolae Ceausescu on Dec. 22, 1989, but who remain disillusioned with the current government.

The frequent demonstrations in Bucharest have been spurred by the feeling that the thunder of last year's revolution has been stolen by former associates of the slain ruler, such as President Ion Ileiscu, who have retained their grip on power.

MOSCOW (OCT. 13) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev ordered a halt Saturday to local decisions to dismantle statues of Soviet state founder Vladimir Lenin. Since July, Lenin monuments have been toppled and removed from a growing number of town squares on orders of local city councils.

But outright vandalism also has been spreading including a destruction Saturday of the pedestal of the "eternal flame" monument in the Ukrainian city of Donetsk. The monument honors the Soviet fallen of World War II.

Gorbachev's presidential decree said the "outrages against the founder of the Soviet state" and other historical figures and symbols had to stop.

The decree ordered "the KGB, Ministry of Interior police and the procurator (or chief legal officer) to take the necessary measures to bring an end to the vandalism and to prosecute those disobeying the law."

The decree went into effect with its publication late Saturday perhaps occasioned by the vandalism earlier in the night to the sacred World War II memorial in Donetsk.

But the measure was directed overall against the decisions by the city Soviets giving the green light to tearing down the Lenin monuments in their municipalites.

The decree "supsended the carrying out of decisions by republican and local authorities to raze, move to another site or alter the monuments" to Lenin.

Lenin's statues started coming down in July after the 28th Party Congress ruled that he was only one in a long line of outstanding socialist thinkers and not the omniscient theorist as long taught in Soviet schools. The assault on the ubiquitous Lenin monuments also stems from the Communist Party's decision in February to abandon its guaranteed one-party rule.

But the chief spur to the anti-Communist anger in the nation are the now openly read and published exposes, such as the "Gulag Archipelago" by Alexander Solzhenitsyn showing Lenin and not Josef Stalin as the founder of the Soviet labor camp system and the "Red Terror" of the 1920s.

The Gudok newspaper last week reported how one Lenin statue came down in an town it did not name. "Lenin's statue was thrown down from its pedestal to the accompaniment of whooping," Gudok said. "And in the next moment with sadistic pleasure the crowd was sawing off its head." "They then wrote on the body: 'this will happen to each of the Communists.'"

Although the first Lenin statue was razed in July in the small Ukrainian town of Ternopol, the demolitions have spread to republican capitals like Tbilisi in Georgia. The Rukh nationalist movement in the Ukrained has demanded that at least one of Lenin's two giant statutes in Kiev also be pulled down.

Lenin's popularity in a quirk of perestroika has plummeted while that of the last Romanov czar, Nicholas II, has been rising as part of a movement of nationwide soul searching, historical reawakening and search for Russian roots.

This month, the Russian church was given the Sverdlovsk site where the czar and his family were executed with the goal of building some sort of shrine there.

At about the same time, theater and movie director Mark Zakharov was renewing his call that Lenin be removed from the Lenin Mausoleum in Red Square and that the site be turned into a museum of returned party membership cards.

One columnist in the Vechernaya Moskva newspaper suggested last week that Lenin's statues should not be destroyed but be "sold to eccentric collectors for good money."

GETTYSBURG, PA (OCT. 13) UPI - Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's legacy will be remembered through a new prize for young leaders in a variety of fields, former President Gerald Ford announced Saturday.

Ford, who will be one of the featured speakers Sunday at a ceremony marking the centennial of Eisenhower's birth, said the first Eisenhower Leadership Prize will be awarded a year from now.

"This award is not reserved exclusively for high-profile leaders," Ford said at a news conference, "but may be given to individuals who have not previously been recognized for their activities."

The $25,000 prize, to be administered by Gettysburg College, will be funded from an endowment to the college by an anonymous donor. Each recipient will be asked to spend several days at the college lecturing on leadership, officials said.

"One major purpose of the prize is to demonstrate that leadership is not restricted to political or military endeavors but must also occur in research, education, social work and other fields," said college President Gordon Haaland.

The prize will be awarded by a committee headed by Texas businessman H. Ross Perot, former Secretary of Transportation Drew Lewis and historian David Eisenhower, Ike's grandson.

The young Eisenhower said the creation of the prize fulfills the goal of the centennial planning committee to create a lasting tribute to the former general and president's ideals. "The Eisenhower Prize cements the connection between Dwight D. Eisenhower and the Battle of Gettysburg," he said.

Eisenhower and his wife Mamie purchased a farm near the Civil War battlefield at Gettysburg in 1951, and the couple retired there ten years later after Eisenhower's term as president.

The Eisenhower farm is now a national historical site, and the National Park Service will Sunday reopen its guest house to tourists after a renovation.

(OCT. 13) UPI - ''I believe we've done the job.'' NEW YORK (OCT. 14) UPI - Most Americans think the slaying of 21 Palestinian demonstrators was uncalled for earlier this week, according to a Newsweek poll released Saturday.

More than half of the 757 people interviewed by telephone Thursday and Friday, about 56 percent, said they thought the use of live ammunition against the rock throwers Monday was an overreaction.

At the same time, 46 percent said they were less sympathetic to Israel and 43 percent said they were less sympathetic to the Palestinian position than they were a year ago, according to the poll to be published in Sunday's editions of the weekly newsmagazine.

The poll also said 78 percent think Israel's occupation of the West Bank and creation of a Palestinian state should remain a separate issue from the current Gulf crisis. Only 9 percent thought it should be part of an overall diplomatic solution.

The survey said 60 percent think the United States should apply pressure on Israel to compromise in order to achieve peace in the region, while 49 percent do not think the U.S. should favor a Palestinian satate.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (OCT. 14) UPI - Christian militia leader Michel Aoun ended his two-year mutiny Saturday, ordered his forces to surrender and sought refuge in the French Embassy in Beirut after Syrian-backed Lebanese government forces attacked his headquarters.

As tank-led ground forces advanced into Aoun's enclave and aircraft bombed the Baabda presidential palace that served as the maverick general's headquarters, President Elias Hrawi announced the success of the military operation that claimed at least 45 lives and wounded 255 others.

Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk Al Sharaa said the surrender of Aoun and his troops would help restore peace, security and stability to Lebanon, where a civil war has been raging since 1975.

Shortly after the expected offensive began, Aoun fled to the French Embassy, announced his surrender and ordered his troops to obey the army commander, Gen. Emil Lahhoud.

Aoun was granted political asylum, but official sources said Lebanese troops surrounded the French Embassy building in the Christian district of Hazmiyeh where Aoun remained holed up pending an expected government declaration on his fate.

The pro-Syrian leadership reportedly was demanding that the deposed general should refrain from engaging in political activity and deliver $15 million worth of government funds he had seized.

Aoun refused last year to recognize a Christian-Moslem agreement to settle Lebanon's 15-year-old civil war or to concede he is no longer head of a transitional government appointed by President Amin Gemayel Sept. 22, 1988, after Parliament failed to elect a successor.

His forces estimated to number 15,000 have been battling the presence of Syrian troops in Lebanon, a battle that resulted in more than 1,000 deaths last year. Aoun has also been engaged in a power struggle since last January with a rival Christian militia along a demarcation line splitting east Beirut.

In his surrender statement broadcast on his radio station, Aoun said: ''In regard of the political and combat circumstances and in order to avert more bloodshed and more damage and save what has left, I call on the army command to obey orders by Gen. Emile Lahoud.''

The surrender occurred one day after Aoun escaped an assassination attempt and vowed to ''fight to death'' against the attack he said he expected.

Hrawi announced the success of the military operation and thanked the Syrian forces for backing the operation.

''The military operation has been carried out swiftly,'' Hrawi said in a nationwide speech. ''The legitimate forces with a grateful help of the brotherly Syrian forces carried out its sacred duties of protecting the country and the its institutions.''

Hrawi said his government exhausted all means to end Aoun's mutiny peacefully and the military offensive was the last option.

''The (military) option was difficult but inevitable,'' he said.

He called on all Lebanese, especially military personnel, to join ''a national march aimed at restoring peace and stability and expanding the government authority on all Lebanese territories.''

By late Saturday, officials said all regular units stationed in Aoun's enclavedeclared loyalty to Lahoud's command.

Army Commander Lahoud inspected Baabda palace and the nearby Ministry of Defence as his tanks, flying white flags, manned the streets of the Christian enclave.

Officials said seven Syrian-manned and Soviet-made Sukhoi warplanes began a series of raids on Aoun's headquarters in the district of Baabda, 5 miles southeast of Beirut.

While the jets pounded Aoun's headquarters, thousands of Syrian- backed forces launched an offensive on Aoun's enclave, unleashing rockets and artillery shells.

Large artillery blasts echoed across Beirut Saturday and many people in the Moslem sector of the city refrained from opening their businesses.

Presidential spokeswoman May Kahale said Aoun fled his bunker one hour after the start of the offensive and arrived in a tank along with a number of officers at the French Embassy.

Lebanese Prime Minister Selim Hoss who described the surrender as ''historic '' and congratulated the Lebanese people ''for the end of their ordeal.''

(OCT. 14) UPI - Delaware Republican Senate candidate Jane Brady is spurning television commercials in her race against Sen. Joseph Biden, choosing instead to send her video message directly into the homes of 40,000 voters.

Brady will mail to selected households 10-minute videotapes outlining her platform and blasting Biden for the plagarism problems that derailed his presidential bid in 1987.

Brady, a former Sussex County prosecutor, said her campaign decided to go with the videotape partly for economic reasons in the small state dominated by big-city television markets.

''It's much cheaper, and you can be on TV with a videotape more than once with the same initial capital outlay,'' Brady said. ''They (viewers) can give it to their friends, and have their friends come over and watch it.''

The Delaware television market is dominated by Philadelphia television stations, and Brady said she decided the cost of buying time on those outlets is not worth the likely return.

The videotape will cost about $80,000 to produce and mail, said Brady, whose campaign has to date raised only $200,000.

The tape outlines, through clips from network newscasts and analyses, Biden's troubles during his presidential bid.

''We've got network newscasters and analysts talking in 1987 about how he committed plagarism in law school and admitted he used other people's speeches '' Brady said.

Biden's campaign for the Democratic nomination for president was derailed after it was learned he cribbed political rhetoric from a television commercial made by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock, plagarized part of a paper while a student at Syracuse University law school, and embellished his academic record.

Biden said at the time he halted his Democratic presidential bid to devote his energy as Senate Judiciary Committee chairman to defeating the politically charged Supreme Court nomination of Judge Robert Bork.

Brady maintains the plagarism episodes and the Bork nomination show Biden's problems with character, an issue on which she believes he is vulnerable.

''I hear people saying he's been there (in Congress) too long, that he embarrassed this state in 1987 ... and they are upset about the way he treated Bork,'' Brady said.

''Two of the three relate to his character and the way he conducts himself,'' she said. ''I really hadn't expected there to be such a groundswell of that opinion out there.''

Biden's campaign spokesman did not return phone calls asking for a comment on the videotape.

MOSCOW (OCT. 14) UPI - The heads of the Soviet Union's republics met with Mikhail Gorbachev Saturday and agreed on the need for a transition to a market-based economy, the official Tass news agency said.

Only the presidents of the three Baltic republics did not attend the discussions on the market plan that is to be discussed in Parliament Monday.

The heads of the other 12 republics agreed on the need to move to the new system with the implementation of the program to be shared by the republics and local regions, Tass said.

The agreement by the republican chiefs removes a big hurdle for Gorbachev on the implementation of some sort of transition to a market economy.

Tass reporting on the Saturday meeting said:

''Participants in the meeting came to the unanimous conclusion that on the union level within the framework of the Soviet Parliament it was necesasry to adopt the guidelines of the transition to a market-oriented system, which will be specified in the process of implementation by the union authorities and by the authorities of the Union and Autonomous Republics as well as local regions.''

Because Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania have declared they want out of the Soviet Union, their leaders did not attend the the meeting with Gorbachev on the new economic system that is to replace central planning.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Apparently the No. 1 rating doesn't agree with the Michigan Wolverines.

Desmond Howard dropped a two-point conversion pass with six seconds remaining Saturday, allowing Michigan State to emerge with a 28-27 upset over the top-ranked Wolverines.

Michigan's loss means that for the second straight time, the Wolverines' term at the top of the United Press International ratings lasted only one game. The last time Michigan was ranked No. 1 was in the 1981 preseason poll, and the Wolverines lost their opener to Wisconsin.

''I don't think we were looking ahead to No. 1,'' Michigan Coach Gary Moeller said. ''On the final touchdown drive I don't think our kids quit and I don't think they'll quit now.''

Michigan was elevated to No. 1 last week when both Notre Dame and Florida State lost. The loss means the No. 1 rating will change for the third time this season. No. 2 Nebraska and No. 3 Virginia, both undefeated, are the leading candidates.

With Michigan State leading 28-21, Michigan drove 69 yards to pull within a point when Elvis Grbac hit Derrick Alexander with an 8-yard scoring pass.

Michigan took a timeout to discuss the conversion and opted to go for the win. Grbac threw to the left side of the end zone for Howard, who had a step on Michigan State's Eddie Brown, but was tripped up by the defender and never controlled the ball, which popped out as he hit the ground.

''I felt I caught the ball, but the ref said no and I have to live with that '' Howard said.

Brown said he was somewhat surprised there was no flag on the play.

Tico Duckett gave the Spartans a 28-21 lead when he scored on a 9- yard run with 1:59 remaining. The drive was kept alive by a 15-yard face-mask penalty against Michigan's Martin Davis when he tackled quarterback Dan Enos after a 4-yard gain on third-and-8 from the Michigan 41. The penalty gave Michigan State a first down at the 22.

Five plays later, Duckett burst over left tackle for the touchdown. John Langeloh, who broke the Spartans' career scoring record earlier in the game, added the decisive extra point.

Michigan State took a 21-14 lead on Hyland Hickson's 26-yard run with 6:03 remaining. Hickson's second TD of the game ended a 69-yard drive that started with an interception by Mike Iaquaniello that gave the Spartans the ball with 8:39 left.

However, Howard returned the ensuing kickoff 95 yards for a TD to tie the game. Howard burst down the left sideline, eluded several Michigan State players and cut back across the field to score.

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (OCT. 14) UPI - Kuwaiti Prime Minister Sheik Saad Al-Sabah pledged a return to a more democratic government in a liberated Kuwait, a move that was quickly embraced by the budding opposition at a conference on how to toss out the Iraqi invaders.

Speaking to a gathering of more than 1,200 Kuwaiti government officials, businessmen, educators, resistance members and observers from the Arab world, Saad opened the three-day meeting with the promise to return to the 1962 constitution with a national assembly to handle legislative matters.

''The objectives we are working for are lofty and momentus. After victory and the withdrawal of the invaders, Kuwait ... the whole Kuwaiti nation under the Constitution of 1962 will consolidate democracy and deepen popular participation, which remains an objective we all work for and endeavor to accomplish,'' he said.

Kuwait's elective national assembly was suspended in 1986 after its actions and rhetoric toward Iran, government sources said, made the government edgy about Iranian retaliation for Kuwait's aid to Iraq during the Iran-Iraq Gulf war. Last July a constituent assembly was elected to begin exploring ways for greater democratization, a move abruptly cut off by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion.

Ahmed Al-Soudoon, speaker of the Parliament that was dissolved in 1986 and a leading member of the constitutional movement in Kuwait, was pleased at the announcement by Saad, also the crown prince and second senior member of the ruling Sabah family. The emir's remarks were more muted but suggested a similar frame of mind.

''I would like to interpret it rather optimistically,'' said Soudoon. ''It is a definite, firm answer that there will be a full return to the constitutional legitimacy represented by the Parliament. ... There will be elections held after the liberation of Kuwait. ... It was quite obvious that after the liberation there will be a full return to the '62 constitution.''

The outcome of the conference _ where some spoke openly of the possibility of a war _ was likely to be watched closely by the United States, which was at the fore in rushing troops into Saudi Arabia after the invasion and would likely lead any military action.

And it also was expected to be monitored closely by Arab nations because of the ground it was breaking in furthering democracy and because of likely advances in women's rights. Kuwait, along with Jordan, is the most liberal of Arab societies and women hold many professional and government posts. There has been talk of granting women the right to vote in Kuwait.

Out of deference to Saudi women, who lead far more private lives, most Kuwaiti women remained away from the meeting.

The Secretary General of the Gulf Cooperation Council, an economic coalition of gulf nations, told reporters the gathering was said the gathering was ''a historic conference in every aspect'' and would deal with the liberation of Kuwait, democracy and women's issues.

He declared that there can be ''no compromise'' with Iraq and that ''gradualism'' in terms of withdrawal is unacceptable.

''Our motto,'' he said, ''is 'The liberation of Kuwait at any cost.''

And, he added, ''Kuwait is too small to be left to the whims and caprices of the vultures in Baghdad. Kuwait is too delicate, too fragile, too frail to be left to the dismantling machine of the Iraqis.''

The gathering, which will end Monday night with a closing address by the emir, will produce a communique expected to again call on Iraq to leave Kuwait and address the question of a post-liberation government.

The meeting was held under tight security provided by the Saudis at a huge conference center in this Red Sea port city, and the walls of the center were covered with pictures of the Iraqi invasion.

KATHMANDU (OCT. 14) - A german parliamentary delegation led by Social Democratic Pary deputy Hans Gottfried Bernrath left for home Sunday at the end of a five-day visit to Nepal, cancelling a scheduled visit to India.

Bernrath told newsmen at Kathmandu airport that the delegation was returning home immediately because of the assassination attempt on Friday against Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble.

The German delegation comprised six members of parliament, all from the Committee on Internal Affairs.

Bernrath said his delegation was very ''happy'' to have been in Nepal at a time when a democratic constitution was being finalised.

He said that German assistance in Nepal's ''economic and cultural development was, is and will be a very good investment in Nepal's future...Nepal has a very important role to play in this part of the world''.

BERLIN (OCT. 14) - Scores of Red Army troops in former East Germany have flung down their weapons and sought asylum in the past weeks, repelled by harsh barracks life and fearful of returning home, the Berliner Morgenpost reported Sunday.

Before German unification on October 3, "about 10 Soviet soldiers per day were deserting and filing asylum requests" in West Berlin alone, the newspaper said quoting city officials.

Others fled to western Germany, seizing the chance to desert after East and West Germany scrapped all their border controls in the run-up to unification.

Forty-one of the asylum-seekers were so destitute that they sought emergency aid from Berlin social services, the report said.

Since October 3, the Soviet military have apparently tightened controls on the 380,000 Soviet military personnel in the former German Democratic Republic. This had reduced the desertion rate to two per day, the Morgenpost said.

Nuri Dehkordi, a Russian-speaker who has been helping the deserters at an asylum home, said "they are young men aged between 20 and 22. They are terribly afraid. It took three weeks before they trusted me."

"Most of them deserted because of poor living conditions and ill-treatment," he said.

"The officer is top dog, and ordinary soldiers are considered nothing. They don't want to return to the Soviet Union because they are afraid of never being able to leave it again."

However, the Soviet troops have little chance of gaining asylum and are likely to be sent home, where they face punishment under military law that can, in theory, allow the death penalty, the paper said.

Alexander Yakovlev, an aide to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, recently warned deserters that they were committing "a serious breach of military discipline."

"I don't think that Germany will be giving political asylum to such elements," he said. "That would be a scandal."

The Soviet Union is scheduled to withdraw its troops from former East Germany by 1995, under an agreement between Bonn and Moscow that eased the way to unification.

Germany has pledged billions of dollars in soft loans to help the withdrawal by building homes for returning troops and contributing to the support of those provisionally left behind.

LONDON (OCT. 14) - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher invited South African President Frederik de Klerk to Chequers west of London Sunday for talks on the ongoing bloodshed between rival black groups in South Africa.

Going into the meeting, Thatcher faced mounting pressure from anti-apartheid lobbyists to urge de Klerk to lift apartheid once and for all and to release an estimated 1,200 persons they claim are still being held as political prisoners in South Africa.

Sunday's meeting was the third between de Klerk and Thatcher, following talks in June 1989 and in May this year.

The refugees, including 800 Sri Lankans, 359 Filipinos and 88 Indians, were to be repatriated from Transit Center 1 at the earliest opportunity, an authoritative source said.

Transit Center 1 is one of six refugee camps set up by Jordan to shelter the flood of foreigners who escaped Kuwait and Iraq after the latter invaded its southern neighbor August 2.

BANGKOK (OCT. 14) - A university student set himself ablaze and two others threatened to follow suit Sunday to press for the resignation of Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan amid anti-government protests.

Thanavut Pringchua, a 20-year-old business administration student, doused himself with gasoline and set himself alight as protesting students demanded the ouster of Mr. Chatichai's government.

He was rushed to the police hospital for treatment, his body about 75 per cent covered with burns, but was expected to survive.

Hours after the attempted suicide in front of Ramkhamhaeng University, two other students there threatened self-immolation if Mr. Chatichai's government had not quit by the end of the day.

The attempted suicide ocurred as groups of student protestors converged on the university, on the outskirts of Bangkok, and on Government House, where Mr. Chatichai has his offices.

"If the tyrants do not resign, I will be the next one," Ikasitekasit Tharirajraksa told reporters in front of the gates of Government House, where some 400 protestors had assembled to shout anti-government slogans and erect posters.

But as tension rose between the demonstrators and some 50 policemen deployed in front of Government House, Mr. Ikasitekasit was taken away in a car by fellow students.

Later a law student, Narongsak Manee, walked up to the gate of Government House with two bottles believed to contain gasoline and shouted at a crowd of reporters that he would burn himself to death.

The demonstration at the university dispersed peacefully shortly after Mr. Thanavut torched himself.

But the demonstration at Government House continued, with students setting up posters saying, "Student power belongs to the people" and "Thieves rule the country. How could it prosper?"

The demonstrations were staged to demand the resignation of Mr. Chatichai, 73, whose two-year coalition government has been shaken by infighting among cabinet ministers and tainted with charges of corruption and mismanagement.

Similar protests by Ramkhamhaeng University students and trade union members began a week ago.

Earlier this month, 18 students from the university threatened to burn themselves to death but later backed off, instead slashing their wrists last week. None was seriously injured.

Sunday's dramatic suicide bid came on the 17th anniversary of a student-spearheaded mass uprising against the government of then-prime minister Thanom Kittikachorn, widely blamed for corruption and social injustice.

Mr. Chatichai has repeatedly said he would neither dissolve parliament nor resign from his post as leader of the seven-party ruling coalition, which in 1988 became Thailand's first democratically elected government in 12 years.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 14) - The Israeli government Sunday formally rejected the dispatch of a U.N. fact-finding mission to the occupied territories and east Jerusalem in connection with the October 8 killings of 21 Palestinians.

Foreign Minister David Levy said the refusal to welcome a team appointed by U.N. secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar was taken at the cabinet's weekly meeting.

Israeli police shot dead 21 Palestinians and wounded some 150 others on October 8 after they pelted Jewish worshippers with stones in east Jerusalem's Temple Mount area -- a holy site to both Jews and Moslems and known as Haram al-Sharif to Arabs.

The bloodbath triggered worldwide indignation and prompted the United States to vote in the U.N. Security Council for an unprecendented condemnation of Israel.

U.N. Security Council Resolution 672 also urged Mr. Perez de Cuellar to send a fact-finding mission to the Israeli-occupied territories and to report back by the end of the month.

Mr. Levy criticised Washington's attitude and said the United States had "given in" and helped create a link between the Gulf crisis and the Palestinian-Israeli conflict.

Asked if the latest developments would trigger a crisis in Israeli-U.S. relations, he said Israel could not make concessions on "a topic as important as Jerusalem."

"We could not accept the dispatch of such a mission that does not recognise Israel's sovereignty over Jerusalem, the sovereign and reunified capital of Israel," said Mr. Levy.

"We cannot accept that our sovereignty over Jerusalem be put in doubt," he added.

He also criticised the fact that the U.N. resolution failed to mention what he said was "the savage attack by (Arab) provocateurs against Jewish worshippers praying at the Wailing Wall (below the Temple Mount)."

Israel occupied Arab east Jerusalem, the West Bank and Gaza Strip during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and subsequently it annexed east Jerusalem which it considers an integral part of its capital.

The move has never been recognised by the United Nations.

NANCY, France (OCT. 14) - Four French Jaguar fighter-bombers on Sunday began a trip that will take them to Saudi Arabia, where they will join 16 other French warplanes, French military officials said.

Four other Jaguars will leave next week, completing France's deployment of attack planes in the Gulf, they said.

France decided to step up its military presence in the Gulf a month ago after Iraqi troops invaded the French ambassador's residence in Kuwait.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (OCT. 14) - U.S. Marines slid down ropes from a helicopter to board an Iraqi-flagged cargo ship which refused to stop in the North Arabian Sea, the U.S. Navy said Sunday.

The navy, in a statement released here, said that the 130,000-ton Iraqi cargo ship, the Almutanabbi, was boarded on Saturday.

The Iraqi vessel was allowed to proceed to an undisclosed destinationa after a search found it to be empty, the navy said. It said there were 61 people on board the ship, including four women and six children.

The Almutanabbi, which had left the Yemen port of Aden, was intercepted by the frigate USS Brewton, the USS Ogden and the Australian guided missile frigate HMAS Darwin, the navy said.

"The ship acknowledged requests to stop but refused to stop," said a U.S. Navy spokesman, Commander J.D. Van Sickle.

U.S. Marines then "fast-roped" on to the deck of the ship from a helicopter, he said, followed by U.S. Coast Guard and Australian Navy personnel in small boats.

No shots were fired in the incident.

The Navy also said Sunday that ships in the international armada enforcing the economic embargo imposed against Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait have made more than 2,350 interceptions in the Gulf, North Arabian Sea and Red Sea since August.

BERLIN (OCT. 14) - Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union (CDU) emerged a clear winner in regional elections Sunday in Bavaria and the five new states of former East Germany, according to exit-polls by German television.

The polls gave the CDU, or its sister Christian Social Union (CSU), the lead in four out of the five states.

The election completed the federal structure of Germany, after the unification on October 3 ended 45 years of division.

Twenty million Germans -- nearly a quarter of the population -- had been called to the ballot box.

BRAZZAVILLE (OCT. 14) - The government of Congo has bowed to trade union opposition and abandoned plans to privatise the country's oil products distribution network, whose workers went on strike Thursday, state radio announced Sunday.

The government had planned to break up the state firm Hydro-Congo into six companies and to sack more than 850 of its 1,400 employees.

With the turnabout decision, which came in negotiations at the weekend between the government and the country's trade union confederation, some service stations opened in Brazzaville Sunday and work was expected to resume Monday.

Armoured cars which had sealed off Hydro-Congo depots and security forces which had been deployed at strategic points in the capital were withdrawn.

Sources added that the government had also decided to clear the way for negotiations on wages and conditions in the private and public sectors, and had restored civil servants' promotions and bonuses cut under an economic structural adjustment plan.

The trade unions asked the government to cease drawing on the funds of state corporations to allow them to recover their financial health.

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (OCT. 14) - An Afghan guerrilla leader has urged the rulers of Islamic countries to depend on Moslem fighters for their defence and not on non-Moslem forces.

''We must put faith in our own Moslem masses, instead of relying on alien non-Moslems,'' Abdurrab Rasool Sayaf, prime minister of the Pakistan-based Afghan Interim Government (Aig) of the mujahedin guerillas, said Sunday.

Sayaf was speaking at the graduation parade at mujahedin's military academy near here, but apparently addressing the rulers of Arab states who have invited U.S. and other western countries' forces to defend them.

''It is abhoring to see semi-nude non-Moslem girls defending the holy lands of Islam,'' he said.

''Moslem masses must be trusted, equipped and trained in military service,'' said the Afghan guerrilla leader whose anti-communist jihad (holy war) in Afghanistan has been heavily funded Arab monarchies since 1978.

An offer made by the Aig to Saudi Arabia in the wake of Iraqi occupation of Kuwait to send its guerrillas to Saudi Arabia was ignored by Riyadh.

TUNIS (OCT. 14) - A court has jailed 34 Moslem fundamentalists here for between six and eighteen months after they demonstrated despite an official ban and clashed with the police, Moslem sources said Sunday.

The sentences were handed down Saturday, two days after seven fundamentalists had been imprisoned for six months following a public protest.

Another 18 people are to stand trial Thursday.

Protestors have repeatedly taken to the streets and clashed with the police since the death early last month of a youth who distributed religious leaflets near the Ibn Khaldoun mosque.

The Interior Minostry said he was hit by a stray bullet when police fired warning shots to scare off several youths attacking their car.

MANAMA (OCT. 14) - French diplomats in Kuwait now face acute water shortages in temperatures that can reach 37 degrees centigrade (99 degrees Fahrenheit), and have nothing left to eat but rice, Western diplomatic sources said here Sunday.

Occupying Iraqi troops several days ago entered the embasssy compound and emptied the water tank on the roof of the embassy, the sources reported.

Embassy staff under Charge d'Affaires Jean-Pierre Galtier are now forced to drink water they stored as a precaution in bathtubs and sinks.

Food supplies are exhausted, except for rice, and diplomats are only able to communicate with the outside world once or twice a week by radio, the sources said. But there is apparently enough fuel to operate the embassy generator.

All but four embassies have been abandoned in Kuwait as Iraqi troops have cut off vital supplies to force them to relocate to Baghdad.

Iraqi authorities insist that Kuwait is part of Iraq and that there is consequently no further need for diplomatic representatives to remain in the emirate.

The remaining embassies are those of France, Britain, the United States and Indonesia. The German, Belgian and Dutch missions all closed down over the last several days.

The French embassy will be "one of the last to leave," Foreign Minister Roland Dumas vowed last week.

But he added: "We are forced to recognize that human resistance has its limits. The moment will surely come when we are at the limit of such resistance."

Iraqi forces invaded Kuwait August 2 and Baghdad announced the annexation of the tiny emirate several days later.

the fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front.

APS also said that unemployed youths at Tebessa, near the Tunisian border, ransacked a police post.

KRAKOW, Poland (OCT. 14) - Polish Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki said here Sunday he had proposed to Solidarity leader Lech Walesa that they both abstain from running in presidential elections next month in favour of a third candidate.

Mr. Walesa turned down the offer made on August 31 but suggested that Mr. Mazowiecki become his prime minister, the premier said on the first day of his election campaign in this southern city.

"I could not accept (that offer) because we do not share the same ideas about the presidency and democracy," Mr. Mazowiecki said, adding that their collaboration would not have lasted for long.

The Solidarity leader announced last month that he would stand in the November 25 poll, a few days before Mr. Mazowiecki said he would also run.

"I did not want that responsibility," Mr. Mazowiecki said, referring to the presidency, but he changed his mind "to avert abrupt changes in a still fragile Poland".

Mr. Mazowiecki has been criticized by the Solidarity leader for not moving fast enough to radically change Polish society after more than 40 years of communist rule.

"The way we chose is difficult but there is no other," he told some 1,500 people in the city's Philharmonic Hall, including literature Nobel prize winner Czeslaw Milosz, a Polish-born U.S. citizen.

Mr. Mazowiecki's government has slashed inflation but also spending power in switching from a state-controlled centralized economy with high subsidies to a market-oriented economy. Unemployment is nearing one million.

Mr. Mazowiecki also met with Krakow Archbishop Franciszek Macharski, the number two of Poland's Roman Catholic Church, and talked to farmers on the university campus.

Meanwhile, Poland's National Civic Committee (KO), which is close to Solidarity, announced that it will support Mr. Walesa's presidential bid, PAP news agency announced.

Meeting in Warsaw, the committee called on the lower house of parliament or Sejm, which is still dominated by the communists and its allies, to dissolve by the end of the year.

The Sejm was elected in June last year after Solidarity and the communists agreed on phased democratic reforms.

Amid the rising antagonism between Mr. Walesa and Mr. Mazowiecki, many Polish intellectuals have left the committee, which remains Poland's main political movement.

The KO was founded by the union leader and set up a shadow cabinet when the communists were still in power.

Abdel Karim Mohammad Abu Nimr was shot in the chest during confrontations between troops and demonstrators at the Khan Yunes refugee camp, the sources said.

His death sparked further demonstrations during which troops shot and wounded 10 Palestinians.

Mr. Abu Nimr was the 738th Palestinian to die from Israeli gunfire in the occupied territories, according to an unofficial toll, since the start of an uprising there in December 1987.

BUDAPEST (OCT. 14) EFE - Polling stations opened in Hungary Sunday to appoint local councillors in areas where first round voting was declared null after less than 40 per cent of the electorate took part.

This time there is no minimum participation set, as the two opposition Free Democrats and radical Young Democrats (Fidsewsz) try to improve on support secured in the first round when the two parties picked up 39.21 per cent between them.

The ruling Democratic Forum garnered 37.97 per cent.

Sunday's local government elections will conclude the process of political change in Hungary, which started with parliamentary elections in April following the downfall of the Communists.

This time round more than four million voters will take part, compared with seven million in the first round. They will elect 300 councils compared with the 3,190 two weeks ago.

Most of the voting is in larger towns where the previous polls proved inconclusive because participation did not reach the minimum 40 per cent level.

In areas where the first round of voting did count, independent candidates led the polling, taking 82 per cent of the mayorships and 71 per cent of the council seats.

ATHENS (OCT. 14) EFE - Polling stations opened early Sunday for some 8.2 million Greeks to vote in municipal elections which are seen as a test for Prime Minister Constantine Mitsotakis' six-month old conservative government.

Polling began at 6:30 a.m. (0430 GMT) and closes just before 6 p.m. (1600 GMT) with first results expected just over an hour later.

In all 358 mayors and some 5,000 councillors are to be elected in what is regarded as a test for the government which has been hit by a wave of general strikes and protests against its economic policies.

The government and socialist and communist opposition parties will be keeping a close watch on how voting goes in Athens, where about half the Greek population lives, and in the key ports of Piraeus and Salonica.

Political analysts have predicted that none of the candidates running in the three cities will gain the 50 per cent of votes necessary for an outright win and that a second round of voting will have to be called next weekend.

Voter turnout is expected to be low in the latest of a series of elections held since mid 1989, while a significant number of blank ballot slips are likely to protest the government's economic austerity program.

This includes sweeping cuts in social benefits in an attempt to trim budget deficits.

TUNIS (OCT. 14) EFE - Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan Sunday arrived in Tunis with a message on the Gulf crisis from President Saddam Hussein to Tunisian President Zin al-Abidin Ben Ali.

The Iraqi deputy prime minister arrived from Tripoli where he delivered a similar letter to Libyan leader Col. Muammar Gaddafi on Saturday.

In Tunis, Ramadan said he would hold talks with Ben Ali on the situation in the Gulf and moves to reach a peaceful solution.

Earlier, the Libyan news agency JANA reported that Saddam's message dealt with "the dangers of U.S. and Western occupation of the Gulf region".

The United States has sent some 200,000 troops to to Saudi Arabia to deter further Iraqi aggression following the Baghdad-ordered invasion of Kuwait in August.

In reference to the 21 Palestinians killed by Israeli police in Jerusalem last Monday, the letter mentioned "the massacres perpetrated by the Zionists, allied with the Americans, against the people of Palestine", JANA said.

Citing Ramadan, the agency said the visit to Tripoli was part of "efforts by Iraq and its Arab brothers to reinforce Arab opposition to the U.S.-Zionist occupation" of Arab territory.

Libya and Tunisia oppose non-Arab intervention in the Gulf conflict and say they favor a peaceful Arab-mediated solution to the crisis.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 14) UPI - The Bush administration has delayed any decision to order military action to oust Iraqi forces from Kuwait and is planning a series of new diplomatic initiatives, a published report said Sunday.

U.S. officials are expected to begin by pursuing new resolutions in the United Nations to condemn Iraq's destruction of Kuwait and seek reparations for damage done since the Aug. 2 invasion, officials told the Washington Post.

In addition, the Justice Department reportedly has been studying a possible U.N. resolution condemning Iraq for war crimes.

Top advisers to President Bush told the newspaper they are hoping to convince Iraqi President Saddam Hussein his maneuvering room is ''shrinking'' and that the invasion of Kuwait is growing costlier every day his troops remain.

The Bush administration also is considering the option of simply keeping U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf region indefinitely, maintaining pressure on Saddam as his supply lines wear thin because of the international trade embargo.

''We can contain him where he is now without losing a life,'' one administration official told the Post. ''But containment doesn't get him out of Kuwait.''

Bush and senior White House advisers have concluded that even a short war in the Persian Gulf would be costly in terms of American casualties and that political support at home could erode quickly, the newspaper reported.

''We've gone beyond all the bluster and bluff that we'll just go beat Iraq into the dust,'' a State Department official told the newspaper. ''You have men who think of war and death and casualties and the human factor. Nobody is rushing to draw the gun. If they were, they are not now.''

NEW YORK (OCT. 14) UPI - The continuing commitment of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf and increasing fears about a slumping economy have begun to take their toll on President Bush's popularity, according to a New York Times-CBS News Poll published Sunday.

The poll of 960 adults found economic fears at their highest level in a decade and Bush's overall job rating the worst of his presidency, although higher than some other recent presidents at the same point in their administrations.

The latest survey, conducted Monday through Wednesday of last week, showed 60 percent of respondents approved of the way Bush was handling his job, down from the 76 percent recorded in a similar Times-CBS poll taken in August just after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The number of those who disapproved increased 15 percentage points from August to 30 percent, the highest disapproval rating of the Bush presidency thus far, the Times reported.

There was a dramatic drop in approval of Bush among citizens 65 and over, whose general economic fears were aggravated by proposals to narrow the federal budget deficit by raising taxes and Medicare premiums, the Times said.

Approval of Bush's handling of foreign policy was down 9 points from a 72 percent rating in August, the poll showed. The number of those who disapproved increased 7 percentage points from 19 percent in August.

Approval of Bush's handling of the Iraq crisis declined from 75 percent just after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait to 57 percent.

Approval of Bush's dealings with the economy was down 9 points in October from August's 45 percent, the newspaper said. Disapproval was up 8 percentage points from 44 percent in August.

Approval of the president's handling of the federal budget deficit slipped only 1 percentage point from the 30 percent recorded in August. His disapproval rating, however, climbed 7 percentage points from August's 51 percent ranking.

The Times said the figures in the survey were considered highly likely to represent the sentiments of the nation's adult population to within 3 percentage points.

BEIJING (OCT. 14) UPI - Authorities detained and deported three Japanese students for floating down the Yangtze river in a rubber dinghy without a permit, an official report said.

The Japanese were identified as Nobuyasu Kawada, Hironori Itoh and Hidemaro Sasaki, all male university students. The trio arrived in China in early August on tourist visas, carrying a Japanese-made rubber dinghy, according to a report in the latest issue of the bi-weekly Public Security News.

After a brief jaunt to the southwest city of Kunming and the city of Chengdu, the capital of central Sichuan province, the young adventurers took to the water from Sichuan's Yibin city on Aug. 21.

The Japanese floated east for two weeks and more than 370 miles along the 2,432-mile Yangtze River, or Chang Jiang, before they were detected.

Authorities at the river city of Yichang in central Hubei province responded to the youths' Sept. 4 request to pass through floodgates by notifying local public security authorities.

Police promptly detained the Japanese on Sept. 5 for floating down the Yangtze without a permit. They were deported back to Japan the next day from Shanghai.

''The three Japanese youths were sincere and admitted their mistake. Their floating activities were stopped and the dinghy was shipped out of the country through Shanghai,'' the report said.

Chinese authorities have deported enthusiastic Japanese trekkers on previous occasions. Earlier this year, three Japanese were expelled from China for poaching and smuggling rare butterflies from a southern wildlife preserve.

SYDNEY, Australia (OCT. 14) UPI - Australia's richest man, media magnate Kerry Packer, has pledged the equivalent of $2 million to the ambulance service that saved his life last week, officials said Sunday.

Packer will pay half the cost of equipping all ambulances in New South Wales state with heart revival machines similar to the one that restarted his heart after he collapsed and his heart stopped beating while playing polo.

Packer telephoned the offer to New South Wales Premier Nick Greiner from his hospital bed in Sydney's St. Vincent's hospital, where doctors said he was making a ''remarkable recovery.'' Greiner quickly agreed to Packer's proposal.

As a result, all the state's general purpose ambulances will be outfitted with Heartstart 300 machines at an estimated cost of around $4 million

''He rang me in his inimitable way and said, 'I will make you a deal. I will go you halves,''' the premier said Sunday. ''I could hardly refuse.''

Ambulance Superintendent Val McMahon said only 300 of the state's 900 ambulances are presently equipped with the machines because of the cost involved. He estimated Packer's gesture would save 1,000 lives a year.

Packer, whose wealth was estimated by Australian Business Review Weekly last month to be the equivalent of $1.67 billion, owns Australian Consolidated Press, which publishes a number of leading national magazines, as well as a string of suburban weekly newspapers.

He also recently bought a controlling interest in Australia's most successful national television network, the Nine Network, founded by his father, the late Sir Frank Packer.

BERLIN (OCT. 14) UPI - Voters cast ballots Sunday in elections in the southern state of Bavaria and in the five states formed by the territory of what was, until this month, East Germany.

The conservative Christian Democratic Union is expected to win in at least four of the states, giving Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who is also CDU chairman, a further electoral boost in advance of Dec. 2 national elections.

Only a few voters were gathered at polling stations when they opened at 8 a.m. Twenty million Germans were eligible to vote in Sunday's elections. The five East German states were merged into the 11 West German states on Oct. 3.

Recent polls show that Kohl and the CDU continue to ride on a wave of pupularity generated by the chancellor's role in bringing about German unification.

A survey by the Allensbach Institute showed the CDU leading strongly in Saxony Saxony-Anhhalt and Thueringia and holding a small lead in the Baltic coast state of Mecklenburg-Vorpommern.

The survey showed the Social Democratic Party - the main opposition party - leading only in Brandenburg.

Berliners were not a part of Sunday's elections. The city-state will hold its election in conjunction with the nationwide vote in December.

Election campaigns in the former East German states were low-key and most rallies were thinly attended. This was attributed in part to ''voter fatigue'' as East Germans had already voted this year in national and local elections.

In the March 18 national elections, which ended 40 years of Communist rule, the CDU took 41 percent of the vote and the SPD 22. The Communists - now renamed the Party of Democratic Socialism - got 16 percent.

Campaigning for Sunday's voting was much more heated in the southern state of Bavaria and observers believe the mudslinging between rival parties there set the pace and the mood for the national campaign.

CDU's arch-conservative sister party, the Christian Social Union, is nearly certain to win in Bavaria, but is also likely to register a drop in the support it gained under the leadership of charismatic Bavarian Prime Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, who died in 1988.

Although a change of government is unlikely, the CSU, which has ruled Bavaria for the last 33 years, may lose its absolute majority, while the SPD could make strong gains.

After the elections, each state parliament will assemble and elect an administration headed by a prime minister.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (OCT. 14) UPI - Lebanese and Syrian troops for a second day Sunday surrounded the French Embassy in Christian east Beirut, where defeated mutinous Gen. Michel Aoun awaited a government decision on his request to leave for exile in France.

Aoun ordered his troops to surrender Saturday after Syrian-backed Lebanese forces launched an offensive intended to crush his two-year mutiny against the government. He was granted political asylum by France later Saturday.

Official sources said the pro-Syrian government of President Elias Hrawi was reluctant to allow Aoun to flee the country.

Aoun refused last year to accede to an Arab-brokered Christian-Moslem accord setting up a new government in an effort to end Lebanon's 15-year civil war. He had also refused to concede he was no longer prime minister in a transitional government appointed by President Amin Gemayel Sept. 22, 1988.

Aoun's forces had been fighting the presence of Syrian troops in Lebanon and, since January, had also been engaged in a power struggle with a rival Christian militia along a demarcation line splitting east Beirut.

In an emergency session Saturday, the Cabinet decided to put Aoun's case in the hands of the justice minister, Edmond Rizk, authorizing him to take action according to the Lebanese and international law.

A government source, who requested anonymity, said Christian ministers had demanded that Aoun face trial for crimes he allegedly committed in his opposition to the government.

Moslem ministers, he said, suggested that Aoun be allowed to leave for France on condition he refrains from engaging in any political activity and gives up $75 million to the government, not just the $15 million worth of government funds proposed earlier.

The source said the $15 million was the amount of money Aoun admitted he had in French banks. But his holdings also include $50 million of state money he seized and transferred to Paris, and $10 million transferred to him by the Lebanese embassies in Washington and Paris, the source said.

French Ambassador Rene Ala met Hrawi early Sunday to discuss Aoun, officials said. Ala refused to comment.

Aoun surrendered to Lebanese army commander Emile Lahoud hours after Syrian and Lebanese troops launched a large-scale air and ground offensive against his positions early Saturday.

The defeated general fled to the French Embassy in the Christian district of Hazmiyeh after his heaquarters in the presidential palace of Baabda came under heavy shelling.

There was no official word on casualties in the dawn-to-noon operation. Hospital sources said 45 people were killed and 250 wounded, but security sources put the toll as 150 killed and 400 wounded.

Most of the casualties, according to the sources, were among Syrian troops and soldiers loyal to Aoun. The Lebanese army command said only three of its regulars were killed in the offensive.

KATMANDU, Nepal (OCT. 14) UPI - A Korean member of a joint Japanese-Korean expedition slipped and fell to his death while attepting to climb Mount Everest, the world's highest peak, authorities reported Sunday.

The Ministry of Tourism, quoting base camp reports, said Sang Hun Ham, 27, of Ulsan, South Korea, was taking photographs near the south summit of Everest on Oct. 7 at the 28,540-foot level when he slipped and fell to his death.

The 14-member Japanese-Korean expedition had set up its fourth camp at about 26,250 feet in preparation for an assault on the 29,029-foot summit, the highest point on earth.

The leader of the Korean group, Jong Beak Roh, 41, reported the casualty to the Tourism Ministry, which regulates mountain climbing in Nepal.

Three Koreans and two Sherpa guides from the group successfully scaled the peak Oct. 6.

The death was the fourth of the current autumn climbing season. Earlier, three Soviet climbers died in falls on another peak, 26,758- foot Manaslu.

The Tourism Ministry also reported that a seven-member American expedition Friday abandoned its climb of 26,040-foot Annapurna II because of ''strong winds and extremely cold conditions.''

The team, led by Steven Brimmer, 41, a studio executive from Malibu, Calif., left its base camp for Katmandu en route home.

SEOUL (OCT. 14) UPI - The prime ministers of South and North Korea will hold a second round of talks this week in Pyongyang, the northern capital, hoping to improve relations and work toward an end to the 45-year division of the Korean peninsula.

A seven-member Seoul delegation led by Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon is scheduled to cross into North Korea Tuesday morning through the truce village of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul. About 33 support personnel and a 50-member press corps will accompany the delegates.

Kang will meet with his North Korean counterpart Yon Hyong-muk Wednesday morning in the first session of their second round of talks. They will meet once again Thursday, according to an officially agreed schedule. Kang will return home on Friday.

The Pyongyang meeting follows the first round of their unprecedented talks, held in Seoul Sept. 4-7. The Seoul meeting produced no tangible agreement and confirmed that the two Koreas differ greatly over how to achieve rapprochement.

Yet both sides said the Seoul round was useful, providing at least an opportunity to get to know each other better, spokesmen said at the close of the Seoul talks.

In Seoul, the South proposed an eight-point basic agreement for improved inter-Korean relations, under which the two Koreas would recognize and respect each other's political and social system.

The draft agreement also offered that the two sides cease all slander and vilification against each other, do not interfere in each other's internal affairs, do not seek to topple each other, and allow free travel and many-sided exchanges and cooperation between the South and the North.

North Korea had three demands which it said must be met for the talks to progress. It asked that the South stop the Team Spirit military exercises conducted annually with the United States, give up efforts to join the United Nations alone, and free those jailed for unauthorized visits to North Korea.

Seoul countered by saying that Team Spirit exercises were of a defensive nature and cannot be stopped, and that simultaneous but separate U.N. membership for the two Koreas is desirable pending reunification.

It also said the North Korean demand concerning prisoners in the South was tantamout to interference in internal affairs. Foreign news reports have recently quoted North Korean President Kim Il-sung as renewing the demand, which may block progress at the Pyongyang talks.

Kang said at a session with reporters that there is no basic change in Seoul's stand. But government sources have indicated that Seoul will present a detailed proposal for economic exchanges during the second round of talks.

Since the Seoul talks, there has been a major change in North Korea's foreign policy. At a meeting with a Japanese delegation composed of members of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party and the opposition Socialist Party, Kim Il-sung proposed negotiations for rapprochement between North Korea and Japan.

Seoul observers said Kim's move may have been prompted by the normalization of relation between the Soviet Union and South Korea effective Sept. 30.

Seoul officials believed North Korea will have to keep dialogue with the South going while pushing efforts for normalized relations with Japan. Strained inter-Korea reations will not help North Korean efforts to come to terms with Japan, they said.

South and North Korea were divided in August 1945 at the end of World War II.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Torrents of rain continued to pound New England early Sunday, sending streams over their banks and pouring floodwaters onto roadways in parts of Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

''The roads are a mess,'' said Portsmouth, N.H., police Sgt. Fred Rubino. ''Some of the roads are just completely closed down. A lot of wash outs. ... You've really got to slow down and keep aware of where you're heading.''

Tropical Storm Lili, downgraded from a hurricane Saturday, continued to swing toward the northeast in the Atlantic Ocean Sunday, with maximum sustained winds of only about 50 mph and slightly stronger gusts.

The National Weather Service narrowed its warning that small craft remain in port to an area from Ocean City, Md., to Eastport, Maine, and said there was little remaining likelihood that the storm would affect the U.S. coast.

Lili at 6 a.m. EDT was centered 195 miles south-southeast of the Massachusetts island of Nantucket and was moving to the northeast at 21 mph. Itwas expected to weaken and lose its tropical characteristics as it passes southeastern Newfoundland Monday evening, Canadian weather forecasters said.

The remnants of Tropical Storm Marco, which caused flooding problems as they worked their way up the Atlantic Coast after killing at least nine people late last week in Florida and Georgia, have broken up into so many minor storms they are no longer trackable as a group, the NWS said.

Showers and thunderstorms dumped as much as 5 inches of rain on parts of New England within five hours late Saturday and early Sunday, pouring water onto flooded roadways and into bloated streams at the rate of 2 inches or more an hour in some places, the NWS said.

Extensive roadway flooding, made worse by storm drains clogged with autumn leaves, was reported in the Boston area and elsewhere in eastern Massachusetts. Portsmouth, N.H., police reported flooding on low spots along Route 1 and the Route 1 bypass.

Flood warnings were also posted in much of Connecticut and along the Pemigewasset River in New Hampshire.

Elsewhere, blinding early morning fog socked in much of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky and the Cumberland Plateau region of Tennessee, the NWS said.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (OCT. 14) UPI - A collision between an open truck filled with workers and a commuter mini-bus taxi killed 24 people and injured more than 30, state-run radio reported Sunday.

The vehicles collided Saturday on a narrow bridge at Phiphidi in the northern nominally independent Venda tribal territory, tipping the truck with more than 60 people aboard into the Mutshindudi River, the South African Broadcasting Corp. reported.

It said 20 people died at the scene and the others in the nearby Tshilidzini Hospital.

A hospital spokesman was quoted as saying the 30-plus injured people were in stable condition.

CAIRO, Egypt (OCT. 14) UPI - The motorcycle-riding gunmen who killed Egypt's speaker of Parliament in a hail of machine gunfire last week are probably non-Egyptian professional assassins who are still somewhere in the greater Cairo area, security sources said Sunday.

Police arrested an undisclosed number of suspects Saturday who tried to leave Egypt without passports. But the five known gunmen are believed to be still at large and Egyptian police released composite sketches of them based on descriptions by witnesses.

Four men riding two motorcycles blazed away with machine guns at Speaker Rifaat el-Mahgoub's car and an escort police car early Friday in front of a luxury hotel along the Nile, killing the No.2 government official, four policemen and a driver.

Witnesses say at least one other armed man stood at the nearby entrance ramp of a bridge and covered for the motorcyclists.

Security sources said the assassination looked to be a well-planned terrorist attack but said they could not definately link the slaying to Iraq.

Egypt earlier accused Iraq of planning to assassinate government leaders in an attempt to destabilize Egypt for backing United States in the Persian Gulf crisis that erupted Aug. 2 when Iraq invaded Kuwait.

The composite sketches of the five men, displayed prominently on the front pages of Egypt's leading newspapers, were of Arab men in their 20s.

Security sources said the gunmen ''did not leave the greater Cairo area and the forensic laboratory's conclusion from the investigation is that the culprits were professional assassins.''

Security around Egyptian public figures has been tightened as police hunt for the killers.

The assassination also led to a crackdown on Islamic fundamentalists and sources said a number of them have been arrested since the killings.

It was earlier speculated that Mahgoud was killed by fundamentalists because he was a tough opponent of the fundamentalists in the Egyptian Parliament, but Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said Saturday the investigation by the Interior Ministry ''ruled out that any radical group in Egypt was behind the incident because of the style in which the crime was conducted and the speedy way it was carried out, and because the culprits used machine guns skillfully.''

Egyptian newspapers said Mahgoub's second in command, Dr. Moustafa Kamal Helmi will take over as head of the People's Assembly, or Parliament, until a new assembly is elected.

Mahgoub was assassinated the day after Egyptians voted overwhelmingly in a referendum for President Hosni Mubarak's plan to dissolve the assembly and hold new elections in two months.

Mahgoub was buried with full honors Saturday at Rabah Al Adwia cemetery in the Cairo suburb of Nasr, or Victory City, with Mubarak leading the procession of mourners.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (OCT. 14) UPI - OPEC Secretary-General Subroto appealed Sunday for cooperation between oil producers and importers over whether Western countries should begin releasing their emergency oil stocks.

Some members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries want the industrialized nations to use their oil reserves to ease the pressure on oil markets strained by the Persian Gulf crisis.

But the industrialized nations, led by the United States, continue to hold most of their stocks on grounds they may need the reserves later to protect against real shortages.

Subroto, who once was Indonesia's mines and energy minister, said he has taken no position but hoped it could be resolved through cooperation and understanding on both sides.

OPEC agreed in August to allow its members to raise production to compensate for the Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil lost to the world market by the United Nations sanctions imposed on Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasio of Kuwait.

Subroto told the official news agency Antara he estimated the difference between demand and supply on the world oil market in the fourth quarter of 1990 at 1.5 million to 1.8 million barrels per day.

''With such a total difference, oil consumers believe it is not yet necessary for them to release their oil reserves,'' particularly because they are concerned war may break out in the region, Subroto told Antara.

World oil prices shot past $40 a barrel this week, the highest in 10 years, largely because of the fear of war in the gulf region.

Subroto was in Jakarta to attend the three-day International Energy Conference which is due to begin Tuesday.

Others planning to attend include oil ministers Ginandjar Kartasamita of Indonesia, Jibril Aminu of Nigeria, Celestino Armas of Venezuela, and OPEC's president, Sadek Boussena of Algeria.

BONN, Germany (OCT. 14) UPI - German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble remained in serious but not critical condition Sunday, recovering from gunshot wounds inflicted by an apparently deranged drug addict Friday night.

Doctors said Schaeuble was taken off the life support system Sunday morning after a ''satisfactory'' recovery from a five-hour operation at the Freiburg hospital in southern Germany.

A hospital official described the minister's condition as ''serious, but not critical.''

Schaeuble was shot in the head and chest at close range during a campaign rally in southern Germany Friday night. A third shot wounded a security officer who threw himself in front of Schaeuble to shield the minister.

Police arrested the gunman and identified him as Dieter Kaufmann, a drug addict with a police record who had been treated for schizophrenia.

The authorities said they did not suspect an extremist attack, although Schaueble was believed to be at the top of a hit list drawn up by the ultra left-wing Red Army Faction.

As interior minister, Schaeuble is responsible for anti-terrorism operations and was a key negotiator in German unification. The 48-year- old minister is one of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's top aides.

He was shot as he prepared to leave a meeting of the Christian Democratic Union in a restaurant in Oppenau.

Kaufmann fired a small-caliber gun at Schaeuble from about 24 inches, police said. Security guards and bystanders pushed him to the floor and police arrested the man.

Kaufmann admitted planning the attack for six months and told police he felt ''persecuted by the state'' and claimed that he was ''psychologically tortured '' for which he blamed Schaeuble.

BANGKOK, Thailand (OCT. 14) UPI - Veteran Vietnamese communist leader Le Duc Tho will be given a state memorial service and funeral Wednesday in honor of his ''great contributions to the revolutionary cause,'' it was announced Sunday.

''Comrade Le Duc Tho' s death is a great loss for our party and people,'' said the announcement released jointly by the Communist Party and the government.

Tho, the tough negotiator who worked out the peace agreement that ended the Vietnam War and refused to share the Nobel Peace Prize with U.S. negotiator Henry Kissinger, was a chief strategist for the communist victory and in its subsequent economic decline.

''Having worked for revolution for 64 consecutive years, he was an outstanding pupil of President Ho Chi Minh and devoted great contributions to the revolutionary cause,'' the official communique said.

Tho died at 1:30 a.m. Saturday, only three days after his 79th birthday, it said.

The announcement said Tho's remains will lie in state in the Ba Dinh conference hall in Hanoi. There will be a public ceremony in his honor on Tuesday and a memorial service and state funeral Wednesday at Mai Dich cemetary in Hanoi, it said.

The ceremonies will be overseen by a 21-member state funeral committee headed by Communist Party General Secretary Nguyen Van Linh, President Vo Chi Cong and Prime Minister Do Muoi, all aging revolutionaries of Tho' s generation.

The official announcement called on ''our entire party, people, and armed forces to turn this sad moment into a strength by making efforts to carry out the renovation undertaking in accordance with the Sixth Party Congress Resolution.''

Ironically, it was at that Sixth Party Congress in December 1986 that Tho was ousted from the party politburo by a reform group led by Linh. Tho was dropped from the party leadership but made a special advisor.

The communique said Tho died of ''a serious illness'' at Army Hospital 108, but gave no further details.

A Vietnamese official contacted by telephone said Tho died of cancer. Earlier this year he sought treatment at a Paris hospital for throat cancer.

Shortly before his death Tho was awarded the Gold Star - Vietnam' s highest civilian award - for his long service to the party.

He was, however, best known for an award he refused to accept - the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize.

Tho told United Press International in an interview later he would have accepted the award if it had been granted to him alone, but not as a joint award with Kissinger because he felt that put the victims and the aggressors on the same level.

Tho was also a key political strategist behind the 1968 Tet offensive that was a military failure but did much to undercut American support for the war.

He also advocated the 1978 invasion of Cambodia and helped oversee the setting up of a pro-Vietnamese government there.

ATLANTA (OCT. 14) UPI - The abortion rate for unmarried women and teenagers is dropping, the federal Centers for Disease Control reports, but the proportion of black and women minorities going to a legal clinic is increasing.

The proportion of women obtaining an abortion in their state of residence also is increasing, from 89 percent in 1975 to 93 percent in 1983. It has remained at approximately 92 percent since 1984, the CDC reported.

These and other findings are outlined in the CDC's latest abortion surveillance summary that includes the years 1986 and 1987, the latest time period for which figures were compiled. The CDC compared the abortion statistics for those years with the numbers and percentages it collected between 1972-1985. The federal health agency first began it abortion surveillance in 1969.

According to the CDC, 1,353,671 American women obtained legal abortions in 1987, a 2 percent increase over the 1,328,112 reported to the agency in 1986.

The national abortion rate decreased from 24 abortions per 1,000 women ages 15-44 in 1985 to 23 per 1,000 in 1986 and increased again to 24 per 1,000 in 1987.

The CDC admitted, however, that its figures may be on the low side.

''The number of legal abortions reported to the CDC in 1986 and 1987 were probably lower than the number actually performed,'' it said in its ''Abortion Surveillance, 1986-1987.''

It noted that CDC numbers are obtained from central health agencies whose totals are often lower than those collected by direct surveys of abortion providers.

''For example, in 1987, the total number of abortions reported by CDC was approximately 13 percent lower than that reported by the Alan Guttmacher Institute, a private organization that obtains information directly from abortion providers.''

The CDC surveillance took note of a shift in the ages of women getting abortions. It said that in 1972 the women obtaining abortions were almost evenly distributed among three age groups - under 19, 20-24, and over 25 years of age.

''Between 1972 and 1987, the proportion of abortions obtained by teenagers decreased steadily from 33 percent to 26 percent. Upward shifts in the age of women in the population may account for the continuing greater proportion in 1986 and 1987, of abortions gotten by women over 20 years of age.''

Also, from 1972-1985 the proportion of women getting abortions who were unmarried increased steadily from 70 percent to 81 percent. But in 1986 the proportion of unmarried women decreased to 73 percent and further declined in 1987 to 70 percent.

The percentage of black women and women of other minority races increased from 23 percent in 1972 to 32 percent in 1987.

The CDC also said that in 1986 and 1987 the trend continued for a smaller proportion of women to obtain abortions for the first time - 87 percent of women in 1974 and 55 percent of women in 1987 had had no previous abortions.

There was an increase, in this 13-year period, however, in the number of women who had previously had one or more abortions.

''These increases probably reflect the ongoing availability of abortions, the increasing number of women at risk of having a repeat abortion, and the fact that women who have had an abortion are more likely to have another,'' the report said.

The proportion of black and other minority women under 15 years of age having abortions was approximately twice that of white women in this age group, it said.

In 1986 and 1987, as in previous years, the largest number of abortions were performed in California, New York City and Texas, the federal agency reported. The smallest numbers were performed in Wyoming, Alaska and South Dakota.

MOSCOW (OCT. 14) UPI - Worshipers crowded into famed St. Basil's Cathedral Sunday to celebrate the first religious service in Red Squqre in 70 years.

The multicolored, onion-domed St. Basil's, even more of a symbol of Russia than the Kremlin, had been empty of religious congregations since 1918 when it was made into a historical museum.

But in the new religious freedom of perestroika, authorities consented to allow Russian Orthodox believers to hold services periodically in the 16th century cathdedral.

Worshippers Saturday night crowded into the dazzling landmark while others stood outside in cobble-stoned Red Square.

Then Sunday morning as bells chimed, Patriarch Aleksii II, the head of the Russian Orthodox Church, led a procession of Moscow clergy around the church right in Red Square.

Inside, the patriarch then celebrated the Orthodox holiday of Intercession marking a vision by believers of the Virgin Mary who spread her cover over the Christians fighting a battle to save Constantinople in the 10th century.

Called St. Basil's because one of its side altars contains the relics of the saint, the shrine is also known as the Intercession Cathedral.

St. Basil's was ordered built in 1555 by Czar Ivan the Terrible, who was so dazzled by structure that legend says the autocrat had the eyes of the two architects, Barma and Postnik, gouged out lest they produce anything more majestic.

Altered and burned down many times, St. Basil's has had a dramatic history. Napoleon, who invaded Moscow in 1812, ordered the cathedral burned down but the plans were not carried out. Instead Muscovites burned down their entire city to force Napoleon from the capital.

On taking power in November 1917, the Communists closed thousands of churches and eventually converted St. Basil's into a state historical museum.

Rumors circulated in the late 1940s that dictator Josef Stalin was going to dynamite the church in the same way that he razed Christ the Savior Cathedral, destroying what was Moscow's second most beautiful shrine. Today it is the site of Moscow's large outdoor swimming pool.

Believers, who got wind of Stalin's plans, laid down in front of St. Basil's to prevent the dynamite charges from being set off.

A group of believers has asked the government to give back the cathedral to the church. So far secular authorities have consented to periodic religious services.

As part of the religious reawakening in the country, believers are also collecting money to rebuild the Christ the Saviour Cathedral, which was razed by Stalin.

A freedom of conscience law passed last month allows the church to set up its own schools and to engage in charity work. It also guarantees separation of church and state, and ends the state funding of atheist propaganda.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 14) UPI - White House chief of staff John Sununu, defending President Bush's standing with the public, insisted Sunday that Americans blame Congress for federal budget problems.

Sununu, appearing on the NBC News program ''Meet the Press,'' also acknowledged that some public support for the administration's Persian Gulf policy will erode. He said Bush is aware of this.

A New York Times-CBS News Poll published Sunday showed that the continuing commitment of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf region and increasing fears about the economy are taking their toll on the president's popularity.

The poll of 960 adults found economic fears at their highest level in a decade and Bush's overall job rating the worst of his presidency.

A poll by Newsweek mirrored the slide in support among Americans for the president's handling of the economy, dropping from a high of 80 percent in January to its lowest point yet of only 54 percent.

The New York Times-CBS poll found public opinion of Bush's handling of the federal budget deficit slipping only 1 percentage point from the 30 percent recorded in August. His disapproval rating, however, climbed 7 percentage points from August's 51 percent ranking.

Sununu said Americans see Congress as the one to blame for the failure to reach a budget agreement, a problem that forced a temporary shutdown of non-essential government services during Columbus Day weekend.

''We're not going by the polls, but don't misunderstand the fact that the American public does realize that it is Congress's muddling around and trying to avoid a vote right now that's creating a great deal of the difficulty,'' Sununu said.

Approval of Bush's dealings with the economy was down 9 points in October from August's 45 percent, the newspaper said. Disapproval was up 8 percentage points from 44 percent in August.

Sununu acknowledeged the odds of another government shutdown after the Oct. 19 deadline for reaching an agreement are ''probably relatively high, as that conference will not be completed. At best estimate, that conference will have difficulty being completed by midnight Friday.''

The latest poll, conducted Monday through Wednesday of last week, showed 60 percent of respondents approved of the way Bush was handling his job, down from the 76 percent recorded in a similar Times-CBS poll taken in August just after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The number of those who disapproved increased 15 percentage points from August to 30 percent, the highest disapproval rating of the Bush presidency thus far, the Times reported.

There was a dramatic drop in approval of Bush among citizens 65 and over, whose general economic fears were aggravated by proposals to narrow the federal budget deficit by raising taxes and Medicare premiums, the Times said.

Approval of Bush's handling of foreign policy was down 9 points from a 72 percent rating in August, the poll showed. The number of those who disapproved increased 7 percentage points from 19 percent in August.

Approval of Bush's handling of the Iraq crisis declined from 75 percent just after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait to 57 percent.

Regarding the gulf policy, Sununu said, ''It should be no surprise that over a period of time support for something like that does erode. I think the president's understood that all along.''

He said Bush recognizes the need for ''a constant re-establishing'' with the public of the reasons for his actions in the gulf.

The Times said the figures in the survey were considered highly likely to represent the sentiments of the nation's adult population to within 3 percentage points.

The Newsweek telephone poll of 742 Americans found that 65 percent said they disapprove of the way the president is handling the federal budget deficit and 63 percent disapprove of his handling of economic conditions in the United States.

On the budget deadlock in Washington, 41 percent blamed special interest and lobbying groups for the disagreement, while the president, the Republicans, and Democrats each received about one-third of the heaviest blame.

The Newsweek Poll, conducted by The Gallup Organization Oct. 11 to 12, has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

SACRAMENTO, CA (OCT. 14) UPI - With California's race for governor an extremely tight affair, Republican Sen. Pete Wilson is taking every opportunity to stay in the state to fight Democrat Dianne Feinstein - and now he's being forced to defend even that tactic.

As the battle for control of the most coveted gubernatorial post in the nation enters its final few weeks, polls generally show the two-term GOP senator holding a slim lead, with Feinstein, the former San Francisco mayor, in certain striking distance.

For example, a California poll released late last week gave Wilson a 47 percent to 42 percent edge, with 7 percent undecided and 4 percent preferring some other candidate. The margin of error was plus or minus 3.2 percent.

That closeness has kept Wilson hard on the campaign trail in California and away from Washington and the problems before Congress.

He was the only senator not present earlier this month when the Senate confirmed Supreme Court Justice David Souter, and in a recent televised debate Feinstein pounced on the matter, contending Wilson had made a ''mistake'' by being absent.

Deftly defending himself, Wilson quickly replied: ''Mrs. Feinstein would be delighted to have me in Washington. Then she would have the stage for herself.''

Wilson hasn't been back to Washington since Congress returned from summer recess in August. Feinstein, the former mayor of San Francisco who is striving to be the first woman elected governor of California, is making sure the voters don't forget it.

''The people elected him. He's taking a paycheck,'' Feinstein told an interviewer a few days ago. ''I've been in Washington more than he has.''

Feinstein says Wilson's absence from his job as senator indicates how he might perform as governor.

''If you don't do your job, it's an indication you're not going to do your future job, either. When people elect an official, they expect that official to do their job, to be there,'' she said.

Wilson responds by saying he won't play into Feinstein's hands and will stay in California unless his vote is needed to resolve the budget crisis. Curiously, it was Wilson who, in 1985, was taken by ambulance from a hospital to the Senate to cast a critical budget vote.

He stresses that his attendance record is a ''phony issue'' because he has effectively represented California's interests from the campaign trail by making telephone calls to the White House and key Republicans.

But Feinstein keeps on throwing punches and even offered to suspend campaign fund-raisers and public appearances if Wilson returned to Washington.

She has even had some help from an ally, Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women, who says if Wilson is really in favor of abortion rights, he would have made a point of voting against Souter, who NOW suspects would vote to further restrict abortion.

Yard advised Feinstein to ''just push that right down his throat.''

There are some signs that the tactic may be getting under Wilson's skin.

As the campaign entered its final month before the Nov. 6 election, both candidates - 57-year-old moderates with many similar positions - have been trying to convince voters they are quite different.

Feinstein, tall, elegant, and possessing ''star'' quality, says she is the candidate of change - totally apart from the bland Republican governor who is leaving office, George Deukmejian, and the lawyerly pin- striped Wilson.

Wilson says his 24-year record in elected office on all three levels of government - local, state and federal - is proof of performance.

Feinstein, he says, offers only promises.

CAIRO, Egypt (OCT. 14) UPI - British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd leveled some of the toughest language yet at Saddam Hussein Sunday, saying the Iraqi president had the choice of withdrawing from Kuwait voluntarily or ''at the point of a gun.''

Hurd, in Cairo on a weeklong tour of the Middle East that will take him to Israel, said at a news conference that Western countries were paying a high price to counter Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, but that the costly military buildup in the Persian Gulf was a necessity.

''I believe that one of the peaceful pressures needed is the growing certainty in Saddam Hussein's mind that the military option exists,'' he said. ''I don't think we're bluffing on that one.''

He said the deployment of 6,000 British troops and a fleet of warships to the gulf had cost Britain, in per capita dollars, more than any other Western country involved in the military buildup, other than the United States.

The British foreign secretary met Saturday with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, one of the staunchest supporters of Western-led efforts in the gulf.

Hurd said the two only discussed the gulf, and not the recent slayings of 20 Palestinians in Jerusalem at the hands of Israeli forces.

He sidestepped questions on the massacre, saying he wanted to first hear the Israeli side of the story, and he repeated his rejection that the gulf crisis is linked to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Saddam has attempted to tie his invasion of Kuwait with Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza strip in a so-far unsuccessful attempt to garner support in the Arab world.

He said he doubted a major initiative on the Palestinian problem could be taken ''when the Middle East is so disturbed and divided over the Iraqi aggression against Kuwait.''

Hurd, whom diplomats said earlier had taken a softer line on the gulf crisis than that taken by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, had some harsh words for Saddam.

''He will withdraw (from Kuwait), he has no choice,'' Hurd said. ''His choice is whether he will do it by his own will or by the point of a gun.''

Hurd left later Sunday for upper Egypt and was expected to travel to Israel Monday.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (OCT. 14) UPI - Ethiopian government troops have won a series of convincing victories against northern rebels in recent weeks, President Mengistu Haile Mariam said in remarks reported Sunday by The Ethiopian Herald.

''The enemy was dealt a crushing blow by by the revolutionary armed forces and was forced to flee in disarray and humiliation,'' Mengistu told the newspaper, confirming reports that government troops and planes were inflicting heavy casualties on Eritrean rebels.

The Eritrean People's Liberation Front has fought a fierce 29-year war aimed at winning back independence for coastal Eritrea, which was self-governed under an Ethiopian federation from 1952 to 1962.

The rebels made significant gains in February when they captured the vital Red Sea port of Massawa, 470 miles north of Addis Ababa, cutting off sea and road supplies to about 300,000 government soldiers 40 miles inland at Asmara.

Western diplomats who visited the area earlier this year said fighting and casualties had not been seen on such a scale since World War I. Hundreds of thousands are thought to have died in all-out, heavily mechanized battles.

Massawa is the only port in northern Ethiopia, and with it rebels held the key to feeding about 4-1/2 million people threatened with famine this year in Ethiopia this year.

Government troops, who still control the road out of Massawa, launched a major offensive in August to try to dislodge the EPLF.

Mengistu said the rebels tried to overstretch their armies by deploying soldiers on multiple fronts, in collusion with the country's other rebel force the Tigray People's Liberation Front, a hardline Marxist organization from central Ethiopia.

But the tactic failed, Mengistu told the Herald, the country's English language daily.

An EPLF spokesman said last week that government claims of victories were false.

LAHORE, Pakistan (OCT. 14) UPI - President Ghulam Ishaq Khan acted legally last August when he sacked Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto and her cabinet and dissolved the National Assembly, Pakistan's high court ruled Sunday.

''The presidential order dissolving the National Assembly and directing that the prime minister and the cabinet shall cease to hold office forthwith was validly passed,'' the court said in its ruling from the northeastern city of Lahore.

Ishaq Khan dismissed Bhutto's 20-month-old administration Aug. 6 on grounds of corruption, nepotism and of failing to control law and order. He appaointed opposition leader Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi as interim prime minister until elections Oct. 24.

Bhutto's Pakistan Peoples Party challenged the order as unconstitutional in the high courts in Lahore and in the souhern city of Karachi. The Karachi court has not announced its decision.

''We find that the president was justified in forming the opinion that the government of the federation could not be carried on in accordance with the provisions of the constitution and that an appeal to the electorate was necessary,'' the Lahore court said.

The PPP is expected to appeal the decision in the supreme court but the ruling is a setback to her hopes of returning to power in next week's elections.

Bhutto already faces charges of official misconduct before special disqualification courts that were set up by Ishaq Khan in what many believe was an attempt to bar her from the elections.

Bhutto denies the charges but if found guilty could be barred from politics for seven years.

Llast week, authorities arrested her husband, businessman Asif Ali Zardari, on charges of kidnapping and extortion. Zardari, a PPP candidate for the National Assembly, was remanded to custody until Oct. 24.

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (OCT. 14) UPI - Newly escaped Kuwaiti refugees said Sunday at least 50 young men have been summarily executed in front of their homes in the past week and reported the resistance claims to have downed an Iraqi plane carrying military officers.

The situation in Kuwait has worsened significantly in the past two weeks and Kuwaitis, the refugees said. In addition to organized resistanace, civilians are practicing civil disobedience to protest the Iraqi invasion, they said.

They provided varying estimates on the number of Kuwaitis left behind in the country - ranging from 200,000 to 500,000 of the roughly 750,000 Kuwaitis prior to the Aug. 2 invasion.

Ismael Al-Shatti, an assistant professor at a technical school and a magazine publisher, told reporters Iraqi troops executed young men with a shot to the head in front of horrified relatives.

His voice breaking with emotion, he told of one case in which a young man was forced to kneel before his parents and wife, his mouth forced open and a pistol shot fired through his head.

He said he knew of the incidents because he was ''among the ones who buried'' the 50 victims.

He also said Iraqi troops are beating old men, women and children, and raping women - particularly those who are non-Kuwaiti. There is a large concentration of residents of Third World nations hired to help Kuwait operate its infrastrucature and hold service jobs.

Meanwhile, a woman who escaped several days ago and identified herself only as Fatima, said friends in the resistance reported having apparently downed a civilian Iraqi plane with a Stinger missile. No date was given for the incident.

The Stinger is a shoulder-launched heat-seeking missile built by the United States.

She said the missile was fired by two boys from near the top of a building adjacent to the Kuwait City airport and it struck the plane's engine.

The plane, she said, was filled with ''all military of high-ranking positions'' and it apparently crashed into the Persian Gulf because it did not land at Baasra.

The situation in Kuwait, she said, is ''a jungle and chaos. It's frightening. It's scary. You have to look behind you when you say anything.''

Shatti said that after resistance actions in urban areas started bringing punishment of civilians by the Iraqis, the resistance started concentrating its efforts outside urban areas.

He described how the Iraqis beat the father in a family after finding on the wall a prayer typically uttered by those undergoing tribulations. When an 18-month-old child grabbed the soldier's leg and started striking out at the soldier, he said, the boy was kicked.

Shatti also estimated that the number of Kuwaitis taken away by Iraqi troops is about 5,000.

As an example of the civil disobedience Kuwaitis are practicing, he said, many refuse to register their cars for Iraqi plates because to do so would make them an Iraqi citizen and subject to military service. Many caught driving on Kuwaiti plates simply abandon the car, he said.

KHARTOUM, Sudan (OCT. 14) UPI - Tens of thousands of Sudanese marched through the streets of Khartoum Sunday to protest Israeli shootings of Palestinians and the Western military build-up in the Persian Gulf.

''Down, down, USA, down, down, CIA,'' they chanted. ''To hell with American Arabs,'' ''Revenge for the martyrs,'' ''Death to Israel and America.''

The demonstrators, in a 2-mile procession, carried banners urging Iraq to launch a chemical weapons strike on Israel in the wake of the shooting last Monday of 20 Palestinians by Israeli security forces in east Jerusalem.

The rally, organized by an extremist Sudanese government-sponsored group calling itself the Popular Commission for Support of the Arab, Islamic and African Peoples, marched on the U.S. Embassy in Khartoum but was turned aside by riot police and gathered in the blazing heat in a city center park instead.

Speakers addressing the throng called for immediate ''Jihad,'' or Holy War against Israel and the United States, the former for its policies towards the Palestinian people and the latter for supporting Israel and opposing Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's annexation of Kuwait.

LONDON (OCT. 14) UPI - Computer hackers are trying to blackmail five British banks by demanding substantial sums of money in return for information on how the high-tech security systems were penetrated, a published report said Sunday.

Since May, the unknown computer enthusiasts have gained access to the banks' central data systems and hatched fears they could cause chaos by planting false information or damaging computer programs, the Independent newspaper said.

The newspaper did not identify the banks, but said all either denied they were victims or refused to comment. None of them has paid any money.

The break-ins may be the largest and most sophisticated ever against British banks and some of the hackers are in contact with each other, but they are believed to be operating separately, the newspaper said.

The hackers have demanded money to disclose how they foiled the elaborate security systems meant to safeguard the computer data, the newspaper said.

David Price, managing director of NetworkSecurity Management, a firm of private investigators, told the newspaper he was investigating computer security breaches at five banks. The banks have not called in the police because of fear of frightening customers.

''They could go back in and sabotage the systems, but they are not threatening to do so,'' Price said. ''I am confident of sucess in catching the hackers,'' he said.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 14) UPI - The Israeli Cabinet voted Sunday not to cooperate with a U.N. delegation investigating the deaths of at least 20 Palestinians killed by police during last week's riots on the Temple Mount.

Foreign Minister David Levy said that official Israeli recognition of the delegation, appointed by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, would raise questions about Israeli sovereignty over Jerusalem.

''The government rejects completely any attempt to establish that Jerusalem is occupied territory,'' he told Israel Radio. ''Jerusalem in all its parts is the sovereign capital of Israel and therefore Israel will not receive the delegation.''

Under the Cabinet's decision, which is likely to further strain ties with the United States, Israeli officials will not cooperate with or provide information to the three-member U.N. commission.

''There is no room for any involvement on the part of the United Nations in any matter relating to Jerusalem, just as the United Nations does not intervene in events, some even more severe, that occur in other countries,'' a Cabinet statement said.

Most nations, including the United States, view East Jerusalem, which comprises the Old City and the Temple Mount, as occupied territory, seized by Israel in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The Cabinet, however, rejected a proposal by Housing Minister Ariel Sharon to prevent the commission from entering Israel.

On Saturday, the U.N. Security Council unanimously approved a resolution condemning ''acts of violence'' by Israeli security forces and ordering a U.N. delegation to investigate the circumstances surrounding the Oct. 8 riots and other similar events in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

''Israeli completely rejects the U.N. resolution,'' Levy said after the Cabinet meeting, adding that the cause of the violence was ''a brutal attack of a mob of inciters and incited on praying Jews at the Western Wall,'' the holiest Jewish site.

Palestinians have charged that police fired indiscriminately at Moslem worshipers, killing at least 20 and wounding hundreds. Palestinians said thousands of Moslems had not gathered at the Islamic holy site to riot, but to ''protect'' it from Jewish fundamentalists they believed were going to lay a symbolic cornerstone for the third Jewish Temple.

Calling for an independent judicial commission of inquiry, the Israeli human rights group, B'Tselem issued a report Sunday charging that police fired randomly at Moslems as well as at ambulances and medical personnel attempting to evecuate the wounded.

''Shooting by the security forces was indiscriminate. Much shooting was done automatically from the hip, a way by which you can't possibly be very exact regarding your targets,'' Yuval Ginbar told a news conference.

The human rights group and the newspaper Ha'aretz said police and Border Police fired their rifles in the automatic mode instead of shooting single shots of live ammunition.

B'Tselem also disputed claims by Israeli authorities that the police fired in self-defense.

''If there was danger to the lives of the policemen, it was for a very short period,'' Ginbar said. ''The live shooting went on for a long time after there was no longer any danger.''

Israeli officials alleged that the riots were planned in advance to divert world attention from the Gulf crisis to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Levy told Israel Radio the Cabinet in its deliberations had considered the possible American reaction to a rejection of the U.N. mission.

''We shouldn't agree with the fact that the U.S. government made a mistake and was led by the coalition it formed against (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein,'' he said.

A government committee appointed by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir began its investigation Sunday into the Temple Mount incident. The three-man committee, which headed by a Zvi Zamir, former head of the Israeli intelligence agency Mossad, does not have the power to subpoena witnesses.

During the closed Cabinet meeting, Shamir said the commission's goal was not to find fault with the police who were doing their duty on the Temple Mount, Israel Radio reported.

The right-wing prime minister said despite their small numbers, the police had fulfilled their duty as best they could and Israelis were grateful, the radio said.

NEW YORK (OCT. 14) UPI - About 100 people stood outside the United Nations Sunday to denounce American support for an international decision to condemn Israel, and a rabbi charged the White House had begun an ''abandonment of Israel.''

Rabbi Allen Schwartz, a spokesman for the Coalition of Concern, an alliance of Manhattan synagogues that organized the event, told protesters that the U.S. vote in favor of a resolution Friday condemning Israel for last week's attacks on Palestinians was President Bush's ''first step in the abandonment of Israel.''

Protesters, wearing traditional Jewish prayershawls and blowing on rams' horns met at the Isaiah Peace Wall across from the U.N. Secretariat Building, Schwartz said.

The group then marched to the U.S. Mission, where they stood outside waving Israeli flags and listening to rabbis give speeches and offer prayers for peace, he said.

Officer Scott Bloch, a police spokesman, said the protest, which was peaceful and without incident, broke up at 1:45 p.m.

The hastily called gathering was in protest of a unanimous vote late Friday by the U.N. Security Council that condemned violence by Israeli forces in Jerusalem that resulted in the deaths of at least 20 Palestinians last week.

The vote was taken after five days of negotiations in which the Palestine Liberation Organization sought to condemn Israel in strong terms and demanded U.N. protection for Palestinians in the Israeli- occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

It was the first time the United States had voted to censure Israel since June 1982, when the Israeli army invaded Lebanon.

Rabbi Schwartz, of Congregation Chab Zedek on the Upper West Side, said, ''The Security Council vote shows the utter hypocrisy of the U.N. It berates Israel for defending peaceful worshippers at the Western Wall, Judaism's holiest site from a premeditated PLO-inspired attack to support Saddam Hussein.

''At the same time, hundreds of Lebanese have been slaughtered in recent weeks by fellow Arabs with not a whisper of protest from the U.N.,'' the rabbi continued.

SOUNDS OF SILENCE, SOUNDS OF PRETENSE: Paul Simon says there is an air of phoniness to some of his earlier works. ''They're naive and pretentious,'' he told The Washington Post. ''They're young. I'm adopting a voice that I didn't really own, an attitude that I really wouldn't have at the age of 25 or 26, some kind of world-wary alienation.'' Simon, whose new album, ''The Rhythm of the Saints,'' features a Brazilian sound, says he didn't even like ''I Am a Rock,'' one of Simon and Garfunkel's biggest hits. So why were Simon and Garfunkel so popular? ''I'm sure a large part of the audience was as pretentious as I was,'' Simon says.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Egyptian police today arrested an American and at least four other suspects in Friday's assassination of Egypt's parliament speaker, the number two government official. Security sources say all five men were arrested at Cairo airport as they tried to leave the country. One of suspects is an American of Egyptian origin and another is an Iraqi. .

15 to 20 other suspects were arrested yesterday when they tried to leave Egypt with false passports. Security sources have said the machine-gun slaying of Parliament Speaker Rifaat el-Mahgoub appeared to be a well-planned terrorist attack, but said they could NOT link it to Iraq. .

Iraq, meanwhile, is rejecting reports it was behind Mahgoub's assassination. The official Iraqi News Agency quoted its own Arab affairs editor as saying Iraq ''strongly denied the charges'' and accusing the Egyptian media of distorting facts. The unnamed editor reportedly says Egyptian security forces should look ''inside Egypt'' for the culprits.

LAS VEGAS, NV (OCT. 14) UPI - Bob Tway defeated John Cook on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday to win the $1.3 million Las Vegas Invitational Golf Championship.

The victory was worth $234,000 for Tway, who blew a three-stroke lead that allowed Cook to force the extra hole. Cook's second-place finish was good for $180,000. c

On the first playoff hole, the par-4 12th, Cook pulled his tee shot behind a tree. He appeared to win the tournament when he hit a 95-yard sand wedge shot into the cup. But the ball rolled around a couple of times and bounced back out coming to rest 15 feet away on the fringe.

Tway reached the green in two shots, recovering from a tee shot that found a bunker. He two-putted for par and captured the championship when Cook missed his 15-foot putt.

Tway and Cook each birdied the final hole to force the playoff and finished the five regulation rounds tied at 26-under-par 334. Tway had a 70 on the final round and Cook shot 67.

''It was a very difficult day,'' said Tway who won his first tournament since the 1989 Memorial. ''From the start my swing didn't feel very good. I did, however, hit some very good iron shots.''

Cook, the first-round leader, had only one bad hole Sunday, when he three-putted for a bogey.

''I can be happy and disappointed as well,'' said Cook. ''I can't remember when I played so well when it counted.''

Corey Pavin and Phil Blackmar tied for third at 23-under. Blackmar nearly made it a three-way playoff when he putted for an eagle at 18. But his shot missed by inches. Pavin recorded the day's best round with a 63.

Nolan Henke and Mark O'Meara finished tied for fifth at 22-under.

(OCT. 15) UPI -Joe Montana threw, Jerry Rice caught and Barry Word ran their way into the record books on an NFL Sunday when offense was king.

Montana threw a team-record six touchdown passes and Rice caught five to tie an NFL record to lift the unbeaten San Francisco 49ers to a 45-35 victory over the Falcons at Atlanta. Montana completed 32 of 49 passes for a career-high 476 yards to lead the 49ers to their club-record 13th consecutive victory over the past two seasons, and their NFL-record 14th straight road triumph. Rice caught a club-record 13 passes for 225 yards.

''This was obviously the best game I've had throwing to Jerry Rice,'' Montana said, who finished one TD pass short of the NFL single-game record. ''They couldn't cover Jerry and our other receivers on one-man coverage.

''They got me with a couple of blitzes, but mostly I had good protection. I had a lot of big plays today because they stayed in man- to-man most of the time.''

Rice tied Bob Shaw of the Chicago Cardinals and Kellen Winslow of San Diego with 5 TD catches in a game.

''You try not to let a game like this go to your head,'' Rice said. ''Joe was sharp and putting the ball on the money.''

At Kansas City, Mo., Word rushed for a club-record 200 yards to lift the Chiefs to a 43-24 victory over Detroit. Word overshadowned the 1989 conference rushing champions, Kansas City's Christian Okoye and Barry Sanders of Detroit.

Word, who carried 18 tiems, scored on runs of 53 yards and 1 yard. Okoye and Sanders scored two TDs apiece.

A former college star at Virginia who was jailed for selling cocaine, Word had only 24 carries this season before Sunday.

''All I wanted to do was come in and give a little spark to the offense,'' Word said. ''That's what I try to do everytime I go in there.''

-- AROUND THE NFL --

- At Houston, Warren Moon threw for 369 yards and a career-high five touchdowns, all to different receivers, lifting the Oilers to a 48-17 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals. Moon also raised his NFL career total to 20,204 yards, making him the first player to throw for more than 20,000 yards in both the NFL and Canadian Football League. He threw for 21,228 yards in six CFL seasons before coming to the Oilers in 1984.

- At Denver, Bubby Brister threw four touchdown passes, including three to tight end Eric Green, to lead the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 34- 17 victory over the Denver Broncos. Brister completed 21 of 28 passes for 353 yards. Louis Lipps caught nine passes for 141 yards and a TD for the Steelers.

- At Chicago, Jim Harbaugh threw for a career-high 248 yards and two touchdowns and ran for another, and Neal Anderson scored twice to fuel the Bears' 38-9 blowout of the Los Angeles Rams. Harbaugh, playing with a broken rib after being listed as questionable at midweek, completed 18 of 25 attempts to improve Chicago to 5-1 and 4-0 at home. The Rams fell to 1-4, for their worst start in a non-strike season since 1965.

- At Phoenix, rookie Johnny Johnson ran for 120 yards and a touchdown to lift the Cardinals to a 20-3 rout of the Dallas Cowboys. Cardinals wide receiver J.T. Smith caught six passes, giving him a club-record 485 over 13 seasons. He broke Jackie Smith's club record of 480.

- At New Orleans, Steve Walsh came off the bench to throw for 243 yards and three touchdowns in his Saints' debut, rallying them to a 25- 20 victory over the Cleveland Browns. Walsh replaced starter John Fourcade with 10:49 remaining in the second quarter and the score tied 3-3. He completed his first eight passes to wake up an offense that had sputtered behind Fourcade. Walsh hit 15 of 26 with one interception.

- At Washington, Phil Simms passed for 283 yards and two touchdowns, including a career-best 80-yarder to Stephen Baker, to lead the undefeated New York Giants to a 24-20 victory over the Redskins. The Giants, 5-0, joined San Francisco as the NFL's only unbeaten teams and jumped to their first 5-0 start since 1941.

- At Los Angeles, Jay Schroeder threw for 235 yards and three touchdowns and the Raiders extended their home winning streak to 10 games with a 24-17 victory over the Seattle Seahawks. Schroeder found Steve Smith with a 1-yard scoring throw in the first quarter and Mervyn Fernandez and Ethan Horton with 3-yard tosses in the second period. The Raiders are unbeaten in the Coliseum since Art Shell replaced Mike Shanahan as head coach Oct. 3, 1989.

- At East Rutherford, N.J, Marion Butts rushed for 121 yards and two touchdowns on 26 carries to help the San Diego Chargers to a 39-3 blowout of the New York Jets. The Chargers rolled up 412 yards of total offense and the defense registered four sacks and held the Jets to 148 yards.

At Tampa, Fla., the Tampa Bay Buccaneers won on defense when Wayne Haddix, returned one of his two interceptions 29 yards for a back- breaking touchdown in a 26-14 victory over the Green Bay Packers. Steve Christie tied a team record with four field goals for Tampa Bay.

Minnesota plays at Philadelphia Monday night.

(OCT. 14) UPI - German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's popularity remains intact. Kohl got a further boost today when his Christian Democratic Union sailed to victory in four of the five states of former East Germany. Elections were also held in Bavaria, where projections show the C-D-U's sister party, the Christian Social Union, maintained its absolute majority in the southern state.

Iraq today released four British Moslems following appeals by former pop singer Cat Stevens. The four are the first British men released since Iraq began detaining Westerners as a ''human shield'' to ward off attack. The hostages were on a pilgrimage to Islamic holy places in Iraq when Iraqi forces invaded Kuwait. They're expected to arrive in London tomorrow.

In Saudi Arabia, Kuwaitis who just escaped from their occupied homeland had horror stories to tell. They say Iraqi troops executed at least 50 young men in front of their homes in the past week. One refugee told of how one man was forced to kneel before his parents and wife with his mouth forced open and a pistol shot fired through his head.

Another setback for former Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto . Pakistan's high court ruled today that President Khan acted legally last August when he fired Bhutto and her cabinet and dissolved the National Assembly. Bhutto's 20-month-old government was accused of corruption and nepotism.

Israel's Cabinet voted unanimously today NOT to cooperate with a U-N delegation investigating the killing of at least 20 Palestinians by police on Jerusalem's Temple Mount last week. Foreign Minister David Levy says that if Israel recognizes the mission, it would raise questions about the Jewish State's sovereignty over Jerusalem.

Tens of thousands marched through the streets of Sudan's capital today, protesting the Israeli shootings of Palestinians and the Western military build-up in the Persian Gulf. Banner-waving demonstrators chanted ''Death to Israel and America'' and other slogans in a two-mile procession through Khartoum.

Government troops in Ethiopia are claiming convincing victories against northern rebels in recent weeks. President Haile Mariam Mengistu says his forces dealt ''a crushing blow'' on the rebels, who have fought a fierce 29-year war to win back independence for the coastal province of Eritrea.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Four Britons are on their way home from the Mideast. They're the first British men to be released since Iraq began detaining Westerners as ''human shields.'' A spokesman for the British Foreign Office says the four- Moslems on an Islamic pilgrimage in Iraq when Kuwait was invaded- are expected to arrive in London tomorrow. Their release follows appeals by former pop singer Cat Stevens.

Lebanese President Elias Hrawi asked France today to withdraw custody of deposed renegade General Michel Aoun and hand him over for trial. Aoun remains at the French Embassy in Beirut, one day after seeking refuge from a Syrian-backed offensive on his headquarters. In Paris, about 100 Aoun supporters occupied the Lebanese Embassy for a second day today. They say they will remain until their leader is granted political asylum in France.

The Israeli Cabinet is saying NO to the United Nations. It voted today NOT to cooperate with a U-N delegation investigating the killings of at least 20 Palestinians by Israeli police during last week's riots on the Temple Mount. The investigation was ordered by the U-N Security Council Friday after it passed a resolution condemning ''acts of violence'' by Israeli security forces.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Experts with air-sniffing equipment are searching the Excalibur and Tropicana hotel-casinos on the Las Vegas Strip. They're looking for the source of fumes that affected more than three dozen gamblers and vacationers... sending them to the hospital. A fire department spokesman says those who were overcome complained of nausea and breathing difficulties. He says the two hotels were NOT evacuated.

Forecasters say there's little chance now that Tropical Storm Lili will affect the U-S coast. At last report, Lili was about 50 miles southeast of Halifax, Nova Scotia, and moving toward the northeast at nearly 37 miles-an-hour... with top winds of 65 miles-an- hour. The Canadian government issued a heavy rain warning for eastern Nova Scotia, and might issue a high wind warning for part of Newfoundland later tonight.

There is NO confirmation of a report in an Egyptian newspaper, in which a previously unknown group... The World Front for Liberation... claims responsibility for Friday's assassination of a top Egyptian official. Under Egypt's long-standing state-of-emergency law, police have been rounding up suspects- including, sources say, an American man of Egyptian origin.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Exiled Kuwaitis met behind closed doors in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, today to discuss ways to reclaim their homeland from invading Iraqis. A senior spokesman for the two-day conference that ends today termed the talks ''frank and candid''... but declined to go into specifics. Delegates also sent thanks to the five permanent United Nations members for their support.

South Africa's 37-year-old race law segregating public facilities expires at midnight tonight. It's the first of the so-called legal pillars of apartheid that President de Klerk has promised will crumble as part of his racial reforms. Legislation passed in June by the government makes today the last day the Separate Amenities Act of 1953 is enforced. The law reserved trains, buses libraries, toilets, swimming pools and other facilities for separate races.

(OCT. 14) UPI - Las Vegas health officials suspect a backup of sewer gas into two hotel-casinos is what caused scores of tourists to complain of nausea and breathing difficulties today. More than 90 people were hospitalized.

The Iraqi News Agency quotes its Arab affairs editor as saying Baghdad denies it was behind Friday's killing of a top Egyptian official. The editor says Egyptian security forces should look ''inside Egypt'' for the culprits.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl is celebrating today's electoral victory of his Christian Democratic Union in four of the five states of former East Germany. The Social Democratic Party... the main opposition party... won in the fifth state, but did NOT get a majority.

Canadian autoworkers have voted to accept a three-year contract with General Motors of Canada. Union officials say the settlement is the ''best ever'' negotiated for G-M Canada workers. It boosts wages and lessens the impact of pending layoffs.

The National Institute of Justice says it has approved a 15-thousand- dollar grant to the University of Florida to study the psychological impact of the UNsolved killings of five college students in Gainesville in late August.

24-thousand Soviet police took part in a 24-hour dragnet this weekend meant to reinforce a promise by President Gorbachev to bring law and order to the streets of Moscow. They netted 77-hundred- nine lawbreakers... ranging from black marketeers to moonshiners.

Australia's richest man is saying ''thank you'' in a big way to the New South Wales ambulance service. Media magnate Kerry Packer is donating the equivalent of two-Million dollars to equip all of the state's ambulances with heart revival machines similar to the one that saved his life recently.

(OCT. 14) UPI - The first U-S-born musician to become music director of a major American symphony is dead. Leonard Bernstein... laureate conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra... died today in New York at the age of 72. The musician's personal physician says Bernstein died at his Manhattan home of sudden cardiac arrest caused by lung failure. Just last week, it was announced Bernstein would give up his conducting and performing at his piano because those activities were too strenuous for him.

Authorities in Las Vegas now say more than 100 tourists were taken to the hospital today after being overcome by an apparent release of sewer gas inside two hotel-casinos. Hospital officials say most of the people were treated and released. The incident forced the temporary closure of a basement recreational level of the Excalibur Hotel-Casino... and the evacuation of rooms on the 22nd floor in the Paradise Tower of the Tropicana Hotel-Casino. The two hotels are situated across the Strip from each other.

Authorities in Bangkok say a student protesting corruption in the Thai government is in critical condition after pouring gasoline over his body and setting himself ablaze today. A police official says eight other students were arrested for threatening to burn themselves, and were held for psychiatric observation. ALAMEDA, CALIF. (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - SmartCap Barrier Compound, an oxygen barrier that prevents oxygen from spoiling the flavor of beer and other bottled beverages, is now commercially available.

SmartCap will be introduced at Interbev, the International Beverage Industry Exhibition and Congress in Chicago, Oct. 29.

SmartCap barrier crowns equipped with proprietary barrier liner compounds are an active barrier which keeps oxygen from penetrating and degrading bottled beverages. Initial shipment of SmartCap Barrier Compound to U.S. brewers is anticipated in the first quarter of calendar 1991.

SmartCap barrier crowns will reduce oxygen contamination of bottled beer by more than 75 percent compared to ordinary bottle crowns over a typical three month shelf life. SmartCap barrier crowns will preserve the crisp, fresh flavor of bottled beer longer than ordinary bottle closures.

SmartCap barrier crowns act as a barrier to oxygen entering the beverage through the bottle cap, the point of a bottle's greatest susceptibility to oxygen infiltration. SmartCap Absorber Compound, currently under development will actively absorb existing oxygen trapped in the bottle and from the beverage itself in addition to blocking oxygen infiltration.

SmartCap crowns contain proprietary oxygen control compounds developed by Aquanautics Corp. and ZapatA Industries Inc. ZapatA Industries Inc., a major supplier of bottle crowns to United States and international brewers, will initially manufacture and assemble SmartCap barrier crowns.

Aquanautics is a specialty chemical company producing oxygen control technologies. Aquanautics' proprietary synthetic oxygen-binding molecules can be structured into a variety of systems for extracting, concentrating and/or eliminating oxygen. The company is currently developing products for food, medical, industrial and defense markets.

WALTHAM, MASS. (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - IPL Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:IPLSA) Monday introduced the 6850 8mm cartridge drive for IBM's AS/400 9404 and 9406 series.

The 6850 utilizes advanced helical scan technology to store up to 2.5 GB on a single cartridge, with state-of-the-art Exabyte drives providing increased performance and capacity.

''This product gives IPL the opportunity to share with the AS/400 9404's the same quality 8mm drive that we've supplied to the System 38 and 9406's since 1988,'' said Robert W. Norton, IPL president and chief executive officer. ''There are currently more than 3,500 installations of the IPL drives worldwide.''

Designed as a table-top unit for stand-alone use, the 6850 8mm drive features a full LED readout of current drive operation, position on tape and diagnostic codes. All data is verified by a powerful error correction code built into the tape unit. The 6850 attaches to the AS/400 models B10 through C25 via the SCSI bus, and to the AS/400 models B30 through B70 via the 2601 feature, making it fully cokmpatible with the host interface.

''We now offer AS/400 customers high capacity tape storage at competitive pricing while continuing to allow data compatibility within the entire AS/400 series,'' said Jim Geronaitis, an IPL Systems product manager.

''The product has been in beta test and has been performing superbly. We're confident this quality product will fit a specific niche within the AS/400 market,'' Geronaitis added.

The 6850 is available in the fourth quarter of 1990 and carries a one-year warranty. Its North American list price is $12,500.

The 6850 cartridge drive joins IPL Systems' current family of tape storage options; the 6820 tape compatible with IBM 1/2-inch reel-to-reel offerings at 1600 and 6250 BPI, the 6860 8mm cartridge, and IPL's 6890 1/2-inch cartridge tape compatible with IBM's 3480 and 3490.

Announcement of the 6850 8mm cartridge drive comes onn the heels of IPL Systems' introduction Sept. 10 of the 7636 Disk Array, a 1.8 GB disk array for AS/400 models B30 to B70. The 7636 features IBM-manufactured disks and offers greater access speed and a lower cost per megabyte than IBM's new 9336 products.

IPL Systems supports the 6850 cartridge drive, and its other products, with an international network of distributors and service engineers. IPL also has its own 24-hour, seven days-a-week technical support service. Service and spare parts are available throughout the United States and Europe.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - MagneTek Inc. (NYSE:MAG), a leading manufacturer of electrical equipment, Monday announced the results of the company's fiscal 1991 first quarter, which ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Revenues for the quarter were $265,184,000 compared with $237,640,000 in the first quarter of fiscal 1990. Net income was $6,416,000, or 27 cents per share, up from $5,261,000, or 21 cents per share, in the comparable period in 1990.

Commenting on the results, MagneTek's president and chief executive officer, Frank Perna Jr., said: ''Increases in revenue are attributable primarily to continuing demand for our utility and power products. ''In addition, we reduced our debt and increased stockholders' equity during the quarter, and we believe MagneTek's financial position will continue to strengthen throughout the year.

''We are pleased to have achieved these results while at the same time broadening both our manufacturing base and marketing channels overseas through acquisitions, joint ventures and strategic alliances,'' Perna added.

With headquarters in Los Angeles, MagneTek Inc. provides Energy Engineered electrical equipment and services to a wide range of commercial and industrial customers in the United States and abroad. The company operates 50 manufacturing and service facilities throughout North America and overseas, and employs some 15,000 associates.

PORTLAND, ORE. (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Pope & Talbot Inc. Monday reported lower earnings for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990.

Although the company's pulp and paper business had reasonable results, wood products had very unfavorable comparisons in both operating and non-operating areas.

Earnings for the third quarter of 1990 were $3,541,000, or 30 cents per share, compared with a record $13,224,000, or $1.11 per share in 1989. Part of the decline came because last year's income included an after tax gain of $3.5 million, or 29 cents per share, from sale of the company's Oakridge, Ore., sawmill and veneer plant. Revenues in the quarter were $140,950,000, down by 12 percent from $160,839,000 last year.

Nine month earnings of $23,140,000, or $1.97 per share, compared with $33,816,000, or $2.86 per share, in 1989. Revenues of $433,774,000 were 7 percent lower than for the first nine months of 1989.

The three areas that make up the company's pulp and paper business were down only 10 percent from last year's third quarter, a good report when compared with others in the forest products industry. The tissue machine rebuild and new dryer installation at the Ransom, Pa., tissue mill were completed in July. Subsequently, tissue profits were ahead of last year.

Higher log costs seemed manageable during the first half of the year because lumber prices were high enough to allow profitability in the Wood Products Division. The picture changed during the third quarter, when lumber profit margins at Port Gamble evaporated and the Division produced a modest loss.

Pope & Talbot Inc. is a publicly held, Portland-based paper, pulp and wood products company traded on the NYSE. Pope & Talbot was founded in 1849 and has operations throughout the United States and in Canada.

SAN ANTONIO, TX (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Valero Natural Gas Partners L.P. Monday reported third quarter net income of $21.6 million, or $1.12 per limited partner unit, the highest net income achieved in a quarter since the partnership was formed in March 1987.

Net income for the third quarter 1989 was $4.4 million, or 22 cents per limited partner unit. The partnership's net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $32.3 million, or $1.66 per limited partner unit, compared to net income during the first nine months of 1989 of $10.2 million, or 51 cents per limited partner unit.

Third quarter operating income of $32.9 million was 79 percent higher than the $18.4 million reported for 1989's third quarter. For the first nine months of 1990, operating income is up 41 percent to $72.1 million from $51.0 million during the same period last year.

Operating income from the partnership's natural gas liquids (NGL) operations was $18.1 million for the third quarter 1990 compared to $.5 million reported by NGL operations for the third quarter 1989. The partnership's NGL segment benefitted significantly from substantially higher NGL margins and increased ethane production.

NGL margins are determined by the spread between NGL prices and the cost of natural gas from which the liquids are extracted. NGLs compete as petrochemical feedstocks with certain refined products which have increased dramatically in price due to the Middle East crisis.

The situation in the Middle East also has reduced supplies of NGLs available for use as petrochemical feedstocks due to the loss of naphtha and liquefied petroleum gas supplies from Kuwait refineries previously used as petrochemical feedstocks in the Far East.

At the same time, natural gas prices have declined from last year's third quarter. Long-term demand for NGLs should continue to be strong with the completion of new facilities by the petrochemical industry and the use of some NGLs as blending components in the production of oxygenated gasoline mandated by the proposed Clean Air Act.

Natural gas pipeline operating income for the third quarter 1990 decreased to $14.8 million from last year's third quarter operating results of $17.9 million. Low gas demand has caused spot sales margins to remain soft throughout most of the year.

Transportation fees for the 1990 third quarter were higher than those of last year's third quarter due primarily to the expiration of some discounted fee arrangements included in certain take-or-pay settlements.

Lower transportation volumes resulted from weak demand and decreased gas production from producers which have shut in gas reserves until prices improve. Prices have strengthened in October and should continue to be firm as winter approaches and demand increases.

The partnership's third quarter results also reflect a $2.9 million net gain from the disposition of the partnership's interest in two Oklahoma liquids extraction plants and related contract rights which was partially offset by interest costs associated with a legal settlement.

Valero Natural Gas Partners L.P. owns a 7,100-mile intrastate network of natural gas transmission and gathering lines throughout Texas, purchases and sells natural gas to distribution companies, electric utilities, other pipelines and industrial customers throughout the U.S., and provides gas transportation services to third parties. The partnership also owns 10 gas processing facilities and markets natural gas liquids to refineries, petrochemical plants and domestic fuel distributors.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Semiconductor Equipment and Materials International Monday announced plans to develop a wide range of programs and services for the flat panel display industry in North America, Europe and Asia.

SEMI's flat panel display effort will support an industry with annual sales expected to approach $20 billion by 1996. The SEMI program will include technical education, manufacturing standards, trade exhibitions, market statistics reports and publications.

SEMI is an international trade association whose members manufacture equipment and materials used to build semiconductors. William H. Reed, SEMI president, said the technology used to manufacture semiconductors and flat panels displays are very similar.

Sales of FPD equipment and materials are expected to reach $6 billion by 1996, he added.

Reed said over the past year SEMI has already become involved in the FPD industry. The SEMICON/Kansai-Kyoto 90 exhibition in Japan, produced by SEMI, featured exhibits of FPD equipment and materials and an FPD technical conference.

In the United States, SEMI has worked with the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency to encourage development of the FPD industry. In Europe, SEMI committees have met to discuss manufacturing standards for flat panel displays.

A recent survey showed that 13 percent of SEMI's 1,140 corporate members in North America and Europe already manufacture equipment and materials for flat panel displays. Many others are planning to enter the market within the next 18 months. Reed said that similar interest has already been reported in Japan where the majority of FPD manufacturing is taking place.

Flat panel displays are used widely in laptop computers and hand-held televisions. As the technology advances, many analysts predict they will eventually replace the cathode ray tube (CRT) technology used in most home television sets. There are also current applications, and broad potential, in military and industrial markets, according to Reed.

Flat panel displays have higher resolution and greater clarity than CRT displays. They also use less power and take up less space. Flat panel displays are built on a base -- also called a substrate -- of glass. Most semiconductors are built on a silicon substrate.

SEMI is an international trade association serving the $20 billion semiconductor equipment and materials industry. Headquartered in Mountain View, SEMI has regional offices in Brussels, Belgium; London; Seoul, Korea; Tokyo and Washington, D.C.

TOKYO (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - PC users can look forward to a new generation of lightweight notebook PCs, thanks to new Intel products introduced here Monday.

The company's new 386 SL microprocessor, along with a peripheral chip, the 82360 SL, will enable computer manufacturers to build a powerful, 32-bit personal computer on a board as small as 4 by 6 inches (the original PC/AT (1) board was 164 square inches and included about 170 chips).

Through the integration of several functions onto the two tiny chips, Intel has taken a major technological step in reducing the size and power consumption of 386 microprocessor-based PCs.

The two chips run all 8086, 286 and 386 microprocessor family applications and operating systems without modification. Together, the chips integrate 1.1 million transistors.

A major feature of the new 386 SL microprocessor is Intel's implementation of a new architectural extension for power management. With this, users can now expect an increase in battery life of up to 50 percent on notebook computers using these new chips.

''Notebook computer users are asking for more functionality and they want 386 performance without compromising the system's size, weight and battery life,'' according to Mike Aymar, vice president and general manager of Intel's Santa Clara Microcomputer Division.

With the extra space on the PC board, computer manufacturers will also be able to add innovative features to notebook PCs such as handwriting recognition and new communications capabilities would allow the user to be ''on line'' wherever the location.

''We expect to see many new features on notebook computers in the future,'' said Aymar. ''Manufacturers can really get creative by using these new chips.''

Intel is an international manufacturer of microcomputer components, modules and systems.

REDMOND, WA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Microsoft Corp., the leading provider of software for Apple Macintosh computers, announced support for the Apple Macintosh IIsi, Apple Macintosh LC and Apple Macintosh Classic, which were introduced Monday.

These computers round out the Macintosh line, bringing a lower cost machine for new computer users as well as two new models that incorporate state-of-the-art sound processing capabilities. Microsoft support includes integration of sound capabilities into some of its award-winning applications, as well as the continued offering of Microsoft Works, the ideal product for new computer users.

Microsoft Excel and Microsoft Mail can take advantage of the sound capabilities in the new Apple Macintosh IIsi and the Apple Macintosh LC. Microsoft will make available a sound macro to users of Microsoft Excel for the Apple Macintosh. The macro takes advantage of the sound manager in these new machines and allows for voice annotation of cells within Microsoft Excel spreadsheets. Using the microphone that is available with the Apple Macintosh IIsi, the user can highlight a specific cell in a spreadsheet, then record and playback a message.

Microsoft Mail for AppleTalk is an electronic mail program that enables users to send and receive messages and files to and from other users on a Macintosh network. Microsoft Mail allows not only text but full sound and voice annotation capabilities within e-mail. Voice annotation can be added to messages that contain written text or even file attachments, thus allowing users to add emphasis and express the tone of messages more completely.

Microsoft Works, the best-selling integrated software package, is the ideal match for the Macintosh Classic. With Microsoft Works, users can create letters and documents with the word processor, track company or personal expenses on the spreadsheet, develop a database of names and addresses for a customer mailing, and use drawing tools to create a logo or design a newsletter. And with the communications feature of Microsoft Works, users can exchange information and log onto services such as MCI MAIL, CompuServe and Dow Jones News/Retrieval.

The suggested retail price of Microsoft Works is currently $305. (Until Dec. 31, 1990, Microsoft Works will be packaged with Quicken, the leading personal finance program. The regularly suggested retail price of Microsoft works is $295). The suggested retail price of the entry Macintosh Classic computer will be $1,000, so for as little as $1,300, new users can have a state-of-the-art computer with powerful software.

ALAMEDA, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Ingres Corp., maker of the INGRES relational database management system (RDBMS), Monday annouced the industry's first distributed database system that allows databases from different vendors to operate as a single database.

This family of access products does the work of locating data, determining the quickest way to get to data, and keeping data stored in multiple locations up-to-date. As a result, a company can treat its network of databases as a unified information resource.

The family of access products is composed of five new gateways, including three which provide connectivity between INGRES and IBM databases for the first time, and a significantly enhanced version of INGRES/STAR distributed database manager. The product family also includes the INGRES/NET communications server.

Connectivity between INGRES and IBM data is provided through gateways for IBM's IMS non-relational database, and the DB2 and SQL/DS relational databases. Ingres is also introducing new versions of its Digital VAX gateways, for the RMS non-relational and Rdb relational databases, upgraded to work with INGRES Release 6.0.

INGRES Gateways are the only solution on the market that provides transparent access to both relational and non-relational databases, providing access to multi-vendor data through industry-standard SQL.

The enhanced INGRES/STAR makes it easy to unify, distribute and manage corporate-wide information. The product automatically determines the quickest way to access data, and keeps data at multiple sites consistent and up-to-date.

INGRES/STAR is the only product that supports both data distribution and data unification, allowing organizations to decentralize data, yet maintain control over the information. Ingres Corp. is a world leader in information integration products and solutions for mission-critical applications. The company's primary product is the INGRES RDBMS. Installed on 11,000 manufacturing and enterprise-wide commercial systems worldwide, and available on more than 40 types of computers including PCs and UNIX workstations, the INGRES RDBMS enables organizations to quickly access data spanning a variety of computer systems connected in a network.

DALLAS (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Oryx Energy Co. (NYSE:ORX) Monday announced net income of $48 million, or 45 cents per share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to net income of $6 million, or 6 cents per share, for the same quarter in 1989.

Revenues for the 1990 quarter were $514 million vs. $295 million for the 1989 quarter.

During the third quarter, Oryx Energy's average crude price rose from $15.73 per barrel in July to $29.87 per barrel in September. The price for West Texas Intermediate crude oil, the U.S. benchmark, has topped $40 per barrel amid fears that war in the Middle East could disrupt the flow of oil from that region.

The 1990 third quarter also benefitted from a $12 million favorable tax adjustment. Partially offsetting the favorable impact of rising oil prices and the tax adjustment was higher interest expense resulting from debt incurred in the acquisition of overseas properties and, more recently, from the repurchase of 18 million shares of the company's stock.

Oryx Energy reported net income of $85 million, $.79 per share, for the first nine months of 1990 vs. $125 million, or $1.18 per share, for the first nine months of 1989. Results for 1989 included an $85 million cumulative benefit for changes in accounting principles. Revenues were $1.361 billion for the first nine months of 1990 compared to $905 million for the first nine months of 1989.

The company recently announced certain asset sales and expects to record gains from these sales during the fourth quarter of 1990.

Dallas-based Oryx Energy Co. is the largest independent oil and gas company in the world, with assets in excess of $5 billion and proved reserves of more than one billion equivalent barrels. Oryx Energy conducts its domestic operations through Sun Energy Partners, L.P. and is its managing general partner and 98-percent owner. FREMONT, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - The EtherBridge-L is just one of the many new LAN products that Accton Technology Corp. plans to unveil Nov. 13 at the COMDEX/Fall '90 exhibition in Las Vegas.

Accton's new bridge is a high-speed, self-learning device that interconnects Ethernet LAN segments.

The EtherBridge-L is a stand-alone MAC-layer device designed to partition larger Ethernet networks into multiple, more efficient subnetworks. For example, by installing the EtherBridge between a workgroup and the network backbone, data traffic within the workgroup is isolated from other network traffic to reduce the number of packet collisions and improve network efficiency. Only packets destined to be received from outside the workgroup are passed by the EtherBridge.

In addition to transparently filtering and forwarding data packets, the EtherBridge can serve a cost-effective alternative to Ethernet repeaters since it restores the data signal as it forwards the packet. The bridge is also extremely fast, filtering 12,000 packets per second and forwarding 10,000 packets per second. Because it operates at the MAC layer, the EtherBridge is transparent to all higher-level protocols, such as TCP/IP, DECNET, XNS, and ISO, so multiple IEEE 802.3-based operating systems and networks can communicate at the same time.

Since the Accton EtherBridge-L is a self-learning device, it is easy to install. Once it is connected to the network and activated, it automatically gathers Ethernet address information and stores that information in an internal routing table.

The EtherBridge began shipping today and carries a suggested retail price of $1,599.

SAN JOSE, CALIF. (OTC. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - A new generation of transcription machines from Sanyo now entering volume production features advanced digital signal processing chip sets designed and supplied by DSP Group.

The chip sets are part of DSP Group's DSPG7000 series, a family specifically designed for the latest generation of transcription and dictation equipment.

The new transcription machines, introduced at the 1990 CeBIT Show in Hannover, represent a joint development effort by DSP Group and Sanyo. Until recently, DSP technology has only been available in larger, much more expensive equipment. Sanyo's new DSP-based products bring this technology for the first time to mass market transcription machines.

One feature allows the users to vary the playback speed from one-half to two times the original speed, while retaining the natural sound of the speaker. This makes transcription easier and faster. The chip sets also include a noise reduction technique that enhances the clarity of playback.

The third feature is VOX, a highly reliable and accurate recording capability that activates the recording mechanism only in the presence of voice patterns. This results in even greater clarity of playback and less stress on the listener.

Gilo noted with satisfaction that as a result of the success of the joint effort, Sanyo and DSP Group are now exploring additional avenues of cooperation.

Sanyo is one of the largest manufacturers in Japan with sales over $6 billion and more than 35,000 employees. The company manufactures a wide range of electronic products including video equipment, audio equipment, electric home appliances, commercial electronic equipment and information systems.

Founded in 1984, DSP Group Inc. is headquartered in San Jose. The company designs and develops application specific system solutions embedded in chip sets to significantly reduce the complexity and cost of consumer electronic product development while allowing new competitive features.

DSP Group forms partnerships worldwide with companies that manufacture commercial and consumer applications based on digital signal processing.

DENVER (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Rocky Mountain Beverage Co. Inc. (NASDAQ:RMBC), producers of Colorado Crystal sparkling water, revealed Monday that it had been contacted by the legal representatives of the Adolph Coors Co. regarding the use of the term ''pure Rocky Mountain spring water'' and the depiction of an outdoor waterfall scene on its label.

''This is absolutely incredible,'' stated Raymond A. Murtha, president and chief executive officer of RMBC. ''A company the size of Coors trying to intimidate a competitor so much smaller in size boggles the mind.''

Colorado Crystal and the Coors brand have been vying for the top position in the Colorado bottled water market since the February recall of Perrier. ''We operate on a very limited marketing budget compared to Coors,'' said Murtha. ''Consumer loyalty to our product has been excellent and has made 'Colorado

Crystal' number one, a fact which probably irked the competition.''

Murtha said that Coors is well aware of the fact that the source of water for Colorado Crystal is a series of protected springs located on top of the Grand Mesa in western Colorado and that the bottling plant is in the Orchard City area, a short distance from the springs.

The legal representative for RMBC, James C. Bull, a partner in the Denver law firm of Bucholtz, Bull and Ewing, in his reply to the complaint, stated the label design is from an original painting by Delta County artist W.R. Doherty and demanded that Coors produce evidence to any exclusive rights to use the term ''Rocky Mountain spring water.''

''Does Coors claim all Colorado waterfalls as its valuable right?'' asked Bull referring to the label design.

''We have the best bottled water on the market today,'' said Murtha. ''We will not be intimidated by anyone, regardless of their size.''

Colorado Crystal is a naturally-flavored mountain spring water bottled at the source in the Grand Mesa area of Western Colorado.

FRESNO, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - United Express, operated by WestAir, announced that effective immediately it is cutting air fares between selected cities in California, Oregon and Washington state by 27-46 percent off the lowest fares previously offered on the routes.

WestAir is a subsidiary of WestAir Holding Inc. (AMEX:WAH).

United Express said that in California the discount fares are being lowered on flights linking San Francisco with Fresno, Eureka/Arcata, Redding, Chico, Monterey and Bakersfield. The airline is also lowering fares on routes linking Fresno with both Oakland and Sacramento.

In the Pacific Northwest, the discount fare is being lowered on the Portland-Redmond route and on flights linking Seattle with Pasco, Wash., and Eugene, Ore.

As an example of the new discounts, United Express said that the lowest fare on the San Francisco-Fresno route is being cut 35 percent from $182 roundtrip to $119.

United Express said that the move is intended to stimulate discretionary passenger travel on the affected routes. ''These are real bargains in a period generally characterized by skyrocketing fuel prices and higher fares,'' said David Brown, senior vice president of marketing.

''Leisure travelers are an important part of our business mix and these fares are being offered on routes that will have an appeal to those customers.''

Brown said the discount fares require seven day advance roundtrip ticket purchase, a stay over a Saturday night, and are non-refundable. The new fares are good for tickets purchased by Nov. 30, 1990.

WestAir Holding Inc.'s airline units operate as United Express through marketing agreements with United Airlines. The company previously announced it is merging its two wholly owned subsidiaries, WestAir Airlines and NPA Inc. into a single airline operation with a Pacific Coast and an Atlantic Coast division.

WestAir serves cities in the west and along the East Coast utilizing both jet and turbo-prop aircraft. The company's major hubs are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Sacramento, Fresno and Washington, D.C.

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Vitalink Communications Corp. announced financial results Monday for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Sept. 30 1990.

Donald J. Herman, chairman and chief executive officer, reported that net sales for fiscal year 1990 were $66.8 million, compared with $57.2 million for fiscal year 1989. Net income for fiscal year 1990 was $13.3 million, or 94 cents per share, compared with income from continuing operations of $12.6 million, or $1.01 per share, for fiscal year 1989.

Net income for fiscal year 1989 was $18.7 million, or $1.50 per share, which included an after tax gain of $2 million on sale of discontinued operations and a $4.1 million tax benefit from the utilization of net operating loss carryforwards. Per-share data is based on a weighted average of 14 million shares for fiscal year 1990, and 12.4 million shares for fiscal year 1989.

For the fourth quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, net sales were $14.1 million compared with $17.1 million for the like period in 1989. Net income for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 was $2.1 million, or 15 cents per share, compared with income from continuing operations of $4.2 million, or 30 cents per share, for the like period in 1989.

In comparison to the previous quarter, net income for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $2.4 million, or 17 cents per share, on sales of $15.8 million.

Commenting on the declining quarterly sales and earnings, Herman said, ''While we continue to see a worldwide slowness in business conditions, which we attribute to general economic uncertainties, we have responded to these uncertainties through a recent restructuring of our company to reduce corporate spending levels.''

Reflecting on the strength of the company's financial position, Herman noted that the company's cash position has been increased by almost $11 million during fiscal year 1990 due primarily to cash generated from operations and interest income. Cash and temporary investments have been increased from $81.1 million at Sept. 30, 1989, to $91.8 million at Sept. 30, 1990.

Founded in 1980, Vitalink Communications Corp. manufactures and markets a family of LAN interconnect processors including Ethernet and Token-Ring bridges and bridge/routers, and a comprehensive network management system.

KANSAS CITY, MO (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - The State of Colorado has selected US Sprint to provide telephone communications relay service for persons who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech impaired.

The Colorado Commission for Disabled Telephone Users made the announcement recently.

''US Sprint most closely met the Federal Communications Commission's requirements for relay service, as spelled out in the Americans with Disabilities Act,'' said Susan Dickinson, commissioner for the Colorado Commission for Disabled Telephone Users.

''This service is a big step in removing communications barriers for consumers who are speech or hearing impaired,'' Dickinson said. ''Now, more and more people may enjoy the flexibility and independence afforded by the telephone.''

''Residents who are speech or hearing impaired may now call their doctor or the supermarket at any time of day, without having to drive to that location '' Dickinson continued. ''In addition, this new relay service will provide more employment opportunities to those people who previously were not able to use the phone.''

Sprint Services, US Sprint's voice-services business unit, will begin offering relay service to Colorado residents Nov. 1. Sprint Services will route all relay calls through its Austin, Texas relay center, which opened Sept. 1. The center features state-of-the-art technology and operates 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

''We are excited to bring this new service to Colorado and look forward to providing customers who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech impaired with equal communications access that other users enjoy,'' said Dan Evanoff, vice president and general manager of Sprint Services.

To communicate with the center, persons who are speech or hearing impaired will use a Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) or other compatible equipment. TDD users will dial 1-800-659-2656 to reach a Sprint Services customer relay center agent. The agent then will connect the call to the requested number.

Once the user places the call, the agent will remain on line to serve as a conduit between the two parties. The agent views a message typed into the TDD system and then communicates it verbally to the hearing party. The agent then listens to the verbal response, converts it into written form, and relays it back through the TDD system. A voice user may initiate by dialing 1-800-659-3656.

Evanoff said agents have received training in deaf awareness and sensitivity, as well as American Sign Language transliteration.

Sprint Services anticipates handling as many as 40,000 relay calls per month for Colorado residents.

FREMONT, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Flextronics Inc. (OTC:FLEX) Monday announced its intent to refocus its Fremont, Calif., manufacturing facility on design services and low volume manufacturing.

The Fremont facility currently employs 200 people in medium-to-high volume electronics contract manufacturing activities. With the cessation of volume manufacturing operations, employment is expected to drop to no more than 50 people by the end of the year.

The decision to refocus the Fremont manufacturing operations is expected to have a substantial negative impact on the reported financial results for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, according to the company. However, the magnitude of the impact has not been determined.

In addition to its Fremont facility, Flextronics has subsidiaries engaged in test operations in Maine and California, and owns a minority interest in Flex Holdings Pte. Ltd., a Singapore-based contract manufacturer.

SAN JOSE, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - VMX Inc. (NASDAQ:VMXI) Monday announced that total revenues for its first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $13,276,000, compared with $14,152,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

License and royalty income is now presented as part of revenues rather than other income. This reclassification, reflected in both periods presented, was made in recognition that developing, patenting and licensing technology in VMX's industry segment is a basic and continuing component of VMX's business.

During the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company lost $789,000, or 3 cents per share, compared with net income of $619,000, or 3 cents per share, in the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989.

''Our results this quarter reflect a slowdown in new orders, which we believe resulted from softening economic conditions and business uncertainty,'' VMX Chief Executive Officer Pat Howard said.

''Larger orders were delayed, most notably in the federal government market. We are maintaining our strategy of controlled investments in the key areas of new product development, sales and marketing, because they are essential to our long term position in the industry. This strategy, which began two years ago, has already yielded two new products, the VMX 100 and more recently, VMXworks, shipments of which commenced in the first quarter.

''In light of changing economic conditions, we have imposed additional expense controls to make sure operating expenses remain properly scaled to economic activity and market conditions.''

Focused on providing call and message processing solutions, VMX has sold and installed more than 5,400 systems worldwide. VMX products are distributed throughout North America and in more than 25 additional countries through value-adding systems integrators, OEMs and directly by VMX sales offices.

Headquartered in San Jose, the company has a major manufacturing, engineering, sales and support facility in Dallas. VMX sales offices are located in Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Washington and London.

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (OCT 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Capital Associates Inc., a major financial services and asset management company, announced Monday that it is reporting a $5.5 million loss (62 cents per share), on revenues of $37.7 million for the first fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990.

This compares to a $246,000 loss (3 cents per share), on revenues of $35.6 million for the fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31, 1989.

The fiscal first quarter 1991 loss includes a $4.3 million provision for losses recorded in the statement of operations. This charge comprises a $1.5 million provision for investment in assets leased to Integrated Resources and Pandick Press; a $1.7 million write-down of the company's investment in its 50 percent owned subsidiary, Corporate Express; and a $.8 million accounting estimate change related to the method of evaluating certain types of retained residual values.

The company's operations in the first fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, before consideration of the provision for losses, resulted in a pretax loss of $1.7 million. This loss is principally attributable to a decrease in new equipment sales and an increase in operating expenses including non-recurring professional fees related to completion of the company's internal organizational plans.

Richard Kazan, Capital Associates' chairman and chief executive officer, said: ''The loss we are reporting primarily reflects non-recurring conditions and the thorough review of our business we have been undertaking for the past several months. It masks significant improvements in our basic businesses including a 38 percent quarter to quarter increase in leasing revenues while achieving a 29 percent gross margin; equalling our best quarterly leasing margin performance since 1988.

''Further, although unusually high due to continuing investments in organizational improvements, our operating expenses were close to our budget.''

Ronald Larson, the company's recently appointed executive vice president and chief financial officer, said: ''I am pleased with the improvements we are making to business systems and controls. The company-wide database management system we have been developing for the past several months is now being implemented.

''We have effectively centralized and streamlined controls related to pricing, underwriting, risk rating and the establishment of residual values. And, our newly formed asset management function is off to a running start.''

Capital Associates Inc. has arranged approximately $2 billion of asset financing. The company provides its predominantly Fortune 1000 customers with innovative and customized solution for equipment financing needs. MANCHESTER, CT (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - LYDALL, INC. (NYSE Symbol: LDL) Monday announced results for the third quarter and nine months ended September 30, 1990.

The Company reported net income for the third quarter ended September 30, 1990 of $1,890,000, or $0.64 per share, compared with $1,972,000, or $0.67 per share, for the same quarter last year. Sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $29,252,000 compared with $30,378,000 reported for the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended September 30, 1990, LYDALL reported sales of $93,194,000 versus $98,016,000 for the same period last year. Net income for the period was $6,415,000, or $2.16 per share, compared with $6,076,000, or $2.09 per share, in 1989.

Commenting on the results for the period, Leonard R. Jaskol, President and Chief Executive Officer of LYDALL, INC., stated, ''During the quarter, we managed to hold our own in spite of a declining economic environment. Although LYDALL's typical strong growth rates have been slowed by the sluggish economy, I believe the Company has proven its staying power by reporting third quarter earnings only slightly below last year's record.

''We continue to benefit from our stringent quality control programs and an improved product mix. Gross margins increased to 31 percent as compared to 30 percent for the comparable quarter of last year, and our year-to-date return on sales improved to 6.9 percent from 6.3 percent for the first nine months of 1989.

''Also during the quarter, we upgraded the manufacturing technology at two plants. While in the short run the extended shutdowns and other costs of installing new equipment lowered earnings for the quarter, in the long run, the faster, more energy efficient equipment will increase our manufacturing flexibility and throughput and will improve quality.

LYDALL, INC. is a manufacturer of technologically advanced fiber-based materials for demanding specialty applications.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Digitalk Inc. Monday announced a development and license agreement with IBM for Digitalk's Smalltalk/V technology on OS/2 and other platforms.

IBM has licensed Digitalk's OS/2 implementation of Smalltalk/V, and future products for prototyping and product development. IBM and Digitalk will work together under the terms of the agreement to enhance Smalltalk/V products in the OS/2 and Microsoft Windows environments.

''We are delighted with this IBM relationship,'' said James C. Anderson, president and a founder of Digitalk. ''IBM's use of Smalltalk/V for their own development confirms that this technology is mature enough for today's corporate developer. Working together with IBM ensures that our products will effectively integrate with evolving standards for the corporate developer of tomorrow.''

Earl F. Wheeler, IBM senior vice president and general manager, Programming Systems, sees significant benefits for IBM. ''This agreement with Digitalk allows IBM to make the benefits of object-oriented programming available to IBM developers today. Smalltalk/V provides a solid foundation for developing Common User Access (CUA)-compliant applications in Systems Application Architecture (SAA) cooperative processing environments. Our work with Digitalk is one step in IBM's commitment to using object-oriented programming in our products and platforms.''

IBM has used Smalltalk/V PM extensively, both as a prototyping tool and for ongoing development projects. Smalltalk/V PM development has provided IBM with a direct route to rapid application delivery. Rather than developing high-function prototypes and then converting them to shippable products in a different language, IBM has used Smalltalk/V PM to grow prototypes quickly into production code.

The agreement with IBM will enable Digitalk's products to evolve more rapidly, providing corporate developers with greater capabilities on both OS/2 and Windows 3.0. These enhancements include a set of visual programming tools, increased AD/Cycle integration and SAA compliance, and access to the power of Database Manager, LAN Manager and SQL Server.

Digitalk Inc., headquartered in Los Angeles, introduced object-oriented programming to IBM PCs with its Smalltalk products beginning in 1985. The company currently markets Smalltalk/V development environments worldwide for DOS, OS/2 and the Apple Macintosh, with a Windows 3.0 version planned.

PORTLAND, ORE. (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Industrial Funding Corp. (NASDAQ:IFDCA), reported Monday net income of $1,440,000, or $.19 per share, on revenues of $13.9 million for its fiscal third quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990.

The company's revenues were up 36% from $10.2 million a year ago. In third quarter 1989 a $1.1 million gain on an equipment sale enabled Industrial to report a profit of $1,676,000, or $.30 per share, on 25% fewer shares.

For the nine-month period ending Aug. 31, 1990, Industrial earned $2.7 million or $.37 per share, on revenues of $39.3 million compared with net earnings of $3.5 million, or $.63 per share, on revenues of $26.9 million in the like period a year ago. The 1990 results include an extraordinary $3 million expense in second quarter to increase the company's allowance for credit losses.

As previously reported, during the third quarter Industrial adopted significant changes in its methods for originating new leases. The funding of brokered leases was terminated and the direct sales force was focussed intently on the building of long-term financing relationships with equipment suppliers. These changes resulted in a slight shortfall in new financing volume compared with the third quarter of 1989.

New lease volume was $40 million in the third quarter of 1990 vs. $43 million in the like quarter a year ago. For the nine months ended Aug. 31, 1990, the company arranged leases on over $140 million of capital equipment, up 21% from the financing volume of $116 million for the like period in 1989.

Speaking of Industrial's performance in the third quarter, President Joseph Costello said, ''We heavily emphasized management of our existing receivables and the preservation of quality in new leases. Our work on supplier relationships limited new financing volume in the quarter but should lead to greater volumes as well as excellent lease quality in the future.

''Our collectors' intensified efforts significantly slowed the growth in overdue receivables, but we aren't through with the hard work there. We'll continue to pay close attention to collections and will increase loss reserves further if necessary,'' Costello added.

''The impact of such an increase, if any, on fourth quarter results may be mitigated by earnings from the sale of lease receivables. We hope to complete in the fourth quarter the first of a long-contemplated program of selective lease receivables sales to institutions as part of our ongoing financing activities.''

At Aug. 31, 1990, Industrial's allowance for credit loss totaled $7.7 million or 2.1% of the net lease receivables compared with $4.7 million or 1.7% of net lease receivables at the end of third quarter 1989.

Industrial Funding is a finance company which serves the needs of creditworthy smaller companies, primarily through the leasing of productive equipment.

SPARTA, N.J. (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Laser Recording Systems, Inc. (''LRS'') (NASDAQ:LRSI (common stock), LRSIW (warrants) LRSIU (units); Boston Stock Exchange:LRSU) Monday announced that it has been awarded a contract with Bundesgesundheitsamt (BGA), an office of the German Government, to deliver a computer-based system for the submission of new drug applications (NDA) on optical disk.

The contract should begin contributing to revenues in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 which ends on January 31, 1991.

In the first phase of the contract, the computer-based system with optical disk will be delivered to the BGA, and the pharmaceutical sponsor companies will have the option to submit their drug registration papers to the BGA on optical disk. In the next phase of the project, the BGA is to receive the submission of full NDA documents from pharmaceutical sponsor companies on optical disk. The LRS system provides the basis for a BGA submission standard, to which all pharmaceutical companies will conform in submitting NDAs to the BGA. The optical exchange media standard, implemented by a workgroup whose members are Bayer, Boehringer Ingelheim, Hoechst, Merck and the BGA, is called DAMOS -- Drug Application Methodology with Optical Storage.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Security Pacific Corporation (NYSE:SPC) Monday reported quarterly net income of $135.3 million for the third quarter of 1990, a decrease of 27 percent from the year-ago quarter, bringing year-to-date earnings to $518.9 million, down 5 percent from the $548.9 million earned in the year-ago nine-month period.

On a per common share basis, current quarter earnings were $1.05, a decrease of 32 percent from the $1.55 reported in the 1989 third quarter. For the first nine months of 1990, earnings per common share totaled $4.18, a decrease of 10 percent from the $4.67 per common share earned in the first nine months of 1989.

Fully taxable equivalent net interest income for the third quarter was $792.9 million, up $65.0 million, or 9 percent from the year-ago quarter. This increase reflected an 11 percent increase in earning assets, about one-third of which was related to recent acquisitions, partially offset by a decline in the net interest margin to 3.85 percent from 3.91 percent in the year-ago third quarter.

The decline in the net interest margin from the year-ago quarter was due to various factors including the impact of the year-end 1989 securitization and sale of high margin credit card loans, a higher negative impact from non-performing credits, and narrower spreads between loan yields and the cost of retail deposits. The earning asset increase reflected an 11 percent increase in domestic loans attributable to strong retail loan growth.

Residential 1-4 family loans grew 36 percent, or 12 percent excluding the impact of recent acquisitions, while other consumer loans rose 13 percent. ReadyReservAccount/ charge card loans increased 7 percent, excluding the impact of the year-end 1989 credit card securitization and sale. Business loans remained virtually unchanged, while lease financing was up 15 percent. International loans grew 14 percent from a year ago with this increase concentrated in the Asian marketplace. Lower rate other earning assets increased 8 percent compared to the year-ago quarter, primarily in the trading account assets and federal funds sold categories.

On a year-to-date basis, net interest income totaled $2,298.2 million, an increase of 5 percent from a year ago. This increase reflected a 9 percent increase in earning assets, partially offset by a decline in the year-to-date net interest margin to 3.90 percent from 4.06 percent for the first nine months of last year.

Non-interest income for the quarter was $456.6 million, virtually unchanged from the 1989 third quarter. Benefiting non-interest income were increases in service charges on deposit accounts of $6.8 million, fiduciary and investment management fees of $6.0 million, and the all other category of $13.1 million due, in part, to increased gains from loan sales.

CUPERTINO, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - The Motorola Commercial Systems Division (CSD) announced that its 50-megahertz Delta Series multiuser systems have been selected by the New York City Human Resources Administration (HRA) as the basis for a new office automation network.

The decision comes after a year-long review that involved 15 computer vendors and four finalists.

Motorola has begun delivery of 51 Delta Series Model 3640 systems, which are the basis of the $4.5 million contract that includes peripherals, software and training. The HRA selected Motorola after a request-for-proposal (RFP) process that evaluated proposals on price, performance, adherence to open standards and ability to port current data to the UNIX operating system.

System installation is expected to last 10 months. In addition to the 51 Delta Series Model 3640 computers, Motorola will provide more than 1,000 peripherals, including more than 670 ASCII terminals and a variety of printers and other hardware. Motorola is providing networking software to connect approximately 500 of the agency's personal computers with the Delta Model 3640 system. Office automation, word processing, database and spreadsheet software are also provided by Motorola.

In addition, the contract calls for an 18-month training program for more than 2,000 employees.

The new computer system is expected to improve data and communications flow among the agency's employees. More than 1,500 users located in 12 buildings will use the computers. The system expands computing access from support staff to managers and analysts.

Motorola is one of the world's leading providers of electronic equipment, systems, components and services for worldwide markets. Products include two-way radios, pagers, cellular telephone systems, semiconductors, defense and aerospace electronics, automotive and industrial electronics equipment, computers, data communications and information processing and handling equipment.

ELLICOTT CITY, MD (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - LANworks Inc. Monday announced that it had succeeded in obtaining a preliminary injunction against the use of its corporate name by Digital Equipment Corp., which had been using the name

LanWORKS for a new line of hardware and software products.

The injunction, granted by the U.S. District Court of Maryland, prevents Digital from using the LanWORKS name in the area served by LANworks Inc.: Maryland, the District of Columbia, and Northern Virginia.

''We are delighted with the court's decision,'' said LANworks President Sandra Stecker. ''For more than four years, we've worked hard to earn a reputation and make a name for ourselves in the networking business. Losing the distinctiveness of our company name would have hurt us immeasurably.''

LANworks Inc. first learned that Digital was planning to market hardware and software under the name LanWORKS in May of this year. OXNARD, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Personal computer users who prepare their own tax returns and use Microsoft Windows 3.0 can take advantage of several new features this year in the 1990 edition of MacInTax for Windows, Softview's DOS version of its award-winnning MacInTax tax preparation software.

MaxInTax for Windows includes a new ''Forms Guide'' feature, new forms and schedules, and performance enhancements to some of the more complex IRS forms and worksheets. Softview also announced six additions to its family of state tax supplements: Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Washington D.C.

The 1040 edition of MacInTax for Windows, the only Windows-based tax product available, offers IBM and compatible PC users the same easy-to-use point-and-click features of its popular Macintosh counterpart.

It features dozens of IRS forms and schedules, as well as specially designed statements and worksheets, all of which are linked together so that whenever data is changed, recalculations are performed automatically in all relevant areas.

For ready access to the complete IRS instruction booklet, users simply double-click on any line item. And, unlike any other tax preparation software MacInTax displays and prints exact replicas of IRS forms, complete with data, on ordinary blank paper, using either a laser or dot-matrix printer, without additional font cartridges or software.

MacInTax includes Form 1040 and the 1040A short form, as well as several forms not included in some tax software programs, such as 1040EZ (single filers), 1040X (amended return), 1040ES (quarterly estimated tax payments), 4868 (extension of time to file), and the forms users need to file their returns electronically.

Schedules 2 and 3 are included for taxpayers eligible this year to file Form 1040A. Users of Form 8582 (passive activity loss) will benefit from Softview's design enhancements to this program, which provide faster processing.

Other MacInTax features include an exclusive itemization function. Any line item can be itemized to any desired level of detail, and all itemizations are linked, providing an audit trail for record keeping and tax planning.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Taiwan Telecommunications has won a contract for $67 million to supply more than 230,000 lines of digital switching to the Southern Taiwan Telecommunications Administration.

EL PASO, TX (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Texscan Corp. (NASDAQ:TXCN), announced Friday that it has completed a refinancing of its long-term debt that provides for $16.9 million in unsecured nine-year notes at a fixed interest rate of 11.27 percent, with principal repayments beginning in October 1993.

The refinancing replaces $13 million in varying rate senior debt and $3.6 million of subordinated debt at a 15 percent interest rate. The subordinated debt interest payments were paid in company stock as ''payment-in-kind,'' and the new financing eliminates this dilutive impact.

A group of institutional investors led by insurance companies affiliated with CIGNA Corp. have provided funding for the refinancing.

''The refinancing of our debt is an important component of our strategic growth,'' said Harold C. Tamburro, vice president and chief financial officer. ''It will allow us to invest cash generated from operations into areas with significant potential and this unsecured loan eliminates many previous restrictions on our cash balances.''

At July 31, Texscan had a cash balance position in excess of $9 million and a current ratio of approximately 3.4x.

Headquartered in El Paso, Texscan Corp. (NASDAQ:TXCN) is a leading designer and manufacturer of a broad line of distribution and commercial insertion products for the cable television industry, and a large scale fiber optic systems integrator.

OXNARD, CA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Softview Inc., a leading developer of forms-based tax preparation software for personal computers, Monday announced that its Taxview Professional Series has been upgraded to work under Microsoft Windows 3.0.

Other changes this year include a full-featured Client Organizer, Client Write-Up, several new federal forms, six additional state supplements, and new and enhanced products for California tax professionals.

A Client Organizer module -- new for 1990 and available free with Taxview 1040 -- helps clients gather and summarize current tax information. It interfaces with 1989 and 1990 Taxview 1040 data files so that client records can be updated quickly and easily.

Because Taxview products utilize Softview's proprietary forms-based technology they offer several unique features and benefits. Exact replicas of IRS forms and schedules are displayed on-screen and can be printed on blank paper using a laser or dot matrix printer, without the need for forms software or tax fonts.

Data is entered directly into displayed forms that are linked together, so that whenever new data is entered, recalculations are performed automatically on all relevant documents.

Specially designed statements and worksheets allow users to accumulate backup data on key line-items and minimize the risk of error. Line entries on any form or schedule can also be broken out in a series of unlimited ''itemization windows'' -- an exclusive Taxview feature. The program also checks all input to prevent inconsistent and incomplete entries.

Softview Inc., with headquarters in Oxnard, is a leading developer of forms-based software for Apple Macintosh and IBM PC and compatible computers. Softview products are distinguished by the company's proprietary if:X intelligent forms technologies, which greatly facilitate the creation and printing of forms on screen and on paper.

Softview began marketing tax products in 1985. They include MacInTax and MacInTax for Windows, for individuals who prepare their own tax returns, and Taxview, for tax professionals.

#90288b0682 10/15/1990 ~Business Wire

SEATTLE (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Faced with an unexpectedly early closure of the Eastern Bering Sea pollock fishery, the United States Surimi Commission recently identified a number of factors which threaten to limit surimi production by U.S. surimi producers over the next six to eight months.

''Almost overnight we have gone from a situation of having more surimi than we know what to do with, to a situation of not knowing if we can meet all our foreign customers' demands,'' said Assen Nicolov, president of the United States Surimi Commission, a recently formed Export Trading Company comprised of U.S. at-sea surimi producers. The factors affecting surimi availability include:

1. Earlier than Anticipated Attainment of the Eastern Bering Sea Pollock Quota. The rapid expansion of the U.S. pollock fleet in the past two years resulted in higher than expected pollock harvest rates during the 1990 fishery. Although the quota of 1.3 million tons was initially expected to support the Eastern Bering Sea pollock fishery for the entire year, recent projections by the National Marine Fisheries Service indicate the quota will be exhausted on Oct. 13. Unless reserves and/or unutilized quota from other species can be transferred to the pollock quota on a timely basis, which appears doubtful, the 1990 Eastern Bering Sea pollock fishery is about to end for the year. While some 76,000 mt. of pollock quota remain available in the Aleutian Islands, catch rates have been unpredictable in that region and only limited production can be anticipated.

2. Declining Catch Rates in the Donut Hole. Prospects of supplementing production from U.S. waters through operations in the international waters of the Bering Sea (the ''Donut Hole'') may be dimming. Although U.S. experience in the area is limited, catch rates reported by foreign vessels operating in that area have been declining. Donut Hole production has been expected to decline as the exceptionally large 1978 and 1979 pollock year classes which have supported that fishery begin to die off.

3. Limited Availability of Quota During the First Half of 1991. Under a newly implemented pollock management system, the North Pacific Fishery Management Council plans to split the Bering Sea pollock fishery into two seasons in 1991. The first season will begin on Jan. 1 and last until April 15, or until the quota assigned to that season is exhausted, whichever happens first; the second season will begin on June 1 and last until Dec. 31. The annual quota for pollock will be divided between the two seasons at the North Pacific Fishery Management Council's meeting in December. Preliminary indications are that the quota for the first season will be inadequate to support the fishery through April 15.

4. Increased Demand for Other Product Forms in Europe and Other World Markets. Softening prices for surimi in Japan have caused some U.S. producers to switch from surimi production to fillets and blocks in order to take advantage of recent price increases for those products in Europe and other world markets.

Although current surimi inventories are at levels which would normally be considered healthy for this time of the year, the commission is concerned because surimi demand tends to be highest during the winter months in Japan -- especially during the year-end holiday season. Given the unanticipated shortage in production during the remainder of 1990 and the first part of 1991 the commission hopes that inventory levels will be sufficient to meet the seasonal needs of the Japanese market.

Faced with these uncertainties, the United States Surimi Commission will review quota availability and other factors affecting surimi production immediately following the December meeting of the North Pacific Fishery Management Council. At that time, the commission should be in a better position to evaulate 1991 pollock quotas, seasonal apportionments and other factors affecting 1991 operations and production.

Net income for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 was $111,000 on sales of $20,739,000. Both figures were basically unchanged from the same period last year, when Comdial earned $142,000 on sales of $20,914,000.

NEW YORK (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - J.P. Morgan & Co. Incorporated Monday reported that its net income in the 1990 third quarter was $208 million, compared with a loss of $1.815 billion in the same 1989 quarter, when the company made a $2 billion addition to its reserves for LDC loans.

In the nine months ended September 30, 1990, net income was $814 million, including $230 million in the first quarter from a change in the accounting for trading swaps. In the first nine months of 1989 the company reported a loss of $1.429 billion.

Dennis Weatherstone, chairman, said: ''We are pleased with the improvement of pretax earnings in the quarter, which rose to $300 million from $172 million. Trading results were excellent, net interest revenue was stronger, and revenue from investment management and operational services continued to grow.''

Among financial developments in the quarter, compared with the same 1989 quarter, were the following: o Trading results of $300 million increased by $188 million, paced by foreign exchange and swaps trading, but with gains also in the trading of U.S. and foreign government and corporate securities, interest rate derivatives, and commodities. o Net interest revenue rose 24% to $314 million, because of improvement in net yield and a higher volume of interest-earning assets. o Trust and agency revenue continued to rise, amounting to $125 million, up 9%, as custody services and investment management showed improved results. o Corporate finance fees of $58 million were 22% lower than in last year's quarter. o The 8% increase in expenses reflected the accrual of employee benefits and severance costs and the effect of the weakness of the U.S. dollar on expenses abroad, as well as occupancy of the firm's new headquarters. o Income tax expense of $82 million contrasted with a benefit of $13 million in the year-ago quarter.

Also notable in comparing net income between the 1990 and 1989 quarters was the provision for credit losses of $10 million, which contrasted with a provision of $2 billion (related to restructuring countries) in the 1989 quarter.

ATLANTA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Atlanta-based Equifax Inc. (NYSE:EFX) reported Monday that net income for the third quarter increased 14 percent over the third quarter of 1989.

Revenue for the international business information firm rose 7 percent.

Net income for the period was $12,247,000, or 25 cents per share, compared with $10,787,000 (22 cents per share). Operating revenue was $227,202,000, compared with $211,563,000.

The increase in earnings, to a great extent, resulted from the continuing shift in the revenue stream toward Equifax's higher margin automated products.

Concurrent with release of the third quarter earnings, Equifax announced the establishment of a $450 million, five-year, committed, revolving credit facility which will also support the company's entry into the commercial paper market planned for later this year.

This agreement is designed to meet Equifax's credit needs while permitting greater access to the capital markets. Although Equifax does not anticipate in the foreseeable future the exercise of the CSC put of its credit reporting and collection business, the credit facility will accommodate this transaction should it occur within the next five years.

The financing is being provided by Equifax's bank group which includes its co-agent banks, The First National Bank of Atlanta and Bank of America. Other members of the bank group include Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Citizens & Southern National Bank, First National Bank of Chicago, and Trust Company Bank.

LAGRANGE, GA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Monday First Federal Savings Bank of LaGrange (NASDAQ:FLAG) announced earnings for the quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30.

First Federal experienced a net loss for the third quarter of 1990 of $127,762 or (16 cents) per share, as compared to a net income of $241,518, or 30 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - EMC Corp. Monday announced the availability of its ORION Series Solid State Disk Subsystems for Unisys 1100 and 2200 mainframe computer systems.

The ORION Series subsystems are faster, more compact, more reliable and offer higher capacities than previous solid state disk products available for Unisys systems. The ORION Series marks the 5th generation of solid state technology through the utilization of 4 megabit DRAM chips. EMC has successfully marketed this product to IBM mainframe and PCM systems since 1987 and has over 500 units installed.

Many configurations of the ORION Series are available. An ORION with a minimum configuration of 16 megabytes (MB) is $34,000. This includes cabinet Battery Back-up Unit and two storage control units. A sampling of other configurations includes a 32 MB ORION at $51,400, a 256 MB ORION/VL at $224,000 and a 1 gigabyte (GB) ORION/VL at $552,000. Volume shipments for the Unisys market will begin in November, 1990.

There are two models in the ORION Series: the ORION and the ORION/VL. The ORION contains two control units, with a total capacity ranging from 16 MB to 1.8 GB, in a cabinet whose footprint measures 3.5 square feet. The ORION/VL contains from two to eight control units, and a subsystem capacity of up to 4.8 GB. The footprint of this unit is 5.0 square feet. The power and air conditioning requirements of these subsystems are 1/6 that of magnetic disk storage devices.

The ORION Series attaches to the Block Multiplexor Channel using FIPS protocol and standard I/O handlers. Each control unit has two host interfaces, for a maximum of up to eight simultaneous host transfers. Both models contain one to 16 variable-size logical drives, and configurations can be defined by the user. This is done via a menu-driven PC interface, and is retained in non-volatile storage.

The ORION Series subsystems are equipped with the highest level of fault isolation available in the industry, including triple bit detection and double bit correction. To further add to the reliability of the subsystem, each ORION must pass a series of stringent testing procedures at the factory. This testing involves 100 hours of intelligent burn-in and an additional 100 hours of CPU qualification before units are certified for shipment.

EMC has designed two features for the ORION Series, which reside in the cabinet, to assure data availability and integrity. ORION subsystems come standard with a one hour Battery Back-up Unit (BBU), and users may also purchase an optional Winchester hard disk back-up device called DataSave.

With DataSave, information stored in RAM can be downloaded to magnetic disk in the event of a power loss. This means even the most critical files can be stored on ORION, improving their performance without the risk of data loss.

The ORION Series is maintained by EMC's direct worldwide service organization including a Customer Response Center where a toll-free phone hotline and remote diagnostics round out a complete support program. In addition, EMC has a Technical Support Group which is available to provide added services like capacity planning and post-sales support.

EMC Corp. supplies innovative, high performance products and related services for midrange and mainframe computers worldwide.

AMITYVILLE, NY (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Nu Horizons Electronics Corp. (AMEX:NUH) Monday announces results of operations for the second quarter ended Aug. 31.

The company reported net sales of $19,807,550 for the six months ended Aug. 31 1990, as compared to $20,088,555 for the six months ended Aug. 31, 1989. Net sales for the three months ended Aug. 31, 1990, and 1989, were $9,619,326 and $9,621,686, respectively.

Net income for the six months ended Aug. 31, 1990, was $178,004, or 4 cents per share, on a primary and fully diluted basis as compared to $426,620, or 10 cents per share on a primary basis or 9 cents per share on a fully diluted basis for the corresponding period of the prior year. Net income for the three months ended Aug. 31, 1990, was $12,237, or 0 cents per share on a primary and fully diluted basis as compared to $217,004, or 5 cents per share on a primary and fully diluted basis for the three months ended Aug. 31, 1989.

The company's marginal decreases in sales for the six and three month periods ended Aug. 31, 1990, were primarily due to the loss of the company's major supplier, National Semiconductor Corp. (National), in June 1990. The loss of these sales was substantially offset by increased sales of the company's niche technology franchised product lines as well as the sales attained from the addition in May 1990 of franchised products of Toshiba America Electronic Components Inc. (Toshiba), a major Japanese manufacturer.

The company anticipates that the loss of National could adversely affect sales and earnings during the remainder of the current fiscal year as well as into fiscal 1992. The company intends to seek additional franchised lines with other manufacturers as the opportunity arises.

The company's lower earnings resulted from increased operating expenses primarily due to additional sales personnel in the company's existing branch sales locations and staffing requirements in a new branch sales facility in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. These additional sales personnel were employed to sell

Toshiba and other niche product lines in all of the company's branch locations.

NORWOOD, MA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Telco Systems Inc. (TELC)OTC National Market) announced Monday that sales for its fiscal year ended Aug. 26, 1990, increased 27 percent to $90.2 million, compared with $71.2 million last year.

Net income the year increased to $7,507,000, or 81 cents per share, compared with $2,856,000, or 33 cents per share in the year-ago period. Telco's financial condition remained very strong with cash and short-term investments at year end amounting to $21.2 million.

For the fourth fiscal quarter, sales increased 44 percent to $24.7 million compared with $17.2 million last year. Net income for the quarter increased to $2,640,000, or 28 cents per share, compared with $1,160,000, or 13 cents per share in fiscal 1989.

Paul Lazay, president and chief executive officer, said gains in sales and earnings were achieved for the full year in both fiber optic transmission products and customer premise network access equipment, the company's two business areas. Sales of fiber optic transmission products increased 13 percent to $52.2 million, and sales of T1 network access multiplexer equipment increased 53 percent to $38.0 million.

Excellent progress was achieved during the year in expanding Telco Systems' customer base of Bell Operating Companies, major independent telephone companies and interexchange carriers. Of particular significance was the increase in purchases by several Bell Operating Companies of Telco's T-HUB and FOX-2 fiber optic distribution systems for use in telephone local loop applications. Successful field trials and product approvals completed late in the year offer increased opportunity for the future.

Telco Systems' position in the T1 network access multiplexer market continued very strong as revenues for both the DCB-24 and ROUTE-24 intelligent multiplexers continued to grow at a rapid pace. Interexchange carrier relationships were expanded, providing a strengthened position in this important customer area. Strategic marketing arrangements for the resale of Telco's access multiplexers were also established with Bell Operating Companies and independent telephone companies.

For the coming year, the company's two markets continue to offer excellent potential. In the fiber optic transmission area, Telco is uniquely positioned to benefit from the rapid deployment of fiber optic systems presently occurring in the telephone network. In the T1 multiplexer market, the company sees many opportunities for good growth. T1 service will continue to offer new subscribers the ability to achieve cost savings and access to a variety of new services. Lazay said the momentum is underway at Telco Systems for another strong year in fiscal 1991.

Telco Systems Inc., based in Norwood, Mass., designs and manufactures high-speed digital fiber optic transmission terminals, digital multiplexing equipment for telephone and other applications, and network access multiplexers for the customer premise T1 market.

DALLAS/NEW YORK (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Southmark Corp. (NASDAQ:SMRK) and real estate investor and sponsor Robert A. McNeil jointly announced Monday an agreement for McNeil to purchase selected assets related to Southmark's syndication and property management operations for $7.5 million in cash.

As part of the transaction, McNeil intends to solicit the consent of the limited partners of 34 selected partnerships in the Southmark portfolio requesting that they approve a restructuring plan for each individual partnership.

''This transaction represents for me an initial step in re-establishing a first class real estate organization which I expect will be eminently qualified to preserve and enhance values for the limited partners,'' said McNeil.

''I believe that there is significant value in these partnership assets. Despite the widespread concern that today real estate provides little value for investors, I am convinced that underlying values can be enhanced through efficient management.''

McNeil added, ''In the coming weeks I intend to ask the limited partners of the selected partnerships to approve a restructuring plan which will give them a strong management team under my direction.''

Southmark Chairman Glen Adams commented, ''This sale accomplishes several important goals in my mission to realize maximum value for the benefit of Southmark's creditors.

''It raises cash immediately at closing, reduces overhead costs significantly, and provides the nearly 100,000 limited partners of the selected partnerships with an experienced leader with a proven track record of financial responsibility and prudent management.

''As an added benefit, I anticipate that the sale will result in continued employment opportunities for many Southmark personnel with McNeil's new company.''

The agreement calls for McNeil to purchase all of the outstanding advances made by Southmark or its subsidiaries to the selected partnerships. McNeil will also purchase the assets of Southmark's commercial and residential property management companies and will form a new property management company, headquartered in Dallas, to manage the 134 properties owned by the partnerships.

Southmark Corp., headquartered in Dallas, is a real estate and financial services company. The company emerged from bankruptcy in August, 1990, and has embarked on a program to liquidate most of its assets for the benefit of its creditors.

SALT LAKE CITY (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Grand Valley Gas Co. (OTC:GVGC) has completed the analysis of the first quarter of fiscal 1991, ended Aug. 31, 1990.

Earnings were $618,000, or 10 cents per share, for the first quarter, representing an increase of 48 percent over the same period during the previous year. Gas sales volumes were approximately 18,500,000 MCF during the quarter with sales revenue of $16,100,000.

Gas marketing activities were strong during the first quarter, a period which is historically slow in the gas industry. This performance is the result of a diverse market base including increased sales to high load factor industrial end-users, and long term sales to utility customers with volume purchase commitments.

Grand Valley is currently participating in drilling three additional wells, targeting oil and associated gas production. The company controls an average 10 percent working interest in the wells, located in Grand and Uintah counties Utah.

Natural gas storage facilities provide the capability to service the peak winter demand. The company has entered into an agreement to access a proven storage reservoir during the current fiscal year to provide its customers with a gas supply when it is needed most.

During the three months ended Aug. 31, 1990, considerable gas supply acquisition efforts and cash were committed to the gas suppliers injected into the storage reservoir. Gas storage injections will continue during the second quarter of the current fiscal year.

The company has executed contracts for the sale of the storage gas supplies during the third and fourth quarters of the current fiscal year. The company is taking advantage of the seasonally lower gas prices during the summer months to accumulate the gas inventory. This gas inventory will then be sold during the winter months to take advantage of the seasonally higher sales prices.

COPIAGUE, NY (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - TII Industries Inc. (ASE:TI) announced Monday that sales during the second half of fiscal 1990 (ended June 29, 1990) increased to $16,651,000, a 34 percent improvement over first half levels.

The company's operating results also improved with the net loss during the second half decreasing to $359,000 after a net loss of $3,313,000 during the first half. Sales for fiscal 1990 were $29,065,000 compared to $31,475,000 for fiscal 1989.

Sales and operations for fiscal 1990 were adversely affected by Hurricane Hugo which struck the company's principal manufacturing facility in Puerto Rico on Sept. 18, 1989, as well as labor strikes during the first half of fiscal 1990 at several Regional Bell operating companies, principal customers of the company.

As of June 29, 1990, approximately $1,935,000 out of a total estimated insurance claim of $2.8 million has been collected. The company is still negotiating its business interruption claim of approximately $900,000.

On Sept. 26, 1990, the company's lender banks agreed to reschedule the term loan principal payments on the company's outstanding debt. The commitment letter signed in this regard establishes a favorable new repayment schedule of varying quarterly installments beginning with $125,000 and escalating over the term, starting on Nov. 1, 1990 and ending May 1, 1995. The company also agreed to use $1 million of the insurance proceeds received to date and up to $500,000 of any additional proceeds to reduce existing loans.

The company is also in the process of completing negotiations with a federal agency to provide new loans of $2 million to the company. These funds, if they become available to the company, will be reserved for use principally in the company's facilities in Haiti and Dominican Republic primarily for capital projects, with a certain portion of the funds available for research projects in the United States.

As part of the commitment letter signed with the banks, the chairman of the company has agreed to sell a metal stamping/forming company and certain assets of a leasing company to the company for book values of approximately $4.2 million.

The company will purchase these for convertible redeemable preferred stock. The preferred stock will pay dividends at 10 percent per annum in the same class of preferred stock and is not redeemable until all present bank loans are repaid.

TII Industries Inc., with executive offices and R&D facilities in Copiague and manufacturing facilities in Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic and Haiti, is a high technology company specializing in the design, manufacture and sale of telephone network interface and protection products, surge protection and specialized electronic devices, principally for use in the telecommunications and computer industries.

Due to production delays in its new 1100 Vital Signs Monitor, actual shipments were $4,608,678 for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended Sept. 30, 1990 compared to $3,473,871 for the like period last year. PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Whitman's Chocolates, the nation's oldest producer of boxed chocolates, plans to restage and contemporize its product line as part of a major effort to expand the business by 1992 when the company celebrates its 150th anniversary, Jay G. Shoemaker, company president, announced Monday.

Shoemaker, who will personally oversee the implementation of the campaign, outlined the new initiatives which are ''designed to return us to the fundamentals of the business and emphasize the demonstrative quality that goes into all our products. 1992 is a landmark year for us so it is only fitting that we set our goals as a 150th birthday present to our customers and consumers.'' The bold new program consists of:

-- A completely new product line and in-store merchandising concept designed to move Whitman's to the forefront of the confectionary industry. The product line changes will leverage the consumer equities of the Whitman's Sampler, the largest-selling and most widely recognized boxed chocolate in the country.

-- The largest advertising and promotion plan in the company's 150-year history will back the relaunching of the product line in late 1991. This includes the distribution of more than 100 million coupons, special promotional packages, extensive public relations, and the resumption of a national advertising campaign.

-- The modernization of processing and packaging methods, begun three years ago, will be greatly expanded. This will mean greater flexibility in responding to customers' needs and design innovations.

-- Expansion of distribution, both domestically and internationally, is consistent with Whitman's goals to be readily available for consumer's impulse-gift-buying occasions.

Shoemaker will personally visit Whitman's customers over the next six months to obtain candid customer feedback on the improvement program. ''I hope they hit me with both barrels. I want to hear first-hand where they think we're weak and get their input on how we can make our products better,'' he added. ''I'm going to make changes where necessary for our mutual benefit.''

STAMFORD, CT (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Northeast Bancorp Inc. reported a loss of $5,674,000, or 78 cents per share for the third quarter as compared to net income of $8,815,000, or $1.11 per share, for the same period in 1989.

The company posted a loss of $35,478,000, or $4.89 per share, for the first nine months of 1990 versus net income of $26,485,000, or $3.34 in 1989.

Non-performing assets which include non-accrual, restructured loans and other real estate owned (O.R.E.O.) totaled $168,386,000 at Sept. 30, an increase of $30,377,000 from June 30, levels of $138,009,000.

The ratio of non-performing assets of total loans increased to 7.22 percent at Sept. 30, from 5.92 percent at June 30. The reserve for possible loan losses was increased to $75,201,000 for the quarter vs. $70,018,000 as of June 30, reflecting a provision for possible loan losses of $17,500,000 and net chargeoffs of $12,317,000.

Frank J. Kugler Jr., chairman of Northeast Bancorp Inc. announced that the company reduced its common-stock dividend to 18 cents per share, from the previous quarter of 35 cents per share, payable Nov. 10, to shareholders of record Oct. 25. Kugler indicated that given the level of economic uncertainty the dividend reduction was a prudent step at this time.

He further indicated that in spite of the bank's strong capital position the outlook for continued recession in Connecticut warranted this immediate capital retention measure. ''Preserving our strong capital base will give us the needed flexibility to grow during these difficult times.''

He further added that ''there are not many financial institutions in Connecticut as well capitalized as Northeast Bancorp which is a competitive advantage that we want to maintain.''

In commenting on the third quarter results, Kugler felt that salary and overhead expense reduction programs in conjunction with continued emphasis on loan quality are beginning to show signs of improving the company's financial outlook.

In particular, non-performing assets grew at half the rate from second to third quarter or $30,377,000 vs. a $66,380,000 increase from first quarter to second quarter. The effect of the nearly $6 million in salary savings from the salary reduction program completed Oct. 11 is expected to be fully realized in January 1991, but will have some effect on fourth quarter results after netting the cost of the severance program.

Northeast Bancorp Inc., is the parent company of Union Trust Co., NBI Mortgage Investment Corp., UT Finance Ltd. and Fairfield Properties Inc. With $3.3 billion in assets and 70 offices throughout the state, Union Trust is the third largest Connecticut-based commercial bank.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - TRW Inc. Monday reported higher sales for the period ended Sept. 30.

Net earnings and earnings per share declined.

Sales for the quarter rose 12 percent to $2.01 billion from $1.79 billion in the year-ago period. Operating profit decreased 10 percent to $129 million from $142 million in the comparable 1989 quarter primarily as a result of lower margins in the soft North American automotive market, and a reduction in the intangible assets associated with the computer refurbishing business.

Third quarter operating profit in 1989 benefitted from a gain related to the 1988 truck steering gear recall. Net earnings declined 23 percent to $46 million compared to $60 million in the comparable 1989 period, and fully diluted earnings per share were 75 cents vs. 98 cents in the year-ago quarter.

Third quarter net earnings were adversely affected by lower operating income, higher interest expense due to borrowings for business growth in occupant restraints, European expansion and acquisitions in automotive electronic controls, and a higher tax rate. Net earnings in the third quarter included $10 million in previously unrecognized income from a Mexican automotive affiliate.

For the first nine months, sales were up 13 percent to $6.10 billion from $5.42 billion in the 1989 period. Operating profit remained even at $450 million. Net earnings in this year's first nine months were $166 million, down 17 percent from $199 million in the comparable 1989 period. Fully diluted earnings per share were $2.68 compared to $3.22 in the first nine months last year.

''While we are not satisfied with our operating performance in these unusually difficult markets, we remain committed to our longer term strategies and continue to make substantial investments to pursue these unique growth opportunities. Clearly, one of our toughest immediate challenges is to reduce operating costs and improve profit margins,'' said Joseph T. Gorman, chairman and chief executive officer.

''We are pleased to see the continued solid performance of our space and defense business and the increase in occupant restraint systems sales. However, our near-term outlook is tempered by the ongoing softness in several of our markets and uncertainties in the world economy.''

TRW provides advanced technology products and services for the automotive, space and defense and information markets. The company's 1989 sales totaled $7.34 billion.

LITTLE ROCK, AR (OCT. 15) BUSINESS WIRE - Environmental Systems Co. (NYSE:ESC) reported Monday that the company's board of directors, at a meeting held Oct. 9, 1990, declared the regular quarterly dividend of $.4375 per share on the company's Series A convertible preferred stock, payable Dec. 1, 1990, to stockholders of record on Nov. 14, 1990.

In other news, the company reported today the Arizona Governor's office has announced that the public comment period for the draft Part B, long-term permit issued to the company by the State of Arizona under the Resource Conservation Recovery Act, relating to the company's planned Estrella Point integrated hazardous waste treatment facility under development near Mobile, Ariz., has been further extended from Oct. 3, 1990, until Nov. 3, 1990.

The company was informed that this action was taken in order to afford additional time for the public to comment on the report made Oct. 1, 1990, by the Governor's Hazardous Waste Technical Advisory Committee, a panel of private citizens appointed in July 1990 to review and report on concerns in Arizona associated with hazardous waste generation, transportation, storage and disposal in that state.

As a result of continuing delays in the project, the company estimates that even if the permit were issued in early 1991 without further delays or significant modifications, as to which the company has received no assurances, because of construction timetables the Arizona facility would not be able to begin operations before late 1991.

Environmental Systems Co. provides integrated hazardous waste management services to private industry, public utilities and governmental entities. These services include chemical analysis, collection, transportation, processing and incineration of hazardous waste.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (OCT. 15) COMTEX - A top administration official said today soaring oil prices will not cause a recession but will result in continued slow economic growth through mid-1991.

"Our best estimate is the economy will grow weakly in the fourth quarter and first quarter of next year," said Michael Boskin, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers.

Boskin added the administration expects the Gross National Product will be "a little below 1 percent in 1990 and little above 1 percent in 1991."

Boskin said the recent oil price jump, which has seen the cost of a barrel of oil soar to nearly $40 in the aftermath of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, will cause a short-term rise in the inflation rate.

"There will be a temporary increase in inflation as oil prices work their way through the economy," Boskin said, addressing the 10th annual convention of the American Stock Exchange at the Mayflower Hotel here. "Most likely there will be a temporary rise in inflation, after the energy crisis abates, it will get down to its long-term level."

Despite the general economic slowdown, Boskin said certain regions and sectors are growing at a steady pace.

"As our economy grows slowly, we have seen strengths in exports and consumer services," Boskin said. "Housing is weak, auto sales are weak. New England and the Northeast have slowed abruptly. The Northwest and farming economy are doing fairly well."

In order to prevent a further deterioration of the economy, Boskin said it is critical that a budget deficit program is enacted.

"The single most important thing we can do is to get a good, multi-enforceable deficit cutting package now," he said. "This gives the Federal Reserve elbow room to lower interest rates without sparking inflation fears, assuming the oil shock is of limited duration."

First data on third quarter GNP will be released at the end of the month and Boskin is expecting positive results.

"It will probably grow a little over 1 percent in the third quarter," he said.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (OCT. 15) COMTEX - Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Richard Breeden announced today his agency will host an intensive two-week seminar next March on the workings of U.S. securities markets for government officials from Eastern Europe and South America.

Entitled the International Institute for Securities Market Development, the course is designed to help East European nations evolve from centrally planned to market oriented economies and encourage South American countries to adopt Western-style stock exchanges.

"It's a two-week classroom structure with a framework of how U.S. markets operate," explained Breeden. "The faculty will be from the SEC, Federal Reserve, Treasury and World Bank."

The SEC chief, in remarks before the American Stock Exchange convention here, said he would be signing an agreement with Mexico later this week which would concentrate primarily on enforcement efforts.

"The agreement will exchange enforcement data and we'll work with our Mexican colleagues to develop markets in Mexico and South America," Breeden said.

In response to a question about a future SEC role in regulating stock index futures, which presently fall under the domain of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Breeden used his pulpit to rail against the present regulatory structure.

"The current system in which the U.S. fragments oversight leads to several damaging costs," Breeden said. "A single regulator would help to detect intermarket manipulation."

"I don't believe any market built on 98 percent leverage is a strong and stable market," Breeden added, referring to margins, or good faith money needed to trade in the futures markets.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and Breeden have led the fight for passage of a bill introduced by the administration which would transfer control of stock index futures from the CFTC to the SEC and provide federal oversight of margin requirements on stock index futures. The two have been frequent visitors to Capitol Hill, arguing passage is needed to prevent market volatility, restore individual investor confidence in the stock markets, and guard against manipulation and fraud in transactions between the stock and futures markets.

The measure in its present form appears to have little chance of approval, meeting stiff resistance from most members of congressional agricultural committees, who counter the legislation would unnecessarily disrupt the markets, fail to reduce market volatility, take business away from the futures markets, and endanger commercial market liquidity by requiring federal regulators to set margins.

Stock index futures allow investors to bet on the movement of a basket of stocks without buying the actual securities. Through computerized trading strategies, investors attempt to profit from the difference in the price of futures contracts on stock indexes and the corresponding stocks.

Speaking to reporters after his address, Breeden expressed frustration over the margin issue.

"The leverage question is utterly without justification," he said. "There is no public oversight whatsover of leverage practices of the stock index futures market."

Asked if his aggressive style hindered his lobbying efforts on Capitol Hill, Breeden responded, "I don't mind having it said I'm aggressive if that addresses a problem that risks 60 million people (who invest in the equities markets)."
